Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—The Cumberlands are the top of a capital bill here this week. They are trick cyclists of a very high order, and had a tremendous ovation. Webb and Branston, operatic duettists, were deservedly applauded for some excellently rendered duets; the Four Jumels provide a capital musical turn; the Claymore Trio are very clever, and their songs and patter much enjoyed; Rose Pink is a charming little serio and dancer; Jack Binns is a quaint comedian; and Vernon's Bioscope contributes considerably to the programme with some good pictures.

New Hippodrome.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—A series of very interesting pictures is being presented here this week.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—This week Mr. F. R. Benson is presenting the following plays:—The Merry Wives of Windsor, Twelfth Night, The Taming of the Shrew, Othello, The Merchant of Venice, and Julius Cæsar. On Monday night a fashionable audience witnessed The Merry Wives of Windsor, which was highly appreciated. Mr. Ross Shore played to a nicety the character of Sir John Falstaff; as Mrs. Ford Miss Mary Webb was pre-eminent, and was ably assisted by Miss Constance Bromley (Mrs. Page); Mr. Burgess-Barrett faithfully portrayed Dr. Caius; Mr. H. Lester did well as Sir Hugh Evans; Messrs. C. Warburton and John Cairns enacted the rôles of Ford and Page effectively; and Mr. Victor Hardy (Slender) delighted the audience with his quiet humour.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—A revival of the romantic comedy Robin Hood appeared to be much to the liking of the audience on Monday evening. On this occasion the company is under the direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross, who himself enacts Little John, with amusing results. In the title-rôle Mr. Ethelbert Edwards scores a legitimate success, looking the character, and fully deserving the high reputation he has attained in the part on tour. Miss Cahill is well endowed to undertake Lady Marian, and is particularly good in the later scenes; Mr. H. Elliot Bull throws vigour into his acting as the repulsive Prince John; as does Mr. Frank Litchfield as Hugo de Longespée. The Prince's other retainers are well portrayed by Mr. Ernest Gray, Mr. V. Smart Gotlop, Mr. Lambert Plummer, and Mr. Ralph Leon. Mr. J. N. Briant makes most of his chances as King Richard; Will Scarlet and Allan a'Dale are successfully impersonated by Mr. Laurence Tessler and Mr. Stenson Liddard, both gentlemen displaying vocal talent of no mean order in the ballads that they have to sing. Miss Laurie Flockton makes a winsome Adela, and Miss Madge Devereux likewise assists with pleasing skill as Alison. The small character of the Queen Dowager is becomingly filled by Miss Roberta Pulleyne.

Assembly Rooms.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Howes.—After a few weeks' absence, the Columbia Animated Picture company are again presenting an admirable kinomatograph entertainment, which appeals ot a large section of the public.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—H. C. Lovell and company, in the musical comedietta Mademoiselle Pom-Pom, fulfil their evident mission of causing laughter; Carlotta Levey sings a trio of chorus songs which go with a swing; the Royal Czar troupe of dancers put great energy into their national dances; as do the well-known San Remo Girls, who are always well received. Hicks and Hunter are the first to introduce dancing locally upon ice-skates, and their clever performance is loudly applauded; Frank Vallance proves himself an adept in a number of conjuring tricks; George Bendon, the white coon (with new songs), is always welcome; Rose Cass, comedienne, opens the programme, which, as usual, is closed by an exhibition of Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. E. Graham Falcon's pantomime Aladdin is being presented this week. Mr. J. G. Forde as the Magician proves a clever extempore vocalist; Miss Amy Bellwood is the dashing hero, and her songs, especially "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" are all well sung; Miss Daisy Kersey, a captivating Princess, acts with much grace, and the humour is well sustained by Mr. Albert Laurence, Mr. Will Burton, and Mr. Percy Galino. Miss Gipsy Hodgson is a charming tea-house girl, and Miss Gladys Warner is good as Souchong. The speciality entertainment in the second half is contributed to by Miss Amy Bellwood, Miss Edith Maynard, Miss Daisy Kersey, Miss Gipsy Hodgson, Miss Georgie Mansell, the Warners, the La Dor Troupe, and the Yokels.

BELFAST.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company opened here on Monday with Moths. In the rôle of Lord Jura Mr. Raynor was most successful; and a powerful impersonation of Zouroff was submitted by Mr. Cecil Wynne. Miss Henrietta Schrier was delightful as Fuchsia Leach; and it would indeed be difficult to excel Miss Cecilia Dare's impersonation of the Duchess de Sonnaz. Mr. Conrad Heywood was a sufficiently sentimental Corrinze; and Miss Lillian Revill-Davies a charming Lady Dolly. Mr. Leonard Lawrence ably sustained the rôle of Duke of Mull; and Miss Dorothy West-Symes appeared to much advantage as Vere Herbert. Mr. Charles R. Bickell as Boris completed the cast. The piece was well staged, and beautifully dressed.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. S. Salmond.—After some alterations, this old-established theatre opened on Monday as a drama house at cheap prices from 4d. to 1s. 6d. Mrs. Morton Powell's company provided the opening attraction with the powerful drama, How Girls are Brought to Ruin, which was produced for the first time on any stage as recently as the 25th ult. at Queen's Theatre, Liverpool. Mrs. Morton Powell acts with much skill as Winnie Waters, while the iniquities of Philip Edgar are done full justice to by Mr. Wallis Clark; Mr. Walter Steele is convincing as Harry Hailing; and Mr. Alrick Burton furnishes a powerful impersonation of Solomon Sleek. Much humour marks the interpretation of the rôle of Jack Josse by Mr. Sidney Bryant; and Miss Jeannie Risley is a capital Lucy Lawton. Miss Rona Merrick deserves praise for her emotional acting in the rôle of Jessie Burton; and Miss Constance Medwyn presents a good impersonation of the harsh stepmother.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Wood and Green top the bill in amazing feats; Callahan and St. George return after a short absence with their speciality The Old Country, in which Mr. Callahan's impersonation of an Irishman is inimitable; Darc's Marionettes afford the utmost enjoyment with their capital entertainment; and Hinton and Wootton, assisted by Miss Marion Wootton, appear to advantage in their football match on bicycles. Also here are W. Woolmer, vocal comedian; the Arthur Bedini Trio, in their pantomime act; Mr. Oliver Martyn, comedian; the Gilberts, in their wire act; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Fred Storey and company provide the leading attraction here with Rip Van Winkle, in which Mr. Storey appears in the title-rôle with the most gratifying success. Miss Lily Burnand returns to this city, and her new songs have afforded much satisfaction to many admirers; Mr. Alf Holt is a capable mimic and whistler; and Burnetti, described as the original character musician, gains a capital reception for his unique performance. Also here are Estrella, the clever Protean danseuse; Fayre and Manning; Miss Rhoda Paul, comedienne; and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—The series of pictures exhibited here are quite up-to-date, and include Nick Carter, Detective, How to Travel Cheaply, American Dance, Brave Children, A Stepmother, &c. In addition, Mr. Mark Anthony, comedian, appears with unbounded success; also Melvin and Max, speciality artists.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett the following films have been exhibited here: Kathleen Mavourneen, Deserter, Water Sprite, Father's Holiday, In a Submarine, &c. The Springfields appear with much favour in their illustrated songs; also Drenwood Bros., comedians.

Cliftonville Hall.—Resident-Manager, Mr. O. E. Laumann.—The new manager here, Mr. Laumann, is certainly doing his utmost to please the many thousands who are now patronising the rink. The mile championship so far as this city is concerned is fixed for this week, and the result is eagerly awaited. Many entries have been received by the courteous manager.

BILSTON.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Sexton Blake is being given here. In the name-part Mr. Jack Fortesque meets with conspicuous success; Mr. Ralph H. Grey makes the character of Randolph Lovell sufficiently obnoxious; Mr. Russell Barry is capital as the unfortunate Roger Blackburn, and Mr. Stanley Crump is amusing as the irrepressible Tinker. The character of Marjorie Lovell is depicted in a charming and refined manner by Miss Pauline C. Straus; Philadelphia Kate has a capable exponent in Miss Cecile E. Anson, and Miss Lilla Nordon does well as Euphemia Pattacake.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, with a spirited performance of The Dairymaids, presents a most enjoyable and attractive entertainment. Miss Isa Bowman is a charming representative of Peggy, her various songs being given with a delightful finish that receives hearty recognition. Mr. Dan Agar gives a really excellent rendering of Joe Mivens, in which he is ably seconded by Miss Edie Martin, who is an admirable Eliza. Lieut. Sam Brudenell is well played by Mr. Richard Telford; Mr. G. Scott Melville as Lieut. Meredith is also most efficient; and Dr. O'Byrne is capably embodied by Mr. Frank Barclay. Miss Babs Christopher is an excellent Lady Brudenell; Miss Kathleen Severn is well placed as Winifred; and Miss Kitty Kirwin appears to advantage as Miss Penelope Pyechase. Remaining parts are all adequately represented, and the comedy is carefully staged. The chorus and supernumeraries are well trained and effective.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The capital sketch Outflanked, ably produced by Mr. Henry Coutts' company, serves to show that gentleman's decided ability as a protean actor, and is deservedly high in favour. Mr. Phil Rees and his Stable Lads, in a well-sustained sketch Not a Crook, are an interesting turn; and a liberal programme is also contributed to by Maxwell and Frances, vaudeville artists; Mr. Fred Land, comic vocalist; the Carina Sisters, in a musical mélange; Miss Agnes Asher, comedienne; Mr. Bert Brantford, comedian; Miss Edie Anderson, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

Miss Sybil Arundale as the hero, Mr. Tom Foy as Idle Jack, and Mr. Fred Whittaker as the Cat, are the prime favourites, and the pantomime has now settled down for a "royal" run.

Prince of Wales's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston. — Boy Blue, with its clever and popular representative, Miss Hetty King, it attracting its thousands. There is a solid phalanx of talent here, which might well carry the pantomime on until Easter.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is bringing great fame to this popular pantomime house, contingents of the public being drawn from all and remote parts by its widely-known attractions.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Cinderella, tastefully presented by Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale, is making a pleasant stay here. A most entrancing presentment of the heroine is furnished by Miss Mollie Doone, who shows talent as well as beauty; the Ugly Sisters are rendered truly comical by Messrs. Wallace Whitney and Harry Plowden; the Danbys score in the rôles of Cuff and Kollar; and Fred Lake plays the Baron with hearty good humour; Mr. Leo Fields keeps the audience laughing and applauding as Buttons; Miss Vera Mayne makes a fine-looking Prince, and sings and acts, &c., with the utmost skill; and Miss Beattie Foster is very clever as Dandini. The Misses Cissie Gordon, Lily Hales, and Flo Burnett are prominent also, and an excellent chorus supports.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Face at the Window is being presented here, with Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale in the titular rôle, that of Lucio Delgado, otherwise "the Wolf." The fearsome qualities of the part adventuress, Leonore de Gresac, was ably represented by Miss Winifred Pearson; Mr. Harold Weston and Miss Laura Hansen were admirably suited as the Count and Countess Bellini respectively; Mr. Cecil Klein was amusing as Sir Victor Lascelles; and much fun was afforded by Mr. Walter Pemberton as Jack Hawkins and Miss M. Sadie as Polly Clarke. The remaining characters were satisfactorily sustained. The performances have attracted crowded audiences.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—There is an excellent company here this week. Picitt and Lizette are distinctly successful in their clever pantomimic act of illusion, The Crazy Cook; Burke, Andrews, and Frisco are very amusing in their spectacular absurdity, Trafalgar-square, London, 4 a.m.; C. Tamamoto, the Japanese perpendicular rope performer, is warmly applauded; the Paolias appear in a graceful athletic act; Cissie Esvaile, serio and dancer, is well received; Harry Villiers' character impersonations merit praise; Mostol submits a pleasing musical entertainment; George Payne is an eccentric comedian; Lena Leslie is a dainty comedienne; Johnny Cecil, light comedian, finds much favour; and the Alhambra Picturegraph comprises films interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. The popular prima donna, Madame Albani, who is enthusiastically received, delights the audience with finely-rendered arias from Italian operas and well-known songs and ballads. She is accompanied on the pianoforte by Mr. Victor Marmont, and violin obbligatos to some of her selections are given by Herr Zakovsky. Other turns are warmly appreciated. La Bella Greta is a pleasing singer and danseuse; the Werds are clever eccentrics; Signor Barbalonga, Italian baritone, is well received; W. T. Ellwanger is highly entertaining in the comedy sketch The Peacemaker; the Hesleb Brothers are diverting comedy artists; Herr Zakovsky wins hearty applause for his violin solos; the Eight 'Varsity Girls appear in A Vocal Evening with conspicuous success; Dorothy Gould is a dainty vocalist; the Columbia Comedy Trio score heavily in a delightful operatic and humorous absurdity; and effective turns are submitted by Fred Poplar, comedian, and Arthur Reece, light comedian.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company are here this week with The Beloved Vagabond. Mr. Norris displays finished acting in his impersonation of Gaston de Nerac; Miss Florence Tresilian as the strolling singer Blanquette achieves distinct success; Miss Nona Hoffe makes a charming Joanna Rushworth; Mr. Bert Morley gives a capital portrayal of Astiçot; and other characters are satisfactorily sustained by Mr. Theodore Kelly (the Curé), Mr. Fred Castlemain (Lord Rushworth), Mr. Edmund Sydney (the Comte de Verneuil), Mr. Guy O'Neil (Père Ciboulet), and Miss Caroline Fenton (an innkeeper).

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The animated pictures exhibited thrice daily here prove highly attractive. The Auto Heroine is a film of thrilling interest. A Duel in the Days of Richelieu is replete with stirring incidents, and very amusing are The Cabman's Wife and The Cumbersome Game. The Great Apache Dance is submitted by the Cinephone. The comedy sketch Black Justice is admirably performed by Barrasford's Sable Operatic Minstrel Troupe, whose efforts evoke the heartiest of laughter. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs' descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures merit warm commendation.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Up to the present time Aladdin appears to be breaking the record in the way of attendance. The pantomime is very popular with all classes, to which its varied features appeal. The scenery is very fine, the dresses are rich and tasteful, the artists are all clever in their respective parts, the songs obtain full appreciation, the vein of humour is well sustained, and the numerous dances introduced are attractive.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Little Red Riding Hood continues to attract full houses, the pantomime evidently suiting the taste of the patrons of the "old theatre." There is plenty of comic business, the songs are good and up-to-date, the scenery is very pretty, the dresses are all that can be wished for, and the company is an effective and hard-working one.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and company amuse with their musical comedy sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory. There are about twenty performers, and some good dancing is introduced by the Vera Troupe. Barton and Ashley entertain with their new farcical sketch, Adam the Second; Jack Lane does an exceptionally clever turn at the piano; Sam Williams, character vocal comedian, is appreciated; Yolande Noble, burlesque actress, presents a pleasing turn; Les Aribos do some very clever hand-balancing, somersaults, and equilibristic work; Tom Joy, comedian, obtains applause for his quaint songs; and the performance concludes with amusing animated pictures.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Donaldson Brothers have a splendidly staged comic interlude, entitled Sports in a Jungle, the various animals, birds, and reptiles being cleverly made up and impersonated; Fanny Robina, character vocalist, has some fine songs, her turn being exceptionally attractive; the Harvey Boys amuse with burlesque boxing, &c.; Mamie Fenton interests with Scotch songs and talk at the piano; Wright and Lawson do some good work as tumblers, contortionists, and dancers; Frank Boyce, comedian, is appreciated; Rezene and Rezene entertain with patter, &c., on the trapeze; Florrie Cooper is a pleasing descriptive vocalist; and Cole and Wood have a good comedy duologue. Interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — The Soldier's Wedding was presented by the author, Mr. Walter Melville, to a good house on Monday, when Mr. Wingold Lawrence made a fine hero of Jack Brown, and the heroine, Nancy Lee, was well represented by Miss Dorothy Richardson. Comedy is well sustained by Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Tommy Spratt, Little Albert as Teddy Munroe, and Miss Mattie Everett as Lizzie Walker. Villany has excellent exponents in Mr. Gerald Jordan as Charles Courtenay and Miss Marie McAulay as Julie de Beauvrais. Good work is also done by the other members, and especially by Mr. Beresford Whitecomb (Colonel James Graham), Mr. Fredk. Biron (David Munro), Mr. Fred Yarnold (Nathaniel Lee), Miss Mabel Lowe (Peggy Munroe), and Miss Alice Campbell (Mrs. Hatherton).

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's capital company is delighting good houses in the thriling play, With Edged Tools. Mr. J. A. Rosier is an imposing Sir John Meredith; and Mr. Chas. Hartopp gives a manly performance as Guy Oscard. William F. Grant is praiseworthy for his representation of Jack Meredith; and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid gives a fine study of the repulsive Durnovo; Mr. Graham Pockett is good as Maurice Gordon; pretty and womanly is Miss Marie Leonhard as Jocelyn Gordon; and Miss Alice Esther Belmore is fascinating as Millicent Chyne; whilst Miss Florence Dunhulty as Lady Herries is convincing.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Captain Maximilian Gruber and Miss Adelina's horse, pony, and wonderfully-trained elephant, present a clever and pleasing performance; Francis Gerard, Herculean juggler, with his comedy assistant, performs smart feats, and is warmly applauded; Miss Ruby Bijou contributes neat barefoot dancing; and Jan B. Vaubert, illusionist and smoke painter, provides a clever turn. Mark Cowan, burlesque comedian, appears with success as "The Merry Widow"; and Miss May Loftus is an excellent exponent of clog dancing; Mr. Tom Garland, ventriloquist, causes much laughter with his drolleries; and The Life of a Chick is capitally illustrated by the Empire Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—A return visit is paid by Lew Lake and company of comedians, in My Pal Jerry, and is productive of endless fun; Edie Veno is a vivacious comedienne, with an excellent style and good songs; whilst Mysticus provides a turn of illusions which are neatly and cleverly performed. Lisbon and Barker cause screams of laughter with their part-singing; and equally mirth-provoking are the Gallimore Trio, in their absurdity. Miss Nora Desmond has two capital illustrated songs; and Poole and Maguire are an excellent comedy duo. Rosie Reval, in comedy dancing, is appreciated; and the picture by Raymond's Bio-tableaux, The Mysterious Thief, is very funny.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Woman and Wine, as enacted by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company, is proving popular fare here. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds makes a powerful Dick Seymour; Miss C. St. Elmo as Marcel Rigadout and Miss Octavia De Noel as La Colombe, are forcible exponents of those sinister characters; an intelligent rendering of Mary Andrews is furnished by Miss Violet Sims; Mr. Harry Harrop is a versatile and amusing Charles Sauter; and a clever character study of Caliban is presented by Mr. Edwin T. Kisby.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—A distinctly original and clever exhibition of trick cycling by the Daunton-Shaw Troupe meets with well deserved applause; Arthur Croxon is a refined comedian and mimic; Harry Drew possesses a fine bass voice; Stelling and his dog are popular; contralto songs are well rendered by Rose Gower; Rowlands and Ford are an enjoyable turn; and Henri Bekker, in his display of mystery, is popular.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—Genuine humour is crowded into Sandy McNab's Scotch sketch, entitled The Egyptian Mummy, and the turn, which excites the heartiest laughter, has a most flattering reception; Lallie Brooke is interesting in a song scena, "The Old Sundial"; Tod Lowen is an entertaining comedian; and other good turns include Jack Hartley, comedian; Jackson and Marte, eccentrics; the Cameo Troupe, clever acrobats; Mona Vivian, juvenile comedienne; and The 10.40 Express, shown on the Bioscope.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—A highly-amusing piece was presented here on Monday night, when Toddles, with Mr. Murray King in the name-part, was received with delight. Mr. King is always good, and was screamingly funny in the part; Mr. Ardene Linden was entertaining as Jobiyn; Miss Evelyn Shelley as Mrs. Jobiyn made an excellent character of the part, and rendered Mr. King most valuable assistance; Mr. Alick Chumley was good as Freddy Gunner, as was Mr. G. Douglas Cox as Hasiitt; Mr. I. V. Bryant (Dr. Baird), Mr. Mattie Cheshire (Boolby), and Mr. Alexander Lee were all diverting. Miss Naomi Neilson made the most of Lady Dover; Miss Ada Champion was all that could be wished as Comtesse de Chambry; Miss Mabel Ormonde (Mrs. Bower), Miss Doris Langdon (Constance Jobiyn), and Miss Iris Hamilton (Pussy) all acted the parts most charmingly.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Redford opens this week, after his pantomime triumphs, with a visit from the eminent actor Mr. Martin Harvey, who is exceptionally popular in this district. On Monday The Lost Heir was presented to a large audience, and exceptional enthusiasm and appreciation were aroused by the performance. Mr. Martin Harvey submitted his remarkable interpretation of Edgar Ravenswood, and achieved a triumph; Miss N. de Silva as Lucy Ashton is pathetic and powerful; Miss Mary Rorke's Lady Ashton is a convincing impersonation; Mr. Philip Hewland fills the rôle of Bucklaw with much ability; Mr. Charles Glenney's Captain Craigengeit is particularly praiseworthy; Sir William Ashton receives a faithful delineation from the skilled hands of Mr. Albert E. Raynor; and Mr. Percy Foster's Caleb Balderstone is a fine exposition. Mr. Alfred Mansfield gives a weird representation of Ailsie.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Joseph Hart's company is here in a novel fantasy entitled Polly Pickle's Pets in Petland. Nothing prettier could be imagined than Haley's company of vocalists and dancers in The Garden of Girls; Jack Lorimer, versatile Scotch comedian, is distinctly humorous; a smart and original comedietta, entitled The Airship, is presented by the McConnel Trio; Tom Moore, character comedian, is a first-rate entertainer; Cline and Clark are expert dancers; and Elly Adair (Irish comedienne and dancer), Stella Stahl (comedienne and dancer), Arthur Aldridge, and the Bioscope complete.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—Aladdin opened here on Monday. Miss Marie Wall, in the title-rôle, is vivacious and irresistible; Miss Emmie Cozens as the Princess is captivating; Miss Cissie Conran (Pekoe) and Miss Ruby Hayes (So-Shi) do exceptionally well; Mr. Harry Rose (Emperor Ski-Hi) and Mr. George Helm (Abanazar) cause much laughter; and Mr. Bob Stephenson's Widow Twankey abounds in witty sayings. The glees by the Welsh Sextette, the smart juggling turn by Staffo (So-long), and the speciality dances by Snip and Snap help the success.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The Bouncing Dillons occupy the premier position here, and their bouncing competition at each performance is a source of delight; Deans and Wilton, comedy acrobats, gain hearty applause; Les Elgonas are sensational gymnasts; the Garricks, in a song-scena, "go down" well; and others who contribute to the bill of fare are the Sisters Clare (duettists and dancers), Nellie Moore (character actress), the Garden Quintette of International dancers; and A-Ba-Be's "Picture Postcard Album."

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Company (North) commenced their third annual engagement here on Monday night. The Taming of the Shrew was the piece chosen for the opening performance, and a splendid house gave a warm welcome to the well-chosen company of artists engaged in a production of all-round excellence. Mr. Henry Herbert again appeared as Petruchio, and was, if possible more successful than ever; Mr. James Berry's Baptista was well conceived and well played; Mr. Robert Atkins as Lucentio made an excellent lover of Bianca, who was impersonated with lively vivacity and fine judgment by Miss Violet Farebrother; Messrs. Victor Wiltshire and Cyril Sworder made the humorous characters Gremio and Hortensio stand out prominently; Katherine was an unmistakable shrew in the hands of Miss Gladys Vanderzee, her assumption of rage and fearful shrieks in the early scenes contrasting most forcibly with her air of subjection in the later ones. Her finished performance met with unqualified approval. Mr. Charles Sparrow as Vincentio, Mr. Edward Vanderlip as Tranio, Mr. Arthur Fayne as Grumio did good work, and the numerous minor characters were done full justice to. Twelfth Night, Othello, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The School for Scandal, The Merchant of Venice, and Henry the Fifth are billed for presentation during the week.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Berzac's comedy animal act is the special attraction this week. The undriveable mule Maud proves a stumbling block to aspiring jockeys; three beautiful little ponies are admired for their clever tricks, and the revolving table is the source of infinite amusement; Thomas and Taylor in a novel quick-change act, and Edie Coolville, a charming vocalist and dainty dancer, are popular turns; Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, is heard to great advantage, his capital chorus song "She was a grand old lady," meeting with an enthusiastic reception; Spencer and Marks are wonderfully agile dancers; the Westbrooks contribute a clever and graceful dancing scena entitled Two Little Maids from School, which is smartly and effectively worked. The pictures by the Pepiscope, which are unusually interesting this week, gain in popularity.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—This week Mr. D. V. Crossley has presented The Babes in the Wood. Miss May Hopkins as Robin Hood was an unqualified success, and Mr. Ted Hopkins was inimitable as Lewis Bach; Mr. Dick Hopkins as Evan Bach was a thorough success; the little sisters Effie and Dunnie Sinclair shone as the Baron's wards; Miss Jean Beresford made a charming Phyllis; Mr. George Grant was an amusing Belinda; Miss Ethel Rainsforth an effective Marion; Mr. George Kelly excellently impersonated Baron Hardup; Polini and Marjorie were in the capable hands of Miss Enid Lane and Miss Ada Lawrence respectively; Friar Tuck found a worthy exponent in Miss B. Robson; Miss Edith Rainsforth was delightful as Glory de Digon, Miss Ella Chester as Allan-a-Dale, and Miss Ione Turner as Maybud. Miss Ellanene Gastella was a decided success as Fairy Sunshine. The costumes and scenic effects were of a high order.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—This week Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is paying a first visit here with For Love of the Princess. Care and taste are displayed in the various settings, and the large audience on Monday thoroughly appreciated the play. Mr. Wilson Coleman's impersonation of Prince Conrad is perfect in every detail, and is characterised by an easy and natural bearing that adds considerably to the effect; Miss Maisie Hanbury's Princess Idalia is acted with grace, dignity, and refinement; Mr. Graham Winsford bears himself in right regal fashion as the Prince Regent; Mr. E. Imeson emphasises the villainous character of Count Danillo with much skill, while Lieut. Zaroff is played with marked ability by Mr. Douglas B. Watson. The debased and debauched King Josef has a capital representative in Mr. E. H. Dobell; Mr. Beckett Bould has formed a highly interesting conception of Lieut. Orlans; Messrs. Francis Serle and Edgar Morgan keep the house highly amused in the respective parts of Duke Scarfe and Boris; Miss Olive Lloyd gives a delightful study of Lady Irene, and Miss Nellie Graham makes a good Sister of Mercy.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Emerson.—Topping the bill are Woods, Wells, and Wilkins in a sketch The Pianoforte Tuner. They possess rich and well-trained voices, and their part songs are interspersed with some really excellent and delightful fooling. Martin Conway's quaint business and funny songs win an enthusiastic reception; The Irtams in their great pot-pourri act are in popular favour; Fred Ellis is a great favourite with a couple of songs, sung with dash and spirit; the Della Sisters sing in a most enjoyable manner, and are encored; La Bella Marco gives a pleasing and graceful performance on the trapeze, and is applauded; Mart and Pep are a youthful pair who give a splendid display of muscular feats and exhibitions of strength; and Chas. Denton's songs are good and he is a smart dancer. The Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are particularly good.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Lyons Trio are creating merriment in their Farmyard Absurdity; Chas. Geoffrey and company are deservedly applauded for their sketch entitled His Father's Teacher; Fraser and French are nimble dancers; Fred Herbert has some up-to-date songs; Adelaide Waldorf's chorus songs go well; and Maddison and Webb (the Idiot and the Soubrette) and Julia Gilbert also appear.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—John Clempert tops the bill here, and thoroughly mystifies his audience by his escape from a galvanised iron tank filled with water, a feat which creates a sensation. Frank Seeley is a prime favourite with all; the Menzies have an amusing duologue, The Suffragette; and others in the bill are Campkin, the tramp cyclist; Bessie Lind, comedienne; Austin and Coward, a pair of vocal entertainers; and Lillian French, comedienne and dancer.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Norman V. Norman fulfils a welcome annual engagement this week, assisted by Miss Beatrice Wilson and selected company, for the first part of the week presenting The Adventure of Lady Ursula and for the second half Under the Red Robe. Mr. Norman is again seen to advantage in the dignified and manly rôle of Sir George Silvester; and Miss Wilson is a gallant, youthful Lady Ursula Barrington; Mr. Reginald O. Lamb is capital as the quarrelsome Mr. Dent; Mr. Norman Leslie acts gracefully as the pleasant Mr. Castleton; and Messrs. G. W. Robinson, F. A. Flower, and J. Ashford do well as Mr. Devereux, Mr. Ward, and Sir R. Clifford; Mr. F. Lock plays with sufficient spirit the part of the Earl of Hassenden; Mr. Herbert Russell is excellently placed as the Rev. Mr. Blimboe; Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips plays with effect as Dorothy Fenton; and Miss Ethel Coleridge is good as Mrs. Fenton; Mr. A. E. Mayne does well as Quilton, and Messrs. Cyril Percy and H. Prett figure in the cast as servants.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—An excellent variety company opens this week with the Marvellous Jees topping the bill; Cynthia Brooke is a comedienne of merit, and as a humorist and mimic Revill Hall is smart and entertaining; the Victoria Troupe excel as instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers; Harry Meegan is an eccentric comedian of merit; and Renee Grahame deserves praise for her finished vocalism. Henry and Tyler amused and amazed the house with their exhibition of smart comedy cycle tricks. An interesting show of pictures by the Premier Imperial Biograph completes the bill.

CHORLEY (LANCS).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. Frederick Melville's capital company, under the management of Mr. Harry A. Dooley, is here this week with Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Harry Lonsdale makes an exceptionally fine George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector is decidedly good as Charles Devereux; Mr. Wilfred Mansfield undertakes Sir George Lancaster with conspicuous success; Mr. Conrad Shalford wins approbation as the Rev. Mr. Dean; Timothy Tuttut is humorously portrayed by Mr. Fred De Vere; Lucy is well undertaken by Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne; Miss Florence Hunt is responsible for an exceptional impersonation of Lady Lucretia; Miss Grace Lester well sustains the character of the Mother Superior; Patty Lovejoy being vivaciously rendered by Miss Grace Emery.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company occupies the boards here this week with Married to the Wrong Man. Mr. Oswald Cray delighted the audience with his impersonation of Jack Gladwin; Mr. H. Lane Bayliff made the most of Captain Deering; Mr. Charles Vivian proved a typical Jasper Skinner; and the comedy element was cleverly looked after by Mr. Sid Claydon as Timothy Clinker. Miss Gertrude Boswell in the difficult part of Ruth was thoroughly enjoyed, and deserved the applause accorded; Miss Violet Vincent was well cast as Mother Snaggs, and Miss Dorothy Haigh gave an admirable rendering of Rose O'Connor.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Messrs. Austin and Dixon's Mother Goose pantomime opened a week's engagement here on Monday. In the title-rôle Mr. Sydney James proves himself a comedian, siffleur, and ventriloquist; Mdlle. Le Mair is a charming Queen of the Ballet; as Fairy Miss Gertrude Bond sings delightfully; Miss Mabel Austin looks nice as Lubin; and Miss Winnie Murray and Miss Cissie Astbury prove popular. Ragian and Firth provoke mirth as knockabouts, and Ted Lockstone and Jack Harrington also introduce humour. Mr. Nicklin Williams sings capital songs

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The attraction here is Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's pantomime The House that Jack Built, performed on Monday before a large audience, who expressed their highly-favourable opinion of it by their hearty laughter and applause. Some good topical hits, songs, &c., are introduced with capital effect. Mrs. H. B. Levy must be complimented on the taste and skill displayed in the dresses. The company, numerous and capable, embraces Miss Florrie Taylor (Jack), Mr. H. Hellerby (Aunt Purdy), Miss Gladys Wyse (Wee McGregor), Mr. W. McNaughton (Squire Bounce), Miss P. Blanchard (Tommy Tucker), Miss Olive Woodbridge (Dollie Dimple), Miss G. Whalley (Little Jack Horner), Miss Evelyn Major (Jill). The specialities are by Doyle and Gibson, who keep the house in roars, Wee Gladys Wyse, Horace Hellerby, and Florrie Edwards, capital dancers. There is little doubt that the excellent company will draw good audiences for the rest of the week.

DALY'S NEW HALL.—Lessee Mr. John Cottrells; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Campbell.—A capital programme is being presented here this week. The pictures shown include the following:—Richard III., The Puritan Maid, The Workman's Revenge, The Fire, Wonderful Mirrors, and Dowry Hunting.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Prodigal Son is on a return visit this week, being presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is again seen to advantage in the part of Magnus Stephenson; Mr. Gordon Macintosh upholds the part of Oscar to perfection; and Miss Valerie Crespin gives skilful renderings of Thora and Elin.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. E. Wright.—The principal turn this week is provided by the engagement of Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, who combine a very clever illusionist performance with some smart comedy. They keep the audience in roars of laughter. Lady Mansel's juveniles, in their act A Concert Rehearsal, give some pretty dancing and good inging; the Fauldy troupe of Hungarian acrobats do remarkable feats; George Rae, Scottish comedian, exhibits an original style of dancing; and other artists who contribute to the evening's enjoyment are the Haverleys, American songsters, Willard's Merry Manikins, and Lettie and Florence, dancers and duettists. The Bioscope films are particularly good.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco—The programme presented this week is being received by large audiences. Philip Levard heads the bill as an illusionist who performs mystifying and amusing tricks; Woodhouse and Wells proye very entertaining as comedians and patterers; a smart turn is given by Emerson and Baldwin as comedy jugglers and club manipulators; Lanos and Montes are a couple of clever gymnasts; Marjorie Cannon is an entertaining comedienne; George Collins as the Gibson Girl is well received; Billy McLain and company present their latest creation, The Coloured Aristocrats; and Messrs. H. Rigwell and company appear successfully in an amusing sketch, The Lady Chauffeur. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. J. P. Moore's comic pantomime Dick Whittington is playing to crowded houses this week. Miss Madge Lock as Dick plays in a fascinating and vivacious manner; Mr. Percy Victor as Alderman Fitzwarren keeps the fun going in an able manner; Mr. Willie Oswald as Idle Jack is also responsible for much of the humour; and Mr. Fred May as the Cook ably assists. Mons. Pauletti is an interesting Cat; and Mr. E. Ellmore as the Emperor. Mr. H. Willatts as the Demon Rat, Mr. F. Street as Captain Bunting, and Miss Lilas Grey as Viscount Piccadilly deserve special mention.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred Cuthbert.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company in The Girl Who Lost Her Character attracted a capital house on Monday. Miss Doris Brookes as Molly Vernon proved herself an actress of ability; Miss Cherry Veheyne gave a clever study of Rose Seymour; Miss Lydia Mannington was a successful Marian Franklyn; and Miss Maime Thorpe enlivened the play in the comedy part of Isabella Jones. Mr. Richard Ferris played Captain Geoffrey Caversham perfectly; Mr. Geo. Mitchell submitted a careful reading of James Sutton; Mr. Edward McLean capably portrayed the Rev. Robt. Everton; Mr. C. W. Standing filled the dual rôles of Jack England and Private Johnson excellently; Mr. Geo. H. Asquin was an amusing Dick Punch; and Mr. Augustus Bowerman an effective Detective Weathersby.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. F. W. Bolam is presenting The Sins of Society here. Mrs. Murgatroyd; Miss Beatrice Hodson makes a lovable Lady Gwendolen Ashley; Miss Vita Spencer is full of life and spirit as Lady Goldbury; Miss Janet Hodson is an aristocratic Duchess of Danebury; Miss Grace E. Leslie acts with effect in the rôle of Lady Marion Beaumont; and Miss Sepha Julians deserves a word as a milliner. Mr. C. F. Collins accurately interprets the part of Noel Ferrers; Mr. E. Vassall Vaughan makes a manly Sir Dorian March; Mr. Arthur Ransom is commendable as Mr. Thesiger; Mr. Edward Lewis is always amusing as James Hogg; Mr. Frederick Annerley acts with precision in the character of Mr. Morris; Mr. Edwin Palmer submits a capital character sketch of Parker; and praise is also due to Messrs. William Fenton (Captain Carruthers), James Miles (Police Inspector), and Ernest Stanley (Captain Thorp).

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Anthony.—The American Bioscope pictures are still the attraction here. The programme includes Mr. Bert Williams, elocutionist; Miss Beatrice Vere, contralto; and Mr. Ernest Tilley, tenor.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Eugene Stratton, the inimitable coloured comedian, is causing a great sensation here; Dora Lyric is a first-rate comedienne with a fine voice; Mendel gives a clever performance at the piano; Joe Reichen's dog show is an exceptionally good turn; Phil Bransby is a smart coster comedian; Stella Dell, comedienne, is neat; Harry Taft is a creditable whistling comedian; the Bioscope pictures are interesting; and Carlotta de Yonson acts splendidly as Leah Coercell in the detective dramette Sexton Blake. C. Douglas Carlile is great in the title-rôle; Lee Gilbert does well as Tinker; and C. A. Carlile makes the most of his opportunities as the Master Criminal.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Dick Whittington is here this week. Miss Florrie Gallimore, a delightful Dick, works hard, and her numbers are enthusiastically encored; Miss Josie Delaine as Alice is very graceful, her dancing and singing being excellent; Miss Rose Tilly looks the part of Viscount Piccadilly to perfection; Miss Rose Alderman sings charmingly as the Fairy; Mr. H. O. Wills as Idle Jack is full of humour; Mr. Jack Mackenzie as the Dame is funny; King Rat is finely played by Mr. Leo King; Mr. J. Wood and Mr. T. E. Fields do good work as Alderman Fitzwarren and Officer Tarpaulin; and Mr. Alf Clegg is a good Cat. There are specialities by the Herald Comedy Four, who are well received for their comedy glee singing; also the Harwood Juveniles.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—The chief turn is provided by Mr. Dave Samuels, the American Hebrew comedian, who is highly appreciated; Miss Lily Langtry's well-rendered songs win applause; Freedo and Preston are expert dancers; Lozelle is a clever gymnast; and the Athos Troupe, ball manipulators and acrobats; Talbot and Pearce, in their Japanese duologue Yo-San; Bi-Bo-Bi, eccentric musician; and the Pepiscope are other items in a strong bill.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company is here in The Babes in the Wood. Leslie and Marjorie (the Babes) are in the hands of Peggy McDonnell and Cissie Wyse, two clever juveniles; Miss Daisy Wood plays Robin Hood in good style; and Miss Jennie Hughes makes a charming Fairy Dewdrop, her singing being much appreciated. Miss Dolly Dodds is a great favourite as Maid Marion. Fun is supplied by Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple, Messrs. Graham and Barron as the Ruffians, Mr. Jimmie Watson as Nurse Lucinda, and Mr. Neil Hardy as the Baron. Charming dances are introduced, the Statue Ballet and the Birds' Ballet deserving special mention.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company are here this week with The Flag Lieutenant. Mr. Lionel Atwill as Richard Lascelles gives a delightful performance; Major Thesiger has a manly exponent in Mr. H. Montague Love; as Sir Berkeley Wynne Mr. Geo. Mallett plays to perfection; and Mr. Edward S. Petley is in every way successful as Surgeon Crutchley. Mr. John Wheatman as Michael Pallister submits a clever character sketch; and Mr. Hugh Wakefield and Mr. Lionel Watts as the two midshipmen deserve praise. General Gough-Bogle is well played by Mr. W. J. Yeidman; while Miss Stella Leigh makes a praiseworthy Mrs. Gough-Bogle. It would be impossible to speak in terms too commendatory of Miss Florence Jackson as Mrs. Cameron; while as Lady Hermione Wynne Miss Vera Birkett is responsible for a charming assumption. Miss Marjorie Dove as Viola Hood and Miss Winifred Valiant as Lady Dugdale are well suited in their parts.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The principal turn here this week is given by the Maningos, Continental equilibrists; the Three Canards in their dancing act are also successful. Renee Glendower and company cause much merriment in the sketch entitled A Bit Too Clever; Nellie Walton, a singing mill girl, is to be congratulated upon her reception; the Ringling Trio, in their knockabout absurdity The Manager's Lunch are as amusing as ever; Brothers Carney in their vocal scena are praiseworthy; and Arthur Hickman is an agreeable vocalist. The Bioscope concludes a good programme with a dramatic film.

DEVONPORT.—HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor. A shortened version of David Garrick proves highly popular, Mr. Frank Fenton undertaking the chief part with pronounced success; the Jen-Ji troupe of Japanese magicians give a wonderful display of juggling and conjuring, some of the turns completely mystifying the audience, who are loud in their demonstrations of approval; Reg. Bolton as the office boy of the Daily Rag supplies an amusing journalist skit, whilst his vocal efforts are an additional attraction; Kenrick and Laura furnish some popular melodies, which receive due measure of appreciation; Ellis and Ellis are picturesque international dancers, and the Arntes coon songs and dances are very pop point of numbers which has ever been sent out of London, and the largely augmented orchestra, were under the skilful direction of Mr. Andrew Maccunn.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Heading a fine bill here are the miniature marvels Les Piccolinos, who go through a really wonderful performance; a warm welcome is extended to Teddy Edmonds and company in a sporting farce entitled The Lady Jockey; Tiny Arnold sings and dances herself into favour; the Sisters Wynne, gorgeously attired, sing catchy ditties with joyousness; the Millwards come in for hearty applause; Fred Vallance infuses much humour into his ventriloquial act; Edwards and Dacre are successful in a clever comedy duologue; Marie Raymond pleases as a ballad vocalist; and Carl Colyer is distinctly funny in his songs and patter. The Palascope, with some fine pictures, completes.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee, Mr. W. E. Potts; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Evans.—A strong attraction here is Mr. Augustine Knight's company in The Assassin. Miss Ella Vane as the Countess Wanda (the Assassin) gives a powerful rendering; Mr. Augustine Knight as Prince Demetri proves himself an actor of resource; Mr. John Worth is an excellent Ivan; Mr. Murray Hathorne a comical Baron Alphonse; and humour is supplied also by Mr. Harry Liddle as Peter and Miss Katie Lever as Katrina.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Ross.—In addition to a fine picture programme, the Lombards in a clever equilibristic act and Joe Dale, a humorous comedian, are meeting with acceptance.

Newman's Picture Palace.—Crowded houses are the rule at Mr. Fred Newman's house, where a large selection of dramatic and humorous pictures are on view this week. An excellent variety turn is given by Zenora, hand jumper, and amusement is caused by a novel barrel boxing competition.

Gilfillan Hall.—Some very fine films are exhibited here by the Dundee City Concerts and Entertainments Company, Ltd. Amongst the most popular are:—Retribution, A Gentleman's Son, Brave Children, The Two Brothers, and a laughable film entitled The Roller Skating Craze. An enjoyable turn is provided by Bill Walters, ventriloquist; Ernest D. Jones is a smart accompanist.

Roller Skating Rink.—Managing-Directors, Mr. C. P. Crawford and Mr. F. A. Wilkins; Manager, Mr. Bert Crump.—Rinking is all the rage in Dundee at present, and vast crowds are to be seen disporting themselves daily at this spacious and well-appointed rink. A grand charity night was held on Wednesday for the benefit of the Dundee Unemployed Fund, under the patronage and presence of Lord Provost Urquhart, magistrates, and Town Council.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company appeared here on Monday in His Wife No Longer. Mr. Archie Helsby was a very powerful Anthony Merivale; Mr. E. Paul Neville a good Harold Medworth; Mr. Edmund Grogan a creditable Rev. Frank Willacy; Mr. A. B. Douglas a capable Daniel Trench; Mr. David McFarlane put in good work as Tommy Oglethorpe; Miss Rosa Mervyn proved herself a capable actress as Mrs. Merivale; Miss Emmie Barton made a sweet Marion Jefferies; and Miss Nellie Lawson left nothing to be desired as Lucy Hooper. A Woman's Passion has also been played.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan's company is appearing here in a bright, attractive, and wholesome pantomime, Cinderella. As a couple of effective comedians Mr. Freddie French and Mr. Ted Young would be difficult to improve upon; the former as the diminutive Baron Hercules helps largely to provide much hearty laughter, and the latter as the expansive Tiny creates endless fun; Mr. Arthur White is a smart Capers, whose speciality act is one of the hits of the evening; Mr. Leslie W. Harris is a smiling, cheery, and buoyantly happy Dandini, whose songs are rendered in pleasing effective style, and Mr. Harry Carlisle is a satisfactory Joseph. In the part of Cinderella Miss Nora Wadelry appears very successfully and her quiet, graceful manner is very pleasing; Miss Agnes Tandy has a fine figure and voice, and as Prince Casimir she does all her work with delightful swing and animation; Miss Alice Inman does excellent work in characteristic style as Araminta; Miss Emily Stevens, whose singing and acting are full of brightness, is a most efficient Elvira; Miss Mabel Rose's efforts are very commendable as Fairy Godmother; Miss Dollie Hook, dainty and sprightly, does capitally as Duke of Whistbridge; Miss May Edbrook is a handsome Snow Queen; and many other shapely ladies ably complete the cast.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. G. Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Mr. Joe Belmont, heading the bill, treats the audience to some wonderful whistling and imitations of birds, and he is deservedly popular; Mr. Martell is an astonishingly clever equilibrist; Cling and Clancy are a talkative comedy couple, who provide many laughs; Mr. Will Musgrave renders his songs in quaint original fashion; Miss Lizzie Kirk sings with much point and effect; Miss Lucy Gillet juggles and balances smartly, and new films of the disasters in Messina are shown. Mr. Gordon Brown, a pleasing Scottish baritone, renders his songs very tastefully.

The Pier Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company is appearing here in The Dandy Fifth, and a particularly able company work brightly to produce a most effective performance. Mr. Arthur Radcliff is a handsome Dick Darville, singing in really excellent manner; Mr. Charles Sims supplies capital fun as Sergeant Milligan; Mr. Coningsby Brierly is a smart and animated Trooper Brown; Mr. Percy Baverstock is a spirited and peppery Colonel; Mr. Jack Leyland sings remarkably well as Sir Victor; Miss Una Palmer is a delightful and unusually good Kate Lorimer; Miss Maud Nichols deserves full praise for her work as Mrs. Von Blitzen; Miss Nora Morra gives able, efficient help as Polly, and Miss Dorothy Clarke is an eminetly satisfactory Antoinette. Mr. Clarence C. Corri is the musical director.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manger, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Captain Ben Harris's novel boxing competition creates an immense amount of fun; Slippere, the blind entertainer, meets with marked approval; Willie, Wild, and West, the bounding navvies, are popular; Leonard Charburn's troupe of children are a credit; the Roxbys (Phil and Kitty) prove taking; Evelyn and Norrie in sketch Set a Thief put in some good work; Jim Cunliffe renders several catchy ditties; Monty Walker is responsible for much mirth; Frank E. Ford gives a clever exhibition of clog dancing; and the earthquake and ruins of Messina are depicted on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company entered on a fortnight's engagement here with a performance of Wagner's Lohengrin. Mr. Philip Brozel, in the name part, sang with considerable robustness and power, although a little more suavity in the softer passages, particularly in the Farewell to the Swan song, would have been an improvement. Mme. de Vere Sapio rendered the beautiful music of Elsa with taste and dramatic power, and in the Balcony scene she sang with simplicity and charm. Miss Marie Louise Rogers appeared as Ortrud. She possesses a powerful mellow voice and a good dramatic method; but her enunciation is not quite perfect. Mr. William Dever, vocally and dramatically, made an excellent Frederick of Talramund; Mr. Charles Magrath was dignified as the King, and his sonorous voice was heard to advantage, and Mr. R. Cliffe made an effective Herald. The chorus, augmented by the Edinburgh Grand Opera Society, rendered the difficult music with precision of attack, sweetness, and tonal power, "The Swan Chorus" being an especially fine effort. The orchestra played splendidly under the able direction of Herr Richard Eckhold. On Tuesday Tschaikowsky's Eugene Onegin was given with a strong cast. The chief honours of the evening fell to Mme. Fanny Moody, who, as Tatriana, was in grand voice. By her beautiful vocalisation, clear articulation, and dramatic style she invested the part with distinction and charm. Mr. Charles Manners as Prince Gremin had not much to do, but what he did was on thoroughly sound lines. His superb rendering of the song "At every step sweet love is master," in the last act, was an education in vocal expression, and the audience insisted on an encore. Mr. Lewys James did every justice, by his vocal and dramatic ability, to the part of Eugene Onegin, and as Lenski Mr. Seth Hughes sang with great effect. Mr. M. Cassini made a decided hit as Triquet, his song in praise of Tatriana being so artistically sung as to evoke persistent demands for an encore. Miss Roma Weir as Olga, Miss Arnold as Philippona, Miss Penville as Larnia, and Mr. Moppet as Saretski were all admirable. The opera was beautifully staged, the chorus sang well, the dances were graceful, and the orchestra, led by Signor Sapio, played brilliantly. Tannhäuser was given on Wednesday, Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana and Leoncavallo's Pagliacci on Thursday, Madame Butterfly on Friday, on Saturday, matinée The Meistersingers will be played, and Faust will be performed in the evening.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The pantomime Dick Whittington is nearing the close of its very successful run, but crowded audiences still testify by their presence and enthusiasm to the delight which the spectacle has afforded the playgoers of Edinburgh. Miss Jane Eyre's acting in the title rôle has lost none of its freshness and charm, and on Monday she was loudly encored for her vivacious singing of a new number, "I want you to see my girl," in which she had the assistance of Miss Vera Burnley, a talented child, who is a daughter of the popular musical conductor at this house. Mr. Will Evans remains a tower of strength as Idle Jack, his whimsical style and undoubted humour keeping every scene alive with fun. Mr. Phil Ray, Mr. Wm. Downes, Mr. Bickley, and Mr. Albert Felino, as the exceedingly agile and entertaining cat, are actors who make the most of their respective parts, while the pleasing work of the Tiller Troupe, and the graceful grouping of the auxiliaries, combined with a wealth of pretty scenery, contain much that appeals to audiences of varied tastes.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook. Phe pièce de résistance here this week is Mr. Fred Karno's company in the musical extravaganza The Dandy Thieves. The piece is admirably mounted and played with point and vigour by the actors, notably humorous work being done by Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning, a comedian of resource. Mr. Frank Ginnett's company, too, in Hunting Morn, a sketch full of capital songs and brisk business, aided by views shown by the Bioscope, give a telling performance, and are loudly applauded. Mr. Theo Bouwmeester in a dramatic scene entitled Who is Guilty? shows undoubted ability in his impersonations of seven distinct characters. Mr. Joe O'Gorman's racy style carries the audience with him, and stamps him as an excellent comedian; Mr. Frank Sylvo proves himself a dexterous juggler; the Three Welsh Girls sing with marked sweetness in several harmonised numbers; Miss Lily Flexmore makes a hit as "The Flexible Girl," an apt title; Mr. Willie Walker, a local Scotch comedian, appears with success; the Ten Zerbinis submit a very pleasing musical entertainment; and the Bioscope displays an amusing series of films.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—A programme of unusual interest has well sustained the popularity of this handsome house. On the week's bill first honours may be divided between Ethel Arden, George Abel, and company for their very entertaining sketch, Three of a Kind and Charles Daly's company of comedians for their bright little farce I Must Have It. Harry Freeman is responsible for uncontrollable mirth, and his songs secure the heartiest encores. A new comedian appears in Biff Hall, whose "melancholy Hebrew" turn is loudly applauded; the juggling M'Banns give an excellent display of their art; the Richards Trio introduce novelty into a clever acrobatic sketch; Miss Irene Meldon sings with much taste and dances daintily; Miss Lily Arthur is a pleasing comedienne; and the King's Bioscope is quite up to date with a good selection of films.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—This week's programme has been very liberal as well as most enjoyable. In the evergreen equestrian drama Dick Turpin's Ride to York, with Talberto as the dashing highwayman, assisted by Leicester Alfred Cooke as Tom King, Leon Douglas as Sammy, and Miss Edina Marion Cooke as Dolly Gudgeon, and the leading members of the company in various rôles, a very entertaining representation was given of the many interesting episodes, humorous, pathetic, and exciting, with which the piece abounds. The variety part of the bill was exceptionally strong, including a goodly number of circus turns wherein Miss E. M. Cooke, Mlle. Marietta, Herr Guttenberg, and others greatly distinguished themselves. Horton and Linder created much amusement as horizontal bar eccentrics; Comical Walker and Shadow and Jester H. Dale afforded plenty of genuine fun; Henderson, the blind musician, quite enraptured his hearers; Pongerila, as the human monkey, and Mme. Spangeletti, with her trained dogs, furnished capital turns; and a very graceful act was performed by Mlle. Zaida on the electric wire, concluding with a pretty flight of pigeons. On Thursday evening, set apart for the benefit of Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke, a dog parade was added to the attractions of the bill.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The boards are occupied this week by the Exeter Amateur Operatic Society in The Gondoliers.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Topping this week's bill is Maurice Farkoa, who is making his first appearance in Exeter. On Monday he had an excellent reception. Another much-appreciated feature of the programme is the fine singing and piccolo solos of Olga and Elga; much merriment is caused by Little Zola, a comedian who is really funny; and Addie Dorina presents her new production, Dr. Spot's Patients, in which she receives able support from Frank Wheatcroft. Aline O'Connor renders a couple of songs in charming style; marvellous acrobatic and wire-walking performances are contributed by the Five Whiteleys; and Charles Russell is responsible for some up-to-date songs. The Hippodrome pictures are also enjoyable.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—This week the bill is filled with The Prodigal Son, the story of which is presented by Mr. George D. Day's company. Mr. Albert Ward appears in the title-rôle, and his acting, particularly in the Casino scene and the homecoming of the prodigal, is very ably done. The part of Helga lends itself to skilful treatment, and this it receives from Miss Pearla Gardner; Miss Dorrie Roberts takes the dual characters of Thora and Elin very well indeed, her fresh and buoyant acting as the latter being quite delightful; Mr. Alfred Goddard as Magnus plays the stay-at-home son with much effect. The other parts are all well filled.

FOLKESTONE. — The Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company on Monday commenced a welcome return visit for three nights in The Catch of the Season. Mr. William Greene made an ideal Duke of St. Jermyns; Miss Dorothea Clarke a dainty Angela; Lord Dundreary was impersonated by Mr. Joseph L. Bruce in a manner which quickly made him a favourite; Mr. Franklin Miles was the henpecked Sir John Crystal; and Lady Crystal and daughters were meritoriously acted by Miss Edna Eden, Miss Barry Eldon, and Miss Kate Robertson. Lady Caterham had a sympathetic exponent in Miss Grace Hampton; as the Duchess of St. Jermyns Miss Claire de Vere was a charming hostess. Last, but not least, was the skilful study of Bucket, the page boy, by Master Ernest Crate. Raffles came on Thursday.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—A lady illusionist and protean actress, Vonetta, has drawn large audiences here; Mike Cray, a comedy juggler with some novelties and a well-trained dog, is welcomed; Edith Chantler, a wonderful juvenile soprano, has a flattering reception; Bert Terrell, a Dutch comedian, of ability, is praised; the Pichel Troupe of risley acrobats are entertaining; Shrillo, an operatic whistler, Sira, one-legged acrobat, and the Kingscope provide other enjoyable turns.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's capital company is here, in the pantomime, Humpty Dumpty. Miss Barbara Babington graces the rôle of the Princess; and Miss Florence Wix is a pleasing Rudolph. Miss Dolly Ross charmingly sustains the rôle of the Prince; whilst Miss Nell Carmichael is a painstaking Cherry. Prominent among the comedians is Mr. Willie Black, who fills the part of King Solumn; Mr. Rex Kempton is a quaint Bison Bob; and Mr. J. Lonnen Meadows is a witty Dame. The Quality Quartette render pleasing part songs; and the Lecardo Bros. give best attention to the knockabout business. Miss Rosa Sims dances prettily; and not the least attractive feature in the production is the excellent scenery.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Cinderella at the Royal is now in its final week, and so much has previously been written concerning its good qualities that perhaps it would be idle to further offer it praise in detail. During its run the pantomime has been excellently received, and the artists one and all are worthy of the highest mention. It is safe to say that no brighter or sprightlier Cinderella has been seen in the city than Miss Iris Hoey. From the opening night she has been a pronounced favourite, and her singing has delighted all. Miss Violet Lorraine has proved herself well worthy of the part of the Prince in every department. Her singing is likewise good and the rendering of her songs capital. Another bright little artist is Miss Meg Hamylton, who as Dandini fulfils the highest expectations. Messrs. George Robey and Harry Dent are here, there, and everywhere in the panto, and with two such talented comedians the parts of Buttons and the Baron are worked to their utmost. Seldom have two comedians been so popular in the city in pantomime. Messrs. Willie Garvie and the Brothers Obo as the Baroness and Sisters respectively are simply untiring in their efforts to please, and many are the comicalities of this trio. A novel introduction is that of Mr. Paul Sundberg as Saltarrello. His dancing is quite a feature. The other artists, as already stated, are capital. The stage-management is excellent, and altogether it is with regret that one sees the end of the pantomime season at the Royal. Friday was set apart for the benefit of Mr. George Robey, when a plethora of talent was given in addition to the pantomime.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The latest musical play, The Dollar Princess, is paying a week's visit here before opening in London, and Mr. George Edwardes's company were accorded a very hearty welcome on Monday. In the leading rôle as Alice, daughter of an Amercican millionaire, Miss Hilda Moody acts with excellent effect, and sings splendidly, every one of her songs being received with acclamation. Mr. Robert Michaelis is well suited as the English lover, Freddie Fairfax, and makes a decided hit with his clever performance, alike as regards acting and singing. Miss Kitty Gordon is seen in the part of Olga, the lion queen, who poses in America as a widowed Russian Countess, and gives a dashing performance, her love scenes with the American millionaire being specially good. In the latter rôle Mr. Fred Winn is most amusing, his impersonation of the Oil King, whose hobby it is to have young aristocrats from Britain occupying positions in his house as servants, being exceedngly clever. His songs are given with crisp effect, and he is a neat dancer. Miss Alice Moffatt as Daisy and Mr. Vernon Davideon as her groom, John, Earl of Quorn, make an attractive pair of young lovers and have several catchy numbers allotted to them. Mr. Willie Warde, in a quaint make-up, is very funny as Sir James McGregor, footman to the millionaire. Mr. Howard Cridland as Dick and Mr. Harry Parker as Tom, nephew and brother respectively to the oil king, ably help the fun along. Miss Kathleen Owen acts with spirit as Dulcie, a Californian girl, and other parts are ably filled by Misses Mabel Duncan and Doris Dewar and Messrs. Robert St. George and Philip Simmons. The play is staged most picturesquely and the ladies' dresses are designed with excellent taste.

Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. R. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Cinderella continues to meet with undiminished popularity. Miss Violet Halls as Prince Casimir and Miss Queenie Finnis as Cinderella have made many friends; their songs are very well rendered and loudly applauded; Miss Nellie Wigley repeats her success as Duke of Whistbridge. Miss Nellie Cozens as Elvira and Miss Kate Walbran as Araminta are strong favourites; they work well together. Mr. George French as the Baron causes continual laughter by his perpetual drollery, and is ably assisted by Mr. Tom Conway as Tiny; they are always in the thick of the fun. Mr. Whit Cunliffe is responsible for much hilarity in the busy part of Dandini; Mr. Barry Lupino does much interesting and amusing business as Capers; Miss Olive Tempest as Fairy Godmother performs her part in first-class style.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Diccory Dok still runs its succesful course at the popular South-side house, and as far as can be judged from the enthusiastic audiences it would seem as if a new record was about to be made. The pleasantries and amusing situations with which it abounds are of a most mirth-provoking order. Several of the artists have decidedly established themselves as firm favourites and consequently encores are common and readily responded to. In the character of Winnie Miss Ella Retford gets full scope for her versatile abilities, her singing and dancing being quite a treat; Miss Flora Cromer as the principal boy scores with her catchy songs and choruses. The duets by Miss Maggie Fraser and Miss Edith Haley are pleasingly rendered, while the songs and dances by the clever Sisters Bartholomew demonstrate them as artists of more than ordinary ability. In the comic department Messrs. Harry Gribben, Mr. Ainslie Burton, Mr. Syd Walker, and Mr. Cliff Lake combine well, but in a class by himself must be reckoned Mr. Peter Bermingham as Wee Hughie, whose local vernacular and pawky humour evoke roars of laughter. The panto is not without its artistic features in dress and scenery, the earthquake in the eighth scene calling for special mention as a wonderful piece of stagecraft.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's stirring drama of political and military life, called Who Is She? is being presented here to overflowing houses, this being its first visit to Glasgow. The mysterious lady of the title is finely acted by Miss Violet Carlyle; Miss Alice Barber gives a good rendering of Countess Ladori; and the part of Keta Noveitch is powerfully interpreted by Miss Madge Robson. Prince Vladimir, by Mr. Graham Woods, and Prince Bora, by Mr. Horace Booth, are both well-drawn characters; and Captain Arthur Gower, by Mr. Sinclair Holden, is also good; Chang Tee, a Chinaman, is a prominent character, who speaks pidgin English, and is well played by Mr. Edward Swinton; Miss May Collier makes a lively Surette; and the boy part of the Little King is excellently declaimed by Miss Mabel Ronald. A military execution in which Sergeant Metroff (Mr. Albert Grenville) is shot has a thrilling effect. The play is perfectly staged.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. J. H. Savile's highly-successful Paisley pantomime, Puss In Boots. Miss Daisy Morell as Colin makes an excellent principal boy, singing coon songs in the genuine American style; her partner, Miss Katie Yates, is sweet and winsome as the Princess Ivy. The company possesses four reliable comedians in Mr. Walter Kooney (King), Mr. Fred C. Fields (Baron), Mr. J. K. Macfarlane (Sandy), and Mr. Harry Karr (Dame). Miss Florence Lewis acts and sings well as Prince Rudolph; the miller's daughter, Phyllis, is attractively played by Miss Moyna Hill; the parts of Jack and Jill are filled by Misses Mabel Carle and Jessie Jukes, whose duets and dances are very well received. As the cat Mr. Glen Alva is capital, and in the rôle of Fairy, Miss T. Johnson sings charmingly; while in the dancing line smart work is done by the La Belle Trio.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—B. A. Rolfe's Colonial Septette present an Olden Time Hallowe'en, in which is introduced high-class selections, both vocal and instrumental; Nellie Coleman is very popular in Glasgow, and meets with a grand reception. Her impersonation of W. J. Ashcroft is most realistic. Mr. Paul Barnes, of New York, is a monologuist who keeps his audiences in a titter from start to finish, and sings several good songs. In a sketch by Louis Cohen, Hubert Carter appears as David Garrick, and his acting is thoroughly appreciated. He is supported by a talented company, who get through their work in a business-like fashion. Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are responsible for a juvenile singing act in which each member of the company appears to advantage. A wonderful hand jumping and acrobatic act is given by the Stein-Eretto Troupe, and the Brothers St. Clair as Knockabout Cyclists are most amusing, their football match being exceedingly clever as well as humorous. Helen Guest has a good voice, and takes well in her illustrated songs. In some female characterisations Albert Letine is seen to advantage, and meets with a good reception. The salmon netting pictures on the Bioscope prove of interest, and terminate a good all-round evening's entertainment.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The attractions here this week are Harry Roxbury and his company in the pantomime of Mother Goose, in which Mr. Roxbury gives a comical impersonation of the old lady of the title; while her son Jack (Mr. J. W. Gallagher) adds his full quota to the fun. Miss Maud Prenton's voice is heard to great advantage in the rôle of Colin, while Miss Marjorie Prenton is pleasing as Phyllis; Jill is charmingly impersonated by Miss Lily Palmer; Mr. George Castrey as Eric and Mr. Fred Hutchings as Muggles keep the merriment going briskly; the Miltons are extremely funny as policemen, and there are four Suffragettes, rampageously rendered by Misses Nellie Tomlinson, Nellie Belphor, Eva Beechey, and Ada Beechey. The Royal Welsh Entertainers give some good concerted music, and the Four Sydney Girls some elegant dances; while the Miltons perform pleasing evolutions on roller skates. Miss Lois Caris as the Fairy sings with a sweet voice, and acts charmingly, while Mr. Brian Henry makes a good Demon. The Bioscope winds up a satisfactory entertainment.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Miss Decima Moore is making an early appearance here in vaudeville, and her dainty songs, recitations, and whistling combine to make an attractive turn. Carney and Armstrong are a very smart and original couple, and were accorded an enthusiastic recall after their clever show; The Mezettis give a first-rate triple-bar turn, combining daring feats with amusing comedy; Newell and Niblo, in their musical turn, prove themselves clever instrumentalists, and their fun is most enjoyable; the Mohamed Arabs give a clever turn, combining feats of strength in pyramids and a lot of energetic tumbling; Primavesi is a dexterous juggler, with a picturesque setting to his act; Dan Robans sings well in both foreign and English songs; and J. Elmer Spyglass, a coloured vocalist, makes a hit with the Toreador song from Carmen (in French) and a Scotch song, very well rendered. The Vernon Ladies' Quartette also gives some most artistic vocal items.

Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—A splendid programme is provided here this week, and is additionally interesting with the appearance of Houdini, the original handcuff king and jail breaker. His latest performance—escaping from an airtight can, filled with water, and padlocked—is mysterious, and thoroughly baffled a committee chosen from the audience. Gus Garrick, comedian, holds a strong position on the programme, his impersonations being exceedingly funny. Another excellent turn is that by Don and Mabel Keir in their vocal scena, Sandy's Return; and Frances Drew, comedienne, sang several songs in taking style. An amusing sketch, Coming Home, is contributed by Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard; George Reeves, comedian, is funny as Prof. Phrenolo; Iris Banfield delineates chorus ditties; and the Three Stewarts give a capital acrobatic display. The performance concludes with some interesting Bioscope pictures.

Colisеum.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The principal turn here this week is the Six Brothers Luck in a new sketch, Lift-ems, Ltd., which is lively, and causes hearty laughter all through. Oswald Williams gives his conjuring entertainment, which is cleverly worked and very mystifying; Walter Munroe gets the enthusiastic welcome that is reserved specially for old favourites, and deserves it all; Sybil St. Elmo takes well in the waltz song from Pirates of Penzance; Schonk Brothers give a clever and novel display of head and hand balancing; W. J. Churchill has several smart songs, well interspersed with clever patter, and goes strong; Arthur Albert's picturesque songs are well received; McCann's dogs show careful training in their various tricks; and Lil O'Gorman, comedienne, completes a varied and attractive bill.

Gaiety, Ltd. — Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The Sauteron Wonders, champion jumpers, are wonderfully clever and are loudly applauded; Herbert St. Clair and company are most amusing in their sketch Our Sons' Wives; Renot, a clever mimic; Joe Wesley, comedian and expert dancer; Buchanan and Farren, cross talkers of exceptional merit; Harry Wright, vocalist; and Nellie Hawthorne, comedienne and dancer, are capital items. The Bioscope, showing the Burns-Johnson fight, concludes an excellent programme.

Panopticon.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E Pickard.—The principal turn is provided by Empress the handcuff queen, who, on the opening night, displayed wonderful dexterity in freeing herself from regulation manacles. The other turns are specially interesting. Emmie Florence is a taking comedienne and dancer, the Two Cliffs give a novel acrobatic and balancing act, and Tom Colton contributes several humorous songs. In addition there is the usual Bioscope display, and the pictures are thoroughly up to date, the Funeral of Constable Tyler, the Tottenham hero, being the latest. There is also a series of both amusing and instructive films.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, in Greed of Gold, provides the attraction this week. Arthur Errol is in the capable hands of Alf Stretton; Mr. Vic C. Rolfe creates a good impression as Mr. Brightstone; the unscrupulous villainy of Harry Hood is effectively portrayed by Mr. Henry Parr; Mr. James Jarrett enacts Tom Wolstead in convincing style; and as Conn Creamer Mr. Chas. E. Wood is popular. The representation of Dora by Miss Maude M. Powell is excellent; Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks gives a faithful portrayal of Mrs. Maxwell; and Miss Beatrice M. Hughes presents Cecil in sympathetic style

GLOUCESTER. — Palace. — Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Three Sisters Sprightly are an entertaining turn, and go well; Menotti, with the twentieth-century cycle track, submits a clever show; Miss Florence Yaymen is voted an excellent caricaturist; Henry Cazman keeps the audience thoroughly amused; the Sisters Terry are good as baby mimics; Ellis and Watts dance well; and Mr. Arthur Holland, character vocalist, and Charles Lilburn amuse. The Palascope is the last turn.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—On Monday night Mr. Ernest J. Fare and company presented The Shaughraun to a crowded house. Mr. Ernest J. Fare gives a fine breezy portrayal of Conn; Mr. Edward Keith portrays Father Dolan with telling effect; Mr. George Wallace is deservedly popular as Captain Molineux; Mr. Stanley Douglas gives a powerful portrayal of Corry Kinchela; Mr. James Mailey plays the rôle of Harvey Duff in a thoroughly capable manner; Miss Ada Hender submits an impressive portrayal of Arte O'Neal; Miss Mabel Fare is a decided success as Claire Ffolliott; and Miss Mabel Courtney is a charming and vivacious Moya.

GRAVESEND.—Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—This week there is a starring engagement of the Six Brothers Luck, Ltd., who present their screamingly funny melodramatic absurdity, The Demon of the Cellar, with the very best results; Phil Burt, a talkative comedian, does well; Rosa Loader, the Slavey at the Piano, is no stranger to Gravesend audiences, where she is always appreciated; Fynn and Fayne, in their comedy act The Author and the Critic, are decidedly clever with their patter; Violet Inglefield, the burlesque artist, sings with much gusto; Laffan Jolly, laughing comedian and character vocalist, causes much merriment; and Vendome and Chase, in different styles of dancing, are a good combination.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company in Red Riding Hood is here for a second week.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Fine pictures are being shown here, the film illustrating Wilbur Wright's ascent in his flying machine being very interesting.

The Gem.—Lessees, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—Among the excellent films exhibited here this week, that illustrating the Zambesi River is both instructive and picturesque. "Bombadier" has made a big hit as an illustrated song.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The annual visit of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company is looked forward to here with the greatest pleasure. The week opened with Lohengrin. Mr. Walter Wheatley gave a capital impersonation of the title-rôle; Miss Beatrice Miranda gained distinction in the difficult rôle of Elsa; Miss Doris Woodall sustained her reputation by her talented rendering of Ortrud; and into the part of Telramund Mr. Dillon Shallard infused a large amount of skilful acting, his fine voice being heard to advantage. Mr. Arthur Winckworth did full justice to the rôle of the King, and Mr. Frederick Clendon was very good as the Herald. Mr. Eugene Goossens handled the chorus and orchestra throughout in his usual masterly manner. The week's répertoire includes The Merry Wives of Windsor, Maritana, Rigoletto, Carmen, Tannhäuser, and Faust.

Empire.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—The principal item here this week is Joe Peterman's company in the musical burlesque, The Singing Servants; Andrew and Thompson, operatic vocalists, meet with a warm reception; the Sisters Aindow contribute a pleasing instrumental turn; and others entertaining are J. H. Harris, Scotch comedian; the Calcotts, in a wayside episode, Rags and Tatters; Little Agnes, a wonderful child mimic and impersonater; and Fred Horsfall, comedian. The Bioscope pictures are good.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Crowded houses are to be seen here nightly, the programme being quite to the popular taste. Fun in the Dark, a highly amusing comedy sketch, tops the bill, and meets with an enthusiastic reception; G. A. Hope, baritone vocalist, renders two songs in impressive and taking style; Victor Courtney has, as usual, some clever items to submit, and stands high in popular favour; Dora Barrington, soprano vocalist, is heard to advantage in an artistic vocal scena, Sentiment and Jest, in which she is ably assisted by Miss Netta Grey. The Dromoscope pictures complete.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The second pantomime of the season in here this week, Mr. James Kiddie's company appearing in Dick Whittington. Miss Lena Page is the principal boy, and has achieved considerable popularity by her singing of several favourite pantomime songs; Miss Nellie Merton appears as Alice Fitzwarren, and also contributes good business, her dancing being very pleasing; Mr. George Rydon is responsible for much humour as Idle Jack, and is well supported by the Hannaway Brothers as Silly Peter and Lazy Larry; Mr. Fred Spencer's eccentricities as the Dame are very amusing; and Mr. Dennis McCarthy also contributes to the fun as Alderman Fitzwarren, Miss Florence Hilton is a capital male impersonator, and is well suited to the part of Sir Algernon. Other prominent parts are taken by Miss Edna Francis as the Emperor's daughter, Miss Lillie Storrie as Concordia, and Mr. Archie J. Milne as the Emperor, whilst Miss Dorothy Dryden dances the Salome dance.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Tom Costello's versatile entertaining powers are being warmly appreciated. His humorous stories are told with excellent effect, but his best item is his pathetic scena, The Poor Old Clown. Billy Merson submits some capital burlesque, and has a good song upon Old Age Pensions; Ernest Montefiore's company appear in an interesting sketch, The Little Colonel, which is well acted; Tom Colquitt horizontal bar is wonderful; Phinas and Aida present their novelty on the revolving pedestal; and Maston the mimic and Jack Ramsay complete the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—Remarkably clear and steady films are again shown by the Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. The Smuggler's Daughter is particularly interesting.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Raffles (the amateur cracksman) was played here the first half of the week by Mr. Leonard Boyne's company, preceded by A Lesson in Shakespeare. Raffles found in Mr. Ellie Norwood an earnest and vigorous representative; Mr. Harold West gave an effective rendering of "Bunny" Manders; Mr. E. W. Thomas successfully assumed the detective; Miss Lucy Milner made a pleasing Gwendoline; and Mrs. Vidal was played with marked ability by Miss May Brooke. For the second half of the week Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, in The Catch of the Season, was billed.

HIPPODROME.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Mr. Jim E. James proves himself a skilful banjoist and player on the bones; Le Strad very cleverly impersonates celebrated musicians; Allis and Cassati introduce amusing comedy; the conjuring of Ebrahim's Four Indian Fakirs is quite astounding; Miss Florence Leonard possesses a sweet and cultivated voice; and the diverting antics of Chas. F. Best gain great applause.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Alfred West's popular exhibition of animated pictures is occupying the boards here. The illustrations are very realistic, and the whole series, which is entitled Life in Our Navy and Army, is very interesting, as well as instructive.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Barnsley.—A great attraction is provided by Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Merry Widow. Miss Eileen Blanford owing to the illness of Miss Daphne Glenne had to take the part of Sonia at short notice. Her excellent voice was heard to conspicuous advantage. In the rôle of Baron Popoff Mr. H. S. Cotter submits a clever bit of light comedy; Mr. Arthur Geary is seen to advantage as Vicomte Jolidan; Mr. Harry Emerie as Niche plays with energy and humour; excellent is Mr. Alec Worcester as Prince Danilo.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company in The Lighthouse Robbery provides the attraction here this week.—The part of Tom Manly, the hero, is capitally rendered by Mr. Fredk. Garratt, whose efforts received unstinted applause; Mr. Wm. Annesley plays the old Squire Hammond, alias Wm. Farren, in good style, and is very ably assisted by Mr. Percy Beresford, Farren's son and supposed heir to the estate; Mr. Charles Liddon's Uncle Davie, the real squire, Rose's father, is a very fine part, and full justice is done to it. Mr. Jees Boxer as Sam Kidder, a stage-struck rustic, creates roars of laughter, his quaint sayings and antics taking immediately. Mrs. Lelia Drummond gives a very fine interpretation of Mrs. Manly, Tom's mother; Miss Lilian Bates plays Ruth, Tom's sister and Sam's sweetheart, in capital style, her comedy business being excellent; Little Ethel Lovatt makes a very charming Little Nellie, an ocean waif; Miss Hilda Baynton's impersonation of Rose Prescott, Hammond's ward, is a most artistic one, the audience following every exciting episode with marked attention. The Lighthouse and the Church scenes are very artistic, and the peal of bells are greatly admired.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The head of a good bill is filled by that prince of comedians Ernest Shand, who has a great reception from his old admirers. Other turns are Delafiore, xylophone expert; Gilbert's performing dogs and cats; Miss Agnes Molteno and company, in her beautiful scena, entitled "A Dolly and a Coach"; Julian Ross, character vocalist; Ford and Hanson, musical comedians; Miss Mabelle May, soubrette and dancer; Mlle. Haydee, with her clever marionette show; and an amusing film on the Bioscope.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—This week the boards have been held by Mr. Harold V. Neilson's company in two Ibsen plays, A Doll's House and Romersholm. Both have attracted good houses, and both been equally well represented. Miss Amy Sangster has in all her work caught the true spirit of Ibsen; her reading of the rôle of Norah was a fine piece of acting. She plays with striking effect on the gamut of the emotions, and the whole of her acting is an artistic realisation of the Northern writer's thoughts. She was to the front throughout, and the impression she has created is one that will not readily be effaced. The Nils Krogstad of Mr. Harold Neilson was correctly cut; he caught with much distinction and skill the Ibsen atmosphere, and depicted the character with fine effect. The Mrs. Linden of Miss Vera Leslie was pleasantly portrayed; and the Helmer of Mr. Doughty was an acceptable performance. On Wednesday night Miss Sangster was cast as Miss West, Mr. Neilson playing Rosmer.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime is doing phenomenal business at the Alexandra, and even on Saturday afternoons, when there are countless outdoor attractions, the matinées have been signalised by the display of the "house full" boards. The company, as one wrote last week, is a very good one, and includes such well-known names as Miss Ray Wallace, Miss Mildred Bryan, and Mr. Leonard Russel. Mr. Joe Robbin fills the part of the Widow and Mr. Bert Harrow contrives to give a good account of himself as Abanazar. The songs, as already said, are tuneful, and the dances effective.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Three Gartos top the bill in a singing entertainment; De Lilo and Metz appear in a clever act; and Fame and Fortune, Kitty Cameron, the Barclays, Alpho, Johnny Gleeson, and Mark Beecham complete a good company.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are Alix Lukos, Parker and Parr, Kiota and Esa, Vela, the Cedrics, Alma Curzon, and Jack Talbot.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—The Grand Continental Circus company are drawing packed houses; the Three Royal Ohmys are hosts in themselves; Mlle. Leily has a well-trained horse; and Mrs. Dudley Smith is also here. The entertainment concludes with an equestrian spectacle, The Despatch Bearer, in which pathos and humour are effectively combined.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Ernest Adrim and company are appearing here in the pantomime Dick Whittington. Miss Madge Carew wins golden opinions as Alice; and Miss Violet Oram as Dick is well received; whilst the Cat is very ably taken by Mr. Bert Warner. Mr. Mark Mooney is seen as Caroline, the cook, and Mr. Ernest Adrim is a capable Idle Jack. Messrs. Frew and Frew as Will Buttercup and Captain Cowslip work well. The honours of the evening fall to the Paulasto troupe of eccentric acrobats, who are cheered to the echo for their smart and clever performance. The remaining specialities are: The Tina Trio, acrobatic dancers; Bert Warner, contortionist; Mark Mooney, "the Directoire Girl"; and Frew and Frew, eccentric comedians and dancers.

ILKLEY.—BRIDGE PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Barron; Manager, Mr. George Asaf.—The Coronets still keep their reputation, and with a constantly changing programme their success is assured. Mr. Asaf spares no trouble to cater for his patrons in the best possible way. Mr. W. Edwardes-Towle (late of the Meister Glee Singers), in addition to his vocal efforts is reciting "The Groom's Story" this week in a very able manner, and also joining Miss Beryl in a duet, "Cuckoo," and the Two G's, duettists, keep the audience well amused. No fewer than twenty-three selections appear on the programme.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and company in The Early Worm are playing to good and enthusiastic houses. Mr. Lionel Rignold in the part of Allan Marchmount gives one of his characteristic comedy studies. He is admirably supported by Mr. T. Warburton Gamble as the Duke of Tadcaster, Mr. Frank Graham as Lord Steyn, Mr. Raymond Dudley as Sir William Mayton, and Mr. H. Peirpoint as Captain Baxter. Tom is played by Mr. Eric H. Albury and the Boatman and Sailor by Mr. Donald Dowson and Robert Melrose respectively. Miss Fyfe Alexander is a charming Sybil Annesley; and the part of Lady Steyne is excellently portrayed by Miss Marie Daltra. The staging of the play is thoroughly good, the yachting scene eliciting much appreciation from large audiences.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—This week's bill, a popular one, is headed by Miss Dinah Morris and company in the musical comedy entitled A Village in Dahomey. Miss Morris in the part of Dinah is very charming; the Four Kurios in a novel entertainment are assisted by some ingenious mechanical contrivances; Miss Alice Hughes and company in The Star of the Bazaar have a sketch which provides a deal of fun; the Beautiful Lilian, cyclist, is brilliantly clever on the wheel; Stewart and Morgan, the harmonious Irishmen, are old favourites in Ipswich; Miss Gladys Godwynne sings "Call round any old time"; Will Godwin is a character artist; and Harry Marlow and May Manton have an amusing sketch entitled Winning a Wife.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—This week Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Old Folks at Home. Miss Maud Warburton gives a natural performance of Dorothy Robin, and Mr. H. E. Herbert is a manly Andrew Rose; Mr. F. Liston is a powerful Lord Howard, being ably supported by Miss Kate Froud as Patricia Bathurst; Christopher and Martha Robin are well impersonated by Mr. Eugene Santley and Miss Clare Santley; and Mr. T. G. Vane is admired for his handling of the part of Hugh Lovell. Mr. Arthur Dudley does full justice to the part of Jock. The comedy parts are ably looked after by Miss Maudie Grayson as Susan and Mr. Frank Caffrey as Ben Jolly. The Excelsior Glee Singers give excellent selections.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow has been here. Mr. Alec Wochester does every justice to the rôle of Prince Danilo; Miss Daphne Glenne in the rôle of Sonia is bright and attractive, and sings sweetly; Miss Violet Hobson is a charming Natalie; and Miss Gileen Chanford a pleasing Olga. Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter makes a quaint Baron Popoff; and Nisch is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Emeric, who plays drolly. Mr. Cecil Warwick ably portrays Genral Novikovitch. The dresses and mounting are excellent KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company has been here this week with Robinson Crusoe. Miss Lena Stanton as Crusoe makes a striking character, and was warmly applauded; Miss Gertie Dovedale as Polly Perkins was most captivating; Mr. Sidney Dean was particularly funny as Mrs. Crusoe; and Mr. Melville Page as Will Atkins was a great success; as Sunny Jim Crusoe Little Keeno kept the house in roars of laughter; the Legieres in their acrobatic turn received rounds of applause; and the vivacious Alhambra Girls added to the gaiety of the production.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessee, Dr. Walford Bodie.—Heading a good bill this week are W. D. Mackenzie and company, in a fine musical scena, Moments with the Masters, beautifully staged. It includes the wonderful Human Ocarina. Cliff and Kean are clever comedians and dancers; and the Sisters Danby, smart vocalists and dancers. Major Arnold presents a unique conjuring act; and Mr. Patrick Playfair is a wonderful paper manipulator. Some good pictures are shown on the Bodiegraph.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Miss Lillie Williams is presenting her Dick Whittington pantomime this week. First honours are due to Mr. Sam Thomson as Idle Jack—most untiring in his efforts to amuse; in the part of Rhodenta we have a capital singer in Mr. Michael Kemble; Miss Gertie Douglas makes a dashing Dick; Miss Hetty Lind sings sweetly as Alice. Specialities are given by the Ten San Tan Girls and the Imperial Glee Singers, the latter having a warm reception.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company in Diana of Dobson's occupied the boards for the first three nights of this week. Miss O'Glynn did full justice to the part of Diana; all the girls at Dobson's were carefully characterised, Miss Kate Reine being especially good as Miss Smithers; Miss Hilda Francks played Miss Pringle with much humour; Miss Pamela Hope, exquisitely attired, made a capital Mrs. White Fraser and as Mrs. Cantelupe Miss Mary Wisden left little to be desired. Mr. Chas. Francis gave an excellent rendering of the part of Captain Bretherton; Mr. Stephen Stephens humorously played the police constable; and the part of Sir Jabez was in the safe hands of Mr. William Stanley. The play was preceded each night with A Fire of Straw. Mr. Lingford Carson was billed for Thursday in The Great White Chief.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—The head of the bill this week is Bostock's Baboons, with some remarkable performances under the guidance of Captain Graham; the Brothers Milford are smart dancers; Ruby Emerson sings well, as also does Miss May Knight, comedienne; Barry Lindon has a capital reception; and the Kirbys in a comedy act cause roars of laughter; Morrisey supplies a pleasing musical act, and is an equilibrist of no mean order. The Hippograph depicts some amusing pictures.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—The attraction here this week is The Hypocrites, which is being played to fairly large audiences by Mr. Charles Frohman's company. Mr. Lawrence L. Leyton gives a strong portrayal of the Rev. Edgar Linnell; whilst Mr. F. Morland is extremely successful as Mr. Wilmore. Mr. S. Dennys' Lennard is an easy and natural performance; and Miss Grace Murielee's Mrs. Wilmore as excellent study of a mother's love. Miss Violet Harley gives a judicious treatment of the difficult rôle of Rachel Nove; whilst other characters are ably sustained by Mr. F. C. Thurstans, Mr. C. Tyrel, Mr. C. Harley, Miss Muriel Mason, Miss M. Severne, Miss Millie Emden, and Mr. Fred Lake.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The head liner this week is Mr. Henry de Vries, the clever protean actor, who is assisted by Miss Dorothy Drake and M. Gordon, in Trapped by Telephone, a sketch which allows Mr. de Vries full scope for some particularly smart impersonations in eight different characters. Both Miss Drake as Marion Fairfax and Miss Gordon as Ruth Briggs are also very good. At the other end are the Gems (under the direction of Wallace Kennedy) in a delightful musical mélange, "Song, play, and mirth." Mr. and Mrs. Meymott create endless merriment with their well-acted vaudeville comedietta, Semi-Detached; Maggie Walsh, the singing mill girl, receives her usual hearty welcome; Percy Honri, a most brilliant performer on the concertina, scores a well-deserved success; Howell and Scott, Hebrew entertainers, make good with an excellent turn; the Hartley Wonders are responsible for many remarkable feats of jumping, the lady partner being full of comedy and vivaciousness; Gilbert Rogers, a refined vocal comedian, gives a very entertaining turn, with some good stories; the Three Prestons create laughter in their absurdity, The Liftman's Rise. The Bioscope clearly depicts the thrilling picture, Rifle Bill.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Quite a sensation is being created here by Minerva, the original woman gaol-breaker and handcuff performer, who introduces her latest item in escaping out of a 47-gallon barrel filled with water, and securely fastened down. Her performance is altogether a remarkably smart one, and she receives a splendid reception. Bayne and Hope display high histrionic talent in their dramatic sketch, An Emperor's Divorce. Victoria Glenn renders a couple of songs in good style; East and West are excellent comedy entertainers; and other capital turns are submitted by J. T. Jaques, versatile comedian; Luna Lyndon, vocalist and dancer; and Dan Merritt, drummer. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is an attractive feature with The Royalist's Wife and Moth Hunter, Baby's Chum.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—Big houses testify in a marked manner their delight with the splendid assortment of moving pictures shown here, included in which are Nero and the Burning of Rome, or the Christians to the Lion, A Drama in a Stone Quarry, Salome, The Quick Change Mesmerist, A Visit to Compeigne, Ayah's Revenge, A Quiet Day at a Café, and My Wife's Dog. In addition a very special attraction is Almon, the remarkably clever upside-down artist, who is cordially received, and in connection with whose engagement an amateur hand-walking competition is being successfully held.

THEATRE ROYAL.—This place of amusement, which under other managements was renowned for its very successful pantomime seasons, has this week deviated from the usual drama to a week of pantomime, Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's company being responsible for a capital evening's entertainment in Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Marie Reeve makes a vivacious principal boy, and sings her songs in a successful style; Miss Molly Hackett as Zorilda is to be accorded high praise; and Mr. Willie Barrett as Mrs. Sinbad and Mr. Walter Adams as Tinbad keep the ball of merriment going at a good pace. The other members of the company are well to the fore in aiding and abetting in the success of the "show." The pantomime is rich in entertaining specialities, including the Acme Quartette of dancers; M. and Mlle Van Lachterop, operatic vocalists; Newco and Sullo, "the boys in red," dancers; the Hobbarts, trick cyclists; and Halma, Scottish society juggler.

OPERA HOUSE.—The gorgeous musical play, Butterflies, which is being toured under the direction of Mr. Wilfred Cotton, is the attraction this week. It is beautifully dressed and staged, and also has the merit of being interpreted by a very good company. Mr. W. Louis Bradfield well maintains his great popularity with a fine performance as Puck; and Mr. Blake Adams as Christopher Podmore is another pronounced success; Mr. Richard Green both sings and acts in good style as Max Riadore; Mr. William Spray is all that can be desired as Yorker. Among the ladies Miss Georgie Corlass, a favourite with Opera House audiences, is making a conspicuous success with a delightful portrayal as Rodanthe; Miss Stella St. Audrie is very good as Nora Podmore; Miss Constance Clive makes an excellent impression as Elsie; and others in the cast who are deserving of special eulogium are Mr. Roy Sydney as Peter, Mr. Arthur Hyde as Gilbert, Miss Alice Sands as Lalage, and Miss Elsie Aston as Myra. In the third act Miss Phyllis Monkman gives, with great success, her new classical dance, "La Naissance du Papillon," and the Parisian Corps de Ballet show their agility in various dances.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. H. Chippendale.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Little Bread-winner. Mr. J. Monkhouse submits an excellent interpretation of Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Alfred Maurice gives a capable delineation of Joseph Prior; Mr. Reginald Brown makes a manly Richard Lawrence; the part of Charles Prior is well handled by Mr. Sydney Lynn; little Irene as Meg deserves commendation; Miss Milly Ford does justice to the rôle of Kate Cherry; much fun is caused by Miss Clara Hunt as Bridget O'Flanagan; and Miss Josephine Richards makes a charming and sympathetic Margaret Daventry.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Miss Nellie Wallace, comedy artist, is proving a success here; Messrs. Coverdale and Huxley's Juveniles are responsible for some good vocalism; Messrs. Groggin and Davis are smart acrobats; Mephisto is responsible for some clever illusions; the Three Hodginis, aerial gymnasts, well deserve the applause accorded to them. Excellent films are shown by the Bioscope.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Walker; Manager, Mr. J. Frank Walker.—Pictures of excellent character are being shown here this week to capital houses, and Mr. Alf Deane, comedian, adds considerably to the success of the evening.

LILITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee, and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The popular drama, Jeanie Deans, produced by Mr. John Clyde and his company, has found considerable favour here this past week. Mr. Clyde fills with fine effect the rôles of Geordie Robertson and the Counsel for the Defence; Mr. Wm. George Robb and Mr. George Hunter do yeoman service in their respective parts of the Laird of Dumbiedykes and David Deans; while Mr. A. Young Ritchie, Mr. Devid Blair, and Mr. David Bain give acceptable characterisations of the Duke of Argyle, Reuben Bulter, and Jamie Ratcliffe; and the minor male rôles are suitably portrayed. Miss Mary Allan makes her one scene quite success as Queen Caroline; Margery Murdockson and Madge Wildfire are interpreted with all requisite weirdness by Miss Fanny Wright and Miss Belle Cecil; and the two sisters of St. Leonard's, Effie and Jeanie, are sympathetically represented by Miss Ella Sennett and Miss Lena Levenston.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company have been here this week with the stirring drama, The Midnight Wedding, which has done as big business as formerly. Mr. Paumier appeared in his original part of Paul Valmer, and had a most cordial reception; Miss Yvonne Orchardson shared the honours for her admirable conception of the part of the Princess Astrea; a capital Prince Leopold came from Mr. John Nesbitt; some most amusing comedy was provided by Messrs. James E. Page, Vernon H. Vayne, and Algie Spalding, the three merry soldiers; and other well-held parts were Lieut. Strelsburg (Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes), Captain Scarsbruck (Mr. F. Booth Conway), Father Gerard (Mr. Forbes Harrison), Rozel (Miss Nesta Sandford), and Kathie (Miss Gwladys Faunce). There was a matinée on Wednesday.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here during the week was For Love and the King. Mr. C. Watson Mill's good all-round company included Miss Rosalind Tate, who made a charming Princess Athene. As Natila Miss Joan Ellis played the rôle of the beggar girl with much pathos; Mr. Mill was received with great favour for his Jarval; a good character sketch was that of Michael Obrenovic, presented by Mr. John Burton; Miss Frances Tierney made a sweet Edith Meredith; and other good rôles were Vladimir (Mr. Henry Earlsmere) and Prince Dragemir (Mr. Villiers Stanley). The Thursday matinées here are now well patronised.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Heading the bill here this week was Carrie De Mar, who delighted everybody with her merry songs, which included "Lonesome Flossie" and "Sweetheart Jo." The accomplished artist had a most hearty reception. Slippery Jim was a capital sketch presented by Mr. E. Dagnall and company; Willie Zimmerman gave some excellent imitations of great musicians; Tom Bryce and Miss Price appeared to much advantage in the sketch, The Dude's Wooing; the Three Laurels had a neat speciality act; Alexandra Dagmar was much appreciated for her latest, A Marriage of Mayfair, and the list also contained the names of Phil Parsons, comedian; Pat Rafferty, comedian; and Ernest Clifford, comedian.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—For notice of new production here, see another column.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Tarro Myaki, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler, was top of the bill here this week, and issued a number of challenges to local men; Kitty Colyer showed herself to be a delightful comedienne and dancer; a pathetic little sketch, Christmas Eve, was admirably given by Irve Hayman and company; Charles Johnson, "the black diamond," was as funny as ever; some capital singing and dancing were provided by the Bros. Lawrence; Walter Wade, the odd-boot comedian, pleased; and others who contributed were Les Mabras, with a speciality act; the Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; and C. G. Lewis, novelty ventriloquist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Good business has been done during the week at this popular resort, where an appreciated programme, headed by the always-welcome Arthur Roberts, was presented. His well-selected company gave him every support in the merry sketch, Till Sunday, which caused roars of laughter. The wonderful cycling of the Klein Family earned rounds of applause, and deservedly so; the Three Comedy Chanters submitted a funny and melodious pot-pourri; a smart and humorous turn was that entitled The Gibson Girl and the Crinoline, given by the Broadway Girls; Paul Vandy had some really clever conjuring and juggling tricks; the Camplins went through a neat musical comedy turn; and others who appeared were Dunn and Reano, parody gymnasts; Herbert Clifton, vocalist; and Harry Brown, coloured comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Dangers of London was the drama presented here during the week by the stock company. The principal parts were in the good keeping of Messrs. Sydney Grant (Percy Weir), Cecil Ravenswood (Mr. Forrest), David G. Noble (Frank Forrest), R. Seath Innes (Stanhope), Miss Lilian Radbourne (Gertrude Weir), Miss Turner Elliott (Mary), and Miss Evelyn Kington (Margaret Cloud). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to a fine selection of cinematograph pictures, the following artists appeared during the week: Queenie May, comedienne; Sid Myra and his dog; and Harold Heath, character vocalist.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The fine water spectacle The Sands of Dee has proved a very big attraction here, and is kept in the bill for another week; Miss Marquis put her stud of trained cobs through a smart performance; the Miles-Stavordale quintet of vocalists had a hearty reception for their harmonised songs; Jock Mills brought a number of swinging Scotch songs, including "The trousers that ma father used to wear"; Cliff Ryland proved a droll comedian; a most acceptable sketch, Cupid's Frolic, was provided by the Smythsons; the Vetter Bros. pleased greatly with their unique gymnastic display, in the trifle, The Page's Recreation; Fred Elton, at the piano, gave his popular scena, "On Board an Ocean Liner"; and the Falcons, comedy acrobats, found much favour.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Principal here this week were Dolly Elsworthy and company, with the charming sketch Sweet Mistress Dorothy, which delighted big audiences. Miss Elsworthy, in the title-rôle, was supported by Messrs. C. Middleton (Sir John Manners), J. Stanner (Sir Rupert Vernon), C. Zarnes (Sir Jasper Woodleigh), S. Sheen, and Miss Eva Moss. Vanando gave an uncommon ventriloquial turn, entitled "The Park Pest"; the Rose Trio of acrobatic waiters were very diverting; Hector and Dale were particularly funny acrobatic eccentrics; some clever whistling was given by Jim Cheetham, a boy mimic; Major Moss pleased with his revival of old songs; and also in the programme were Will Walton, comedian; the Sisters Belmont, dancers; and Ethel Loftus, comedienne.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The usual variety show given here has this week been displaced by a pretty pantomime, Aladdin, written by Joseph L. Barry. A capable company presented the work, which earned much public patronage. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn made a vivacious Aladdin, and sang several up-to-date songs in good style; a charming Princess was presented by Miss Belle Brocade, whose vocal talents earned for her loud applause; Mr. Harry Kirk as Abanazar, helped greatly towards a successful representation; Mr. Happy Attwood kept the ball rolling merrily with his Widow Twankey; Harley and Hardon were a delightful couple of knockabouts; and others prominent were Miss Gladys Wells (Radia, with the magic lamp), Miss Ethel Dunville (the Prince), Miss Rose le Lar (Lumino, maid of honour), and Mr. Herbert Lewis (Emperor of China).

PARK PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—A fine series of Bioscope pictures have been submitted here during the week, and, in addition, the following variety artists appeared:—the Earle Girls, entertainers; Oliver Conroy, vocal eccentric; Czynski, musical specialist; Arthur Harris, with his dramatic song, "Judge not"; Ford Williams, bass-baritone vocalist; and the Attilas, gymnasts and jumpers.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Capt. Clayton's pantomime, Cinderella, is occupying the boards here. Miss Nita Dunville as Cinderella plays and sings charmingly; Mrs. Cecil Clayton as the Fairy Godmother possesses a fine voice, and acquits herself well; Miss Amy Allnut as Prince Charming, plays in dashing style; Miss Lottie Mellor as Dandini acts and sings with success; Mr. Gus. Granville as Blustering Jim and Mr. C. Turner as Nervous Joe keep the house in a state of hilarity; the Zolo Troupe of acrobats perform wonderful feats; and La Belle Mascot on the telephone wire, Mons Rollo, an expert roller skater, and Mr. P. J. Durney, on the rolling globe, also submit specialities that are highly appreciated.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The Prince and the Beggar Maid is paying an initial visit, Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company being responsible for a clever production. Miss Annie Saker scores heavily as Monica; and other parts are skilfully treated.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Excellent business continues here, the variety programme being quite to the popular taste. The bill includes the Leotard Bros., comedy artists; James Brady, comedian; Chas. Leighton, tramp pianist; Yorkshire Tom, mimic; and Penley and English in a musical comedy sketch. The biograph includes some fine pictures, A Trip to Switzerland being most instructive.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn is here with his company in The Power of a Wicked Woman. The arduous part of Philip Carey is efficiently played by Mr. Beaudyn; Mr. Tom Robertson is a popular Horace Winter; and Guy Oliphant is ably depicted by Mr. Arthur Cresswell; Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin as Bransby and Mr. James Burt as Lord Dumley also give entire satisfaction. Miss Winifred Rutland is a charming Denise; Miss Irene Munro a capital Helen; Miss C. Crawford is well suited as Nellie; and Miss Phyllis Rae does good work as Marie.

MAESTEG.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. F. Knowles.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's company in The Secret Wedding is the attraction here this week. Edgar Hartingdon is admirably portrayed by Mr. Stanley Carlton; Miss Ruby Maud is seen to advantage as Grace E. Edmondson; other characters are well sustained by capable artists.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Harry Burns's pantomime Robinson Crusoe, seen locally last week, is the attraction here.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Mr. Edward Marris's pantomime Dick Whittington is drawing good houses here. The company includes the Waldrons (Etty and Joe), who do very well indeed as Dick and Idle Joe respectively. Miss Doris Gilbert as Alice is neat and charming; Mr. Dick Nash makes an excellent Cat; and considerable fun is added by Mr. Herbert Pearce as Free Suggestions and Decorative Material for FANCY DRESS BALLS.

Much of the enjoyment one gets out of a Fancy Dress Ball or Party depends upon the success of one's impersonation, and, with the view of helping to overcome any difficulty in this direction, the suggestions here depicted are offered. They possess the advantage of being unhackneyed, while the designs and material, besides being in themselves most attractive, afford the fullest opportunities for animated movement and graceful pose. The figures are of many nationalities, and are so diversified that it will be easy to make suitable selections; and each one is both distinctive and pretty. There is this further merit about these designs: they suggest the most pleasant and refreshing associations, Odol, the liquid dentifric and mouthwash, being the most universally popular as well as the most beneficial of toilet luxuries. Every figure makes a delightful character, and there is an abundance of charm, fun, and novelty to be got out the handling of the flasks and other material. The fabric best adapted for working up any of the designs is a dead-white taffeta, which costs but a trifle. This forms a delicate groundwork somewhat resembling the opaque glass of which Odol flasks are made; and with regard to the general decorative material, as here shown, most of the various articles, also some pretty coloured designs printed on post-cards, will be supplied free on application to the Manager of the Odol Chemical Works, 61, Park Street, London, S.E.

Fitzwarren, Mr. Billy Watson as the Captain, Mr. Will Naylor as the Mate, and Mr. Will Vestor as the Cook. Many other parts are well placed, and the singing of the Belasco Trio is enjoyable; while the scenery, dresses, dancing, and other features are pretty and attractive.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's romantic play King and the Unknown Woman is seen here this week. The piece is strongly dramatic and emotional, and a capital interpretation is given. Mr. James Stillwell as Prince Loris, the hero, is very fine, and he has a worthy vis-à-vis in Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe as Zora. Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan once more proves his remarkable aptitude for sinister characterisation as Prince Menskie, and he has the very able assistance of Miss Muriel Inglis as Countess Melvsitch. Good parts are also in the hands of Mr. W. R. Winning, Mr. Cyril Harrison, and Miss Norma Dumayne; while good fun is provided by Mr. William E. Passmore as Corporal Stalk and Miss Cissie Podmore as Schnappe. The play is well staged and entirely effective.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The big turns here this week are Morris Kronin and his troupe of jugglers, who give a wonderful show, and Terry and Lambert, who are very well received in their comedy act English Types through American Eyes; Roma and Romaine add a brilliant and entertaining musical act; Mabel Mignon gives a neat turn in comedy, vocalism, and dancing; the Eight of Hearts are accomplished dancers, who present also some very artistic poses; and other capital turns are Austin Rudd, a popular eccentric comedian; La Tamara, and her dancer, Ojeda, in graceful and picturesque evolutions; the Brennans, expert dancers; and E. J. Sheldon, the black-and-white comedian. The Bioscope shows impressive pictures of the ruins of Messina.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Mr. Lawrence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney, assisted by a capable company, are here this week in an excellent version of De Banville's Gringoire, entitled The King and the Vagabond, in which they score a big success. Camille Ober, the celebrated Parisian star artist, has a wonderful vocal range, her top-notes being flute-like; the Musical Courtiers are excellent in their high-class operatic mélange; and the Howard Brothers give a wonderfully clever banjo performance; Harry Tate's company in Motoring are highly successful; Marstro and Mlle. Oretta are equilibriste extraordinary; J. W. Hall has an amusing tram-conductor song; Nina Wood is pleasing at the piano; Harry Leybourn scores as "the nervous lady"; and Ida Kathrena, the "Dolly Girl" is good. Pictures complete.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Caster.—That charming Queen of the Wheel, Lallah Selbini, is the top star here this week, and, assisted by the quaintest of quaint assistants, scores a big success. The Friere Troupe are also highly successful in their Risley performance; and Horace Wheatley, the ever-genial Irishman, sings and dances well, and meets with a deserved big reception. Harriett Vernon is delightful in her song "Sunshine and Shadow"; the De Breans are exceedingly clever; John Henderson, well supported, holds attention in a romantic episode Under the Maple Leaf; whilst others who offer enjoyable turns are Steve Bartlie, concertinist; Leslie Rae, light comedian; and Ethel Walker at the piano. The Palace Pictures, as usual, are good.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Lester and Moure, from the New York music halls, top the bill here this week, and do some smart sand dancing. Billy Williams, the man in the velvet suit, makes a hit, as usual; Burns and Bentley dance well; the Five Musical Tritons are excellent in a vocal and instrumental scena; Mint and Mart are clever in paper manipulations; Bradley, the cycling Jew, does some clever tricks; Lew Peterman is a capital Hebrew comedian; the Rizardis appear in a novel sensational trapeze act; the Recar Trio are charming lady acrobats; and last, but not least, Cyril Jephson, a pleasing light comedian, makes a hit with his song "My Gallery Girl." The Bioscope pictures are excellent.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes. Liane D'Eve, the famous Parisian comedienne, is a star of the first magnitude; her voice is wonderfully clear, and her turn throughout artistic in the extreme. Her reception here this week is nothing short of great. Otto and Olga are highly amusing in their mock opera, and their concertina selection is excellent; Teresa Da Silva, a capital singer of catchy songs, is well received; Les Valencia, lady acrobats and toe dancers, give a very clever and unique turn; Crissie Cross sings and dances nicely; Maud Elliston and company make a hit in that vastly funny sketch Dobson's Day Off; Nellie Neske, a refined comedienne, sings pleasingly; Davis and Deane are smart simultaneous dancers; and Frank Jester is a lively comedian. Ruffell's excellent pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Carl and Mary Ohm's animal circus of well-trained ponies, bears, dogs, and monkeys is highly entertaining, especially to the youngsters. Lennard and Vereker are pleasing song illustrators; the Wastana Trio are lady jugglers of ability; Evelyn Taylor has a good style, and scores with her song "Mr. Poverty"; the Three Cascaellas tumble about in marvellous fashion; John Dearing sings well, and plays on the violin in masterly manner; and Fred Maitland, very ably assisted, is capital in his skit Talked Out. Sullivan and Edwards have some smart patter, and are good clog dancers; Edwin Austin plays the concertina well; and Ben Silvo is an accomplished gymnast. Monte Carlo in a Motor-car is a good film.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Sidney Dooley, supported by a first-rate company, is to the front here this week in that delightful pocket comic opera The Queen of the Adriatic. Mr. C. sings and talks in an amusing way; Marie Blythe is successful in several taking songs; and Maude Courtney has many good stories, and is well received. Walter Ellis is very funny in his novel scena Captain Duncan and His Airship; the Lovelaces, in illustrated songs, are popular; and other capital turns are contributed by the Maxwells, acrobats; Captain Roberts, musician, athlete, and balancer; and the Five Bombays, vocalists and clog dancers.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Kenne.—Mr J. D. Hunter's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, has been the attraction here this week, and has proved acceptable. Besides the many features in the ordinary run of the production, several specialities are introduced by the Lupinos, the Melroses, Miss Judith Espinosa, and Messrs. Dennis and Morris. Miss Cynthia Lupino makes a dashing Crusoe; and Miss Lallah Melrose is a captivating Polly, singing one or two catchy songs capitally. Mr. Mat Melrose assists greatly in the fun-producing by his impersonation of Mrs. Crusoe; and Messrs. Dennis and Morris also add to the amusement as Jack and Jimmy with their comedy business. Mr. George Lupino makes an excellent Friday; and Mr. Arthur Lenville does well as Will Atkins. The choruses are well rendered, the dressing is all that can be desired, and the dances pretty, Miss Judith Espinosa's solo dancing being especially admired.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouliot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—This week the Margate Amateur Operatic Company is playing Amasis.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Flower Girl is being presented by Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company. In the title-rôle Miss Eva Nelson makes a decided success; her singing and dancing are received with applause; Mr. John MacCallum as Joe Wheeler is exceedingly droll, and his songs are enthusiastically encored; clever character studies are those of Alphonse and Lizzie de Racquet by Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Lilian Drake; Mr. Louis Du Cane does well as Reginald Racket. Other characters are capably represented by Mr. John Latham as Johnny Wheeler, Mr. Robert Cranny as Billy Greenhill, and Miss Georgie de Lara as Miss Greenhill, a Suffragette. The chorus and orchestra render excellent service under the direction of Mr. Louis Beaufort.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Topping the bill is John Warren with his magic carpet, a musical military illusion, in which he is assisted by Miss Mollie Wynter, Messrs. F. G. Penn, Frank Morton, H. J. Collis, and company. Others prominent in an excellent programme are Miss Diana Hope, in a society episode, entitled Her Good Name, the Lavails, the Paul Hesse Trio, Dan Feeley, the Betsons, and the Denaro Brothers.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Burnett.—Messrs. J. Little and Fred Darcy are here this week with their pantomime, The Forty Thieves. As Ali Baba Mr. Wal Croft is a success; and Mr. Reg Ewen as Cogia Baba (his wife) is also good. The part of Morgiana was well acted by Mlle. Carita, whose singing was much appreciated; Miss Mary Poulton makes a sprightly Ganem; and Miss Isa Bell as Abdallah, Captain of the Forty Thieves, also shares in the success of the piece. An exceedingly clever acrobatic turn is introduced by the Five X-Rays, who well merit the applause with which they are received; the Cavallotti Brothers give a very fine musical entertainment on a great variety of instruments. The scenic effects are very good, and the dresses tasteful and pretty.

MELXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton. — Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is this week presenting the drama The Eyes of the World. Miss Ethel Van Praagh gives a cultured and impressive rendering of the wronged wife, Helene De l'Orme; Miss Elsie Capell plays sympathetically as Avice; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh makes the most of the part of Esme de Carnac; and Miss Nellie Garside is an interesting Mlle. Pomfleure. Mr. Geo. D. Dapier ably portrays the worthless character of Hector De l'Orme; M. Gaston de Carnac is well played by Mr. Will Casey; a dignified rendering of Octave is submitted by Mr. Chas. Stirling; Mr. Chas. Sewell is an excellent M. Paul Roqueville; Mr. J. Edward Whitty imparts humour to the character of Achille.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Among the leading films being shown here this week are: The Train Robbers, The Night Alarm, The Traitor, Mrs. Bonny's Suitors, and How Simpkins Discovered the Pole.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager, and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Wm. Gillette's thrilling American military play, Secret Service, is being presented for the first time in Middlesbrough by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and his company. Mr Stewart, famous for his Mr. Smith and Sherlock Holmes, gives a capable interpretation of the rôle of Captain Thorn; and Mr. Aidan Lovett made a formidable opponent in the part of Mr. Arrelsford. Miss A. Bruce Joy gives a pleasing impersonation of Edith Varney; and Miss Evelyn Ward is well suited to the part of Mrs. Varney. Mr. Fred Charles as Henry Dumont, Mr. Chauncy Morris as General Randolph, Mr. Arthur Shelton as Lieut. Maxwell, Mr. P. Robinson as Lieut. Foray, Mr. Johnson Waites as Lieut. Allison, Miss Mona Hungerford as Caroline Mitford, and Miss Ivy Ross as Miss Kitbridge ably sustain their parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The Bondman is being presented here this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin as Jason is the outstanding figure. He presents a forceful picture of the strong and passionate man. Mr. Oswald Lingard gives an excellent portrayal of the part of Adam Fairbrother, as does also Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves as Michael Sunlocks. Mr. W. H. Rotherham in the rôles of Father Ferrati and Grandfather is exceedingly good; and Mr. Wilfred Beckwith does well as Governor Testa. Miss Madge Lanerton is charming as Mrs. Fairbrother; and Miss Georgina Wynter is very pleasing as Grecko. Miss Hilda Gray is responsible for a fine impersonation as Nattalina, and also Miss Bessie West as Maria. Miss Emilie Mayhew as Christian Ann and Miss Gertrude Helene as Mona also do well. The piece is admirably staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges. — Mr. Charles Austin and company create roars of laughter here this week in the production, P.C. Parker; while Doody and Wright also have a great reception. The dancing of the male partner is particularly smart. Baddow gives a fine ventriloquial exhibition; and Surrie Lindon's Monks at Play is a pleasing musical comedy. Dalvere and Gordon cause much laughter with their patter; and Johnny Dwyer is a clever comedian. The Sisters Gordon sing well; and Will Newton, vocalist, and the Cromvells, in a juggling act, also add to a capital programme.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—The premier position on the bill here this week is occupied by Staley's transformation act. It is a wonderful piece of stagecraft and altogether entertaining show. Palles and Cussick are exceedingly funny; and the Nicholas give a mystifying exhibition ascribed to mental telepathy.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Cinderella, the third pantomime of the season, has proved an enormous attraction here. The speciality artists include the Tally-Ho Trio in mirth and harmony; Diamond and Beatrice, harp and saxophone artists; and the Four Lancashire Roses, dancers of more than ordinary ability. Miss Madge Daly makes a dashing Prince Charming, whilst the title-rôle is charmingly sustained by Miss Jessica Brooké; Miss Ida Scott is a pleasing fairy; the Ugly Sisters are admirably presented by Newham and Latimer; the Prince's attendants being capably portrayed by Miss Violet Harris and Miss May Cameron. Miss May Maddison's rag-time dancing is greatly appreciated, as is also the dancing of the Sisters Florence.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—The programme here this week is headed by the Five M.P.'s (Musical Palmers), who give a refined performance, playing several instruments with skill; Mr. Frank Lauri as an entertainer at the piano is very clever and original, and scores heavily; Wisper is a good comedy juggler; whilst Wilhelm makes a decided success in his speciality act, The Pictorial Pedlar. Mr. Truman as a tenor vocalist finds favour, and Miss Violet Ray is graceful and pleasing with violoncello solos and vocalism. Mr. J. H. Rean completes the list of artists, and an outstanding feature is the most beautiful and artistic selection of films shown.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. F. Sutcliffe.—Humpty-Dumpty continues to draw crowded houses.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company make a welcome return visit here this week in a Shakespearean répertoire. Othello was played on the opening night in the presence of a large audience. Mr. Wilkie was powerful and convincing as Othello; Mr. Alexander March made Iago an intellectual and subtle villain; Miss Haidee Gunn represented Desdemona with charm and pathos; and Frank Royde as Cassio was also very good.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—The pantomime Little Red Riding Hood, which has had almost phenomenal success, is to be withdrawn this week at the height of its success, to make way for another engagement. All the principals have become firm favourites, and Miss May Merry, Miss Jessie Templeton, and Mr. Laurie Barclay all leave with enhanced reputations.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Broad farce is the leading line here this week. Fred Karno's companies, always prolific in mirth-making, never fail to make a draw, and the company appearing here in a new farce, The G.P.O., is no exception. It includes Mr. Fred Kitchen, the inimitable comedian, whose antics when left in charge of the post office are screamingly funny, and the sketch proceeds in a succession of absurdities which keep the house in constant laughter. An attractive turn is provided by Lydia and Amelys, Parisians, who introduce the latest sensation, "The Apache Dance," with much success. Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Picks contribute both mirth and melody, whilst the Grosvenors sing popular ditties with much taste. Tom Child, the famous Yorkshire tenor, sings in pleasing style, and Nellie Taylor, the juvenile male impersonator, shows great promise. An almost inexhaustible fund of humorous patter is possessed by Ted Box, whose songs and patter are amongst the most popular on the programme, and Walter Aubrey contributes some taking songs and dances, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—The world-famous pugilist Mr. Bob Fitzsimmons and his talented wife are appearing here this week, and other artists on an excellent bill are Jock Whiteford, Sinclair and Whiteford, Blanche and Powell, the Three Krakes, the Garganis, Terry and Bentley, Tony Iveson, and Johnson and Devere.

SKATING RINK, EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—Manager, Mr. Fred B. Crowe.—Professor H. A. Simmons, the world's most graceful figure skater, is this week delighting patrons of this popular recreation, and every session sees the splendid rink crowded with skaters and lined with interested onlookers.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company appear in The Luck of Roaring Camp here this week. Miss Olive Wilton as Nell Curtis proves a pleasing and vivacious actress; Mr. Robert Purdie's presentment of his part is a fine piece of acting; and Baby Audrey displayed capabilities that promise a bright future. Mr. Clarence Ibbotson as Ebenezer supplies the humorous part, and other characters are in good hands.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Heading the bill here, Zeynard's wonderful Lilliputians provide a clever turn that is warmly recognised; Walter Bellonini sustains his reputation as a juggler; Jimmy Curwell furnishes a rare musical treat; and Winnie Harbor and the Brittany Boys are bright entertainers in singing and dancing. The Trentanovi Sisters perform some clever gymnastic feats, Virto and Venita are responsible for a pretty musical act, and Bob Hamilton sings two lively songs, supplemented by topical patter. The Bioscope, showing some pretty pictures, completes the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Messrs. Ernest Stevens and R. C. Buchanan's pantomime, The Fair One with the Golden Locks, written and produced by Mr. Stanley Rogers, has proved a great attraction here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Madge Brownie is exceedingly popular, rendering her various songs in capital style; Miss Mimi Fisher as Avenant is a pronounced favourite; and Miss Maud Howell Hersee is much appreciated as Count Von Nickel. As the Queen of Fabulosa Mr. James Chippendale creates much merriment; Mr. Will Letters makes a mirthful Prince Pippin; Mr. Charles Calvert is a good General Slopoff; Mr. Charley Harvey an amusing Admiral Bunker; and Mr. Gilbert Payne pleases immensely as Fanciboy. The speciality dances introduced by the Monte Carlo Girls are also worthy of special mention, and the well-trained chorus is effective; whilst the excellent scenery and dresses have been greatly admired.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The place of honour here is held by Zarmo, comedy juggler, who has been received with every satisfaction; Mr. and Mrs. David Donaldson, in The Veteran's Birthday, have been accorded a hearty reception; Messrs. Irene and Morton, in The Hobo and the Maid, win much applause; Miss Rose D'Aulby, vocalist, finds much favour; Mr. Reg. Garland shines as an actor-vocalist; the Karrones, in their speciality act, are well received; and the Mouldoscope shows some fine pictures.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—Poole's Myriorama is packing this house nightly. The Banzai Family of Japanese jugglers and equilibrists give a marvellous performance; the Seven Bramusas have a skilful musical act; Mr. Harry Raymond, a dancer of artistic merit, in conjunction with Little Ivy Raymond, a tiny tot, receives a well-deserved encore; Mr. Sydney Bach is clever at the piano; and Mr. Willie Dean is an excellent comedian. The pictures, both panoramic and living, are of a high order.

PAVILION. — Proprietress, Mrs. T. E. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—The artists engaged this week are Mr. Jack E. Roscoe, a good comedian; Miss Jennie Lindoe, singer and dancer; Mr. Harry Windsor; Messrs. Blair and Allen, two smart dancers; Miss Eva Melrose, a clever skipping-rope dancer; and Messrs. Chester and Lees, with their world-famed marionettes; also the Bioscope, with new pictures.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce opened on Monday. Mr. Keith Fraser with his wonted ability gave an excellent rendering of the part of Napoleon, whilst Miss Winnie Tempest with much tenderness enacted the character of Josephine. Miss Leah Marlborough was successful as Marie Louise, Mr. Geo. Hudson did well as Grimaud, Mr. Stanley Harrison was good as the Marquis de Beaumont, and Mr. Percy H. Vernon ably appeared as Talleyrand. Miss Ethel Love appeared as the little King of Rome. The tableaux are much appreciated. Friday night is set aside for the benefit of Miss Tempest.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Among the artists here this week are the Leslie Brothers, nicknamed Frederick the Great and William the Conqueror, in their musical speciality Music Mad, and their humorous antics create great laughter. Miss Ethel Pender and Mr. Claude Anderson are much appreciated in their selections from Il Trovatore; Kurkamp is good as the singing conductor; Fritz Kornan is a clever siffleur; and the other artists are Leah Arden, comedienne; Julian Mack, the chatterbox; Lilian Travellie, ballad vocalist; Sam Dalton, eccentric; and the Zampas, duettists, dancers, and baton manipulators.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beckett; Floor-Manager, Mr. W. Blanning.—The roller skating here continues very popular. It is open all day, and in the afternoon and evening a brass band supplies the music.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The New Era pictures continue successful.

BANK PLAIN ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The animated pictures here are also dancing of the Sisters Florence.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Dashing Little Duke was produced here on Monday. A detailed notice will be found in another column.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Messrs. Bateman and Conquest's company present The Crimes of Paris, and attract large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Mayor-Cooke makes a despicable villain and Mr. Herbert J. Walton renders a good account of himself as Pierre, whilst Mr. Clavering Craig gives a very capable character study as Pepin, the detective. Miss Enid Edoni, a capable actress, makes the most of the part of Angèle, and Miss Flora Hastings loses none of her opportunities as La Belle Hélène. Miss Christine Bickerstaffe and Miss Helen Dudley Davies are both good, and the remaining female parts are capably represented by Miss Carrie Jones and Mrs. Harry Foster, who as an old woman is excellent. Mr. Kendrew Milson deserves special mention for his efforts, and the remaining characters are in the hands of clever artists.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Horace Goldin, assisted by Jeanne Fransioli and company, are here this week, and Les Fleury in Paris types provide entertainment at once amusing and refined. Percy Hapman uses a fine baritone voice with great effect, and a wonderful female ventriloquist is found in Maude A. Hayward are delightful. Carter Livesey and Lilian Rosebery are successful in a clever sketch, and the Selbinis introduce some real novelties into their trick cycle act. Madge Temple meets with a deserved meed of applause, and Barrington at the piano causes wonder at his skill and amusement by his funny and unique methods. The usual Bioscope pictures conclude an interesting programme.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood.—The Oriental illusionist Gustave Fasola heads the bill, and mystifies everybody by his inexplicable cleverness, while Mooney and Holbein at the other end of the programme cause screams of laughter by their mirth-provoking sketch. Edouard José in a French sketch exhibits great dramatic power, and the Woodwards are exceedingly clever trick cyclists, whilst My Lady Betty, a sketch presented by Frank Elliston and company, is deservedly popular. The Brothers Wills cause great laughter, as also do the comedy animal tricks introduced by Clown Barker. Dorothy L. Clark, a comedienne with a delightfully ingenuous style, is successful in well-known songs, and Payen is an impersonator of no mean ability. Pictures by the Barrascope provide the usual conclusion.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—I Defy the World is being presented here by Mr. Julian Malvern's company. Mr. F. B. Woulfe plays the part of Leon Darville with success; Mr. Max Coutts as Count de Beaulieu makes a typical villain; Mr. Alfred Denning a good General Delaporte; and the blackmailer Laroche is ably depicted by Mr. Chas. Conway. Miss E. Loraine scores well as Pauline; the pathetic character of Blanche Darville is ably portrayed by Miss Florence Delmor; and humorous relief is cleverly provided by Mr. Chas. M. Julien and Miss Maud Lilian as Samuel and Maria Wozzle.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—The Four Hewsons, expert dancers, who head a fine, all-round bill, are exceedingly clever; Kuoto, contortionist, is here again with some fresh tricks; Joe Hastings, boy comedian, is an absolute wonder and imitates with success; A. Jeffries sings well; Miss Claire Hastings is applauded for her chorus songs; and The Sleeping Beauty on the Bioscope is well shown.

OSWESTRY.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Andrews.—Miss Lena Ashwell's northern combination filled the boards here on Thursday week, and presented that romantic comedy Diana of Dobson's. Miss Violet Vorley is rapidly making a name in the title-rôle; Mr. Charles Francis as Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton was eminently successful; excellent work was done by Miss Hilda Francks (Mrs. Cantelupe), Mr. Philip Sanders (Sir Jabez Grinlay), and Miss Margery Bland (the old woman).

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss B. Wilson, supported by a capable company, gave very delightful performance here of The Adventure of Lady Ursula. This week Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, under the able management of Mr. John E. Watson, is giving most admirable performances of the powerful play Idols, which has been most cordially received here. Miss Edith Goodall gives a wonderfully interesting and powerful performance of Irene Merriam—she is very real indeed in the part; Miss Moira Creegan also shows herself a powerful and finished actress as Minna Hart; and Miss Kathleen Mande and Miss Adelaine Lester are both good as Mrs. Harroway and Anna Josephs. Mr. Herbert Ford's powerful and realistic performance of Hugh Coleman met with instant appreciation; Mr. A. B. Imeson was wonderfully good as Gerrard Merriam; Mr. Alfred Ibberson's clever character sketch of the drunken servant Saunders was heartily applauded; Mr. Frank Gowell made the very best of the part of Jacob Hart; and the two barristers found clever exponents in Messrs. Harvey Braban and A. E. Grahame. Idols was capitally staged and mounted.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE. — Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks's company is here with the farcical comedy The New Housemaid. Mr. Howard L. Tracy, as Hon. Bertie Rashleigh, in the title-rôle gives an exceedingly clever performance, while he is ably supported by Mr. Reginald Hargreaves as Frank Pinkerton. Mr. Edward Mervyn is capital as Peter Pinkerton; Mr. Archie Selywyn is a genuine success as the Rev. Stephen Striyles; and Mr. F. Ramsey Forman sustains Marmsbury Doon very satisfactorily. Mr. Herbert Colley is very natural as Rosebery; Miss Dot Seilby interprets the arduous rôle of Caroline with distinction; Miss Josephine Middleton makes an attractive Nellie Haddock; and Miss Ruby Wyndham is imposing as Lettice. Considerable freshness and vigour is infused into the part of Dulcie by Miss Babs Stuart, while Miss Renee De L'Estrade is a graceful Lucie Merton.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. George Edwardes's company, capably managed by Mr. Gifford Stacey, is presenting The Merry Widow. Miss Mysie Devine delights all by her artistic portrayal of Sonia, the audience submitting themselves wholly to the spell of her fascinating acting; whilst Mr. Frank Greene's assumption of Prince Danilo reflects the exact attributes of the character. Miss Ada Thomas as Natalie portrays the varying phases of the part with much tact and skill, contributing an artistic rendering of this onerous rôle; briskness and vivacity is the keynote of Miss Katie May's performance of Frou-Frou; and praise is due to Miss Florence Midgley as Lo-Lo, Miss Adeline Burgon as Do-Do, Miss Monica Baird as Jou-Jou, Miss Amy Bingham as Clo-Clo, Miss Ida Wild as Margot, Miss Winnie Bailey as Olga, Miss Marjorie Villis as Sylvanie, and Miss Lucie Donati as Prascovia. Mr. Edward D'Arcy as Baron Popoff keeps the house in continual laughter by his funny ways, his effective by-play proving most entertaining, and in this respect he is admirably supported by Mr. Clifford Seyler, who is excellent as General Novakovitch. The Vicomte Camille de Jolidon is enacted in a dignified and natural manner by Mr. Ripley Evans, who is an effective singer; the part of Nisch loses nothing of its quaintness and eccentricity in the hands of Mr. Fred Fowler; Mr. William Allison ably represents the Marquis de Cascada; and capable exponents are found for M. de St. Brioche in Mr. F. Pedgrift, M. Khadja in Mr. Robert Needham, and the Waiter at Maxim's in Mr. Adrian Beaumont. A powerful and efficient chorus embellishes the piece, and Mr. Ernest Vousden conducts with admirable skill.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—There is a good show here this week, at the head of which are the Ten Loonies, musicians, who arouse great laughter with their hysterically hilarious sketch Dotty: Walter Ellis and company, in a playlet, entitled The Sleepwalker, evoke much merriment; that fine vocalist Will McIvor gets the usual demonstrative reception; the Delomes are capital dancers; Arthur Slater, in a whistling scena, scores with an entertaining turn; Pop Dearly, the dandy coon, earns the appreciation of the audience by his singing; Gold and Sterling, in a musical comedy scena, are conspicuously successful; Ben Tully introduces his boxing kangaroo, the animal showing wonderful training; and the Hippodrome Bioscope throws some good films on the screen.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company gives a splendid performance of A London Actress here this week. Mr. Stewart Cleveland submits a manly portrayal of Sergeant-Major Clive Crawford; Ned Kingston, R.N., is well represented by Mr. Edward Hobart; as Moses Mendoza, Mr. Frank Litchfield does some good work, and becomes a favourite; Mr. Sam Wilford has the Irish brogue to perfection, and serves up plenty of fun in the rôle of Pat Maloney; Capt. Mannering, R.N.R., is ably sustained by Mr. Fred Wicksteed; whilst Mr. W. Watkins makes a typical good-hearted policeman. Miss Hilary Burleigh as Phyllis Crawford, a London actress, comes out strongly; Miss Harriette Loydall makes a successful Biddy Maloney; Mrs. E. Clarke is good as Mrs. Skinner; Miss Emma Litchfield shows plenty of skill as Hilda Langley; and Miss Cissie Clark makes a smart callboy and a pretty housemaid. The Guiding Star and A Clever Impostor are also billed.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping an amusing and interesting programme here this week are the Seven Merry Marvels, with vocal and instrumental numbers; the Three Firmans on the horizontal bars performs extraordinary feats; Miss May Fairclough contributes a refined and edifying turn; a clever exponent of the banjo is Edmund Casselli; Abex, the college boy athlete, creates a sensation by his feats; Mlle. Florence is a graceful artist in her globe and bottle walking turn; some pretty deceptive tricks are given by the Great Y

latter for his very eccentric style; mention must be made of the excellent work done by Douglas Campbell as the Goose and the Bros. Smartie as the Donkey, all of whom are most grotesque, and cause much amusement. Of the ladies it is almost impossible to individualise, as they are all good in their respective parts. Miss Margaret Ruby makes a splendid Colin, and looks and plays well; Miss Millie Doris is a fascinating Jill; Miss Lola Patey as Gretchen captivates with her singing, yodling, and dancing; Mr. Charles Homer is an impressive Malignum (a demon); and Miss Clara Thackuray is Heartsease, the good fairy. The bubble fountain is very effectively introduced in Scene 8, and special mention must be made of the very excellent chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Frank Seddon, which aids materially in making the pantomime the success it undoubtedly is. Mr. R. Frank Parker is the acting-manager for Mr. J. P. Elliston.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Frank Lindo's play Love the Conqueror, which is appearing in Preston for the first time, is meeting with a gratifying reception, which it well deserves. The play, which is reminiscent of the times of William III., has some stirring situations, which are taken full advantage of. Mr. Frank Lindo gives a splendid presentation of Brian Norval, an outlaw, and is most ably supported by Miss Marion Wakeford, who, as Beatrice Mortimer, proves herself to be a most accomplished actress, and the audience were not slow in showing their appreciation of this clever duo. Mr. Leo R. Neilson gives a first-rate impersonation of William of Orange; and no less successful are Messrs. Norton Shields and D. Laurence Doyle, who act well in their respective rôles of Sir John Mortimer and Count Leon Lascelles. Mr. Tom E. Lewis is a most commendable Captain Rupert Armadale, acting with much spirit; Mr. Harry Belford makes a capital Mine Host of the Blue Posts Inn; Mr. Richard Walsh is a good Peter; and Nancy "By Herself" is beyond praise. Miss Nellie Benson is to be congratulated on her clever portrayal of Dame Norval; as Susan Shortly Miss Helene Thompson is capital; and Mr. W. Gregory as Nicholas and Mr. Gerald Rogers as the Gaoler, who are both good, complete the cast, which is a most competent one throughout. The play is staged in a very realistic manner, and Mr Reginald Dene, the acting-manager for Mr. Frank Lindo, is to be congratulated.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—At the top of the bill the Five Vernons, the great xylophone specialists, give a most popular turn, and prove themselves masters of this instrument; Herma, the gladiator and heavy-weight lifter, performs some remarkably clever feats in weight-lifting; the Wyffs (George and Mary) give a capital sketch, entitled St. Valentine's Day, which is well received; Dalton and Euston, black and white comedians, prove themselves to be a clever pair of simultaneous dancers; Will Sullivan is a smart comedian and patterer, who is appreciated; Les Zelovas, Continental acrobatic equilibrists, give a most finished performance, some of their feats being distinctly novel; Farrell and Dunn, the Caledonian duo, please with their song, dance, and patter; Will Willis, comedian, sings some good songs, which go down well; the Bros. Redmond are a capital duo of comedians, with a style of their own, who cause much merriment; and Marie Kay is a juvenile comedienne and dancer of much promise, who not only possesses a very pretty voice, but is also a clever dancer (a combination not always found). The Spider on the Bioscope concludes another capital all-round programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here with The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Miss Beatrice Homer in the title-rôle is a huge success; Miss Nellie Jackson creates a favourable impression as Aggie Brown; Miss Gertrude Harrison does well as Rose Courtenay; and Miss Violet Macaree deserves a word as Morits; Mr. Freddie Bentley does everything possible to make Tubby Harrick popular; Mr. Philip Darien as the hero Jack Merryman is fine; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor is a highly-finished Hubert Gold; Mr. Leonard Thackeray does well as Antonio; and Mr. William de Brigord is praiseworthy as Tom Redvers.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—Marked success has this week attended the performances of the brightly-written pantomime Cinderella, given by Mr. E. Graham-Falcon's clever company at the Royal Palace Theatre during the past week. Miss Norah Neville is a dainty Cinderella; and Miss Frankie Manners is a big favourite in the part of Prince Elegant. The company includes a number of first-rate comedians. Mr. George Whillis finds full play for his humorous mannerisms in the congenial rôle of Billie Buttons; Mr. Claude Morton (Girlie) and Mr. Alfred Evremond (Sweetie) are distinctly droll as the Ugly Sisters; the part of Dandini is impersonated smartly by Miss Dot Carey.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General-Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. G. Cardwell's clever combination is here in Little Red Riding Hood. Miss Fannie Adamson makes a dashing Boy Blue; Miss Helen Dunscombe shows to advantage as Will Scarlett; and Miss Daisy Clifford is a charming Marjory Daw; as Dame Trot Mr. V. Wakeman proves as good as ever; and as Sunny Jim Mr. Billie Melia is mirth-provoking; Miss May Gibson is a winsome Miss Muffet; as Little Red Riding Hood Iris Vivienne sings and dances well; Mr. J. J. Mannix as the Baron Hardup is excellent; and Denby and Dent are full of lively and clever gag; Miss Edna Baxter makes an excellent Sylvia; and Mr. Will Gibson takes the part of the Wolf very well.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is providing a rich musical treat this week. The repertoire for the week comprises Maritana on Monday, Madama Butterfly on Tuesday, Faust on Wednesday, Carmen on Thursday, Lohengrin on Friday, The Bohemian Girl on Saturday, and Il Trovatore at a special matinée on Wednesday. The company numbers eighty, and there is a powerful chorus, and augmented orchestra of thirty-five performers and full corps de ballet. Mr. Cuthbert Hamley is a most efficient musical director. In Maritana, Miss Rosa O'Farrell gave a finished rendering of the title-rôle; Mr. F. J. Hargrave was an excellent Don Cæsar de Bazan; Mr. Marshall Vincent did full justice to the part of Don José; Mr. William Anderson was an efficient King of Spain; and Miss Rosina Beynon was exceedingly good as Lazarillo. Miss Enriqueta Chrichton was an accomplished primâ donna as Mme. Butterfly on Tuesday, being most ably supported by Mr. Chas. Carter as Lieut. Pinkerton and Mr. Marshall Vincent as Sharples. This opera was presented for the first time in Reading, and met with an enthusiastic reception. The remaining operas have all been produced in first-class style and excellently staged, and have been attended by large and very appreciative audiences.

THE PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr. G. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco. —Ailsa Douglas displays much ability as a vocalist and comedienne; Carta and Mirtziana appear with success in a novel gymnastic act; the Anio Trio present an Algerian novelty act, in which they juggle with guns very expertly; Claude Gardiner is a diverting light comedian; John Donald appears in a vocal scena, entitled "A Scottish Exile's Dream," in which the songs of Burns and Scott are effectively illustrated; Will Harris is a funny comedian; the Four Delawares produce a diverting farcical sketch, Billiards; Messrs. J. G. Graham and Horn Conyers' company appear very successfully in a highly sensational dramatic episode of the late engineering strike, entitled Ring Up 735 East; and some good pictures on the Bioscope complete an excellent programme.

SMALL TOWN HALL.—Mr. Walter Jeff's select pictures are still drawing crowded houses here. The scenes include a realistic reproduction of the Ruins of Messina after the Earthquake, an excellent series of views on Crossing the Atlantic on an Ocean Greyhound, and other up-to-date pictures.

BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE paid a two days' visit here on Wednesday and Thursday, and was extensively patronised.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Mr. Wentworth Croke presents the Lyceum Theatre version of The Christian to the patrons here this week. The stage effects are exceptionally fine. Mr. Roy Redgrave submits an impassioned portrayal of John Storm, and Miss Daisy Scudamore enacts with earnestness and reality the part of Glory Quayle. Mr. Wilfred Noy is effective as Horatio Drake; whilst Lord Robert Ure is very cleverly sustained by Mr. Herbert Hewetson. Mr. Thomas Barry scored heavily as Father Lamplugh; and Mr. Jno. Hooker presented an acceptable embodiment of Archdeacon Wealthy. The aristocratic Lord Storm is portrayed to the life by Mr. Royce Milton; and Mr. John Blake is all that could be desired as Parson Quayle. Miss Molly Hayden makes a motherly Mrs. Callender; and Miss Cora Deane acts with feeling the part of Polly Love.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—A capital array of talent is here this week. Miss Rosie Lloyd, daintily attired, captivates the audience with charming songs; Gillin, ventriloquist, being unable to appear through sudden illness, his place was taken by Mme. Rasko and partner, with a clever equilibristic act; the Wakeman Quintette were highly successful in a refined musical comedy sketch; Harry Wenburn, comedian; Rio Banks, vaudeville artist; Roy Beavis, magician; Rene, the girl juggler; Cyrus Dare, child mimic; and the Empire Bioscope, complete a most attractive bill of fare.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—Reano and his band top the bill here; Coram, ventriloquist; Frank Weaver, comedian and expert dancer; the Three Orleans, vocalists and dancers; Alf. Gibson, quaint comedian; Florrie Conelly, descriptive vocalist; Vere and Royal, in a comedy act, On the Road; the Resans, jugglers; and the Hippodrome Pictures, are also among the attractions.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Percy Norman's No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr. A. B. Mackey, presented to a good house on Monday the domestic and military drama, A Woman Worth Winning, and gave much satisfaction. The Czar was well represented by Mr. Sydney Barton; Mr. Gilbert Standing was a manly hero as Amos Pauloff; and Roma Pauloff was charmingly played by Miss Cissie Bellamy. The author, Mr. A. B. Mackey, caused much laughter with his Ivan Bardoff; another amusing character was Bertie Scribbles, by Mr. Louis Newman; Miss Ida Mackey did good work in the same direction as Katrina Kless; Miss Trixie Leighton made an impression as Lola Kalnovsky; Mr. B. Crosby forcibly played Fergus Lovinsky; Mr. Jerold Ord (General Borinsky), Mr. Jack Corlass (Colonel Mashemoff), and Mr. Wynne Davies (Fedor Petronovitch) also gave finished studies of their several characters.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—An excelent variety programme is headed by an episode of the American War, The Spy, well played by Percy Ford and Edward C. Webb's company; Harry Reynolds' Minstrels get much applause; Taking the Census is a comical sketch by the Bros. Curran; Jack Hayworth, Scotch comedian, has a good voice, which is much appreciated; "The Birthday Party" is a pleasing monologue by Jack Barker; Horace and Olga's Dogs and Cats are cleverly trained Among the other turns are Gicardo, smart juggler; Stowe Bros., novelty equilibrists; Mark Merry, comedian; and Lily Butler, comedy artist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatten.—J. Gar Kiddie's comic pantomime, Little Bo-Peep, written by George Burton, with pretty scenery by J. Greenhalgh, appeared to be thoroughly enjoyed by the full house on Monday. There are many pretty dances in most of the scenes. Miss Lizzie Payne is a dainty Bo-Peep, singing and dancing charmingly; Miss Ivy Gallard makes a dashing Boy Blue; Miss Elsie Peach makes a good Fairy Moonbeam; and the Demon Wolf is well sustained by Mr. W. H. Gatty. Mr. J. W. Groves does some very amusing clever business as Granny Brown; Grapho and Jackson, as Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green, work hard and well to amuse; Mr. Harry Royde (Baron Hardup), Mr. W. Harris (Tommy Long), Mr. Albert Kail Stern (Rastus Brown), Miss Millie Maxwell (Demon Deaf Mute), Miss Bertha Cousins (Lord de Rhino), and Miss Marie Harding (Margery Daw), all contribute to the success of the pantomime twice nightly.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—The Regent New Animated Pictures twice nightly draw good houses. They include Cabin Boy's Sister, James Goose, Burns and Johnson Training, Spoof and the Monkey, His Work or His Wife, The Auto Heroine, The House Decorator, &c. Mr. Tom Sherlock, with his illustrated song, also scores.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Ben Hur is the chief attraction here, in his gladiatorial spectacle, Pompeii, and weight-lifting; the Reays are smart gymnasts; and Marie Winsome is very successful as a male impersonator; Zaleski is a clever contortionist; and Frank Solbrey is rightly described as the "misery shifter," his mimics of a child being exceedingly funny; Edgar Hayes and his performing pony are responsible for a very interesting turn; and Arthur Sharp is greatly appreciated.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—A good programme is again the order here, and includes the following artists, with Bert Wickham, the world's champion all-round athlete, occupying premier position:—The Ettenas, globe performers; Nellie Nora, instrumentalist; W. R. Vowles and Edith Bryan in scena, Song and Story in a Garden; G. de Relwyskow, champion light-weight wrestler; Jessie Star, Scotch comedienne; Charles Woodward, vocal comedian; and Leo, ventriloquist.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL. —Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Rollicking Rory is again being presented here, through the medium of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company. In the part of Rory Mr. Mackey gains in popularity; a manly Desmond Fitzgerald is supplied by Mr. J. P. McBride; Mr. Frederick Harker is a skilful Stephen D'Arcy; Shaun Brady is capably drawn by Mr. St. John Stuart; as General Ashleigh Mr. Richard Hutton does well; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey gives an artistic portrayal of Rosaleen Ashleigh; Miss Nana Flensburg is a delightful Rosie; Widow Callaghan is well played by Miss Adele Liddon; and as the Fairy Queen Madame Constance Bellamy contributes pleasing songs.

SHEERNESS.—HIPPODROME.—Mr. Dudley Bennett and Mr. T. C. Wray's company presented Miss Hook of Holland here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week. Miss Ethel James ably played the title-rôle; Miss Muff Carew admirably portrayed the part of Mina; Mr. Charles McLagan as Mr. Hook and Mr. George Roberts as Van Eyck were responsible for the major portion of the mirth-provoking element; and Messrs. J. B. Fox and Edward Lloyd as Captain Adrian Paap and Bandmaster Van Vuyt respectively played their parts in good style. On Thursday Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company presented Her Nameless Child.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—His House in Order is again being acted here by Mr. Herbert Ralland's excellent company. Mr. J. H. Beaumont gives a finished representation of the character of Hilary Jesson; Mr. Langford Browne gives distinction to the part of Sir Daniel Cartaret; Miss Elsie Roberts as Nina wins the cordial sympathy of all who hate the unchristian and miserable pettiness of the "respectable" section of society, lifelike types of which were presented by Mr. Patrick Robertson as Filmer Jesson, Miss Avis Grahame as Lady Ridgeley, and Miss Wray as Geraldine. The comedy was mounted with the usual Lyceum completeness.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Hemfrey-Aldred.—The beautiful and humorous annual, Goody Two Shoes, continues to be played nightly to large audiences, and the Royal habitués appear to have no desire for heavier fare at present.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Walter Melville's company opened to a crowded house on Monday in the thrilling domestic drama, A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Hilda Beverley repeated her powerful impersonation of Barbara, and all the other parts were carefully acted.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The talented Elliott-Savonas are this week appearing in the magnificently staged musical spectacle, The Palace of Orpheus; a smart military performance and ju-jitsu act, by Enger and Clarice, is loudly applauded; Mr. F. W. Purcell's company pays a welcome return visit in the laughable farce That Brute Simmons; those old-established local favourites, the famous Albert and Edmunds comic ballet troupe, again cause hearty laughter in the screaming pantomimical absurdity, Neighbours; Miss Edie Endon is a clever Parisian dancer; and others engaged are Miss Hilda Jacobson, a favourite at the Empire; Mr. Tom Stuart, Mr. Harry Lawson, and Miss Nance Elder. Excellent Bioscope Pictures conclude a generous programme.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Eibourne.—Mr. William Holland's spectacular and comic pantomime, The Forty Thieves, has been a big success, and finishes its run in Sheffield this week. The splendid scenery, by Ryan, McLellan, Dunn, and Egerton conduces greatly to the artistic completeness of the production, and all the artists, including the Three Sisters Tree (Dolly, Bibby, and Portia), Miss Cecilia Gold, Miss Bertha Clifton, Mr. Bob Selvidge, Mr. Walter Grosvenor, Mr. Jack Waller, Mr. Rob Wilton, Mr. Wallace Bosco, and Mr. Chris Le Brunn, the laughter-provoking representative of Percy, Ali Baba's moke, keep the "pot a-boiling" to the merry strains of Mr. Hahn's splendid orchestra. The graceful dancing of the charming quartette, Sadie Cassell, P. Wardroper, Mabel Hope, and Fancy Free, wins deserved applause; and Miss M. Donald's ballets are cleverly invented, and are done justice to by the ladies of the corps de terpsichore.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—A good programme of moving photographs, by the Raymond Bio-tableaux Co., together with illustrated songs, continue to please large and well-pleased houses at this old-established and popular resort.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—The new version of Hall Caine's highly-popular play, The Christian, was put on here on the first three nights of this week, its striking scenes and powerful representation ensuring popular appreciation. As the Hon. John Storm Mr. P. Gedge Twyman worked with wholehearted fervour throughout, and his passages with Glory were marked with passionate feeling; Mr. Edward Ouston may be deservedly complimented upon his talented acting as Horatio Drake; Mr. G. Montague Lake gave a faithful and praiseworthy rendering of the part of Lord Robert Ure; Mr. John Hastings Batson made a sympathetic and capable Father Lampugh; Mr. Wm. Mallalieu as Archdeacon Wealthy made a typical high ecclesiast; Mr. W. Ellis as Lord Storm merited encomiums; and other male parts were creditably taken. Miss Margery Fane's interpretation of the all-important rôle of Glory Quayle had the merit of originality, and although in the most impressive passages with John Storm she erred in respect of being too impassioned, her acting was meritorious; Miss Alice Maude as Mrs. Callender was faithful and commendable; Miss Gladys Vernon as Polly Love won the sympathy of her audience; Miss Grace Baring took the part of Black Meg in a most satisfactory manner; Miss Sissie Murdock in the repulsive character part of Mother Kent was deserving of a meed of praise; and other ladies' parts were well filled. There was an entire change in the bill of fare for the succeeding nights of the week, animated pictures of an interesting and up-to-date character being the leading features; but the programme was agreeably varied by Colin and Irene's expositions of second sight and mental telegraphy, and Edgar Crooks' amusing magical extravaganza.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston. — The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company are this week presenting a series of their comic operas. The ball was set rolling on Monday with The Gondoliers, and the usual big success was scored. On Tuesday The Mikado proved a big favourite. Mr. Charles R. Walenn kept the house rocking with laughter as Ko-Ko; Mr. Fred Billington was excellent as Pooh-Bah; and capable support was given by Mr. Leicester Tunks as the Mikado and Mr. Stafford Moss (Nanki-Poo). Miss Clara Dow sang beautifully as Yum-Yum; and Miss Ethel Morrison scored as Katisha. Other favourites in the company are Messrs. Sydney Granville, Allen Morris, Hugh Blackmore, and Fred W. Pattrick, and the Misses Beatrice Meredith, Mabel Graham, and Bertha Lewis. Other operas presented during the week include The Yeomen of the Guard, H.M.S. Pinafore, and Iolanthe.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Mr. Bernard Mervyn and company are appearing in a dramatic sketch, entitled 'Twixt Dusk and Dawn; Madge Grey excels as a comedian and mimic; and May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, is also popular. Captain Devereux and his troupe of dogs; Leslie and Stevens, in their successful act, Love Levels All; the Milton Trio, Jamie Piper, and Cherry Lass also contribute. The Sunday concerts are going very strong here. The A.M.U. band and orchestra, conducted by Mr. J. Warwick Moore, supply the music, and the pick of the picture world is shown on Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—The Johnstown Flood, which represents the last word in stage illusions, is proving a great attraction; F. V. St. Clair rattles off verses on every conceivable topic, and scores a huge hit; the dramatic sketch, The Usurer, is exceedingly well played by Sydney Mason and Theresa Moore, who are capably supported; Dion Wade is a quaint comedian; and other successes are scored by Marie Glenn, Lieut. Travis, Mark Brand, and the equestrian sketch, The Horse Dealer.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walturdaw Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Auguste Denton.—Twice nightly this cosy theatre is packed, and the management well deserve their success, for all that is latest in the animated picture world is shown, to the accompaniment of loud applause. The Sunday picture concerts are quite a feature, and the hall is absolutely packed every Sunday evening.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Capital and up-to-date pictures, presented by Messrs. A. and H. Andrews, are attracting good houses nightly. The programme is changed twice weekly, and Miss May McPherson, accompanied by an excellent orchestra, renders a number of beautifully illustrated songs.

PIER PAVILION.—Morning, afternoon, and evening exhibitions of roller skating are still the rage, and the pastime is rapidly increasing in public favour. A fancy dress skating carnival will take place next Wednesday evening.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power. — A dramatised version of Sapho was presented here on Monday, with Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath in the chief parts. Mrs. Frank Bateman makes an ardent personality of the title-rôle; Mr. Stuart Lomath, who is responsible for the revision and adaptation of the play, makes a vigorous Jean Gaussin; Mr. H. Aynsleigh is popular with a clever exposition of Famant; Mr. M. Curtis as Henri Dechelette; and Mr. Geo. Herbert as Jules Delbret also give satisfaction; Miss Mabel Durham portrays Alice with success; Miss Ellen Owen giving a good impersonation of Cleopatra. Comedy is well represented by Mr. Percy Shaw as Uncle Cesaire; Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Hettema; and Miss Nellie Wilson as Madam Hettema.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS. —Proprietors, The Southport Opera and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—An entertainment of great attractiveness is provided during the current week by Mr. Cotton's excellent company in the successful musical play, Butterflies, which was presented here for the first time on Monday evening to a large audience. The magnificent spectacular displays and brilliant ensemble, together with the classical dance, entitled "La Naissance du Papillon," which was gracefully and cleverly executed by Miss Millie Gordon, were a revelation to the local playgoers, who thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated them. Miss Annie Heenan was highly successful, alike in a dramatic and vocal sense, in the rôle of Rhodanthe, the witch, which she depicted with irresistible vivacity and abandon; Mr. Harrison Brockbank caused much amusement by his humorous impersonations of Widgery Blake (Puck), and both in acting and singing was highly commendable; Mr. Edwin H. Wynne was admirable in every way in the part of Christopher Podmore, which was exceedingly well-played; Mr. Johnny Wilkinson presented an exceedingly droll portraiture as Yarker, the chauffeur, and created much merriment; Elsie Podmore had a very capable and pleasing exponent in Miss Lilian Wesson; Peter and Gilbert had very capable representatives in Mr. Alan Mudie and Mr. Francis Rayne respectively; Miss Ada Davidson enacted the character of Nora Podmore with emphasis and as Archdeacon Wealthy, Mr. E. R. Holloway does well as Lord Storm; Miss Doris Gilham gives an excellent portrayal of Glory Quayle; and Miss Margaret Brodie as Polly Love and Miss Sinna St. Clair as Miss Callender do well in their respective parts.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Mr. Fred Granville's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is drawing good houses her this week. Miss Cissie Paris makes a charming Robin Hood, and is laudly applauded for her vocal efforts; Miss Marie Elsie as Maid Marion does well; Miss Violet Wilson and Baby Boden are very popular as the Babes; Mr. Alf. Brooks is a clever comedian; Mr. Will Donnett is responsible for some very clever dancing; the Kimberley Boys, eccentric comedians and dancers, have become great favourites; the Six Emerald Gems are a clever troupe of dancers; Mr. Norman Hall does well as the Wicked Uncle.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company presents here the successful drama, A Heart's Desire. Mr. Ernest Wingfield plays the part of Eric May in excellent manner; Mr. F. S. Strickland does well as Lord St. Ives; Miss Lilian Beaumont gave a charming portrayal of Hon. Elsie Beresford; and Miss Lina Nazeby also does well as Oiya. Payne's Bio-Photoscope concludes with The Chambermaid and the Dwarf.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney. —Mr. Gus Elen is most successful in various numbers from his extensive répertoire; his scena, The Wrong 'Un's Bedroom, is most amusing, creating roars of laughter; Ajax and George are seen in a novel and unique gymnastic act; the Sisters Draycott harmonise in a charming manner; Macintosh and Royal give a smart exhibition of clog dancing; and also to be noted are Kirk and Saraski; Lily Ray, a clever little dancer; Harry Vardon; Sidney Burns; and the Bioscope.

STOURBRIDGE. — ALHAMBRA THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps; Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Miss Winifred Maude's company has presented here The Stowaway and The Convict. In the latter piece Miss Winifred Maude plays the part of Dora Renshawe in a touching manner; Mr. L. S. Harrison, in the part of Captain Hurley, is sinister and truculent; Mr. Rupert Talbot as Harry Seaforth plays a difficult part with success; Miss Jennie Hackett deserves special mention for her ability as Jennie Perkins; Mrs. Wingold Lawrence as Olga Brandon is responsible for a smart interpretation; Mr. Geo. Byrne as Chas. Renshawe acquits himself well; and Mr. Victor Du Cane as Freddy Freckles and Alphonso Godin deserves special mention. The Merry Widow came on Thursday.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' principal company is playing a return visit here, with The Gay Gordons. Miss Maie Ash as Peggy Quainton is having most enthusiastic receptions. She gives a bright, vivacious, and piquant representation, and sings in a pleasing and dainty manner. Mr. Stanley Brett again fills the rôle of the Gay Gordon, and is simply irresistible; Mr. Ernest Torrence gives a capital portrayal of Andrew Quainton; and George Carrol is droll as Edmund Siddons; Victoria Siddons being well interpreted by Miss Lily Maxwell.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. Frederick Melville's Her Road to Ruin is meeting with a warm reception here. Miss Alice Bowes made a decided hit as May Willoughby; the Rev. Frank Temple was excellently played by Mr. Henry Volston; Mr. Dane Clark as the Bishop was equal to all the demands; Philip Hardy, the villain, gave Mr. Alex. Bradley full scope for his ability; Jess Willoughby could scarcely have had a better exponent than Miss Beatrice Edwards; Miss Nellie Bonsor was seen to advantage as the wronged Lancashire girl; Messrs. Duncan Yarrow and V. R. C. Moor were all that could be desired as Tom Wells and Charles Cholmondeley; and Mr. Henry Hague was a capable Sir John Lewis. Miss Marie Wright was the essence of drollery as Jennie Crackler; and Mr. Henry Talbot as Billy Boots was well placed.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The chief feature of this week's programme is the equestrian act of Karl Reinsch and Miss Lucie. Helen Trix, American comedienne and siffleuse, is particularly pleasing with her smart songs and her whistling solos; Jessie Wilton repeats the success she won at the "King's" pantomime as principal boy; the dancing of Leonette Roberty and company is very fascinating; Frank Bertram and company present an amusing sketch, entitled The Chaperon; Dennis Drew, in a patriotic military musical scena, Back to Barracks, presents an effective act; Arthur Astill is a versatile whistling mimic; and George Westland, a smart Scotch comedian. Bert Williams gives a popular ventriloquial act.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. R. Foulkes Edwards.—The animated pictures at this theatre are now in full swing, under the capable management of Mr. Edwards, and large audiences are being drawn nightly. This week the chief item on the programme is a film of the well-known aeronaut, Mr. Wilbur Wright, in a trial flight.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry N. Phillips; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—An excellent programme of animated pictures is submitted here.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—This week a variety programme is being given here. Arthur Kenny creates a sensation with his cycling feats; Anandos is a clever facial mimic; Odeyne Spark, comedienne and dancer, is well received; Rosina is an instrumentalist of ability; Carlo and Mane, comedy wire acrobats, are good; Jack Hamilton, comedian, goes down well; George Antill is rightly termed "The Evening Shadow"; and Brown and Robinson sing nicely; Robert Williams imperson-

Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen

DO NOT BE MISLED BY UNESSENTIALS.

The point about a Fountain Pen is not how you get the ink into it. That is easy. The real vital point is how the ink comes out. Some fountain pens blot, some leak, some don't let out the ink at all. The ink comes out of Waterman's Ideal just at fast as you need it when writing, and just as much of it comes out as you want—no more, no less. (Waterman's Ideal Pump-filling Pens and Safety Pens can now be obtained from high-class stationers at 12/6 and upwards).

Prices—10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 21/-, and upwards. In Silver and Gold for Presentation. Of Stationers, Jewellers, &c. Booklet post free from L. & C. HARDTMUTH, 12, Golden Lane, London, E.C. (New York, 173, Broadway; Paris, 6, Rue de Hanovre; Vienna, Karnthnerstrasse 9; Milan, Via Bossi 4; Dresden, Pragerstrasse 6; Brussels, 14, Rue du Pont Neuf).

TODMORDEN.—The Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Dewhurst.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, in Dare Devil Dorothy, is proving an excellent attraction here. Miss Nellie Valentine in the title-rôle is successful, her song, "Tiny seed of love," bringing down the house; Miss Nellie Harcourt makes a bright and engaging Judith, her step-dancing being smart; the part of Ruth Montrose is admirably portrayed by Miss Ethel Griffies; Miss Florence Corri as Rosy Ann, and Miss Daisy Holbrook as Polly are acceptable step and acrobatic dancers; Mr. Walter Ashley makes a handsome and dashing Captain Fielding; and Mr. Walter Nugent as Captain Dudley acts with force and vim. Mr. Will Brereton's (Silas Crump) humour and songs keep the audience in mirthful mood; Mr. Edward Aldworth as Hawkins plays with force; and as Featherstonehaugh Mr. Deane Cliffe is amusing.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Theatre Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—A pleasing variation is afforded by the engagement of Mr. Harry Benet's pantomime company, in Robinson Crusoe. Miss Nellie Dyson is exceptionally smart in the title-rôle; Pollie Perkins is well played by Miss Stella Millar; Mr. H. Benet scores as Billy Crusoe; Miss Cissie Ramsay, a charming Britannia, receives loud applause for her "Tiny seed of love" song; Rand and O'Ryan introduce a smart boxing comedy act as Flip and Flap (pirates); and Mr. D. Phillips' Welsh ways, as Mrs. Pankhurst Crusoe, are highly appreciated.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—A strong programme is headed by Muir and Bartlett's company in The Collar Stud. The Paul Kramer Troupe of gymnasts provide the finest act of its kind seen here. Dan Filmer is popular; Indiana, the rubber lady, and Miss Ivy Adelaide win rounds of applause; and the chief picture is The Auto-heroine.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. Reginald Dance and his company are paying a welcome return visit this week, in Raffles. Mr. Reginald Dance in the title-rôle fully captivates the audience, and he is recalled again and again after each act; Miss Frances Titheradge makes a winsome Gwendoline; whilst as Lady Ethel Miss Marguerite Unett is all that can be desired. The part of Mr. Curtis Bedford, the detective, is admirably sustained by Mr. Edward Irwin, who makes it quite a character study; and Mr. A. P. Bell also does exceedingly well as Harry Manders. A typical Crawshay is found in Mr. Oswald Griffiths; and Mr. P. Alexander is quite at home as Lord Amersteth; the part of Lady Melrose being in the capable hands of Miss Kitty Lofting. Mr. F. C. Pool is decidedly amusing as Lord Crowley; whilst Miss Doris Digby is certainly a characteristic Marie. The rôle of Mrs. Vidal is left to Miss Molly Tremaine, who is a great success, her representation of that charming, though vindictive, lady being of the highest order.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Opera House.—Hippodrome Season; Mouillot and De Frece Circuit.—Lessee, Mr. Wilton Dale; Manager, Mr. C. V. Hoskins.—A strong programme is being presented this week, including Mlle. Flora Lumière, in her Fairy Grotto and fire dances, with special lighting effect; Johnny Fuller gives his unique speciality, the Cat on the Wire; and Rohana entertains at the piano with versatile mimicry. The Victas, barrel jumpers, perform some clever feats; and Daisy Hicks is well received in her songs. Alfred Nardi, the blind musical genius, charms the house with his clever violin solos. The booking was very heavy for the flying matinée of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch on Wednesday, and the visit proved a great success.

TYLDESLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt and company are presenting here A Victim of Villainy. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt capably sustains the character of Stephen Kavanagh; Mr. F. J. Pitt deserves praise for his impersonation of Frank Manton; Walter Lennox is satisfactorily presented by Mr. J. Campling; and Dick Carson has a good exponent in Mr. Wilson Roberts. Miss Kathryne Eckart gives a skilful rendering of Mary Manton; Miss Florence Hatton shows ability as Alice Cavanagh; Miss Dollie Lester makes a suitable Eric; Miss Alice Clarke a vivacious Norah Maloney; and excellent comedy is supplied by Mr. Fred Carroll as Tom Leckie, and Mr. Frank Dallas as Patrick Maloney.

WAKEFIELD.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The production of the domestic drama Mother at this house is noticed in another coloumn.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Tom Lloyd, comedian, scores a hit with his humorous songs; Maxey and Pete are clever trick cyclists; Rozel, speciality gymnast, provides a sensational turn; George Gulliver, ventriloquist, is smart; Emma Don, male impersonator, gives a good turn; Miss Ethel Stephenson, ballad vocalist, sings well; and the Munroe Comedy Team delight with their clever business.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—This week the boards of this house are occupied by the vocal amateur dramatic society, in The Lady of Ostend.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. H. C. Hardcastle.—A pleasing little Dutch operetta, Happy Holiday, in which Jake Friedman, the well-known Dutch comedian, is the central figure, is the chief feature in the bill; Miss Belle Davis, with pick chic actress, sings and dances with gusto; Miss Sable Fern's topical songs are very taking; Frank H. Fox sings some rare songs; and Mack Ollive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry, whistles delightfully. Clarice Clarke sings in fine style; and the pictures are good.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—The Six Bush Boys are delighting large houses with their singing and dancing, and the song scena, typical of camp life in the bush, is very realistic; Mamie Morris is a charming comedienne, and her songs are all encored; J. H. Ellis always creates a laugh; Andrew Atkinson's illustraied songs are still a source of amusement; and the pictures form a choice collection.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Frank Adair, with a specially selected company, in The Heathen and the Christian, is attracting crowded audiences. Li, the Avenger, is characteristically played by Mr. Frank Adair; the rôle of Chang Lu is admirably portrayed by Leonard Clapham; Mr. Herbert Robinson scores a success as Lord Allendale; Mr. Gerald Turner does excellent work as Admiral Freebold; Joshua Sampson is ably depicted by Mr. Fred Waring; and as George Berresford Mr. Dudley Wynton meets with approval. Mr. Bruce Williams is responsible for comedy in the part of Bah Lamb Gentle; an artistic impersonation of May Berresford is presented by Miss Fay Garnet Vayne; Miss Eva Reed's songs and dances as Becky Fibbins are warmly appreciated; and as Mira Sampson Miss Adeline Ruby scores a success.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Messrs. Bliss and Bliss are this week presenting their up-to-date pantomime Mother Goose. Mr. Leo Bliss as Widow McGooseley and Mr. Geo. Bliss as King Geezer are responsible for much of the fun; Mr. Leo Kerno is successful as Septimus Snatchall; Jill has a pretty representative in Miss Ray Ford, whose song "Antonio" and dainty dancing are very successful; and Miss Ethel Dunford makes a gay and dashing Prince. Specialities are successfully introduced by Pete and Juno, the Sylvia troupe of dancers, Louie Kerno, Bliss and Bliss, the Two Rubies, and Miss Ray Ford.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The Warsaw Brothers, in their musical comedy act, delight all; much praise is due to the Fitzroys for their smart gymnastic display; Ohms and Carbeth are funny in comedy juggling; Fun in a Music Shop, by Bruil and Hemsley, is very amusing; the Stannings troupe are clever in their pedestal and simultaneous dancing; Vera Violet's songs go well; and Charles Coll does well.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Poole's Myriorama is proving a tremendous draw here. The variety programme consists of Harland and Rollinson, musical marvels; the Four Craigs, gymnasts; Roy, Miles, and Roy, in a clever juggling act; and the Bioscope.

Victoria Theatre.—Prourietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—The Four Netherlands in their singing and barefoot dancing act are a big success here; the Keppels, operatic vocalists, are good; the Howard Family in their throught-reading are as mysterious as ever; the Boscos submit an acrobatic scene, with some good comedy introduced; and Cade Burnett, actor-vocalist; Lytton and Bland in their speciality A Lesson in Love; and the Vicoscope complete.

WEYMOUTH.—Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis.—Mr. Morton Powell's company are here this week with the powerful play When It Was Dark. Mr. Cecil Mannering plays Constantine Schwabe with great effect; Mr. W. Lyndon as the Rev. Basil Gortre is a carefully-studied impersonation; Mr. Wm. Burgess is very good as Sir Robert Llewellyn; and Mr. Collingham as Harold Spence fulfils a difficult part. Miss Valerie Russell is very charming as Helena Byars, and Miss Alice O'Dea powerfully played the part of Gertrude Hunt. The other members of the company are all good in their several parts.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Lena Stanton and Harry Joseph's company, in Aladdin, occupies the boards this week. Miss Janet Lawton, in the title-part, plays well; Miss Kitty Avey, a winning Princess, sings sweetly; Miss Ella Rose is a smart Pekoe; Mr. Harry Harcourt a funny Mrs. Twanky, and Messrs. W. and F. Shephard cause many a hearty laugh.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—A return visit of The Village Blacksmith is being welcomed here. Mr. Sam Livesey still continues to represent the title-rôle in an effective and picturesque manner; while he is well seconded by Mr. Albert Sinclair as Captain Leo; and Mr. Ned Haming is as humorous as ever as Billy Twigg. Miss Maggie Edwards is still excellent in her accustomed part of Kate Strong; and Miss Cassie Le Grande is a capital Ruth Parkins.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—John Leopold's company of acrobatic comedians in The Houseboat and Those Terrible Boys create roars of laughter for their efforts; John Marx, the strong man, gives an interesting performance which is somewhat out of the ordinary; the Stadium Boys prove themselves to be clever tumblers; Carr and Rose are wen received for their vocal selections; Olive Myrtle dances herself into favour; Castancia also gives an enjoyable turn; George Young is a blind musician deserving of much merit; Marie Jones is very amusing in the episode The Way to Win a Bet; the Great Mitzi gives a pleasing entertainment; and Blanche Leslie causes quite an ovation with her illustrated songs.

The Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Both instruction and amusement are to be obtained from the pictures at this popular place of amusement. A Tale of Two Cities is the chief attraction, while an episode in the life of Nick Carter proves to be of absorbing interest. Amongst others are The Man in the Overalls, Through Holland, The Viking's Daughter, and The Aspirator. The usual diverting turn is supplied by Dan Doyle, who proves himself to be a most amusing comedian.

Empire Palace.—Managing Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston. Joe Peterman and company in The Pawnbroker are the premier attraction. It is a curious combination of knockabout business, melodrama, and comedy, but delights the audience. Rita and Mack are responsible for an entertaining tumbling and dancing act; Ida Barr, who is the lucky possessor of a fine stage presence, immediately caught on in chorus songs; Clarke and Glenny in The Haunted House provide plenty of merriment; Harry Carsdale gives some really clever imitations of the noises peculiar to a farmyard; Vincent performs sensational acrobatic table tricks; and Cara Magda is a smart gymnast. The Empire pictures are of special interest this week, portraying as they do the recent earthquake disaster at Messina. The enterprising manager here has established a series of cinematinées every Saturday, which from the attendance at the initial performance are likely to prove a big success.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. L. Le Warde.—The management has this week reverted to variety entertainment, and an excellent programme includes the Four Elwyns, in their vocal scena, "Down in the Mine"; the Vasilescu Acrobatic Troupe; Lingi Salvino, on selected wind instruments; Da Reilma, a capable vocalist; Chas. Lestree, a clever ball manipulator; Harry Blake, comedian; Gibbon and Bell in a humorous turn, entitled Wanted, a Partner; the Rinders' vocal contributions; and some excellent pictures.

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—This week the Queen's superb life-motion pictures have been augmented by a strong variety talent. Les Montaldos, with their wonderful birds, introducing equilibristic feats with parrots, cockatoos, and macaws on the slack wire, have simply enraptured the audiences and secured recalls nightly. Then the Great Day, postman, conjurer, and illusionist, with his staff, have given us an up-to-date performance. Altogether a very good show.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. McKenzie Morgan.—A very fine set of pictures indeed is here, including The Volcanic Chimney, a regular laugh extractor. Cavalli, the strong man, lifts a piano and lady and does marvels with springs; Sylvesto and Rumbo are a pair of very clever and amusing eccentrics, and the last named does some funny work with three local boys; Mr. Greaves is a tenor of quality, and sings a naval song in approved fashion. Always a popular and well-filled house.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here for the week. On Monday a fine performance of Under Two Flags was given. Although Mr. Mark Blow's familiar presence was missed in the character of Bertie Cecil Royellieu, great satisfaction was given by Mr. Austen Milroy, who soon became a favourite; Mr. R. Harley-West does well as Berklie Cecil Royellieu; as does Mr. Charles Brooke as Lord Royellieu; Mr. Reginald Huntworth makes an imposing Marshal of France; Mr. Roy Jackson excelently enacts the part of Colonel Chanteroy; Mr. Fred Hilliard is convincing as Abe-el-Keu; Miss Dorothy Lart is good as Princess Venetia Corona; Miss Joan Stern typically enacts the part of Countess Olga; and Miss Agnes Verity is a very taking Cigarette. On Thursday At Cripple Creek was presented.

WREXHAM.—Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—Owing to her great success Miss Ella Dean, the popular comedienne, was retained here for another week, and has been singing new songs, for which she has been loudly applauded. The Bros. Harrison are clever comedians and patterers; while Miss Florence Carlow is a pleasing serio and descriptive vocalist. The pictures are still one of the most popular features of the entertainment.

YORK.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' company has done excellent business this week with The Gay Gordons. Mr. Charles Childerstone is to be heartily congratulated on his fine rendering of Angus Graeme—from start to finish it is a capital performance; Miss Marie West invests the rôle of Peggy Quainton with much natural charm, and never fails to secure unstinted applause for her successful efforts; Miss Florence Somers makes a picturesque Victoria Siddons, singing with taste; there is much broad humour in Mr. Edwd. Carlton's assumption of the rôle of Nervy Nat, which proves most acceptable; and he is ably played up to by Louie Emery, who creates much fun as Charlotte Siddons, and Robert Rivers as Edmund. Special praise is due to Kathleen Dighton for her natural acting as Mary McLeod.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—John Tiller's Red Riding Hood pantomime is a lively production, bristling with fun throughout, and it has been well patronised. In the title-rôle Eva Colton appears to great advantage—her impersonation is a charming one; Miss Nancy Hearne is handsome as the Prince; as the Fairy Miss Florrie Page sings in first-rate style; Howard Ward invests the part of the Dame with much amusing detail; Fred Russell works hard and is successful as the Baron; Will Lytton and Walter Watson as Johnny Stout and Johnny Green introduce much amusing business which takes well; and the mounting of the pantomime is lavish, the scenery being especially rich.

"MOTHER."

A Domestic Drama, in Four Acts, written by Miss Shelia, produced at the Opera House, Wakefield, on Monday, Feb. 8.

Duncan Fairweather	Mr. Harry Foxwell
Frank Rodney	Mr. Alex. Alexander
Stephen Carrington	Mr. Sydney Luton
Jasper Raudon	Mr. Fred Rivers
Old Crump	Mr. Roy Gordon
Biggs	Mr. Jas. Swinbanks
Rev. John Strong	Mr. Harrison James
Tommy Noblets	Mr. Teddy Miles
Martha	Miss Blumenthel
Polly Crumpet	Miss Nancy Mitchell
Vesta L'Estrange	Miss Zara Leigh
Hon. Mrs. Billy	Miss Dora Kelland
Mrs. Bagot	Miss Kathleen Hunt
Nellie Fairweather	Miss Sheila Walsh

The first act is laid in Cornwall at the home of Duncan Fairweather, an old fisherman, whose daughter Nellie is carrying on a clandestine courtship with Stephen Carrington, a wealthy and dissolute man. Her father had promised her hand to a young sailor, Frank Rodney, who loves her, and is away on a voyage. Carrington and his associate, Jasper Raudon, arrive, and after some words with old Fairweather, the latter orders them to leave. It transpires that Carrington and Raudon had been the means of getting Rodney imprisoned on a false charge of robbery, but the latter had escaped from gaol. Carrington endeavours to persuade Raudon to carry off Miss Fairweather for him, but he sternly refuses. Nellie returns home from a walk, and shortly after her lover, Frank Rodney, returned from his long voyage, joins her, and declares his love. She admits that she loves Carrington, who arranges for her to elope with him that night. Duncan Fairweather, realising her affection for Carrington, casts her off, and bids her leave his house for ever. At this moment the Rev. John Strong endeavours to act as peacemaker, and beseeches the father to take her back, and the curtain falls.

The second act opens in the interior of Duncan Fairweather's cottage, where we find Frank Rodney and Nellie married, and residing with her parents. Nellie is fretting and pining for her old love Carrington, who is corresponding with her. On paying her a secret visit he threatens to denounce Frank as a thief and escaped convict unless she leaves him and becomes his mistress. In order to save her husband, she leaves her home unknown to her family. Carrington then procures Rodney's arrest as a runaway prisoner, and takes his wife to his home. The scene of the third act is Carrington's mansion, where he is living in luxury and dissipation surrounded by gamblers. Carrington, becoming tired of Nellie, and losing his money in gambling, wishes to be rid of her, and is about to turn her away when her father steps in, and there is a fracas between the two men. Duncan refuses to take his daughter back, and Carrington then attempts to shoot Nellie, but she avoids him, and succeeds in obtaining the revolver from him, and then, by means of threats to kill him, she forces him to sign a confession declaring her husband's innocence. Carrington is then brought to justice. Nellie returns to her home, where she is forgiven by her father and restored to her husband.

Chief honours are due to Mr. Harry Foxwell for his excellent rendering of the part of Duncan Fairweather, his performance being natural and realistic; Mr. Sydney Luton is good as the villain Stephen Carrington, well supported by Mr. Fred Rivers as Jasper Raudon; Miss Sheila Walsh fills with great charm the character of the erring Nellie; Miss Blumenthel does full justice to Mrs. Fairweather; Miss Zara Leigh is admirable as Vera L'Estrange; and the humour is well provided by Miss Nancy Mitchell as Polly Crumpet and Mr. Teddy Miles as Tommy Noblets. The other parts are well sustained. The scenery and mounting of the piece are excellent.

"ALADDIN" AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

(Second Notice.)

The second impression of Aladdin is undoubtedly better than the first, for the constituent parts of Mr. Robert Arthur's twelfth Newcastle pantomime are such as stand the test of, and, in fact, improve on, further acquaintance. Everything shows a marked advance on any previous Arthurian successes, and artists, chorus, dresses, and scenery all testify to the truth of this. Perhaps the two most beautiful scenes are the fourth scenes in each act—the Home of Jewels and Aladdin's Palace—both of which are masterpieces in stage pictures. The dresses have seldom, if ever, been equalled here, and it will be but meet and right for Mr. Arthur to reap the benefit of such enterprise, which it seems almost certain he will do judging by the crowded houses each evening. The artists, many of whom are well known stars, are still further enhancing their previous reputations. Two very dainty players are Miss Violet Lloyd and Miss Maud Thorne, the principal boy and birl. Miss Lloyd who, unusually for a principal boy, is dainty and petite, plays with such unfailing vivacity that it is impossible not to approve entirely of her conception of the bold Aladdin in whose hands the magic lamp is made to achieve such wonderful results. Her rendering of the various tuneful numbers allotted to her, including "The tiny seed of love," is in every way delightful. Miss Thorne makes, as the Princess, an entrancing figure, and sings and dances with equal attractiveness. Amongst the many merrymakers in the cast it is necessary to express admiration of Miss Fanny Fields, who as Gretchen seems absolutely bubbling over with contagious mirth, her broken English and quaint humorous patter keeping everyone in a continual state of hilarity; and, again, her versatility shows prominently in the charmingly-rendered "Postcard song," in which she appears as a dainty maiden, quite different to her impersonation of the Dutch girl. The Widow Twankey—the one character common to all pantomimes—is portrayed by Mr. Malcolm Scott, and that strong-minded lady could hardly have a more entertaining exponent. Mr. Scott sings the "Geography" and "Directoire" songs, but they are only excuses for his discourses upon men, women, and things in general, which are vastly amusing as well as clever dissertations. The wicked magician Abanazar is Mr. Harry Tate, who contributes, amongst other hilarious items, his golfing and motoring sketches, both of which in themselves are well worth a visit. The burden of work, however does not fall entirely on these shoulders, and it is a real pleasure to acknowledge the excellence of the work of Miss Florence Hersee as Pekoe; Miss Doris Dean, Chee-Ki, who has scored a great hit with her solo dances; Mr. Harry Claff, who as the Emperor sings a capital song about Monte Carlo, the refrain of which is now to be heard in all quarters; Mr. Horace Lane, whose sketch of a Vizier is quietly effective; and the efforts of Messrs. Regan and Ryan, a pair of burlesque policemen, who do nothing that is not funny; whilst the Eight Mimosa Girls contribute some capital dancing. The incidental music of Mr. Julien H. Wilson and Mr. J. Shepherd cannot be too highly complimented.

FOOTBALL.

Barry Albion v. Thompson's "Babes in the Wood" Co.—A match was played last week as above before a large crowd of spectators. The local team proved victorious by 6 goals to 3. The scorers for the company were H. Walton (2), Ross Warren (1). For the company "Stiffy" played a great game and was loudly applauded.

PANTOMIME COMMEMORATION BALL AT STRATFORD.

Friday, the 5th, was a gala night at the Borough Theatre, the occasion being a supper and dance to celebrate the pantomime Aladdin. Directly after the performance, the stage was quickly transformed into a veritable palace scene, brilliantly lighted and decorated with numberless palms and cut flowers. Covers were laid for over a hundred, and when Mrs. Ellis Fredericks, who presided, took her seat, she was presented with a beautiful bouquet by the Ball Committee, which consisted of Messrs. Frank Rothsay, Hal Forde, Ernie Mayne, Arthur Stigant, and S. Horncastle, with Mr. A. Linforth Pitman as secretary and treasurer. During the repast some fine selections on the gramophone were given, which afforded much pleasure.

Mrs. Ellis Fredericks, in a short speech of welcome, gave the loyal toast. Mr. Ernie Mayne, in a humorous speech, proposed "Mrs. Ellis Fredericks and Mr. Fred Fredericks," saying what a comfortable engagement all in the pantomime had had, and the toast was most cordially drunk. Mr. Fred Fredericks, who was enthusiastically received, thanked those present, and the applause was renewed when he stated that Aladdin had been very near to their financial record for pantomime, and he attributed not a little of its success to the bon accord which had existed among the pantomime company. Mr. Frank Rothsay, in a characteristically genial speech, proposed "The Ladies"; and Mr. Hal Forde, who was in fine speech-making form, gave "The Visitors." Mr. Sam Fredericks (Theatre Royal) proposed "The Press" in telling style, to which Mr. W. L. South (Stratford Express) and Mr. Bert Ashton (The Era) responded.

During the evening, Miss Lena Verdi, in a charming little speech, presented Mr. A. Linforth Pitman, the stage-manager, with a silver tea and coffee service, on behalf of the pantomime principals, for the courteous and able manner in which he had performed his duties; and Miss Ethel Ward, in felicitous terms, presented Mr. Ben Barron, the musical-director, with a handsome Dresden tea service and cake-basket, also on behalf of the company, as some recognition of his valuable assistance.

Afterwards a long programme of dances was spiritedly gone through, the music being supplied by the theatre orchestra, Messrs. Bert Ashton, A. Linforth Pitman, and Arthur Stigant acting as M.C.'s.

Those present included Mrs. C. Ellis Fredericks, Mr. Fred Fredericks, Mr. and Mrs. Abrahams, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fredericks, Mr. and Mrs. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon, Mr. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Horncastle, Mr. and Mrs. F. Rothsay, Miss Rothsay, Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Forde, Mr. Arthur Stigant, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Barrow, Miss Ethel Warde, Miss Lena Verdi, Miss Ethel Ashton, Miss Florence Dudley, Miss Daisy Webb, Mr. Marris, Mr. A. Linforth Pitman, Mr. E. J. Macdermott, Mr. W. L. South, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Redmond, Mr. Pat Redmond, Mr. Bert Ashton, Mr. Maxwell Stewart, Miss Dulcie Garland, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Magnus, Mr. J. Christie, Mr. Walter H. Fielder, Mr. F. C. Cockerill, Mr. J. H. Douglas, Mr. C. H. Douglas, Mr. A. E. Barnes, Mr. N. E. Howell, Mrs. Davis and the Misses Davis, Mr. Hammerton, Miss Addie Wilts, Miss Dollie West, Miss Marie Clair, Miss Marie Hurst, Mr. Nat Feather, Mr. William Ravenscroft, Mr. C. Clyde, Mr. C. Preston, Mr. Edward Frith, Mr. John Keep, Mr. E. J. Ward, Mr. Clover, Miss Lydia Audrie, Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, Miss Ruth Zillwood, Miss Queenie Bland, &c.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Thursday afternoon, Feb. 4, Mr. George Aitken gave a pianoforte recital which was well attended. Mr. Aitken was first heard in Prelude and Fugue in C, Book 1, No. 1, from Bach's Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues. Following this came Beethoven's Sonata Quasi Una Fantasia, op. 27 ("The Moonlight"), ably performed by the professor, who was particularly happy in his playing of the spirited finale, Presto agitato. In a group of Chopin's pieces, which included the Etude in A flat, op. 25, the beautiful Nocturne in F sharp, and the clever Etude in G flat on the black keys, Mr. Aitken was much applauded; while after a performance of the Berceuse and Eighth Polonaise in A flat, which was taken at a great pace, the talented professor had a most enthusiastic reception, and was recalled several times. A pleasing Fileuse and Sérénade à une Bien Aimée of his own composition were well received by the audience. Théodore Leschetitzky's Napoli (Souvenirs d'Italie, op. 39, No. 5) was also included in the programme. Mr. George Aitken was assisted by Miss Helen Atkinson, who sang "Mon cœur s'ouvre à ta voix" (Saint-Saëns), Donizetti's "La Zingara," C. Böhm's "Still wie die nacht," and two songs of Mr. Aitken's, "Sunshine" and "Just her way." Miss Jenny Hyman accompanied.

Following up its successes at Edinburgh and Glasgow, Mr. George Edwardes's company in Havana has completely taken Dundee by storm. It is playing to record houses at Mr. Robert Arthur's beautiful playhouse, Her Majesty's Theatre. The energetic and courteous manager of this house, Mr. Louis Karpe, is being hard pressed to find room for all his patrons this week.

At the farewell dinner given in honour of Mme. Sembrich on Sunday night the speech of praise made by Mr. Paderewski, who spoke of the distinguished prima donna as a fellow-artist, a friend, and a countrywoman, for whose work the world was all the better, was a great success. He was humorous and pathetic by turns, and his quaint English rather improved the effect. He began by asking the distinguished company to pity the sorrows of a poor piano-playing immigrant, compelled to speak in a language unknown to him. Mme. Sembrich embraced Mr. Paderewski and kissed him on both cheeks, while Mrs. Paderewski equalised matters by conferring a similar tribute on Mr. Sembrich.

Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck will attend the Shakespeare Commemoration Service at Southwark Cathedral on April 23, and the Princess has consented to present the prizes at the concluding concert of the People's Palace Musical Festival to be held at the People's Palace on Saturday, May 15. Sir Walter Parratt has promised to conduct the concert.

Amateur performances of Veronique in aid of the Fresh Air Fund were given at the Court on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, and the afternoon of Friday. The Princess of Wales and Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll were among the distinguished patrons.

An attendant in the Théâtre Molière, Paris, where Le Courrier de Lyon (The Lyons Mail) was being played on Sunday night, died suddenly during the performance of over-excitement. During the great scene ending with the arrest of Lesurques, the woman, who was seeing the play for the first time, sprang to her feet and shrieked aloud, "He is not guilty; it was another man who looked like him!" and fell dead.

The Queen, attended by the Hon. Lady Hardinge, the Hon. Violet Vivian, the Hon. Sylvia Edwardes, and Sir Charles Frederick, was present at the performance of the Valkyrie at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, on Saturday night.

DOLLING MEMORIAL MATINEE.

In aid of the funds of the Dolling Memorial Home of Rest, Worthing, a matinée was given at the Playhouse on Tuesday by the kind permission of Mr. Cyril Maude, under the direction of Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe). There was a large and fashionable audience, and several charming actresses, among whom was Miss Lilian Braithwaite, sold programmes at enhanced prices. The chief attraction of the afternoon was an adaptation by Mr. Archer Woodhouse, in three acts, of Jean Richepin's Le Flibustier, a Comédie-Française success, that was produced at the House of Molière on June 28, 1888. The piece, originally played in Paris by Got as the old sailor, M. Laroche as Pierre, M. Worms as Jacquemin, and Mme. Pauline Granger as the mother, had a great vogue in la ville lumière, and the original production of Mr. Woodhouse's adaptation at Terry's on May 15, 1889, served to add much to the fame of Mr. George Alexander, then a young actor of growing reputation. The English version is entitled

"THE GRANDSIRE."

François Legoëz .....MR. EDMUND GWENN
Jacquemin .....MR. E. HARCOURT WILLIAMS
Pierre .....MR. HENRY HARBEN
Janik .....MISS LEAH BATEMAN HUNTER
Marie-Anne .....MISS BATEMAN

The piece is a sentimental little drama, with a story that completely holds the attention. The action is laid at St. Malo in the seventeenth century. An old skipper named Legoëz, whose four sons have all been lost at sea, still fosters the hope that his only boy, Pierre, who had left on board a pirate ship fifteen years previously will one day return. Eight years have elapsed since news of the lad last reached his home, but the old sailor continues unremittingly to scan the horizon with his glass, expecting every vessel that enters the port to bring back the absentee. With the rising of the sun he joyfully exclaims, "Perhaps he will come to-day," and away he totters to the quay, only to return sad and downcast. One fine day, however, there comes to the house a handsome young sailor, who announces himself in the old man's absence as Pierre's dearest friend. He has expected to find him, but what he hears convinces him that Pierre must be dead. Jacquemin—for this is the stranger's name—brings things the boy had taken with him on leaving home, and which, in the hour of danger, had been entrusted to the faithful friend's keeping. They had to fight with fierce Spaniards, and Pierre must have either fallen in the fray or have been captured and doomed to death. The story is told to Marie-Anne, the old woman, but not to Janik, who, seeing a stranger, runs off with the glad news that Pierre has returned. Legoëz is so overjoyed that he takes Jacquemin in his arms. It is thought best by Marie-Anne not to reveal the identity of the stranger, and she decides to humour the old man's mistake.

In the second act he has become one of the family, and the situation is complicated by the mutual affection that has sprung up between him and Janik—the betrothed of the real Pierre. When alone with the Breton maid Jacquemin makes a clean breast of the deception that has been practised on her and poor old Legoëz. He cannot heal her heart, however, and the trusting little girl utterly breaks down in her grief. At this crisis Pierre appears in the flesh. He had escaped the Spaniards, and has come home a wealthy man, disgusted with the sea, which his grandfather worships, to claim his bride. Old Legoëz indignantly turns Jacquemin out of the house, but Pierre soon discovers that Janik's love can never be his, and becoming convinced that his friend has been the victim of circumstances, he yields the delighted Janik to her sailor lover, the curtain falling on a scene of happiness. When The Grandsire was originally produced at Terry's it was presented by Mr. George Alexander, with himself in the part of Jacquemin, the late John Maclean as Legoëz, Mr. Fred Terry as Pierre, Miss Eleanor Calhoun as Janik, and Mrs. Billington as Marie-Anne.

The last-mentioned character was sustained at Tuesday's matinée by Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe), whose experience and ability were brought to bear with the best results. Miss Bateman had a hearty reception on being "discovered" in the Breton cottage, which served as a setting of the three acts. Jacquemin, whose treason for humanity's sake is the clou of the interesting play, was earnestly, and at times, passionately, played by Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, who suggested the impulsive honesty and warm heart of the Breton sailor with much skill. Miss Leah Bateman Hunter, who is only sixteen, played the sweet-natured Janik with rare charm, and in the scene where the little girl breaks down at the thought of her lover's departure, the pathos rang true. Miss Bateman Hunter, indeed, has gifts that should speedily secure her a position as an actress of ingénue parts. Her voice, both speaking and singing, is of beautiful quality, and her acting was always vivified not only by high intelligence, but by a complete loss of her identity in the part. Mr. Edmund Gwenn's impersonations cannot fail to be interesting, and his Legoëz adds one more to his excellent gallery of characters. The play was produced by Mr. Harcourt Williams.

The opening item of the matinée was a new play, in one act, by Ashton Pearse, entitled

"HER PROPER MATE."

Wilfred .....MR. E. HARCOURT WILLIAMS
Albert .....MR. WILFRID FORSTER
Rebecca .....MISS JEAN STERLING MACKINLAY

Wilfred is reading up for an examination at a Somersetshire farm, where he has been sent by his people to avoid the distraction of town and of a little love affair. He is anxiously expecting a letter from the fair one, and mixes his mathematics with just a little erotic poetry. He excites tenderness in the bucolic heart of Rebecca, the servant at the farm who waits upon him. Unlike Viola, she does not let concealment like a worm i' the bud feed on her damask cheek, but confesses her passion. Wilfred laughs at her, and eventually, with a little needed assistance on his part, she is made to see that Albert, a villager, who has been taking her out, and who pleads his suit, is a much more proper mate than Wilfred, who receives a long-looked-for letter from his fiancée, and announces his intention of returning home. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay gave a delightful rustic study as Becky, the Somersetshire girl; Mr. Wilfred Forster, too, was decidedly droll as Albert; and Mr. Harcourt Williams made a breezy Wilfred. The stage-manager of the afternoon was Mr. Alexander Casey.

An Interesting Heirloom.

"DICK WHITTINGTON," says Miss Constance Hyem, "is the part I like playing the best. I am descended in a direct line from the famous Lord Mayor of London, and since quite a little girl I longed to go upon the stage and play the part, though I am afraid not in the realistic way my great ancestor was compelled to do. I have been a stage Dick Whittington three times now, and always wear the diamond garter that has been in our family for so many generations."

WE regret to announce the death on the 27th ult., from heart and kidney disease, of George Julian Yarwood, a well-known musical director, who went to America some years ago, was with Mr. Martin Comstock when he managed Poole's Myriorama, and had been with that firm for thirty years. He was also connected with Strange and Wilson's Ghost Show and Poole and Young's Diorama, &c. He was a native of Manchester.

"ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE."

A Drama, in Four Acts, by Miles Wallerton, Produced at the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, Feb. 8.

Col. Matterson .....MR. GUY P. ELLIS
Captain Spruttle .....MR. J. SUMMERSIDES
Servant .....MR. W. H. WHITTY
Little Lucy .....MISS EMIE ENTWISTLE
Maisie Matterson .....MISS MADGE BERRESFORD
Tibby .....MISS BELLA MOODY
Inez De Cartro .....MISS AGNES COLLIN
Lucia De Vergas .....MISS N. BLAKE ADAMS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The author of this work is not unknown in the dramatic world, and his latest effort entitles him to considerable congratulation. It is so well written, and the component parts so evenly balanced, that it affords excellent opportunities for several strong characters. The comedy is refreshing and new, the old hackneyed lines being pretty carefully avoided. In fact, the exhilarating humour that pervades the drama comes as a welcome relief from the sadness of the story told, and on Monday night an interested audience revelled in the large volume of fun that was provided by several able artists. Mr. Wallerton certainly writes dialogue of a particularly sound and attractive kind. He steers clear of claptrap, and endeavours, not unsuccessfully, to make his characters speak rationally. Then, again, the "curtains" are telling, and when knitted together a little, Another Man's Wife has every promise of success.

The narrative opens on the Californian ranch of Carlos de Vergas, a Spanish settler, who afterwards becomes the Duke of Valagas. Here he is happy, with his devoted wife Lucia and child, until an adventurer named Paul Bernstaff, an anarchical exile from Russia, arrives, and is treated with every kindness and courtesy. Soon he influences the young wife, who, being seen with him in somewhat compromising circumstances, is upbraided by her hot-blooded husband. His language forces her to abandon him, and go with Bernstaff to England, under promise of marriage. The husband endeavours to prevent her departure, whereupon he is seriously wounded by the Russian. We next find Lucia starving in London, she having been thrown over by Bernstaff, who is now making overtures of marriage to a rich American woman under the pretence that he is a wealthy titled Russian. Meanwhile Carlos has recovered from his wounds, and, feeling remorse for the offensive expressions he used towards his young wife, who, at the time, had protested her innocence, seeks her throughout the Continent of Europe, eventually reaching London. Here his motor-car knocks down in the street a child, whom he afterwards discovers to be his lost daughter, and the accident enables him to trace his missing and repentant wife. Shortly afterwards the scheme of Bernstaff to secure the hand of the rich American is frustrated by the efforts of Lucia, and Carlos, being intent upon revenge, challenges him to a duel, in which, however, Inez, the discarded paramour of Bernstaff, interferes, and shoots the Russian. A reunion is then brought about between the erring wife and her husband, who has now become entitled to his brother's dukedom.

The trying part of Lucia was undertaken by Miss Nina Blake Adams, an accomplished young actress who is rapidly coming to the front by reason of her talented work. She was particularly impressive in the interview with her injured husband, and also acted strongly when denouncing the scoundrel Bernstaff. This ungrateful rôle found in Mr. Stanley Radcliffe an artist who thoroughly understood his business, and he certainly bore the heaviest share of the work in most commendable style. His voice, manner, and appearance were all in keeping with the character. Another prominent and well-defined figure was that of Carlos, to which Mr. Leonard Aardale did every justice. Miss Agnes Collin deserves special mention for her Inez, which, though of somewhat minor importance, was made the most of by that capable actress; and Mr. Edgar J. Coyne looked the part of the young English doctor Eardsley, speaking his lines in a pleasing and manly manner. Miss Entwistle was an intelligent child; Miss Berresford suited the rôle of the millionaire's daughter; and, as her father, Mr. Guy P. Ellis gave satisfaction. Mention has already been made of the excellent comedy provided, and responsible for this were Mr. Fuller, described as a globe-trotter; Mr. Marshall, whose make-up as a car driver was exceedingly ludicrous; and Miss Moody, the latter's lively and buxom wife. These three artists worked very harmoniously, and won loud applause for their really humorous efforts.

IN a recent notice of Pyjamas at the People's Palace, Bristol, Ivan Derry should have read Joan Derry.

THE funeral service for M. Coquelin, cadet, took place at the church of Suresnes on Thursday morning. The ceremony was attended by many theatrical, literary, and artistic notabilities.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK BERESFORD (Miss Dorothy Milne) start their second starring engagement as Lawrence Gray and Geraldine Lucas, in Convict 99, at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, on Feb. 15.

BY general request the last seven nights of the English opera season at Covent Garden will include an extra performance of The Mastersingers to-night and Valkyrie on Tuesday.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Nellie Valentine at Eastbourne on Wednesday of last week, the part of Dare Devil Dorothy was taken up at a few hours notice by Miss Ethel Griffies, who continued to play till Saturday. Miss Valentine has now happily recovered, and is once more in the cast, Miss Griffies returning to the part of Ruth.

THE following announcements of football matches have been forwarded to us:—Fulham v. Bolton, Feb. 13, at Fulham, kick-off 3.15. Team: Fryer, Charlton, Sharp, Collins, Suarto, Goldie, Harrison, Dalrymple, Freeman, Millington, Brown, Lipsham. Monday, Feb. 15, at Fulham, 3.15, Fulham v. Southampton, first teams.

TO-MORROW (Sunday) will be a great night at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, where a grand sacred concert is to be given to raise funds for the relief of distress. The Countess of Airlie is to preside, supported by Lord Provost Urquhart. An excellent programme includes, in addition to several local artists of repute, Miss Jessie Broughton, of the Havana company (by kind permission of Mr. George Edwardes); Mr. Louis Karpe, manager of Her Majesty's; and the fine orchestra of the establishment under Mr. H. E. Loseby.

MR. JOHN HART on Saturday last generously invited the inmates of the Workhouse to witness the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford. Refreshment was provided for the old people, who were also presented with packets containing money. On Wednesday Mr. Hart again gave the free use of the theatre for a matinée for the Cinderella Club, and with equal generosity the artists engaged in the pantomime, together with those from the Prince's Theatre, the Grand Theatre, Leeds, and the Empire Theatre and Palace Theatre, Bradford, gave their services for the benefit of the poor little children.

"HER SECRET LOVER."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, produced at the Theatre Royal, Wolverhampton, on Monday, Feb. 8.

Gilbert Seymour .....MR. CECIL GRAY
Captain Darrel Rose .....MR. ARTHUR PRESTON
John Strange .....MR. MILLAR ANDERSON
Mr. Murfield .....MR. MILNER NOBLE
Bill Burley .....MR. CECIL DE LEE
Jim Jones .....MR. FRED GEORGE
Inspector Wilson .....MR. FELIX LAWSON
Sergeant Smith .....MR. HUGHIE CAZELY
Warder Phillips .....MR. JACK WALKER
Rev. Arthur Holmes .....MR. ALFRED JAMES
Vernon Cooper .....MR. FRED EVANS
Jane Maria Wilkes .....MISS BEATRICE REYNOLDS
Alicia Royale .....MISS AMY ELLAM
Ivy Seymour .....MISS MABEL MANNERING

Much interest was taken in this production, owing to the authoress being a local lady. Although a prolific writer of drama, it is doubtful whether in any of her previous works are to be found so many exciting incidents.

The drama opens with the home-coming of Gilbert Seymour and his young wife, Ivy. Ivy's father, Mr. Murfield, is deeply embittered against his daughter, owing to the fact that he believes her dead mother had deceived him, and he is equally hostile towards her husband through the latter's father having married the woman he loved. He calls and demands an interview alone with his daughter. This the husband reluctantly grants. He then taunts Ivy that she, like her mother, has a secret lover—to wit, John Strange, whom he has brought to the house in order to upset her happy conjugal relations. John Strange threatens to show to her husband certain letters that Ivy has written in years gone by, unless she will allow him to again become her secret lover. This proposition she indignantly refuses. Strange then offers her father £100 if he will assist him in getting Ivy into his power. They then concoct a plot by which one of the most incriminating letters shall fall into Gilbert Seymour's hands. In this plan they are assisted by Alicia Royale, a lady of doubtful character in love with Seymour. Gilbert Seymour falls into the trap, and confronts his wife with the letter, and, despite her pleadings, refuses to live with her any longer. Ivy leaves her new home, with her servant, Jane, for London. On finding his wife gone, the husband is seized with a sudden fit of remorse, and, believing he has been tricked, determines to find her, and in this quest he is accompanied by his friend, Captain Darrel Rose.

One year is supposed to elapse between the first and second acts. Gilbert Seymour, under the impression that his wife is dead, has become thoroughly dissipated. Alicia Royale and John Strange decide to drug him and to place him in such a position in Alicia Royale's bedroom that in honour bound he would be compelled to marry her. Darrel Rose, however, drags Seymour from the bedroom, and he, brought to his senses, swears that his past shall be dead. He decides to enlist under the name of Elmore. His servant, Bill Burley, follows his master's example. Ivy, found singing in the street, is blind through fever which followed her immersion, caused by a villainous attempt to drown her. She is about to be carried off by John Strange when Darrel Rose and Bill Burley come to the rescue.

Five years later, Ivy, with her eyesight restored and reconciled to her father, is living with him at his country house. She is wooed and won by Darrel Rose, both believing Seymour to have been killed in the war. The husband returns, to find his wife engaged to his old friend, and decides to go away, but is persuaded by his servant to see his wife, and as a result a happy reunion takes place. All troubles would now appear to be at an end, but Alicia Royale is still endeavouring to obtain Ivy for John Strange. She, however, lies to that worthy, and her life pays the penalty. John Strange accuses Gilbert of the murder, but Ivy, in order to save her husband, confesses to the crime and is arrested.

Ivy is sentenced to death, and a painful interview between husband and wife is made the more so by each believing the other guilty. It is only on the appearance of the hangman and Ivy being pinioned, to the accompaniment of the solemn tolling of the prison bell, that John Strange, in a perfect frenzy, declares that she is innocent and he the guilty one. He eventually takes poison.

The play was received with acclamation by a crowded house, and at its conclusion repeated calls were made for the authoress, who was the recipient of several handsome bouquets.

Mr. Thompson Carruthers' company was responsible for the production, which went without a hitch. Miss Mabel Mannering as Ivy Seymour proves herself an emotional actress of exceptional ability; Mr. Cecil Gray gave a well-studied rendering of the part of Gilbert Seymour; Mr. Arthur Preston's portrayal of Captain Darrel Rose was chivalrous and interesting; Mr. Millar Anderson as John Strange and Miss Amy Ellam as Alicia Royale made two excellent representatives of intriguing villainy; and Mr. Milner Noble was good as Mr. Murfield. Bill Burley and Jane Wilkes were well sustained by Mr. Cecil De Lee and Miss Beatrice Reynolds; and Mr. Fred George made the most of his opportunities as Jim Jones. The scenery was excellent.

THE LATE MISS JULIA SEAMAN.

A most memorable appearance by this versatile actress was with the tragedian Gustavus Vaughan Brooke, when he made his last appearance at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, on July 8, 1865, in the character of Shakespeare's Richard the Third The house was crowded to overflowing in every part, but several times in the course of the evening he appeared in a fog with regard to the text, and at last when the combat with Richmond was reached it was a series of "double misses." According to Brooke's confirmed admirer Mr. Dinsmore, who was behind the scenes, two of the tragedian's oldest friends went to Brooke's dressing-room to shake hands and have a chat. "How are you, Gussy?" said one. "Ah!" he replied, "bad, bad," working his fingers nervously about his throat, and continuing in a hoarse voice—"the taste for the legitimate drama has fallen very low in England; but I am going to Australia, where I shall close my hands on ten thousand pounds." He uttered the words with considerable force, accompanied by a vigorous clenching of the right hand. Residing in the house of his old dresser, Healey, during his stay in Manchester, Brooke appeared nervous and fretful, and looked upon several petty accidents as ill-omens. The very last night he slept there he created great consternation among the inmates by shouting dreadfully in his sleep. His friends at once rushed to the bedroom, only to learn from the tragedian of a dream wherein he found himself struggling in the water, fighting for sheer life, with the danger so vivid that in his agony he screamed and awoke. This he took as a presage of coming ill, and down to the hour of his embarking for Melbourne remained apprehensive of some disaster on the voyage.

A few months later (Jan. 10, 1866) he went down in the ill-fated London in the Bay of Biscay on his voyage to Australia, where he hoped to re-establish himself. During this period at Manchester Miss Seaman played in one of her father's pieces entitled A Night Attack, in which she had a telling character. She also appeared as Parthenia and Lady Macbeth, a character that she played at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, at the opening of a fortnight's season at that house on Dec. 4, 1871. In the autumn of 1872 she played in The Woman in Red, Hamlet, East Lynne, Leah, and Medea on tour. In the character of the wife of Jason she was supported by Mr. J. H. Clyndes, who was so popular a leading man at the Grecian, Britannia, and Pavilion Theatres.

"CUPID AND THE STYX."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by J. Sackville Martin, presented for the first time on any stage at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Feb. 8.

Dr. Hope .....MR. LEWIS CASSON
Sir Peregrine Prendergast ..MR. CHARLES BIBBY
Porter .....MR. LEONARD MUDIE

If comedy is to be recognised as a laughable arrangement of characters and events in quite truthful relationship to life, there is little or no fault to be found with Dr. Sackville Martin's description of his three-act piece, Cupid and the Styx, which was very tolerantly received by a lighthearted audience on Monday at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, the occasion of its first production on any stage. It seems pretty certain, however, that the title, which is as curiously suggestive of two distinct subjects as the action is separately indicative of them, was chosen by the author as a kind of apologetic acknowledgment of the structural defects of the play, which, as a whole, it must be confessed, is thin, perplexing, and incoherent, though amusing in its way. For example, the "Cupid" theme might easily be condensed into a one-act playlet, and gain immensely by it, while the "Styx" element, which moves in quite another vein, has a detachable value as a comic study of the literary temperament in one of its soulful phases. Forced to work together for so long, the action is attenuated, and gives rise to abrupt intrusions of one theme upon the other, while one's wonder as to which of them really is the author's subject is never satisfied, but simply baffled by the disarming impartiality of the title. It will be understood from this that the cast contains two sets of characters, whose interests are held together by the slenderest of dramatic threads. Five of the seven persons are on the side of Cupid, and this embraces practically the whole of the more obvious fun, but one scene is used for all, and throughout a certain air of novelty is created by the fact that the action takes place in the house-surgeon's room in a provincial hospital, while the principal characters belong to the medical profession. Dr. Hope, the youthful senior, and Dr. Garside, the still more youthful assistant, have secretly proposed marriage to Nurse Price. Jealousy and a sense of authority provoke the former to constant bickerings with his fellow-worker, who is flatly—not to say humorously—averse from obedience in any form. The nurse herself has an eye for the best chance that may turn up, and plays her cards so cleverly that only by accident does young Garside learn that her position in regard to Hope exactly corresponds with that he secretly established for himself. Meanwhile Sir Peregrine Prendergast, the consulting physician, well on in years, but a bachelor, has looked upon Nurse Price, and at a moment preceding the revelations of her duplicity is foolish enough to write her a proposal of marriage. This is at once her consolation and defence when Hope and Garside have her in to thresh out the question of which of them she belongs to. She is not an admirable character, and it seems a pity that Sir Peregrine, though by his own want of discretion, should prove the final victim. Incidentally, a ghastly sort of porter, with an amiable grin, unfolds to Sir Peregrine his ambition to become the common hangman, by means of a testimonial which shall embody his fondness for work and his acquaintance with dead bodies. This personage, by the way, was very cleverly and successfully presented by Mr. Leonard Mudie. Other characters are Philip Barton and his wife. Barton, an unsuccessful dramatist, laughed at by a wife who perceives that his aptitudes are misdirected, is possessed by a frenzy for suicide, in the endeavour to make the lady and his friends believe that he has a soul above the ordinary. His attempt at suicide, however, is a mere sham; he is a sort of heroic humbug. At the finish some pretence of rational sentiment brings about the reconciliation of husband and wife; but in the meantime the character of Barton, in relation to his precaution that he shall not take too much laudanum, for example, and to a provision that the jury shall not say he was insane, has furnished some admirably comic dialogue and some amusingly shrewd ecstasies of declamation. Mr. Michael Sherbrook's impersonation of the rôle was masterly, and may fairly be considered the best thing of the evening. Miss Hilda Bruce Potter as the wife had scarcely the same comedy chances, but she is always charming and clever, and naturally made the best of what she had to do. The crisp style of Mr. Lewis Casson was well suited to the part of Dr. Hope, and as Dr. Garside Mr. Basil Dean found himself very happily cast. Clever, too, was the Nurse Price of Miss Sybil Thorndike, who looked and acted well enough for every purpose of deception; and Mr. Charles Bibby as Sir Peregrine Prendergast added to the long list of enjoyable comedy impersonations already standing to his credit.

The piece was preceded by Mr. Stanley Houghton's The Dear Departed, and for two matinées this week—Monday and Tuesday—flying visits of M. Roubaud and company are to be recorded. The plays presented were L'Avare, preceded by L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle, Le Voyage de M. Perrichon, and Mademoiselle de la Seiglière. Extremely good acting in all was appreciated by interested audiences.

THEATRE GANGWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It is satisfactory to find that the London County Council, at their meeting on Tuesday last, adopted the middle and reasonable course with reference to standing in the gangways of theatres and places of public amusement. That an audience should, having sufficient space for movement, be permitted to do this is well for both managers and public. It was always my opinion when Surveyor of Theatres, first to the Metropolitan Board of Works and afterwards to the London County Council, for a period of some fourteen years, that to such a rule there could be no objection, "sufficient room for passing easily to and fro being maintained in the gangways." Those members of the audience so placed, being thus in the position of "advance guard" to those seated, would at once be able to move, leaving the others to follow in natural order. The Council, however, will be well advised in seeing that a strict limit of one-third or one-quarter the utmost capacity is not overstepped in regard to this new regulation, and that to enforce such the words "standing room for ——" should be attached to the licence with regard to the parts of every house where standing is allowed. The evils of standing some years ago were so serious that, in visiting the various places in my official capacity during performances, I often found it next to impossible to move along the gangway at the back of a gallery or pit, and had, with the help of the fireman, to virtually cut my way through the densely-packed crowds. Such experiences led me at length to suggest that the barriers at the back of the seating to the pit and gallery of a theatre should be so raised as to render all view from such impossible. This proposal was adopted by the Theatres Committee, but on strong representations from managers and others as to the loss such would bring to their exchequers, it was at once rescinded.

Permit me, Sir, in anticipation to thank you for the insertion of this letter, and to congratulate those interested on the concession obtained.—I am yours faithfully,

ROBERT F. HODGES, A.R.I.B.A.

MASONS AT WORK.

The Drury Lane Lodge held its annual installation meeting at the Hotel Cecil last Tuesday, when Mr. James Powell, the outgoing Master, inducted his successor, the Right Hon. the Lord Athlumney, into the high office to which he had been elected by the members as Master for the ensuing year, the ceremony throughout being performed in a most masterly and scholarly manner; while Messrs. James Fernandez, Harry Nicholls, and Albert G. Neville (a talented son of the veteran Henry Neville) rendered valuable services as S.W., J.W., and D.C. respectively. The new Master immediately proceeded to the investiture of his officers as follows:—Messrs. Bedford McNeill, S.W.; A. Blomfield Jackson, J.W.; James Powell, I.P.M.; Thomas Catling, Treasurer; I. Percy Fitzgerald, Secretary; Col. H. Walker, Senr. D.; Blake Adams, Jun. D.; Bruce Smith, I.G.; Ven. Archdeacon W. Sinclair (Archdeacon of London), Chaplain; Albert G. Neville, D.C.; F. Braine, Organist; and Messrs. J. Ryley, Dr. W. Wilson, E. T. Pryor, J. C. Harker, R. Frost, and George Highland, Stewards. The last-named gentleman was fortunate in securing a handsome donation from the Lodge funds as a contribution to the list which he has expressed his intention of carrying up to the forthcoming annual festival of one of the Masonic charities.

During the past year the Lodge selected from its Past Masters one upon whom, in their opinion, London Rank should be conferred. Their choice fell upon Mr. Luigi Lablache, and, His Royal Highness the Grand Master having been pleased to raise that worthy gentleman to the position, the Lodge begged Mr. Lablache's acceptance of the insignia of his office, which was duly presented to him in open Lodge, and the receipt of which he gracefully acknowledged in a touching and dignified manner, thanking the brethren for their generous gift.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies those in attendance adjourned to the dinner table. There were many illustrious Masons present to grace the proceedings, Grand Lodge being represented by Sir Edward Letchworth, Grand Sec.; J. Percy Fitzgerald, P.G.Std.Br.; Robt. D. Cummings, P.G.Std.Br.; Ven. Archdeacon Sinclair, P.G.C.; Walter Lawrence, P.A.G.S. of W.; Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.Br.; Mostyn Pigott, P.A.G.Reg.; John Strachan, Grand Registrar; B. Marr Johnson, D.G.D.C.; J. Stephens, P.Dep.D.C.; Jas. Hughes, A.G.C.; R. Clay Sudlow, P.A.G.D.C.; Henry Neville, A.G.D.C.; Henry Times, P.D.G.D.C.; Rev. H. C. de Lafontaine, P.G.D.; T. P. Dorman, P.A.G.D.C.; Edmund A. Smith, President of the Board of Benevolence; Rev. C. E. Roberts, P.G.C.; Sir Francis G. Moon, P.G.D.; R. Davis, P.A.G.D.C.; R. Newton Crane, G.D.; R. Percy F. W. Simpson, P.D.G.D.C.; James E. Terry, P.A.G.D.C.; Thomas Fraser, P.G. Treas.; Albert G Neville, P.D.G.D.C.; Harry Nicholls, P.G.Std.Br.; James Fernandez, P.A.G.D.C.; Henry Neville, A.G.D.C.; Alfred Thomas, P.A.G.D.C.; Col. W. H. Drage, P.G.Swd.Br.; Thomas Catling, P.A.G.D.C.; Chevalier Wilhelm Ganz, P.G.O.; and the President, Lord Athlumney, Past Grand Junior Warden of England.

Lord Athlumney was admitted to the Order twenty-one years ago by the then reigning Master of the Lodge. His lordship was ordered abroad in the service of his Sovereign, and remained away from this country for many years, winning distinction and renown in the battles of Firket, Atbara, Hafir, and Khartoum. On his return to England he resumed his duties at the Drury Lane Lodge, and served the minor offices with credit to the community and himself, and in due course, having risen by merit step by step, the brethren unanimously elected him to serve in the capacity of Master.

A very interesting feature at the conclusion of the banquet was the presentation of a handsome Past Master's jewel to Mr. James Powell as a mark of esteem from the brotherhood and to commemorate his very successful year of office, during which he had gained the approval of all.

There were many members present with their guests, including Messrs. Will Sparks, James W. Mathews, Herbert Chenery, Willie Clarkson, Gerald Maxwell, Tom Clare, Rev. W. Cree, Dr. Holten George, Messrs. Clarence Coggin, W. J. Keen, G. A. Keen, Randulph Corbet, and Sir William Lancaster, the Grand Treasurer-elect.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the speeches being commendably brief and to the point. Messrs. James Fernandez, Percy F. W. Simpson, James Powell, Sir William Lancaster, Messrs. Alfred Ellis E. G. Salmon, Bedford McNeill, A. Blomfield Jackson, Thomas Catling, J. Percy Fitzgerald, and Lord Athlumney replied to the toasts with which their names were associated.

A bright and sparkling entertainment was provided by Mr. Tom Clare, in which he was assisted by Miss Glover, Miss Annie Bartle, Messrs. Harry Dearth and Walter Churcher, and Dr. Byrd Page.

Mr. Henry Neville, the veteran actor, a distinguished Past Master of the Lodge, contributed a recitation, rendered in a masterly manner, winning universal admiration and approval.

DRAMATIC MARK LODGE.

This highly successful Lodge held its first meeting in the present year at the Mark Masons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Thursday last, when the present Master, Mr. G. A. Keen, advanced to the honourable degree of a Mark Master Mason Messrs. Francis William Rawlinson and Albert Henry Hunt, the ceremony throughout being performed in a very perfect manner.

Messrs. Frank Henry Callingham and W. H. Marler, and Lieut.-Col. W. H. Drage, D.S.O., were elected as joining members; and notice was given that at the next meeting Messrs. E. Vivian Reynolds, C. H. Phillips, and Sydney Lawrence would be balloted for as candidates to be advanced to the degree.

Those present included Messrs. W. J. Keen, S.W.; W. H. George, S.O.; Chris Hilton, J.O.; Charles Cruikshanks, Treasurer; Will Sparks, Secretary; J. H. Ryley, R.M.; Tom Clare, Organist; Harry Nicholls, P.G.Std.B.; Clarence Coggin, P.M., acting M.O.; H. Danby, P.M.; Thos. Fraser, P.G.Treas.; Alfred Ellis, J.D.; W. E Holloway, acting as J.W.; R. J. Corbet, acting as S.D.; W. H. Roberts; William Lawrence, J. Powell, acting as I.G.; Col. W. H. Drage, acting as J.D.; Rev. W. Cree, Major G. S. Beeching, W. S. Lyon, C. Wyndham-Quin, Ed. Humphrey, F. Callingham, W. H. White, and W. Singleton Hooper.

After the business was concluded, the brethren proceeded to the Hotel Cecil to dinner, and a pleasant evening was spent.

ON the conclusion of the run of Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips's pantomime company Little Red Riding Hood, Mr. Alfred Reynolds, business-manager for the company, was presented by Miss Kittee Rayburn with a very handsome cigarette case.

THE twelfth annual pantomime supper of the Fulham Theatre staff took place at the Helvetia Restaurant on the 4th inst. Mr. Charles Road-Night, the stage-manager of the pantomime company, was chairman, thirty-nine sitting down to a capital supper. The chairman having made a few remarks about the staff working so well with him, and making the show a success, Mr Alf Cooper, Mr. Jack Robinson, Mr. Bert Rush, Mr. Harry Body, Messrs. Stallwood and Cooper, Messrs. Benson and Son, Mr. Pat Lavender, Mr. Road-Night, Mr. George Davey, Mr. William Naylor, Mr. Rush, Mr. E. Dare, and Mr. Robinson contributed to the entertainment which followed. Votes of thanks were accorded to Messrs. George Caplin and Jack Robinson for their services as secretaries and stewards. Mr. Joe Young was the accompanist.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the play, entitled "MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH."

The most successful of King's pantomimes having terminated its run on Saturday evening last, the spring season opened on Monday with the above play, when an enthusiastic audience assembled to welcome back that dear, delightful, homely personage, Mrs. Wiggs, who, to quote one of the characters, has not a mean drop of blood in her body. The audience in turn laughed and cried with her at the amusing and pathetic situations in which she finds herself involved, and the happy ending to the piece pleases everybody. It is a picture of rural life of the American type which is truly fascinating. Mrs. Wiggs is now played by Miss Gertrude Irving, who succeeds in giving a very finished and satisfactory impersonation of the homely soul, who tries to do good all round. Miss Rita Carlyle is at hand to repeat her quaint and successful portrayal of Miss Hazy, and Miss Maud Townshend is a comical Mrs. Eichorn. Miss A. Fanchette as the massive Mrs. Schultz is irresistible, while Miss Beatrice Bramah plays Miss Lucy with much delicacy. Lovey Mary, with her pretty face and guileless manner, finds a delightful representative in Miss Margaret Shelley, who shows much feeling in the part. The children, Asia, Europena, Australia, and Tommy are cleverly rendered by Misses Catton, Shiells, Clifford, and Connell. A character which is bound to excite mirth by its ridiculously solemn stolidity is Mr. Stubbins, and it is perfectly played by Mr. Frederick Forrest, who keeps the audience in shrieks of laughter all the time. Mr. Wiggs is well enacted by Mr. Francis Chamier. Mr. Ernest Graham is good as Mr. Bob, and Mr. Forester Harvey is a hustling Hunkerdunkas Jones. The Sheriff is capably performed by Mr. Alfred Fisher, and Mr. Robin Shiells acts with merit as Deacon Bagsby. Mr. Gerald Valentine is a clever and manly Billy Wiggs, and Mr. Sidney Carlyle deserves commendation for his Chris. Hazy. Excellent scenery is provided.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Musical Play, entitled "HAVANA."

Havana is already known as one of the essentially smart musical pieces of recent times. Possessing a coherent plot, with music particularly brilliant, the piece goes with swing and briskness. The company Mr. George Dance has brought to the Marlborough this week is well qualified to do justice to the work. At very short notice, owing to the indisposition of Miss Hebe Bliss, Miss J. Sullivan undertook the part of Consuelo on Monday, and scored a success. She sings and acts with much spirit, but a little more care is required with her enunciation. Mr. W. Cecil W. Parke gives an exceedingly good portrayal of Jackson Villiers, his voice being heard to advantage in all his musical numbers. Mr. Bay Russell, in addition to his excellent stage-management, makes a bright and natural Hon. Frank Charteris, his smart dancing being much appreciated. Mr. A. Gordon Begg is a capital representative of Bombito, and Mr. Frank Sealey plays the part of the scheming Diego most effectively. Mr. George Storey's whimsicalities and humorous by-play as Don Adolpho highly amuse the house; we get some fine low comedy from Mr. Reginald Switz as Samuel Nix, the melancholy Bo'sun of the Wasp, and another successful comedian is Mr. Tom Seymour as Reginald Brown. Able support is forthcoming from Miss Gladys Guy, a charming and dainty Onita, who makes one of the hits of the performance in her duet and "Apache" dance with the melancholy Bo'sun; Miss Helen Langton's Isabelita is incapable of improvement, and Miss Maud Seymour acquits herself with success as Teresa

DALSTON THEATRE.

Freed for the time being from pantomime or drama, the stage of the Dalston Theatre is for some few weeks to come to be devoted to the representation of opera. Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera company opened a brief season there on Monday evening with Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor, and the performance was heartily appreciated. The cast included, in addition to Mr. Turner, Mr. Tom Griffiths, Mr. P. Newton, Mr. V. Brodo, Mr. Sidney Clifford, Miss Jessie Dennis, and Miss Jeanne Jeune. Mr. Turner's name figures during the week in the cast of two other operas, Il Trovatore and Maritana, and he is ably supported by most efficient artists. Mr. Frank Clarke, Mr. Tom Griffiths, Mr. Sidney Clifford, Mr. B. Cummings, Mr. Arthur Fisher, Mr. Hubert Bland, Miss Fanny Emmerson, Miss Louise Henschell, Miss Sarah Williams, Miss Jessie Dennis, Miss Maud Esdale, and Miss Kitty Brownless appear in the operas last named, and are all the recipients of well-earned applause, and their acting throughout is on a par in the matter of excellence with their vocalisation. Other operas presented during the week include Martha, The Bohemian Girl, and Faust, and the artists appearing, in addition to those already named, are Mr. Charles Le Sueur, who, as usual, represents prominent characters, Mr. George Ridding, and Miss Lizzie Stock. An efficient orchestra, under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton, adds to the general enjoyment of the performances, and, altogether, the present visit of Turner's opera company to this part of London bids fair to rival in success even previous well-remembered seasons.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "HIS SISTER'S HONOUR."

Mr. Evelyn A'Dell and company are here this week in the above stirring and well-written play. Mr. A'Dell appears to great advantage as Frank Stanley, playing with energy and excellent effect; Miss Flora Leslie is an attractive and clever representative of Dora Stanley; Miss Ethel Ashleigh plays sympathetically and well as Ivy Merton; and Miss M. Conway is a bright and pleasing Maria. Mr. Walter Wilson acts well as Sir Richard Redvers, and makes an excellent impression; Mr. P. Braithwaite is most amusing as Timothy Timid; Dr. Godfrey is well played by Mr. Edwin Clarke; Mr. S. Verner gives a good account of Police-constable Worthie; Mr. John Leyland is a characteristic Big Buggins; Mr. Harry Mitchelson scores as Johnny Bennett; Mr. Henry Slater is good as Sergt. Pedro Ramon; as is Mr. Fred Carston as Juan Lopez; and Robert is well impersonated by Mr. E. Stone. The first scene is laid in St. John's Wood, the second at Folkestone, the third is the Asylum, and the fourth in Brazil. The scenery and dresses are good and appropriate.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Pantomime, entitled "JACK AND THE BEANSTALK."

Mr. A. E. Smith, who has got together a capital company, is presenting for the current week the pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk, which runs a merry course in an amusing and very lively fashion, and is highly appreciated, more especially by the gentlemen in khaki who, situated in the gallery, and being well versed in all the songs of the day, join in the choruses with exhilarating heartiness and encore everybody. Although the book follows, more or less, on the customary lines of the story, nevertheless there are several excellent turns interspersed at convenient moments, which prove to be popular features of the evening. Miss Kathleen Garnon, in the title-rôle, maintains her hold throughout, and affords much pleasure, taking advantage of her opportunities in the songs "I don't care if there's a girl there," "Have you got another girl like Mary?" and "Bombadier," the last-named being flatteringly received. Miss Frankie Barton makes a dainty Jill, and renders the song "Poverty-street" in good style; Margery Daw and Tommy Tucker are undertaken by the Sisters Holman, and score well in "A little wooden house in Norway"; the fairy, Queen of Light, is represented by Miss Gertie Leno, who displays a good voice in the ballads Sweetheart Days" and "Roses bloom again," the latter being composed by the musical director, Mr. Charles Pearson; Miss Ellie Verrier as Miss Muffett achieves distinction as a dancer of no mean ability; Messrs. Foley and Francis as Simple Simon and Johnny Horner respectively are very diverting comedians, and keep the house in roars of laughter, and in this pleasant task they are ably assisted by Mr. Billy Taylor as Dame Durden and Mr. Bert Boothroyd as Squire Scarperletty, the latter being happily suited in the song "My girl's a Yorkshire girl"; Mr. A. Lund essays the part of Bovril, the cow, with amusing results; and Mr. Arthur Tring as the Wicked Giant is suitably placed. The Bendenes, contortionists and balancers, offer popular contributions.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE CINGALEE."

After a highly-successful run, the pantomime was withdrawn here on Saturday last, and the regular dramatic season inaugurated on Monday with a revival of this famous musical play. Needless to say, Mr. Frederick Melville's patrons were present in large numbers, and expressed approbation at the capital performance given by Mr. Haldane Crichton's company. The play had evidently been carefully rehearsed; and the chorus and orchestra gave every satisfaction. As Harry Vereker Mr. Alan Turner sang the tuneful music allotted him capitally, and with Miss Mollie Wolstenhulme, a charming Nanoya, received many encores. Mr. Jack Crichton was irresistibly funny as Chambhuddy Ram; throughout the evening he kept the house in a roar. Mr. F. W. Ford did excellent work as the irascible Sir Peter, and Mr. Scott Cullen was pleasantly boyish as Bobby Warren. Mr. Douglas Munro was, of course, duly impressive as Boobhamba, and his topical songs were all well received. Mr. Harry Ed. Ray did excellent work as Myamgah; Peggy Sabine found a dainty representative in Miss Alice Nixon; Miss Pauline Hague was a delightful Lady Patricia; Miss Margaret Pitts, pretty and engaging as Angy Loftus. The Misses Gabrielle Devere and Geraldine Somerset danced delightfully. Special praise must be awarded the charming tea girls and the pupils of Vereker's plantation for their excellent singing. Mr. Herbert Ivey conducted the augmented orchestra in a skilful manner. The Cingalee is very tastefully mounted and dressed. Mr. Will T. Taylor is, as always, to the fore as the courteous manager for Mr. Fred. Melville.

THE FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks and Guy Jones, entitled "THE GAY GORDONS."

The run of Cinderella having terminated on Feb. 6, the ordinary season at the Fulham Theatre recommenced with a return visit of The Gay Gordons, which proved such a success in October of 1908. The part of Angus Græme is now taken by Mr. Frank Lincoln, who puts into his impersonation all the energy and briskness that we associate with the part. Mr. Tom Graves has all the old tricks and turns of the old-time histrion in the rôle of Nervy Natt; and Mr. Edward Nainby is an excellent foil as the lumpish Edmund. Mr. Edward Ruston does well as the millionaire Quainton; and Mr Norman Forrest was very quaint as the awkward Corporal John Smith. Mr. Buchanan Wake repeats his good performance as Archibald Speedy; and Mr. Charles Tyers fairly electrifies the audience with his dancing. Miss Emily Mellon showed the true note of maternal tenderness as Janet McLeod; Miss Mabel Dent played brightly and cleverly as Victoria Siddons; and Miss Ida Larrie did well as Charlotte Siddons. Miss Gladys Waring was a capable representative of Mary McLeod; and Miss Norah Guiness was satisfactory as Lady Millicent. As Peggy Quainton, Miss Gladys Archbutt proved a great success, and carried through her part with excellent vigour and charm. Mr. A. Spittle presided over the orchestra, Mr. Mervyn Dene stage-managed, and Mr. W. A. Seymour has the general direction of the tour. The company were all well up to their work, and leave a pleasing impression of capability.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Play, in Three Acts, by Geo. R. Sims and Arthur Shirley, entitled "TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

Two Little Vagabonds attracted a crowded house to the Clapham Theatre on Monday, when the play was excellently interpreted by members of Hardie and Von Leer's company. Miss Leonora Caltelle gave a natural representation of the sorely-tried Marion Thornton, and the intensity of her acting held the audience throughout. Miss Florence Radcliffe in the rôle of Barbara was thoroughly efficient; and Miss Ida Drayton was pleasing as Nurse Randall. Some welcome touches of humour were contributed by Miss Marie Pritchard in the part of Biddy Mullins; the consumptive boy Wally was enacted by Miss Josie Beltram in a manner that appealed strongly to the sympathy of the audience; and Dick was played with conspicuous success by Miss May Hart. Mr. Geo. Denham gave a praiseworthy performance of George Thornton; Captain Darville was capably enacted by Mr. Norman Yates; and Mr. Joseph Brandon was satisfactory as John Scarth. Mr. John Humber rendered good service as Leeson; and Mr Bertram Dubosc made the most of the part of Joe Gargoyle. An excellent character study of Bill Mullins, alias The Gaffer, was given by Mr. James Skea, and the same remark applies to Mr. Leo St. Clair as Dido Bunce and Mr. Fred Archer as the Coughdrop.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

Anxious to cater for the tastes of all classes of patrons of the Royal County Theatre, Mr. Davey, the thoughtful managing-director, some time ago ascertained that a week of Shakespearean plays would be a welcome change in the bill of fare, and so gave playgoers an opportunity of selecting by vote the plays of Shakespeare they would like to see. The result is seen this week at the cosy little playhouse, where Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, the talented daughter of the late Sir Augustus Harris, is appearing with her company of clever artists in eight of Shakespeare's plays—The Taming of the Shrew, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, The Merchant of Venice, Much Ado About Nothing, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and Othello. The presentation of the plays has been received with unmistakable appreciation by numerous audiences. Chief amongst those who are assisting Miss Glossop-Harris are Mr. Frank Collier, Mr. Murray Kinnell, Mr. A. D. Layland, Mr. Arthur Keane, Mr. E. Stuart Vinden, Mr. F. Roberts, Mr. J. Mason, Mr. A. Seaton, Mr. W. Carr, Mr. A. Sims, Mr. Ian Titherage, Mr. A. Newman, Mr. E. Wellesley, Mr. M. Ingram, Mr. J. Andrew, Mr. D. Claydon, and Miss Gertrude Tate, Miss Mary Goulden, and Miss Gertrude Gilbert. The plays have been admirably staged.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled "THE TICKET-OF-LEAVE MAN."

This old drama of Tom Taylor's was very capably acted by Mr. Clive Currie's company at Marylebone this week. Mr. William Barber was quite at his ease as the Lancashire lad, Bob Brierley; Mr. Charles Wemyss did well as Jem Dalton; Mr. J. P. Dryden portrayed Melton Moss in typical fashion; Mr. Douglas Phillips cut an amusing figure as Green Jones; and Mr. Clive Currie enacted Jack Hawkshaw in a cool, painstaking, and eloquent way. As Sam Willoughby Miss Helena Parsons was full of life and go, and her conception of the character calls for the warmest praise; Miss F. Wolviston was well placed as Mrs. Willoughby; Miss Maud Kirwan was effective as Emily St. Evremond; whilst Miss Muriel Dole sustained the trying rôle of May Edwards with fortitude and distinction.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 8, "THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

Mr. William Greet's chief company has been here with this play. The dresses and scenery are above the average. Mr. Ernest Duggan as Strabo, the spy, together with Mr. H. Thurston Harris as Servilius, another of the same tribe, unfold the opening in no uncertain manner. Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee makes the proud Prefect, Marcus Superbus, a fine and engaging character, and carries his audience with him all the time. Mr. C. Yorke as Nero makes the Cæsar of old Rome live again, with all the suggestions of tyrannical cruelty which have made his name a byword through the centuries. Tigellinus, the crafty councillor, was well played by Mr. Charles Aldred, whose manner and appearance well suited the part. His associate, Licinius, the Ædile, was sternly portrayed by Mr. J. Weatherall, and the relentless persecutor of the Christians was a notable figure in the piece in his hands. The festive Glabrio supplied the comic relief in a most efficient manner, and Mr. Frank Wood caused much amusement by his drunken humour, which was never out of the picture. His friend in debauchery, the effeminate Philodemus, was cleverly played by Mr. Harry Jones. Mr. G. W. Ruff was a soldierly Captain of the Guard, Virturius, and Mr. J. Newman was quite equal to the small part of Dardanus.

The small band of Christians stood well out by reason of their consistent and appropriate acting, the Favius of Mr. Walter Fleet and the Titus of Mr. G. Blunden having great dignity of bearing and distinctness of delivery; whilst the part of Stephanus, the boy, as played by Miss Edith Drayson, appealed to all by its force and naturalness. The fair martyr, Mercia, was most sympathetically played by Miss Constance Little, her very attractive appearance adding interest to an already interesting part, and her acting being characterised by skill and restraint. Miss Beryl Hamilton made a short appearance and good impression as Poppœa, the Roman Empress, and Miss Lily Ward had an excellent opportunity of showing her art as Berenice, the love-sick patrician lady, whose infatuation for Marcus is so strong a lever in the piece. Miss Cissy Carlton as Dacia, a Roman lady, played with a pleasing lightness, and the part of the wild Bacchanalian, Ancaria, was fully entered into by Miss Mary Newcombe. Throughout the piece the orchestra hardly leave their places, and the incidental music was done full justice to by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's orchestra, the songs and concerted numbers also being well rendered by an efficient body of vocalists on the stage.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 8, "THE GIRLS OF GOTTENBERG"

commenced a week's visit and met with a very cordial reception, and deservedly so, for the production is complete and enjoyable in every detail. Mr. Bertie Wright as Max Moddelkopf makes a big hit with his diverting performance; Mr. Tom Shelford plays Otto with much dash and spirit and his songs and dances are received with much applause; Mr. Hugh Henson is admirably suited to the character of Captain Albrecht; Mr. Charles Berkley is responsible for a very amusing portrait of Brittl-Bottl; Mr. David Miller is very good as the General. Other male characters are well filled by Messrs. Courtney Comber, C. F. Hewitt, Percy Russell, Fred Sims, Sidney Farrow, Morgan Rickards, Edwin Stanley, Tom Squire, James Cook and George Vaughan.

Miss Maisie North is a charming Elsa—dainty and refined, and whose dancing is greatly admired; Miss May Marshall is very successful as Clementine, and works well with Max, their duet "Two little birds," being warmly received. Miss Simeta Marsden scores heavily as Mitzi. This clever lady renders her numbers delightfully, especially "Only a common little girl." Mr. Shelford also sings capitally "Girls all call me Otto" and "Go to Jericho." There are many charming Gottenberg Girls, including Miss Ruby Carter, Miss Violet Romaine, Miss M. Allem, Miss Nelly Taylor, Miss E. Gorden, and Miss Susie Reardon.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the Drama, entitled "PETE."

Saturday night saw the finish of the pantomime Aladdin with a rare flourish, and on Monday night the dramatic year proper was ushered in with the Lyceum production Pete. A very large audience witnessed the performance, and the revised version of Hall Caine's renowned Manxman was most cordially received. Mr. Matheson Lang as the rugged, open-hearted Pete is a general favourite, his fine appearance, manly and buoyant style suiting the part splendidly. Miss Hutin Britton comes in for a big share of the honours as Kate Cregeen, handling the rôle with sympathy, tact, feeling, and charm. Mr. Eric Mayne submits a polished, suave, easy portraiture of Philip Christian, acting throughout with admirable restraint and fluency. Mr. Frederick Ross brings much histrionic ability to bear upon the part of Cæsar Gregeen, and Mr. Pennington Bush plays in just the right vein as the caddish Ross Christian. Mr. Ellis J. Preston (who stage manages) makes the utmost of his opportunities as Black Tom; Mr. Charles L. Ludlow is capital as Jonaique Jelly; and Mr. H. K. Ayliff fulfils all requirements as Postman Kelly. Miss Rita Tomkins makes a brisk and interesting Nancy; Miss Blanche Stanley is a natural Grannie; Miss Alys Eden plays Janet appropriately; and Meg loses nothing in the experienced hands of Miss Amy Venimore. Other parts all receive careful treatment, and the staging of the piece must be very highly commended.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The chamber concert given by the pupils of the College on Thursday evening, Feb. 4, commenced with Schumann's Quartette for Strings, in A minor, No. 1, op. 41. The executants were Miss E. Muriel Pickup, Mr. Leonard Carrodus, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Cedric Sharpe, the young performers being very successful in the graceful Adagio. Mr. Henry Thompson was heard in "Two Gipsy Songs" by Dvorák, the second of which proved the most attractive; while the brilliant piano solos of Miss Ellen Edwards, Berceuse, Ronde des Sylphes, from Liapounow's Twelve Studies, and Schumann's Toccata, op. 7, were received with great enthusiasm by the large audience. Miss Evelyn Jennings, who has a full rich voice of great purity and considerable power, sang recitative and air "Vogl'io morir" (E. d'Astorga) most expressively, and received two hearty recalls. In Beethoven's Sonata for Piano and Violin, in G major, Mr. Thomas Peatfield and Miss Ellen Tuckfield displayed ability, but gave a somewhat tame rendering of the great master's work. Two duets of Brahms', "Die Meere" and "Weg der Liebe," were pleasingly sung by Miss Marguerite Owen and Miss Gladys Hislop. The concert concluded with an organ solo "Dithyramb" (B. Harwood), played by Mr. Reginald Thatcher. Miss Constance Stockbridge and Miss Ellen Tuckfield were the accompanists.

MR. F. R. BENSON'S SEASON.

Mr. F. R. Benson, who has been responsible for the making of many sound Shakespearean actors, opened his season at the Coronet on Monday with Richard the Third, which heralds revivals of other historical plays—such as Richard the Second, Henry the Fifth, the second part of Henry the Fourth, &c.—and productions of Coriolanus and Macbeth, and one representation only of Hamlet, which will be given this evening.

A critic of the eighteenth century, in speaking of Richard the Third, wrote: "Of all the various subjects which have engaged the tragic muse, none are of equal force and dignity to historical ones. From a multiplicity of great and interesting events they rouse and command more passions than any other. Of this Shakespeare was a most competent judge, and happily availed himself. I say happily, because he not only thereby gained a wide, fruitful field for the exertion of his amazing talents, but in a political sense did honour to his country by delivering faithfully many memorable events in a much more striking way than any historian could possibly do. Richard the Third, as acted, though essentially Shakespeare's, is much indebted for its variety, compactness, and spirit to the late Colley Cibber, whose thorough acquaintance with the stage well qualified him for regulating a plot and arranging of scenes."

This heresy was an article of faith with Garrick, the Kembles, and the elder Kean; but Mr. Benson, like Phelps and Irving, a lover as well as an interpreter of Shakespeare, in his compact and well-reasoned arrangement of scenes, sticks to the text of the Bard, and the cumulative force of the tragedy is well emphasised during the four acts. Envy and hatred naturally enter into the disposition of the scion of a royal race so cruelly handicapped as Gloucester, and Mr. Benson in the early scene of the cajolery of Anne enables us to see the brainy side of Richard. It is no common hypocrite, no mere dissembler, addressing the bereaved widow, but a courtly diplomatist, in deep contrast to the ferocious sleuth-hound who in the brief prologue took his first step on the thorny path leading to the kingship by his dagger-thrusts into the poor body of the weak King Henry the Sixth. Richard's attitude in the scene with the Mayor and the citizens formed an admirable lesson in kingly hypocrisy, and the king's impatience at Buckingham's coldness, his indifference to that nobleman's demands, and his condemnation of my Lord Stanley are episodes in which the actor displays the results of profound and earnest study, and in the final act we have presented to us a warlike Richard, temporarily unmanned by the visions of his victims, but ready as a fatalist and a warrior to meet the just doom that is to overtake him at the hands of Richmond. Mr. Benson was supported in the part of the widowed and childless Margaret by Miss Genevieve Ward, an actress who brings the best traditions of Shakespearean acting to a part that she has made entirely her own. She played both her scenes with a power that enchained the house, and the curses of the vengeful, sorrowful woman rang with tragic force. Miss Ward and Mrs. Benson, who played the Lady Ann with much delicacy and subtlety, were honoured with special calls and bouquets.

Of the numerous other parts we may single out as specially worthy of mention the Lord Stanley of Mr. J. P. Wilson, the Henry VI. of Mr. Guy Rathbone, who also played Sir Richard Ratcliff, Mr. Hannam Clark and Mr. Alfred Wilde as the first and second murderers The young princes were intelligently presented by Miss A. P. Nicholson and Miss Leah Hannam, and sound performances of Elizabeth and the Duchess of York were given by Miss Helen Haye and Miss Elinor Aickin.

THE GOLLIWOG DRAMATIC CLUB.

When a dramatic club bears so quaint a name as "The Golliwog" one expects something funny, and those who journeyed to the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Friday evening, Feb. 5, were not disappointed, and had many a hearty laugh over The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, the popular farcical comedy of Mr. R. Buchanan, which was admirably played by the Golliwog Club. Mr. L. M. Musgrove, the hon. stage-manager, played the hero, Captain Courtenay, the cavalry officer who marries the ward in Chancery, Angela Brightwell, with great spirit, and his make-up as the supposed Miss Brown was extremely funny, his comic business in the second ct, the Honeymoon, where the disguised officer comes as a parlour boarder to Cicero House Academy, kept the audience in a roar of laughter. The dashing Major O'Gallagher was also capitally impersonated by Mr. Arnold E. Wilson; and Miss Mary Thorn was excellent as the good-hearted Mrs. O'Gallagher. Mr. Jack Gallot appeared as the solicitor, Mr. Hibbertson; and Mr. L. E. Everitt was extremely good as Sergeant Tanner, of Scotland Yard, the sapient detective who in the second act is so simple as to allow himself to be handcuffed just to show the young ladies how it is done. Miss Lily Drew made a charming and vivacious Angela Brightwell, the ward in Chancery, who runs away from school to marry the Captain; and she was well supported by Miss Ella Woods and Miss J. Glen as Euphemia Schwartz and the sentimental Matilda Jones. Miss Maud Drew played the prim and stately Miss Romney of Cicero House Academy in a most lifelike manner; and Mr. Fred Winding made all that was possible out of the comic part of Herr Von Moser, the music master, who is so horrified when his rebellious pupil Angela says she "hates Schumann, and prefers Mendelssohn and marriage." Mr. Winding also successfully doubled the part of Michael Doucherty, the Major's servant, with that of Herr Moser. The school girls in the Academy scene were very lively and effective, and the more prominent parts of Millicent and Clara Loveridge ably acted by Miss Winnie Gallier and Miss Jessie Toles. Mr. C. H. Fox was responsible for the wigs and costumes, and the scenery of Messrs. J. T. Bull and Son and the stage management of Mr. L. M. Musgrove may be highly commended. During the evening Mr. A. M. Skinner's orchestra performed selections from many well-known composers. Miss Brown was produced under the direction of Mr. J. Edwards, and the Golliwogs certainly did credit to Mr. Buchanan's clever and amusing comedy.

AMUSEMENTS IN BARCELONA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BARCELONA, Feb. 1.—The attraction at the Teatro Principal is the comedy-drama, by Maurice Leblanc, Arseni Lupin, with all the scenery and effects as at the Théâtre d'Athénée de Paris. It has proved a big success, and is playing to crowded houses nightly.

At the Circo Barcelones, Everhart, with his hoops, has quickly made himself popular, and has introduced some new tricks that should cause a sensation on his reappearance in England. Two midgets only 24in. high appear with Minola Hurst (Mrs. Everhart). They are both more than nineteen years old, and although they sing in English and the audience do not understand a word, they nevertheless are accorded a hearty reception. The voice and manner of Minola Hurst greatly add to the success of the turn. Toch and Tard continue to amuse with their antics upon the trapeze, and are encored each evening for their burlesque wrestling; Mlle. Louka deserves great credit for her troupe of dogs, which are well trained; and the Sisters Karina upon the trapeze are popular as is also Enrique Adams, pantomimist.

THE TERRITORIAL QUESTION.

Mr. Chas. C. Ommanney has addressed the following letter to the Secretary of State for War, the Duke of Argyll, and Lord Esher:—

"Sir,—I have the honour to address the following letter to you, and to beg your influence on behalf of our plan.

"The scheme originated between Messrs. E. G. Bale, of the Cumberland Troupe of Cyclists, George Carney and Frank Armstrong (of Carney and Armstrong), and myself, the undersigned. When, some few weeks ago, we were all together in Hull we, in the course of conversation, discovered that three of our number had served in the Boer War in South Africa and one of us had carried arms throughout one of the South American revolutions, and a remark was then made that it was a pity we had not some military organisation purely for theatrical and music hall performers; and, after considerable discussion, the matter was left in my hands to draft a letter to the Secretary of State for War, the Duke of Argyll, Viscount Esher, and certain newspapers, detailing our scheme and asking members of our profession to write to me stating whether they would be prepared to join if the scheme can be carried through.

"There are a large number of men in our profession who have served in H.M. regular forces; there are also a large number who are crack shots, and a large number who excel in horsemanship, and men whose physique exceeds the average. These are the men we are aiming at enrolling.

"The following is our proposal for membership:—

"A man to become a member must be—

1. A British subject.
2. A bond fide member of the theatrical or music hall profession.
3. The making of a good shot.
4. The making of a good horseman.
5. A man of sound physique.
6. He must agree to serve under the rules framed under a committee to be elected, and the laws governing the Territorial Army.

"The question arises here that in our profession we are travelling round the country, and that a large portion of the year is spent in the provinces. How can we attend drills? You cannot expect a man to come from Ireland, Scotland, or elsewhere to London, abandoning his work, to attend a drill. We are aware of the fact that a certain number of drills per annum have to be put in. We therefore propose meeting the difficulty by approaching the executive of the Territorial Forces throughout Great Britain, and arranging that our members shall drill with their battalions, showing their cards of membership, which will be filled in, stating that they attended a recruit or company drill as the case may be. A certain number of drills per annum, battalion and otherwise, must be put in each year with their own battalion.

"The annual training under canvas will be arranged for, say, the end of June and the beginning of July, these being the slack weeks in our profession.

"Our officers will all rise from the ranks. For the first year an arrangement will be made that we are properly officered; after that, promotion will be made by merit.

"It is proposed, at first, forming one company of mounted infantry, and being attached unbroken to some battalion already in existence. Later on, when numbers increase, we will endeavour to form a battalion of our own with our own headquarters.

"It is proposed, after we have a working arrangement, to approach the leading managers of our profession and ask them to become hon. captains at first, and later on hon. colonels.

"It is proposed, as opportunity offers, to build our own headquarters, with school of arms, &c., where members will receive instruction in such things as the bayonet, sabre, foils, boxing, and other manly exercises, this building acting as a club for all. In connection with this we will arrange a sick fund and a loan fund.

"Each man will be proposed and seconded by members.

"It is proposed to arrange a day in each week for members to meet in the different cities and towns, when members can arrange such things as target practice between themselves and discuss matters of interest to members generally.

"We should try to arrange honorary membership of the different Territorial headquarters throughout the country. In fact, we should try to advance the social side of our scheme as much as possible.

"We should be very grateful for any advice, assistance, or influence you could give us on the foregoing.

"On behalf of my co-partners and myself, I have the honour to remain, Sir, your obedient servant,

"Chas. C. Ommanney, Lieut.,
"Temp. Hon. Secretary.

"55, Talgarth-road, West Kensington, London.
Feb. 10, 1909."

Approved:—
1. Edwin George Bale (Cumberland Troupe).
2. Carney and Armstrong.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The recent successful production of An Englishman's Home has inspired us with patriotism—not only those who are responding to the noble call of the Daily Mail, but those who have written plays dealing with the same subject. Having read one or two letters in last week's Era re previous productions, I should like, with your kind permission, to add my own claim to having done something in the same field. Possibly I was the first to write and tour a drama dealing with the Volunteer interest. Our Volunteers was written and produced by me at the Eden Theatre, Brighton, on July 19, 1897. This I toured for some considerable time. It is also a fact that I am the first at the present time to write and produce a dramatic episode dealing with our Territorials. This I did some weeks previous to the production of An Englishman's Home, and I am proud to say that my sketch Territorials is one of the most successful in my present répertoire, and I cannot help feeling that we are doing our share towards the great and glorious cause.—I am, Sir, yours faithfully, FRED MAXWELL.

THE IRVING MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The subscribers to the Irving Memorial will, I am sure, be gratified to learn that Mr. Thomas Brock, R.A., has now practically finished the plaster model for the statue of Sir Henry Irving; and all that now remains, therefore, is the casting of the figure in bronze, which is of necessity a matter of time.

There is every reason to hope that the statue will be erected on the site arranged for it at the back of the National Portrait Gallery in Charing Cross-road during the autumn of the present year, which is within the time promised by Mr. Brock for its completion when he undertook the commission.—Yours faithfully,

JOHN HARE,
President of the Irving Memorial Committee.
75, Upper Berkeley-street, Portman-square, W.
Feb. 5.

The next competition for the Macfarren Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music will take place on or about Friday, April 30, 1909.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

Mr. CECIL RALEIGH presided at the eighteenth annual general meeting of the Actors' Association, held in the Victoria Hall of the Criterion Restaurant (kindly lent by Messrs. Spiers and Pond) on Tuesday afternoon. Amongst others present were Miss Bessie Armytage, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Adam Alexander, Mr. Fred Annerley, Mr. H. K. Ayliff, Mr. Dennis Cleugh, Miss B. Chester, Mr. Arthur Curtis, Mr. C. T. Chapman, Mr. W. Cross, Mr. C. F. Collings, Mr. C. Cattley, Miss May Conrade, Mr. S. Compton, Mr. C. A. Collins, Mr. Clive Currie, Miss V. Cecil, Miss L. Cassilis, Mr. Percy Crawford, Miss P. Cecil, Mr. Cecil Brooking, Mr. Inez Bensusan, Miss D. Black, Mr. J. J. Bartlett, Miss Adah Barton, Mr. A. G. Brown, Mr. Edwin Barwick, Miss A. Bourne, Miss E. Dixon, Miss Joan Dills, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, Mr. A. A. Edwards, Miss B. Fenn, Miss H. Farrington, Miss B. Francis, Miss D. Gelstone, Miss Vere Gerald, Mr. Fred Grove, Miss Daisy Gwynne, Miss L. Gourlay, Mr. James Gelderd, Mr. Hampton Gordon, Mr. A. S. Homewood, Mr. Forrester Harvey, Miss Agnes Imlay, Mr. Sydney Keith, Mrs. L'Estrange, Miss Dora Levis, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Margaret March, Mr. Edward Morgan, Miss I. Moncrieff, Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Miss Florence Nelson, Mr. E. Ouston, Miss K. Parry, Miss Ethel Royale, Miss Ethel Russell, Miss G. D. Russell, Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. A. M. Seaton, Mr. Adnam Sprange, Miss Helen Tyler, Miss L. Tweed, Miss P. Vaughan, Mr. L. Warner, Mr. Chris Walker, Miss R. Mayne Young, Miss Eleanor Gilbart, Miss Bessie Harrison, Mr. John F. Hudson, Miss Clara Jecks, Miss B. Kemble, Miss E. A. Laing, Miss H. McCosley, Miss B. Mervyn, Miss Norah Mahone, Miss Clara Nicholls, Miss Theresa Osborn, Mr. Robson Paige, Miss Sydney K. Phelps, Miss Ida Reid, Miss I. Rozant, Mr. Francis Saffery (hon. auditor), Miss Lucy Sibley, Miss Emma Stockley, Mr. J. S. Smith, Miss G. Scaife, Mr. J. H. Twyford, Miss A. Ingreville, Miss May Warley, Miss Davies Webster, Mr. E. Watson, and Mr. H. Blount (secretary).

After the SECRETARY (Mr. Hubert Blount) had read the notice convening the meeting, the minutes of last year's meeting were carried.

The report and balance-sheet were as follows:—

The Council, in presenting the eighteenth annual report of the Actor's Association, would remind the members that the apparent uneventfulness of the past year has been mainly due to the following causes:—

(1) The Council has been obliged to devote its energies to secure a gradual recovery from the crippling financial difficulties of 1907. By strict economy it has been able to bring the Association to the end of the year practically free from debt. (This statement does not, of course, refer to the Debentures.)

(2) The work of the Council has been considerably hampered by:

(a) An enforced change of premises, the Queensland Government having acquired 409, Strand, from Messrs. Gatti. This, however, afforded an opportunity to the Council of effecting an economy in expenditure on rent. In the present premises members may miss an equivalent of the large saloon at 409, Strand, but the existing accommodation for office work (which is of paramount importance to the A.A.) is far more satisfactory. It has been proved by experience that club premises cannot be provided at a subscription of 15s. a year. The utmost members can expect is a "rendezvous" where they can meet their friends, see the most important papers, and write business letters.

(b) Change of secretary. The Council have every confidence in Mr. H. Blount, and would remind members that a reasonable time must be allowed for a newly-appointed secretary to become entirely conversant with the complicated requirements of the Association's work.

In addition to the routine work, the Council would draw attention to the following subjects that have occupied its attention during the past year.

THE QUESTION OF A STANDARD CONTRACT BETWEEN ACTOR AND MANAGER.

This matter has been considered both independently and in conjunction with the Actors' Union, and both the West End Managers' Association and the Touring Managers' Association were approached. These negotiations were followed by no practical result, but they have convinced the Council that, until the conditions of our calling are placed on an improved basis, it is inadvisable that the sanction should be given to a contract which must of necessity be unsatisfactory.

It is the opinion of the Council that the standard contract should be based on:

(1) A week of six performances
(2) Engagements to be for tour, season, or run.
(3) The right of the artist to be paid for all time devoted to the service of a manager.
(4) The right of the artist to a living wage.

The Council is glad to report that it has been able to take definite action in the interest of actors and actresses in the matter of the licensing of agents. At the invitation of the London County Council, a deputation from your Council waited upon the Committee of Public Control, insisted on the importance of all agents being licensed, and pointed out that mere registration was ineffective against the inrush of raw labour upon the stage. It was accorded an attentive hearing.

In accordance with the tradition of the Actors' Association as the representative body of working actors, the Council has approached the Lord Chamberlain to obtain definite information about the new regulations governing the use of theatres on Sundays. It was particularly interested in this question, owing to the fact that one of the most flourishing societies giving Sunday performances (the Play Actors) is composed entirely of members of the Actors' Association.

The Council views with great pleasure the progress made by the Play Actors during the three seasons that they have been in existence. It is a matter for congratulation that members of the Actors' Association should have formed so successful a society. Undoubtedly the position won by the Play Actors for themselves has resulted in great advantage to the Actors' Association as a whole, and the Council wishes to convey its sincere thanks to the Play Actors and its best wishes for the future.

The Council has had under consideration the question of approaching the Actors' Union with a view to amalgamation. Nothing practical has seemed possible, but the Council looks forward to the time when one consolidated society shall be formed to represent the whole body of working actors.

The Council has to report that the good fellowship of the medical profession towards the Actors' Association has been further manifested by the addition of twenty-two names to the roll of honorary medical officers who so generously place their services at the disposal of our members. The total number on the medical staff is now 484.

A large number of members have availed themselves of the services of the honorary solicitor. The honorary solicitor has been a constant attendant at Council meetings, and the Council desires to tender its hearty thanks for the valuable assistance he has given.

Two entertainments were given in the course of the year for the benefit of the Association.

(a) On June 24 a matinée was organised by Miss Rose Mathews, at the Scala Theatre, with the object of helping to pay off the Debentures. As a result, a fund has been started for this purpose, which is in the hands of trustees.

(b) on Nov. 24 a dance was organised by Miss Marion Lind, at 353, Strand, which, besides being a great social success, resulted in an addition of £7 to the funds of the Association.

The Council is obliged to report the deplorable indifference of members with regard to the election last March. When the time came for the nominations to be received, practically no candidates had been nominated, and it devolved upon the previous Council to nominate its successors. Your Council would strongly impress upon members that if the Association is to be completely represented, the initiative for election must come from outside. It is useless for members to quarrel with the policy of a Council in the election of which they have shown no interest. The one time in the year when members have the opportunity of expressing their opinion of what has been done in the past, and their wishes for the future, is the annual election of the Council, and it is the obvious duty of members of the Association to nominate those—whether present members of the Council or not—in whom they can place their confidence.

It is no small satisfaction to the present Council in laying down their office, to feel that they have passed with some success through considerable financial and other difficulties. They believe that there is a great future in store for the Actors' Association, but ultimate success will depend on the general interest and activity of the members as a whole, who must now do their part, and either endorse what has already been done, or declare how, in the future, they wish their affairs to be carried on.

FRANCIS J. SAFFERY, F.C.A.,
Honorary Auditor.

14, Old Jewry Chambers, London, E.C.
Jan. 30, 1909.

The CHAIRMAN, rising amid cheers to propose that the annual report and accounts be taken as read, adopted, and entered on the minutes, referred first to the balance-sheet, and, in the course of his remarks, said: I think that what will interest you most is the condition of our finances. You know we have been through all sorts of difficulties, and the year through which we have passed has been a year of some bad luck. We got new premises, which seemed to please a great many people, but unluckily we had to move, and the removal and storing cost us £33 13s. 3d. I think you may congratulate yourselves that at length you have cut your cloth in accordance with the length of your coat. Last year's payments were £1,390. We have now cut that down to £953 odd. If you take from that the £33 for the removal thrust upon us, you will find that it comes down to £920. We have had to economise in small matters, and to consider every penny. Our previous secretary and ourselves did not quite agree on this matter, with the result that a little more was spent at the beginning of last year than was perhaps necessary. On the incoming of the new secretary we had a double audit, and this meant more expense. Many members of the council have worked indefatigably, and I hope you all appreciate that. The most satisfactory thing about the receipts is that last year 1,012 members paid their subscriptions, and this, including the thirty-two life members, totals 1,044. The entrance fees last year amounted to £40, and the reinstatement to £1 11s. It is pleasant, too, to note that several old members have come back. Mr. Granville Baker, by means of the Henry Chichester gift, has been good enough to give us £5. Then there were the telephone calls, which came to £5 9s. 4d. Captain Stratton gave us 10s. 6d., and Miss M. D. Webster £10 10s., as a contribution from a matinée, for which our warmest thanks are due. The members' subscriptions were £760 5s. 6d. And here let me impress upon you that membership is the handle that turns the wheel. It is in membership alone that any hope for the future rests. When you double your membership you will be solvent. We have received money and got money wherever we could. If you look at the balance-sheet you will see that we have kept our expenses within our income. The debenture debt is due next year, and it will have to be found somehow. We owe £340, and our assets amount to ourselves as a going concern, to the possible profit of the society, and to what we have—our pictures, photographs, furniture, and so forth. A slight increase in the membership would enable us to pay off the debentures. We ought to raise the amount in one afternoon. We owe £340, and if we were sold up we should probably have only £120 towards it. I strongly recommend to you to pass your balance-sheet in the way it is put before you.

A member asked whether, in view of the fact that nearly £26 were obtained by agency commission, and there was such a good membership, it was not possible to secure more money in this way.

The CHAIRMAN replied that the Theatrical Managers' Association would not agree to book through the agency. He certainly agreed that all agency work should be done through the Association, but they were not strong enough to enforce such a condition at present. The council would welcome any suggestion that would help the agency.

A lady member expressed the opinion that it would be a good idea to invite the managers to come back as members.

The CHAIRMAN replied that if anyone wanted the managers back again, a resolution on the subject could be brought forward, and if supported by a sufficient number of members the council would call a meeting to decide the point. Personally, he (the CHAIRMAN) would not serve for two minutes on the council with any manager in London.

The CHAIRMAN, in his address on the report, said: The work done by the council during the past year has been very often tedious and tiresome. We have discussed the contract between managers and actors. We approached the Theatrical Managers' Association with the object of discussing the standard contract, and they replied that they did not think they were in a position to discuss it with us. It is not our fault that we have failed, for we have tried. The council are now going forward with the skeleton of a standard contract before them, and they propose shortly to have that contract printed and to submit it to every member of the Association, and at last to have a contract for our bedrock. The standard contract is to carry a week of six performances, engagements being for tour, season, or run, the artist to be paid for all time devoted to the service of a manager and the right of the artist to a living wage. During the past year we met the representatives of the Variety Artists' Federation. They were men who knew what they wanted, and they wanted to know what we were going to say. I think we might do worse than take example from the enthusiasm of the V.A.F. We went with them to the County Council, and after they had interviewed that body, we had a long interview on the subject of the licensing of agents. A person named Norman—we know him as Norman Craig—was run in yesterday for alleged fraud in connection with agency business. The other day I cut out forty-three stage advertisements from the daily papers, and all said "Experience unnecessary." I will ask the ladies to assist the council by replying to these advertisements and interviewing the agents. In regard to Sunday performances, there rests upon our Association great blame for not having taken stronger action in the matter. And here I might say that the Play Actors will be a great help to us in the getting of money. Possibly they will give at least one matinée this year to help pay off the debentures. There was a time when an amalgamation between the Actors' Union and the Actors' Association was discussed. We are not divided by anything very terrible, and they have a certain number of members who might come over to us. I think that we could hold out the hand of friendship so as to bring them to us, and there may be a possibility of doing something more towards this. The council have now got the Association out of its financial difficulties. I have to ask you to adopt the report and balance-sheet for the past year.

Mr. C. F. COLLINGS, who seconded, said that they would get the £2 minimum wage and the standard contract when they went about the business in a proper way. In the matter of the agency, there had been too much jealousy amongst the members. He thought that the managers would prefer to deal through the Association, and many engagements had been already made through the Play Actors. He understood that the Play Actors were perfectly willing to give a matinée to assist the funds of the Association.

The motion was then put to the vote, and declared carried unanimously.

The SECRETARY read the names of those nominated for the twenty-five vacant seats on the council, as well as the names of their proposers and seconders. The names of the candidates are as follow:—Miss Marion Lind, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Italia Conti, Miss Helen Haye, Mr. Fred Annerley, Mr. A. Applin, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. C. Brooking, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. C. F. Collings, Mr. Clive Currie, Mr. C. Derwent, Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, Mr. Richard Greene, Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood, Mr. Fowlass Llewellyn, Mr. Fred Morland, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. Sebastian Smith, and Mr. Jackson Wilcox.

The CHAIRMAN stated that the rule in regard to the election of the requisite number being carried out, he must declare that the persons whose names had been read out were elected.

The CHAIRMAN proposed a resolution as follows:—"That the Council be instructed to exert during the ensuing year their best endeavours to obtain for all members of our calling a payment where engagement of not less than £2 per week, a payment for rehearsals, and payment for all matinées." He did not think they need discuss the matter at length, as the subject had been spoken about so often. If they could not get the minimum wage by legislation, they would try to get it by pressure of numbers.

Miss LUCY SIBLEY (in the absence of Mr. Clarence Derwent), in seconding, remarked that she did not think anyone should belong to the Association who accepted a lower salary than £2 a week.

The motion, on being put to the meeting, was declared carried, with three dissentients.

Another resolution, proposed by the Chairman, was:—"That the council be instructed to exert during the ensuing year their best endeavours to support the Bill dealing with the licensing of theatres, &c., which has been brought before Parliament by Mr. Harcourt." The CHAIRMAN reminded the meeting of a case won by a manager who dodged his liability in a contract by pleading the illegality of sketches. If more freedom were allowed in regard to the playing of sketches, he believed that half of the music halls in the country would give dramatic entertainments, and that would be a means of inducing people to go more frequently to the theatres. He was of the opinion that theatres and music halls should be licensed as places where any kind of entertainment could be given. If the meeting supported the resolution, the council would be prepared to go before a Parliamentary Committee and speak in favour of the Bill.

Miss ROSE MATHEWS seconded, and the resolution was carried.

Miss LUCY SIBLEY proposed—"That in view of the fact that the debentures fall due in 1910, the council be instructed to take steps to pay off the debentures this year (1909) if possible." Miss SIBLEY stated that she felt very keenly on the matter. In the first place, they had to pay 5 per cent. interest, and in that way they had already paid upwards of £200. Last year they had to pay off one debenture (£25) out of their working capital. She did not think they would have the power of renewing the debentures, and they might have to pay any one of them at any given moment. Miss Marion Lind had suggested that they should have 340 collecting cards, and ask members to collect £1 each in small sums by, say, June, July, or August. The council would like to have the names of ladies who would undertake this work. Miss Lind herself had agreed to collect £2. Miss SIBLEY concluded by saying that she regretted she would not be able to sit on the council next year, as she would be away, but she would be very glad to take up office in the following year.

Mr. FRED. J. ARLTON, in seconding, appealed for a subscription of five shillings from each member, and, on a show of hands, forty members agreed to this suggestion. Mr. Arlton stated that the council would be glad to receive suggestions from the members as to how the money should be raised.

Miss MATHEWS thought that if the same energetic spirit were shown by the members of the Association as had been exhibited by the Play Actors, they would soon be clear of everything in the way of debt. Until they had got rid of their liabilities, they could not have a reserve fund, without which any body of actors was useless. The managers were powerful because they had money behind them.

Miss MAY WARLEY, of the Actors' Orphanage Fund, said that she would be very pleased to assist in organising an entertainment to raise the necessary cash to pay the debentures.

Mr. CECIL BROOKING also spoke on the subject, pointing out that the funds of the Association could not be used to promote such an entertainment, but that fresh funds must be supplied for the purpose.

The resolution was then carried.

Mr. ROBSON PAIGE proposed, and Mr. CECIL BROOKING seconded a vote of thanks to and the re-election of Messrs. J. H. Mote and Son, the honorary solicitors.

Mr. ARLTON proposed and Mr. FRED GROVE seconded a vote of thanks and the re-election of the staff of physicians, surgeons, and doctors, Dr. A. E. Harris (the honorary medical officer of health), Mr. Ernest A. E. Woodrow, J. P. (honorary consulting architect), and Mr. Francis J. Saffery (the honorary auditor).

A vote of thanks to Messrs. Spiers and Pond for the use of the Victoria Hall was proposed by Mr. CECIL BROOKING and seconded by Mr. C. F. COLLINGS.

The CHAIRMAN put all these votes to the meeting, and they were carried with enthusiasm.

On the proposition of Mr. H. W. MOTE, the Chairman was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, and Mr. RALEIGH, in replying, made a most spirited and stirring appeal to the meeting to procure new members.

At the conclusion of the meeting a total sum of £13 15s. was promised towards the Debenture Fund, the subscribers being Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss R. Mayne Young, Mr. Fred Grove, Miss Rose Mathews, Mr. Cecil Brooking, Mr. E. Morgan, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, Mr. Adnam Sprange, Miss Adeline Bourne, Mr. J. J. Bartlett, Miss Eugenie Kemble, Mr. Anton Laing, Mr. Arthur Curtis, Miss Margaret Murch, Mr. Edwin Barwick, Miss Ella Dixon, Miss Adah Barton, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. Percy Crawford, Mr. Percy Gelderd, Mr. Dennis Cleugh, Miss May Warley, Mr. Sidney Keith, Miss Beatrice Mervyn, Mr. Sydney Phelps, Miss Ina Rozant, Miss Bertha Francis, Mr. E. A. Edwards, Mr. Forrester Harvey, Miss D. Gelstone, Miss Joan Dills, Mr. Clive Currie, Miss G. Scaife, Mrs. Osborn, Mr. Sydney Compton, Miss Ethel Russell Mr. Reeve Denbigh, Miss Lillian Tweed, Mr. C. T. Chapman, Miss B. Chester, Miss Vere Gerald, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Miss E. Gilbart, Mr. Edwin Watson, and Mr. Robson Paige.

A committee meeting on Monday, Feb. 8, was held, to deal with matters in connection with the general meeting, and instructions were given to the secretary to call a meeting of the council on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at 2.30 p.m.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the above Union took place on Friday last at the offices at 49, Bedford-street, Strand, and the following were present:—Messrs. George H. Child (in the chair), Robert M. Taylor, Henry Bedford, Frank Gerald, Walter L. Rignold, Cecil G. Calvert, John W. Braithwaite, Langford Reed, James English, D. Lewis-Mannering, H. Tripp-Edgar, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary).

Communications were received from Messrs. Fred F. Loyd, Jerrold Heather, Paul Lovett, J. Hastings Batson, and Edward Chester.

Mr. Calvert proposed and Mr. R. M. Taylor seconded that the annual general meeting shall be held in the second week of July, in accordance with Rule 9 in the book of rules.

The secretary was instructed to send the details of a case of a member to the hon. solicitor for his advice.

Three new members were elected.

The secretary was instructed to write to the sanitary authorities in regard to the insanitary condition of a theatre.

Mr. H. Tripp-Edgar gave notice that he will, at the annual general meeting, move a resolution raising the entrance fee of the Union from 2s. 6d. to 5s.

At the Vaudeville Theatre on Monday, Feb. 8, 1909, a one-act play, entitled The Chaperone by Wallett Waller and Charles Trodde, was produced for copyright purposes.

The Dashing Little Duke was presented on Monday last amid the greatest enthusiasm ever accorded a play here, and the curtain descended on a scene of the wildest excitement, in which the radiantly happy hero, Miss Ellaline Terriss, was almost hidden by flowers. Mr. Seymour Hicks was compelled to express his thanks for the splendid send-off given to his play, and hoped that his friends in London would next week be as delighted and as generous in their tributes of praise. Scenically the production is magnificent. The final act, showing the garden of Richelieu's house at St. Cloud, has a glorious wealth of colouring, and its picturesque beauty is enhanced by the dainty costumes of the period. The music of Mr. Frank E. Tours (who is conducting in person this week) is both bright and tuneful, several of the numbers being of conspicuous merit, notably Diane's song, "Sundial," "Nobody cares for me" by the Duc, "Lisette" by the Abbé, and "Women, what wonders you are" by the Chevalier, and the dramatic scena in the first act for Diane. Mr. Tours deserves all praise for his artistic work. The story of love, jealousy, and pride, and the final reconciliation of the Duc and Diane—prolonged through the intrigues of the would-be lover, the Chevalier—is capitally told, and sparkles with bon mots in Mr. Hicks' own style. One sees at first a certain resemblance to Le Petit Duc of Meilhac and Halevy and Lecocq, produced in Paris in 1873, inasmuch as the Duc in each case is supposed to leave his bride directly after the marriage ceremony; both are officers of Dragoons, and in each there is a fencing ballet. But whatever may be the similarity existing, Mr. Hicks is to be heartily congratulated on the originality of his treatment of so admirable a theme. The Duc de Richelieu, a warm-hearted, but foolishly presumptuous boy of nineteen, marries Diane de Noailles in the first act. Clause 5 in the marriage contract stipulates that at the end of the ceremony the Duc shall immediately leave for Brittany, there to study for a year with his tutor, the Abbé de la Touche. This condemnation to banishment has escaped the notice of the too-confiding youth, who thoughtlessly boasts of having compromised the Duchess de Burgoyne, for which act of folly his mother-in-law insists on Clause 5 being carried out. The high-spirited Duc declines to fall in with the arrangement. The passage of arms between the two is amusingly written, but the scene is suddenly turned into one of pathos when the Duc is callously told that his wife despises him as a foolish, self-sufficient boy. His troubles are further complicated by the entry of the Duchess de Burgoyne, who publicly ridicules him, amidst the jeers of the crowd, by presenting a wedding gift of sugar-plums, instead of, as expected, a captaincy of Dragoons. The Duc, now a pitiful little figure of dejection and crushed hopes, has his cup of bitterness filled to the brim when Diane, in a fine vocal scena, denounces his folly, and bids him return to his toys and sugar-plums. Stung to the quick, he easily falls a victim to the schemes of the Chevalier, who, being himself enamoured of Diane, seeks to compromise the Duc in her eyes. To this end he urges the Duc to treat disdain with disdain, and suggests that "there is more than one woman in the world." Such a suggestion fits in exactly with the present mood of the Duc, and in a capitally-written duet, teeming with jeu de mots, he issues invitations to a number of the fair sex to visit him.

When the second act opens he is a prisoner in his own house, through the influence of his incensed mother-in-law, and becomes involved in an imbroglio through a visit from the Baronne de Bellechasse and Césarine, the fiancée of the Chevalier, who are followed by the Baron and the Chevalier. High words follow, and arrangements are made for a couple of duels. These take place at St. Cloud during the third act. A fine display of fencing between the Duc and Matignon naturally ends in the discomfiture of Matignon, who then swears eternal friendship. The encounter with the Baron lends itself to a piece of buffoonery, which is provocative of hearty laughter. Diane now discovers that she really loves her husband, and the curtain falls, leaving the happy pair to commence their honeymoon in peace.

In the character of the Duc de Richelieu, Miss Ellaline Terriss was perfectly irresistible. Looking like a delicate bit of Dresden china in her handsome dresses, she moved through the piece with charming archness and naïvete, and sent the audience into transports of delight by her versatile and vivacious performance. In her passionate scene with the Duchess, and later with Diane, Miss Terriss gave a glimpse of dramatic intensity that calls for unqualified praise. The letter-writing duet with Matignon was amusingly rendered, and the song "Nobody cares for me" was made doubly attractive by white doves circling round the stage and perching on her shoulders. Mr. C. Hayden Coffin sang with taste, and acted the part of the Chevalier de Matignon with his wonted ease and refinement. As the Abbé de la Touche Mr. Courtice Pounds used his sweet and well cultured voice with excellent effect in a song that will quickly become a universal favourite, entitled "Lisette," and the laughing duet with Mr. Coffin brought down the house. In the rôle of Diane de Noailles Miss Elizabeth Firth earned distinct favour. She has a brilliant soprano voice, and her dramatic rendering of a trying scena caused a spontaneous demonstration of appreciation. She was no less successful in the winning little song "Sundial." As the Duchess de Burgoyne Miss Louie Pounds moved through her part with regal distinction and sang acceptably. Miss Maud Milton was admirably tyrannical as the Duchess de Noailles; Miss Coralie Blythe gave a pleasing impersonation of Césarine, and Miss Florence Wood was legitimately humorous as the Baronne de Bellechasse. Mr. Henry Frankiss supplied a vigorous rendering of the Dragoon's song; Mr. Sam Walsh made a droll Baron de Bellechasse; and Mr. Frank Wilson achieved success as Soliveau. Mention should be made of the "Fencing Song," given with excellent care by Mr. Courtice Pounds, during which twelve charmingly attired young "bloods" made feints and passes in quite the approved style.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. TREE, on his recent visit to Egypt with Mr. L. N. Parker, in search of local colour for his new play, inspected the Great Pyramid, the Sphinx, and the ruins of Luxor, and also rode on a camel. He describes the movement as resembling that of a ship at sea. The new play will deal with life in modern Egypt. Mr. Tree will sustain an original part at one of the performances at the Afternoon Theatre, which has been so successful at His Majesty's under the management of Mr. Whelan and Mr. Dana, and at which Mr. Forbes Robertson will be seen on the 18th inst. Mr. Robertson will appear as Captain Clement Yule in Mr. Henry James's comedy The High Bid, which has not yet been performed in London; and as Jacques Berner in M. Tiercelin's one-act play A Soul's Flight, hitherto known as The Sacrament of Judas. Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mr. Ian Robertson, and other well-known artists will support Mr. Forbes Robertson on these occasions.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT gave his reading of Dickens's "Christmas Carol" in the new Memorial Hall at Eton on Saturday. The Headmaster of the College, the Rev. the Hon. E. Lyttelton, presided.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S cast at his revival of The Prisoner of Zenda, Mr. Edward Rose's adaptation of Mr. Anthony Hope's popular novel, at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday, will include, besides himself, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Walter Maclean, Mr. Reginald Owen, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds, Mr. Ashton Pearse, Miss Lydia Bilbrooke, Mr. Alfred Brydone, Mr. Vernon Steel, Mr. Henderson Bland, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Henry Kitts, Mr. Rohan Clensy, Mr. Sidney Hamilton, Mr. F. Sinclair, Miss Stella Patrick Campbell, Miss Frances Dillom, and Miss Beatrix de Burgh.

MR. H. B. IRVING'S very fine performance of Hamlet at the Shaftesbury is drawing such full houses that he will give an extra matinée of Shakespeare's tragedy on Thursday. Mr. Irving will revive Charles I. on Monday, with himself as the King, Miss Dorothea Baird as Queen Henrietta Maria, and Mr. Frank Tyars as Oliver Cromwell—a most attractive combination.

MISS ADELINE BOURNE writes to say that more than four members of the Actresses' Franchise League were at the meeting on the 5th inst. Among the members present were Miss Gertrude Elliott, Mrs. Madeline Lucette Ryley, Mrs. R. C. Carton, Mrs. Frederick Mouillot, Miss Janette Steer, Miss Marianne Caldwell, Miss Weeden, Miss Helen Elmar, Miss Nora Hastings, Mrs. George Giddens, Miss Kathleen Herbert, Miss Gillian Scaife, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Helen Tytler, Miss Decima Moore (who kindly paid for Clifford's Inn Hall), Miss Seruya, Miss Lillah McCarthy (who "received" for the League), and Miss Edith Craig (who took the chair), besides many others. Mrs. Marion Holmes, of the Women's Freedom League, made a brilliant speech.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY, who has just been elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, recently delivered his very interesting address, entitled "Character and the Actor," at the Montgomery Hall, Sheffield. There was a large audience, presided over by the Rev. William Morrison, a well-known Sheffield minister. The lecture was given in connection with the British Empire Shakespeare Society, in which Mr. Harvey takes the keenest interest.

MR. BOURCHIER, owing to the success of Samson at the Garrick Theatre, has found it necessary to cancel his annual visit to the provinces this autumn.

MR. LEWIS WALLER has decided to end the run of The Chief of Staff to-night, and he will (by arrangement with Mr. Tom B. Davis) revive Monsieur Beaucaire for a special fortnight, commencing on Monday. This in turn will be followed on or about March 3 by an important revival of The Three Musketeers. For the special fortnight of Monsieur Beaucaire Mr. Waller has secured the services of Miss Grace Lane, the original representative in England of Lady Mary Carlyle.

MESSRS. SMITH AND CARPENTER'S revival of Hamlet at the Lyceum Theatre on the 9th prox. is being looked forward to with keen interest, and the performances of Mr. Matheson Lang as Hamlet, Miss Hutin Britton as Ophelia, Mr. Halliwell Hobbes as Horatio, Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Laertes, Mr. Edwin FitzGerald as Polonius, Mr. Eric Mayne as the King, and Mr. Frederick Ross as the Ghost are eagerly anticipated. The period selected is the thirteenth century, and the scenery will be characteristic of the age. Mr. H. Sullivan-Brooks is composing the incidental music. The pantomime ends its run on Saturday.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS'S new musical play The Dashing Little Duke, the music of which is by Frank Tours, had a very enthusiastic reception at Nottingham on Monday. Miss Ellaline Terriss's delightful rendering of the leading female rôle sent the audience into ecstasies, and she had twenty-two calls before the curtain. The spell the popular artist weaves is evidently as potent in the provinces as it is in the metropolis.

MISS TERRISS has found new worlds to conquer. Ten "Ellaline Terriss Soup Kitchens" were opened in London on Tuesday, and over a thousand hungry little children had a good dinner. Miss Terriss's kind heart suggested that something should be done for the school children at present left dinnerless, and the honorary manager of the scheme, Mr. Ralph Hall Caine, son of Mr. Hall Caine, utilised existing machinery, and establishes the kitchens at the various depôts of the London City Mission. Mr. Hall Caine's secretary, Mr. Ife, is personally investigating the ten centres, and finds that the movement was really necessary. The supporters of the scheme include the Duke of Westminster, the Duke of Sutherland, Lord Strathcona, Lord Iveagh, Sir Clifton Robinson, the Duke of Norfolk, and Mr. W. A. Horn. Mr. Seymour Hicks is giving a matinée on behalf of the fund.

THE annual general meeting of the Thespids Cricket Club was held at the Green Room Club on the 4th inst., when the hon. treasurer (Mr. Ernest Cameron) was able to announce a very successful season last year, there being now a substantial balance on the right side. The club is growing rapidly in popularity, and numbers amongst its members nearly all the leading theatrical cricketers, many of whom are first-class players. Mr. George Alexander was re-elected president; Mr. Aubrey Smith, captain; Mr. Ernest Cameron, hon. secretary and treasurer combined; and Mr. Nye Chart, hon. match secretary. Fixtures have been arranged for the ensuing season with leading clubs, and the beautiful ground at Malden has again been secured for the Sunday matches.

IT having been suggested that a Lawn Tennis Club should be started in conjunction with the Cricket Club, Mr. Cameron will be glad to receive the names of any members of the profession who would like to support this proposal. His address is 4, Panton-street, Haymarket, S.W.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S health has for some time past caused much anxiety to his relations and friends. For the last two months he has been suffering from acute gout in the head and neck, and on the urgent advice of his physicians he left London last Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Howard, for a complete rest. All communications during his absence should be addressed to his partner, Mr. G. B. Lambert, at 15, Clifford's Inn, Fleet-street, E.C.

No testimony is needed for the enormous amount of good work which the Actors' Benevolent Fund does during a year. The recent death of an actress brings this fact very forcibly to mind. The actress and her mother had received a weekly allowance from the fund which has totalled up to the large sum of £1,100. The actors' Saturday lists are going round, and we ask, on behalf of the fund, that liberal response may be made so that increasing benefits may be meted out to those who fall by the way.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD'S cast of Mr. Robert Hichens's play The Real Woman, which she will produce at the Criterion Theatre on the 23rd inst., will include, besides herself, Miss Annie Hughes, Miss Kate Cutler, Mrs. Harry Cane, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Herbert Waring, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. C. Leveson-Lane, Mr. Lytton Grey, Mr. Heath Havilland, Mr. Horton Cooper, Mr. Frank H. Danby, Mr. D. H. Keith, and Mr. Geoffrey Douglas.

MR. FREDERICK HARRISON, when he revives She Stoops to Conquer at the Haymarket on the 20th inst., will include in the cast of the fine old comedy Mr. H. Bunston, Mr. E. Holman Clark, Mr. Robert Loraine, Mr. Louis Goodrich, Mr. Edward Rigby, Mr. Gilbert Porteous, Mr. John Castle, Mr. H. Gerrish, Mr. J. Cobb, Mr. Reginald Eyre, Mr. Harry Norton, Mr. Charles Fancourt, Mr. George N. Wallace, Mr. Harry Siebert, Master Ivan Vernon, Mrs. A. B. Tapping, Miss Beatrice Ferrar, and Miss W. Beach. With Miss Ethel Irving as Kate Hardcastle and Mr. George Giddens as Tony Lumpkin the performance should be most interesting.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON will deliver an address on Shakespeare at the celebration of the poet's birthday on April 23 in Southwark Cathedral. There will also be a short introductory service by the Bishop of Southwark, and an extract from Shakespeare's works set to music will be sung, with hymns by Gibbons, Ravenscroft, and others. The floral decorations have been entrusted to Miss Ellen Terry, who will use the spring flowers mentioned in connection with Perdita and Ophelia. The Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck hope to attend, and a space will be reserved for members of the profession. The collection will be devoted to erecting in the cathedral a permanent monument of Shakespeare.

AT St. Peter's Church, St. James's, on Monday the marriage of Mr. Langhorne Burton and Miss Marjorie Chard was celebrated. Although, owing to the fact that arrangements had been altered on account of the bride and bridegroom leaving earlier for Australia than had been anticipated, it had been intended to have the ceremony as quiet as possible, long before the appointed hour crowds of friends and well-wishers of the happy pair had assembled in the church. The service was conducted by the Rev. Golding Bird, vicar of the parish, assisted by the Rev. Alec Lloyd. Both Mr. Burton and Miss Chard had until recently been playing on tour in The Flag Lieutenant, Mr. Burton appearing in Mr. Maude's part and Miss Chard in Miss Braithwaite's. A very pretty tribute—amongst the many presents they received—came from the whole of their old company in the shape of a beautiful little travelling clock with an inscription:—"To our dear comrades, Dickie and Marjorie." Mr. Burton, who was under contract to go to Australia as leading man to Miss Nellie Stewart for her next season, left with his wife, who was also under contract, on Thursday morning in order to catch the Asturias at Marseilles on Friday.

MISS MAY HOLFORD BERINGER, daughter of Mrs. Oscar Beringer and elder sister of Esmé and Vera, was married last Saturday, at St. Luke's, Chelsea, to Mr. Leslie Waller, son of the late Edmund Waller, of China. Miss Beringer has been on the stage for some years, her last appearance being at the Garrick Theatre in Mrs. Bailey's Debts. The honeymoon is being spent in Cornwall. Miss Beringer, on her marriage is relinquishing the stage.

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD has sent to the West End theatrical managers particulars of a system of life assurance specially adapted to meet the requirements of actors. By this scheme the actor, while in an engagement, permits a small percentage of his salary to be invested on his behalf on the optional premium system in life assurance. At the end of the engagement, even if no further premiums are paid, the actor has insured for a certain sum either for the benefit of his family at his death or of himself in his old age.

MR. HAROLD WAGNER begs to thank Mr. Percy Broadhead for the offer of the resident-management of the Junction Theatre, Manchester.

MR. GERALD LAWRENCE and Miss Fay Davis will commence on April 12 a series of Shakespearean performances at the Court Theatre. As You Like It will be the first play presented. Matinées will be given each day and evening performances on Saturdays. Instead of scenery, the stage will be hung with tapestries.

THE Ilkley Urban District Council have completed arrangements for the engagement of some of the more popular touring companies during the forthcoming season. Mr. W. S. Bellerby, musical director to the Council, has been appointed local manager for the letting of the King's Hall on shares.

"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS," as played by Mr. Percy Hutchison and his clever company, still continues to draw crowded houses in every town visited. Although the Hutchison management have toured something like 200 companies, many of which have included stars, the receipts of these companies have been beaten everywhere by this popular success from the Hicks Theatre.

A MEETING of the committee of the Managers' Club was held on the 5th inst. There were present Mr. J. B. Howard (in the chair), Mr. G. B. Lambert, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. C. Barth, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). The following gentlemen were duly elected members of the club:—Mr. E. Taylor-Platt, Mr. Dudley Causton, Mr. Chas. Baldwin, and Mr. Horace E. J. Nation.

A MEETING of the committee of the Touring Managers' Association, Ltd., was held at the Managers' Club, Savoy Mansions, Strand, on the 5th inst. There were present Mr. J. B. Howard (in the chair), Mr. C. Barth, Mr. M. V. Leveaux, Mr. G. B. Lambert, Mr. F. Weathersby, Mr. Muskerry-Tilson (hon. solicitor), and Mr. M. Martin (secretary). A letter from the Railway Clearing House, intimating that the privilege of travelling at three-quarter fare could not be extended to managers when visiting their companies, was read. A sub-committee was appointed to co-operate with the Theatrical Managers' Association to go into the question of cinematograph performances given in dangerous buildings.

MR. PERCY HUTCHISON will produce on Monday next at Hull, in commemoration of the 200th performance of Brewster's Millions by the Hutchison company, a new one-act play, entitled The Happiest Woman on Earth, by Rosmary Rees, author of Her Dearest Friend. The cast will include Miss Sybil Walsh, Miss May Seton, Mr. Charles Esdale, and Mr. A. P. Kaye.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES'S company in The Cingalee will be at the Crystal Palace Theatre next week. There will be performances each evening at 7.45, and a matinée on Wednesday at 3 p.m. Promenade concerts will be given every evening next week at six at the Crystal Palace except Saturday. The artists will be:—Monday, Miss Winifred Burke and Mr. Ernest Pike; Tuesday, Miss Laura Evans Williams and Mr. Robert Carr; Wednesday, Miss Violet Love and Mr. Lyell Johnstone; Thursday, Miss Etionette Murton and Mr. Tom Clare (musical sketches); and Friday, Miss Lilt Grahame and Mr. Philip Ritte. Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will be the accompanist, and the Crystal Palace Military Band will play, conducted by Mr. Herbert Godfrey.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales visited the Comedy Theatre on Tuesday and witnessed the performance of Penelope.

CAPTAIN KELSEY has opened at 20, Cecil-court, Charing Cross-road—a few yards from Wyndham's Theatre, where An Englishman's Home is being produced—a recruiting office for the Territorials. Up to Tuesday night he had recruited twenty-one men, and had received numerous letters and telegrams from men announcing their intention to enrol themselves.

MR. BANNER, representing the Great Western Railway at Cardiff, arranged with Mr. Leslie, manager for Mr. Chas. M. Bestic's Flower Girl company, to run a special corridor train from Cardiff to Merthyr last Sunday. This was the first non-stop train (special) run on this route by the Great Western Railway, in the record time of fifty-five minutes, thus avoiding the Taff Vale Railway.

AN echo of Christmas reaches us from across the Atlantic in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Rose Dupré (Countess de Monti) and Mr. Frederick Sargent, which took place in December last at the City Hall, New York. Both were members of the Otis Skinner company, under Mr. Charles Frohman's management, last season, when they renewed an acquaintance begun some years back, with this auspicious sequel. Mr. Sargent, who left England for the States some three seasons ago, is now playing Commander Max Gilet, the juvenile lead, in The Honour of the Family, the play in which Mr. Otis Skinner, starring under Mr. Chas. Frohman's direction, has been so enormously successful. Their prospects in America are such that it seems likely that both Mr. and Mr. Sargent will, for the present at all events, remain in the States.

MR. WILLIE SCOTT, who has been re-engaged by Miss Maud Hildyard to play his old part of Bilby in The Great Awakening, has had an offer from Mr. Dallas Welford for America.

MISS LULU VALLI, the principal boy in the pantomime at the Kennington Theatre, after singing "A white man" on Wednesday, called upon the audience not to be content to sit and applaud, but to be up and act like men. Colonel Whitehead, of the 21st Battalion (Surrey Rifles), then stepped upon the stage and, surrounded by his officers, made an appeal for recruits. Non-commissioned officers went round the theatre recruiting.

MR. J. L. MOLLOY, the well-known song writer, who died on Monday, was the eldest son of Kedo Molloy, of Cornolore, King's County, Ireland, and was born in 1837. He was educated at the Catholic University of Ireland, where he graduated M.A. He came to England, and in 1864 was called to the English Bar. He became a member of the South-Eastern Circuit and of the Brighton Sessions. He was for some time secretary to the late Sir John Holker, the Attorney-General. His songs are full of melody, and he also wrote a book of Irish ballads and two operettas. "Thady O'Flynn," "Darby and Joan," "Love's old sweet song," and "To-morrow will be Friday" are still popular both in public and private.

"THE CHIEF OF STAFF" having failed to attract at the Lyric, Mr. Lewis Waller and Mr. Tom B. Davis will put on Monsieur Beaucaire for a fortnight, commencing on Monday. Mr. Waller will be seen in the title-part, Mr. Franklin Dyall as the Duke of Winterset, Mr. Gayer Mackay as Bantison, Mr. A. E. George as Rakell, Mr. Herbert Jarman as Beau Nash, Mr. S. B. Brereton as Captain Badger, Mr. Shiel Barry as the Marquis de Meripoix, Miss Grace Lane as Lady Mary Carlyle, Miss Madge Titheradge as Lucy Rellerton, and Miss Gwendolyn Floyd as Mrs. Mabsley. The revival will be followed on March 3 by the reproduction of Mr. Henry Hamilton's version of The Three Musketeers. In this Mr. Waller will appear as D'Artagnan, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy as the Queen, Miss Auriol Lee as Miladi, and Miss Madge Titheradge as Gabrielle.

MR. ROBERT RIVERS, of The Gay Gordons (N.) company, has been taken ill with rheumatic fever and is in the Royal County Hospital, York, where he will have to remain presumably for some time. He will be grateful if any friends coming to York will go and see him. The authorities of the hospital have accorded permission for him to receive visitors any day between 2 and 4 p.m.

RECOVERY of the war episode M.S. and other papers stolen from Mr. and Mrs. John D. Saunders's (Miss Nora de Winton) dressing-room last week seems somewhat doubtful at present. However, Miss de Winton and Mr. Saunders have not lost hope. The sketch was to have been known as God Save the King; or, The Two Lieutenants, but the first title having already been claimed, the author is coining a new one.

THE highly successful run of the pantomime at the Broadway Theatre concluded brilliantly last Saturday night, when an enthusiastic audience presented the principals with flowers in abundance. Mr. Bertram Iles, the genial and popular resident-manager, returned thanks in neat and appropriate terms, and announced that the subject of the next pantomime was already decided on.

MR. EDOUARD SILAS, the Dutch composer, pianist, organist, and teacher, who died in London on Monday at the age of eighty-one, was born at Amsterdam on Aug. 22, 1827. He settled in England in 1850, made his first appearance in this country at Liverpool, and afterwards played in London at John Ella's Musical Union. In 1863 his Oratorio, Joash, was produced at the Norwich Festival, and in the same year his Symphony in A was brought forward by the Musical Society of London, and repeated in the course of the ensuing season at the Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts, where also his "Fantasie" and "Elégie," for pianoforte and orchestra, were produced, under Sir August Mann's direction, the one in 1865 the other in 1873. Silas wrote an English opera, Nitocris, and a musical comedietta, Love's Dilemma, and was a teacher of harmony at the Guildhall School of Music and the London Academy of Music. The funeral took place on Friday. Sir Charles Santley was too ill to attend, but had four masses said for Silas's soul. His daughter, Miss Julia Listelle, is a well-known actress.

MR. FRED W. CARPENTER desires to correct the statement made by Mr. Mostyn Pigott in his discourse to the Playgoers' Club on Sunday night that "the largest queues were always found waiting for the poorest plays." Mr. Carpenter's experience at the Lyceum is entirely in the opposite direction, for the largest queues were for Romeo and Juliet last spring, and he quite expects that considerable numbers of people will often be seen waiting for the coming production of Hamlet.

SCENES of almost frantic enthusiasm witnessed the conclusion of The House that Jack Built at the Marlborough Theatre last Saturday night, when after the curtain fell it had to be raised time after time. The ladies were absolutely deluged with flowers and presents. Miss Maidie Scott, Miss Winifred Ward, Miss Madoline Rees, Mr. Fred Emney, Little Zola, and Sam Poluski, jun., made farewell speeches, and vociferous calls compelled the appearance of Mr. Fred Karno, proprietor and producer of the pantomime. Great cheers greeted the successful manager, and in a short speech he expressed his thanks, and then the huge audience joined in singing "For he's a jolly good fellow," followed by "Auld Lang Syne."

A NUMBER of interesting presentations also marked the conclusion of the piece, and gold-mounted walking-sticks, inscribed with the message "As a slight token of regard from the 'boys' and 'girls' of The House that Jack Built," were presented to Mr. W. H. Morgan (producer), Mr. H. J. Brett (business-manager), Mr. Dudley Powell (musical director), Mr. J. Fletch (stage manager), and Mr. H. Wellesley (assistant stage manager).

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT presented a handsome walking-stick to Miss Winifred Ward, a gold watch-chain to Mr. Wellesley, and a silver-mounted bâton to Mr. Dudley Powell, and Miss Ward's gift to Miss Scott was a very fine manicure set.

ANOTHER interesting event of the evening was the presentation of an illuminated address to Mr. H. J. Brett by Mr. J. Murray Herriot on behalf of Mr. Brett's numerous friends at Richmond, as a token of their esteem and as a memento of his success while resident manager of the Richmond Hippodrome.

MR. J. MURRAY HERRIOT, resident business manager of the Marlborough Theatre, had a very gratifying moment last Saturday night, when he received a most kindly letter, accompanied by a very handsome present, from Mr. Karno, thanking him for his untiring efforts towards making the pantomime such a success. This makes a pleasing sequence to Mr. Herriot's successive seasons at the Marlborough, as last year Mr. J. B. Mulholland, at the conclusion of Little Red Riding Hood, also gave him a splendid testimonial and present, while the preceding year Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens, of Cinderella pantomime, paid him a similar compliment.

MR. BASSETT ROE, so long associated with Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, has been engaged to appear in his original part of Athos in Mr. Henry Hamilton's Three Musketeers, with Mr. Lewis Waller, at the Lyric Theatre.

MR. FRANK CURZON, in order to meet the great demand for seats for An Englishman's Home at Wyndham's Theatre, has decided to give two special Thursday matinées on Feb. 18 and 25. These Thursday matinées will be in addition to the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinées.

THE visit of The Gay Gordons to the Shakespeare Theatre next week will give a rare treat to local playgoers. The company has been engaged and rehearsed by Mr. Seymour Hicks personally, and the scenery and dresses are identical with those in the original London production. Mr. Seymour Hicks's company is a very strong one, including such talented artists as Miss Gladys Archbutt and Mr. Frank Lincoln, Mr. Tom Graves, Mr. Mervyn Dene, Mr. Ernest Ruston, Mr. Edward Naimby, Miss Emily Mellon, Miss Mabel Dent, Miss Ida Laurie, and Miss Norah Guiness.

THE final competition for Free Open Scholarships in the Royal College of Music took place on Feb. 11, 1909. The following are the names of the successful candidates:—Pianoforte: Taffs, Joseph A., London; Motto, Josephine, London. Singing: Moon, Nora, Morley; Ryan, Catherine, Kilrush; Macklin, George, Carnarvon; Ireland, Joseph K., Burton Salmon. Organ: Walker, Edward H. S., Sydenham; Midgley, Albert, Perth. Violin: Cullerne, Frank H., Hereford. Violoncello: Snowden, John K., London; Bartlett, Ellen M., Exeter. Clarinet: Draper, Mendelssohn P., Penarth. Hautboy: Murphy, Francis, London. Horn: Probin, Frank P., Birmingham. Composition: Toye, Edward G., London. The Pauer Memorial Exhibition (£7 10s.) for the student of at least one year's standing in the College who attains the highest position among the proxime for the pianoforte was awarded to Moses, Rosaline E., Cape Town.

"PETE" is breaking records all along the line. The extraordinary scenes at Dalston last week have been repeated this week at Stratford, and Mr. Fred Fredericks and Messrs. Smith and Carpenter are shaking hands over the success of the drama.

THE Strand seems to be as dangerous to the pedestrian as it was in the time when the dark arches of the Adelphi harboured footpads and thieves, though skill has taken the place of force in their methods. Miss Isabel Grey was on Wednesday last relieved of her purse in broad daylight while quietly walking along the Strand.

THE new play, founded by Mr. Norman Forbes on the historical mystery of The Man in the Iron Mask, has now been definitely christened The Prisoner of the Bastille. The piece will be produced at the Lyceum Theatre at the conclusion of the run of Hamlet.

MR. H. W. ROWLAND completes to-day (Saturday) the twentieth year of his engagement as manager of the Pleasure Gardens Theatre, Folkestone, and has the additional satisfaction of its being the most successful year of the theatre's existence.

LIVERPOOL, usually ahead of the other big provincial cities, held its annual pantomime ball on Thursday last week at the local Adelphi Hotel, which possesses one of the best ballrooms in the provinces. The ball was a joint one given by the Shakespeare Theatre—whose destinies are so jealously guarded by Mr. Wentworth Croke—and the Royal Court Theatre, of which Mr. Robert Arthur is the ruler. A big contingent arrived at midnight in a special train from Manchester, coming from The Waltz Dream company and the Royal pantomime. Amongst the 320 people present I noticed Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Florence Imeson, Miss Mabel Green, Miss Marie Ashton, Mr. Walter de Frece, Mr. Wentworth Croke, Mr. Arthur Lawrence, Mr. Vivian A. Simon, Mr. Charlie Fergusson, Miss Von Leer, Miss Iris Roy, Miss Una Hamilton, Miss Marjorie Firth, Mr. Horace "Empire" Cole, Mr. George Brookes, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Jude, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. West, Miss Nelly Clapton, Mr. Lauri de Frece, Mr. E. T. Steyne, and Mr. Wildred Cotton. Then there were also Mr. Hampshire, Mr. Frank Dix, Mr. T. A. Shale, Miss Lilian Willard, Miss Paula Fernan, Mr. and Mrs. Bobbie Allandale, Dr. and Mrs. Dubourg, Mr. John Gaffney, Miss Mabel Weir, Mr. Sidney Watson, Miss Bijou Dreno, and Mr. Leo Weisker. Dancing was kept up with considerable spirit until 4 a.m.

MR. MILTON BODE applied formally on Thursday at Chester for a licence for the new Hippodrome that he proposes to erect in that ancient city, but the opposition was strong. The licensed victuallers argued on behalf of the trade that such a building would keep people very largely from the public-houses. The matter has been adjourned for further consideration. Many gentlemen, Chief Constables, and temperence advocates in high position have, on various occasions recently, given their opinion that the considerable decrease in the consumption of alcoholic liquors is to be largely attributed to the number of music halls that have recently been erected and provide rational amusement for the masses by giving them wholesome entertainment at low prices, so that persons who used to spend their evenings in tap-rooms now enjoy themselves for a couple of hours at considerably less cost to themselves and then go quietly home. The clerical opposition, however, is much more serious.

THE Princess of Wales visited the Shaftesbury Theatre on Thursday afternoon to witness the performance of Charles the First, given by Mr. H. B. Irving and his company in aid of the St. Pancras Home for Mothers.

MR. PATRICK KIRWAN has been engaged by Mr. Beerbohm Tree for the part of Captain Leddra in the forthcoming production of The Dancing Girl.

ALL friends and wellwishers of Mr. C. J. McCarthy, so long associated with Mr. W. W. Kelly, will regret to hear of his mother's death, which took place on Wednesday at 3, Howard-road, Leytonstone. As everyone knows, he was most devotedly attached to her, and many will sympathise with him in his irreparable loss.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR'S successful pantomime of Cinderella will give way at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Monday to Haddon Chambers's well-known play of Captain Swift, and that will in turn be followed by Jim the Penman, which has not been seen in Glasgow for many years. The production will be under the direction of Mr. Russell Rosse, and the company will include Mr. Edward Sorley, Mr. Arthur Dennis, Mesdames Ida Phillips, Gertrude Le Sage, Betty Fairfax, and Mrs. Bennett.

ON Friday evening, the 5th inst., at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, Mr. Ben Court, general-manager of the theatre, was accorded a complimentary benefit for his services in the production of the pantomime Aladdin. During the evening Mr. Ernest Gates, lessee and managing-director, presented him with a massive gold ring on behalf of the staff, and he was also the recipient of a box of choice cigars from the musical director, Signor G. de la Camera, and a fine oak smoking cabinet, mounted in silver, from "friends in front."

GREAT enthusiasm prevailed in the theatre last Saturday evening, when the pantomime was brought to a successful close. Beautiful bouquets for the lady artists and gifts for the male members of the company were presented during the evening. Mr. Ernest Gates received a case of pipes, a cigar and card case from the staff and some of the artists, and a handsome tantalus with cigar companion from friends in front of the house. Signor G. de la Camera was presented with a silver inkstand, subscribed for by friends in front; and Mr. C. Lake, stage manager, received a Gillette razor with accessories. Miss Blanche Marion (Princess) was the recipient of a case of silver-backed brushes and toilet accessories from her many admirers in front.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON AND MR. PERCY HUTCHISON'S production of one of the most successful plays of the past year, Lady Frederick, is still delighting provincial audiences, and the title-part is played by Miss Eleanor Delaporte with great charm. A special feature of the production is Miss Delaporte's luxurious dresses, the costume in the first act being made in amethyst velvet, the corsage almost entirely composed of oxydised hand-made embroidery, the square yoke being tucked. With this is worn a large hat, which exactly matches the gown, and is finished with long ends, which are tied at the back and hang to the waist.

IN the second act she appears in a beautiful Rose du Barri coloured gown, which is composed of cashmere de sole, and the trimming is deep silk fringe and hand-made silk embroidery to match. In the Make-up scene she wears a lovely Japanese kimono, which she afterwards changes to a charming crêpe de chine, with deep band of gold from corsage to extreme hem of gown, and the sleeves are of gold finely tucked and bands of gold embroidery. The neck is cut square-edged, with gold. The Hutchison management, with their usual good and sound judgment, have secured leading ladies for their companies this spring who have dressed the parts allotted to them with exquisite taste and attractiveness.

BEFORE the Lord Chief Justice and a common jury, in the King's Bench Division, on Thursday, the hearing was concluded of the action brought by Mrs. Mamie Danks, an actress, professionally known as Miss Mamie Stuart, against Messrs. Sherek and Braff, theatrical agents. The plaintiff claimed damages for alleged misrepresentation and negligence in connection with an engagement the defendants secured for her at the Casino, Buenos Ayres. The defendants denied the allegations, and counterclaimed for commission. His lordship entered judgment for the plaintiff for £250 and costs. The question of a stay of execution being granted stood over for argument.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH, who is going to retire and rest at Folkestone, has been telling a Chronicle man about his early experiences. "There were thousands of people," he says, "who came to hear my father and myself who would have been horror-stricken if anyone had asked them to a theatre. My father, I should explain, was the Times reporter at Bow-street Police Court, but he also lectured and gave readings in the country. I had been singing in private for some time when one night John Oxenham, the musical critic of the Times, heard me sing at my father's house. He remarked: 'I say, that boy ought to go in for that sort of thing. Send him to see John Parry.' I went several times, and I made up my mind that that was the sort of work I would like.

"I CANNOT say I had ever anything of a struggle. My father allowed me £1 a week for doing his work when he was in the country lecturing, and I lived at home. Then my father began to take me about with him, and, while he gave readings or lectures, I sang and played the piano. We were known familiarly as 'The Two Georges.'

"My first real engagement came in 1870 from Professor Pepper, of 'ghost' illusion fame, who offered me a trial performance at the Polytechnic, in Regent-street. It was after this that I began to go about the country with my father, and then I returned to the Polytechnic. I used also to sing at the end of Hastings Pier, and that, I fancy, was the beginning of pierhead concerts at the seaside. I got two guineas a week at the Polytechnic for playing a little musical sketch written by myself. My highest salary at the Savoy Theatre—although I do not complain—was 38 guineas a week. But alone, with my piano, in the country, in seven working months, I made £10,000, and the same next year, and other years. I kept a good deal of it, but," with a slight grimace, "I spent a good deal of it, and I have had many calls upon me."

Mr. H. B. Irving's Hamlet is so well known to all interested in stage achievements that it is almost superfluous to analyse it at this period. Mr. Irving's performance of the part at the Adelphi in the April of 1905 was a memorable one, and its leading features were indelibly stamped on the recollections of those who saw it. It is probably the best all-round reading of the rôle of the Prince of Denmark that can be at present offered to the public. While by no means unopen to objections, it presents the most vital and imaginative conception of the character that is at present available. Mr. Irving's appearance and temperament lend themselves valuably to the impersonation. The melancholic, super-sensitive nature of the Prince of Denmark is suggested throughout, and his highly-strung nervousness is shown without effort by an actor so happily endowed. The keen intellectuality of Hamlet, which finds vent at intervals in jets of mordant satire, is another point on which Mr. Irving scores; and his picturesque features and refined, thoughtful expression combine to create an impression of mental disturbance which is indispensable to any vivid conception of the character. Coleridge's acute dictum that Hamlet plays the subtle trick of pretending to act only when he is very near really being what he acts is well sustained by the extremely delicate way in which, while nervous overstrain and its sequel melancholia are suggested, the essential sanity of the reasoning power is suggested. In one respect Mr. Irving's Hamlet has improved with age. In our notice of the Adelphi performance we complained that it was a little dry and hard, a little deficient in personal magnetism and human charm and sympathy. It would be impertinent to suggest what influences have been at work in the interval; but certainly Mr. Irving now touches a tenderer and a more affectionate note both in his conversations with Horatio and in his scene of reproach and remonstrance with his mother. Two instances particularly occur to us—the wistful gentleness of his treatment of the little "expansion" in the conversation with Horatio ending "Something too much of this"; and the deep sadness of the conclusion of the interview with Gertrude when Hamlet takes his mother, in hopeless despair and misery, to his arms. The reading retains all its original merits. The version prepared by Mr. Irving is, at any rate, coherent and effective; and the sacrifices made to time of performance are as tolerable as can well be conceived. Mr. Irving's acting in the stronger scenes is as intense and exciting as ever.

A good Claudius is a great thing in any revival of Hamlet, and Mr. Frank Tyars is one of the best. Without caricaturing the "lecherous, treacherous villain," Mr. Tyars makes him sufficiently malevolent in appearance, while doing full justice to his unctuous hypocrisy; and the lowering dread and uneasiness of the fratricide are excellently depicted. Mr. Tom Reynolds, a fine elocutionist, makes a remarkably natural and unconsciously comic Polonius. The part of Ophelia suits Miss Dorothea Baird exactly, and she infuses into her reading all the helpless submission to circumstance which makes Ophelia so infinitely pathetic. Miss Baird's beauty is of the type which lends itself to the embodiment, and her grace and delicacy assist her greatly in her success. Mr. Charles Dodsworth is very quaint and dry, though not excessively rustic, as the First Gravedigger; and Mr. George Silver is duly dense and solid as the Second. Mr. Frank Cochrane's sonorous and musical delivery of the Ghost's lines is not only impressive but winning in its sympathetic earnestness; and Mr. Stanley Howlett is an unimpeachable Horatio—sound, firm, and modest. A neat bit of character acting is Mr. H. C. Hewitt's Osric; and Mr. Arthur Curtis and Mr. J. Patric Curwen are agreeably young in spirit and appropriately shallow and superficial as Rosencrantz and Guildenstern; Mr. B. A. Pittar and Mr. H. Hilliard giving careful and creditable renderings of Marcellus and Bernardo respectively. Mr. Eric Maxon is an admirable Laertes, free alike from staginess and tameness. Mr. Norman MacOwan and Mr. W. Graham merit praise for their neat renderings of Francisco and Reynaldo; and Mr. S. Beaumont is excellent as the First Player, his make-up and bearing being intelligently appropriate. Miss Eily Malyon's Gertrude has all the required queenly repose; and her passionate remorse in the chamber scene is expressed with real power and feeling. Miss E. Frances Davis is distinct and careful as the Player Queen. The revival loses nothing of its artistic effect by not being overloaded with scenic embellishments, especially as the essentials, including the management of the Ghost illusion, are well attended to. Mr. Hamilton Clarke's incidental music is used with effect; and the costumes designed by Mr. Tom Heslewood are artistic in their simplicity. The performance was received on Monday with great enthusiasm, which culminated in call after call at the conclusion.

MISS ADRIENNE AUGARDE, it is announced, is engaged to Mr. A. Dingwall, manager of the Broadway Theatre, New York. Miss Augarde's first important appearance was in the leading ingénue rôle in The Duchess of Dantzic, at the Lyric in 1903. Following this, she created the title-rôle in Lady Madcap at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in 1904. Having played the part for two weeks, she sailed for New York, appearing in the United States in The Duchess of Dantzic with the original London company. She played in New York for two months, and then returned to London to create one of the Little Michus in the piece of that name at Daly's in 1905. During the closing weeks of this piece she rehearsed for See-See, at the Prince of Wales's, and, after playing a leading part in that piece for two months, left to create the part of the Princess in The New Aladdin at the Gaiety. During 1907 Miss Augarde appeared at the Lyric Theatre as Lady Betty Noel in Clancarty, and at Drury Lane as Lady Gwendoline Ashley in The Sins of Society. She was engaged by Mr. Beerbohm Tree to appear at His Majesty's Theatre in January, 1908, as Rosa Bud in The Mystery of Edwin Drood. She recently appeared in The Marriages of Mayfair at Drury Lane.

DEATH OF CHARLES WARNER.

The circumstantial details which followed on Friday the announcement of the suicide of Mr. Charles Warner in New York leave little doubt that the actor has taken his life in a fit of temporary insanity. Mr. Warner, says Reuter's telegram, was found dead on Thursday evening. The body was hanging, half-dressed, by a strap, strengthened with twine, from the door-jamb of his room in an hotel. A note which he left suggested strongly that his mind was unhinged. Mr. Henry Warner, the son of the dead actor, who has been playing in New York, viewed the body. Mr. Charles Warner left cheques and cash to pay for his board and lodging and the undertakers' expenses.

Mr. Charles Warner was born at St. Mary Abbott's, Kensington, on Oct. 10, 1846, and educated at Westbury College, Highgate. He was the father of Mr. H. B. Warner and of Miss Grace Warner. He was originally intended for an architect, and first appeared on any stage in 1861 at Windsor Castle before Queen Victoria as a page in Richelieu with the late S. Phelps. He joined the stock company at Hanley in 1862, playing Bras Rouge in The Mysteries of Paris, and Muley Sahib in The Castle Spectre. After a period of hard work in the provinces, including an engagement at Brighton with the late H. Nye Chart, he came to London, and made his first appearance there at the Princess's, April 25, 1864, as Benvolio in Romeo and Juliet, with the late Stella Colas. The late Edmund Falconer saw him and offered him a three years' engagement at Drury Lane, 1866; other London engagements followed, the most important being with the late Colonel Bateman at the Lyceum in 1872, succeeding Irving at that theatre in Pickwick as Jingle; next followed a long engagement at the Vaudeville under James and Thorne, where he played in The Road to Ruin and in the long run of Our Boys as Charlie Middlewick. He next went to the Haymarket for over a year under Buckstone, playing in The Overland Route. This was followed by an engagement with the late Adelaide Neilson. At the St. James's he played in Lord Newry's version of Les Danischeffs, and in comedy with Mrs. John Wood. Miss Litton next offered him an engagement at the Imperial. His most striking part was Coupeau in Drink, produced at the Princess's, which he has played over a thousand times in different parts of the world. He was five years at the Adelphi under the Gattis in a long series of melodramas, and accepted a farewell engagement at vaudeville prior to his departure for Australia, 1887, for a sixteen weeks' tour. He remained "down under" for two years, returning in the year 1890, after a phenomenally successful visit, at the end of which the management and himself divided profits amounting to £35,000 (his share for one week alone, during the run of Hands Across the Sea, amounting to £637 5s.). In 1890 he returned to Drury Lane, appearing in A Million of Money, followed by revivals of It's Never Too Late to Mend, Formosa, and then resumed his old character in Drink, and played in A Sailor's Knot which followed. This was succeeded by his appearances at the Princess's in The Life We Live; at the Vaudeville, in Sophia; the Adelphi, in The Lost Paradise, A Woman's Revenge, and The Cotton King; the Princess's, in Odette; and the Metropole, in Under the Mask of Truth. He next toured as D'Artagnan in The Three Musketeers. He appeared at the Princess's in 1897 in How London Lives; in 1898 was at His Majesty's in Ragged Robin, and in 1902 appeared under Mrs. Beerbohm Tree's management at Wyndham's in Heard at the Telephone and Cæsar's Wife. At the Royalty in 1903 he was Ben Kershaw in A Snug Little Kingdom, and at the Savoy, in 1904, Canio in Pagliacci. He created Kleschna in Leah Kleschna at the New in 1905; Leontes in The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's in 1906; and subsequently proceeded to America, playing Heard at the Telephone and Devil Montague in the leading vaudeville theatres. He was an original member of the Green Room Club.

Mr. Warner, as a stage-struck boy of seventeen, ran away from home and obtained his first engagement at Henley. He used to tell how in those far-off days he played thirteen parts in the first week of his appearance upon any stage, having to master two, that of Bras Rouge in The Mysteries of Paris, and Muley in The Castle Spectre, after twelve o'clock upon the day of his arrival, in order to appear in them the same evening.

That this experience was valuable, however, was at once evident, and Mr. Warner soon became of necessity a "quick study," being absolutely letter perfect before he was twenty in the parts of King John, Hubert, Faulconbridge, Romeo, Othello, Shylock, St. Pierre in The Wife, The Stranger, William in Blackeyed Susan, Iago, William Tell, and Ingomar, as well as fairly coached in dozens of others.

"It was during this first engagement," says Mr. Arthur Goddard in "Players of the Period," "that Mr. Warner was hauled over he coals by his irate manager for not wearing a pair of kid gloves in the Wedding scene in All That Glitters Is Not Gold, when, as a matter of fact, he had taxed his meagre salary of eighteen shillings a week to the extent of purchasing a most delicate pair of flesh-coloured gloves, the similarity of which to nature misled old Mr. Rogers, the manager, and was eventually the cause of Mr. Warner's leaving his company and coming to London, as the country manager declined to give the boy-actor an extra two shillings a week. 'Great events from little causes spring,' and to this dispute, arising from a pair of pink kid gloves, the metropolitan stage owed a new recruit, destined ere long to develop into a popular favourite of the first order.

"Mr. Warner, like most actors, had his little slips and contretemps in his early days, and one of the most amusing occurred when he was quite a stripling, acting at Drury Lane under the management of Phelps, who was always extremely kind to the young player, who gained an invaluable knowledge of Shakespeare under the Phelps régime.

"One evening the great actor called the young beginner into his room at Drury Lane and said, 'Now, my lad, I'm going to make an actor of you, and I think you've got the stuff in you. Richelieu will be my next play, and I shall cast you for François. You must take great pains, and I'll assist you in every way that I can.' Charles Warner was naturally in the seventh heaven of delight at this, as he had never yet played so important a part. The first night came. It will be remembered that after Richelieu's great soliloquy François rushes in, and the great Cardinal exclaims, 'The despatch, boy! Life—death—' in breathless excitement. At this supreme moment Phelps gave a tremendously grim and prolonger 'Ha!' which so frightened the latest François that he fell on his knees mute. Phelps repeated the lines; but François was still dumb, choking with nervous excitement. Again Phelps repeated, 'The despatch, boy!' Then, instead of uttering the lengthy and important speech revealing the conspiracy, all he could stammer out was, 'I—I—haven't got it!' Phelps growled out, quite audibly, 'Oh! d—— you! You're ruined!' and the actor got off the stage as best he could. He hid himself in his room, and cried like a child.

"Before the performance on the next night Phelps sent for Charles Warner, who obeyed the summons tremblingly, but to his intense relief the veteran and kindly actor said to him, in a gentle and fatherly fashion, 'Come here, my boy. Why, how nervous you were! You will be all right to-night, eh?'

"'Sir,' said the lad, 'it was that dreadful "Ha!" You didn't do it at rehearsal!' At this the old tragedian laughed outright. The lad was all right at night, and afterwards Phelps was Charles Warner's best friend."

CHARLES WARNER.

AT the weekly meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens, the Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that the best way of dealing with the question of the extent to which persons should be allowed to stand in places of entertainment was to fix a maximum time for the exit of the audience. So long as this time was not exceeded the only restrictions that need be placed upon the number of persons admitted were that the intersecting gangways should be kept absolutely clear, and that sufficient room for passing easily to and fro should be maintained in the gangways and passages at the sides and rear of the seating.

THEY considered that three minutes should be regarded as a reasonable time within which an audience must be able to discharge itself from a place of public entertainment. Nos. 5 and 6 of the rules relating to premises licensed by the Council should be rescinded, and the following substituted:—Rule 48—"Persons must not be permitted to stand or sit in any of the intersecting gangways, and, if standing be permitted in the gangways at the sides and rear of the seating, sufficient room must be left for persons to pass easily to and fro." The recommendations of the Committee were adopted.

Description is the best criticism that can be given of Mr. Wilfred T. Coleby's interesting and original comedy, which was presented at the Kingsway Theatre on Thursday evening; but description cannot quite do justice to the sense of reality which is created by the admirable manner in which the details, alike of dialogue, "business," and mounting, are supplied. Only a visit to Miss Lena Ashwell's well-managed and comfortable theatre can convince the playgoer of the excellence of The Truants in these particulars. It is really a domestic drama, working up to a sensation scene at the end of the second act. It would have been better, perhaps, had this "point of vantage" been attained in the third, which has to suffer somewhat for the strength of its predecessor. The heroine, Freda Saville, is an "advanced" young woman, who has been betrayed into a false marriage with a man who already had a wife. The result was a boy; but as the father was killed in a frontier war in India and the child was taken care of by some friends, no harm has ensued to Freda, who has come home to England and has fallen in love with Dick Chetwood, a wealthy country gentleman. Dick's brother Bill, a blunt, rough individual, who has returned a rich man from Buenos Ayres, has won the heart of Miss Pamela Grey, a weak and silly girl, who uses the latest slang and wants to appear in a Maud Allan costume at an amateur entertainment. Pamela puts down all her folly to Freda, in earlier days, having preached emancipation to her; but Freda, who has now renounced her unorthodox opinions, implores Pamela not to go out with Bill Chetwood to Buenos Ayres as his mistress, as the flighty young person is preparing to do. Dick has generously offered to hand over part of his estates to Bill; and Freda tells the latter that, if he does not give up his intention of taking Pamela away unwed she—Freda—will use her influence to stop the transfer. In answer, Bill informs Freda that he knows all about the child, and will mention the matter to Dick if Freda does not withdraw her opposition to the gift of the estate. Then Freda takes out a revolver, and threatens to blow Bill's brains out unless he promises not to seduce Pamela. This is the strong point of the play. Freda says she will count five and then fire. At the word "four" Bill snatches at the pistol, but is wounded in the arm, the noise of the shot being accounted for to the aroused household by a visit from an imaginary burglar.

In the last act a rich neighbour, Lord Strelland, who knows Freda's secret, offers to be silent if she will let him adopt the child, now a fine boy. Freda refuses, and confesses all to Dick, who maintains their engagement; and Bill, after some difficulty, is induced to marry Pamela by special licence.

The performance was interesting from the remarkable impression created by Mr. Dennis Eadie in the part of Bill Chetwood. In appearance, style, and speech he was exactly the person indicated; and the resolute emphasis of his acting and his striking suitability for the part made his reading of it a great success. Miss Ashwell's rôle of Freda Saville hardly evokes her strongest and deepest powers; but she was very impressive in the shooting scene, the "nerve" of the heroine being convincingly suggested. Miss Athene Seyler was so exactly fitted to play Pamela Grey and acted with so much bright animation and quick intelligence that she won admiration from the commencement. Her bursts of temper were capitally done; and there was a spontaneousness about her performance which was very winning and attractive. The remaining characters were more or less subordinate. Mr. Norman McKinnel made the most of the harsh and gloomy aristocrat Lord Strelland; Mr. C. M. Hallard was unimpeachably alert, gentlemanlike, and sincere as Dick Chetwood; and a clever and comical representation of an irrepressible gossip was supplied by Miss Gertrude Scott. Miss Frances Ivor was a dignified Lady Darnaway; Mr. Ernest Young was efficient as a clergyman; and Miss Olivia was naïve and amusing as a lively little boy, Miss Margaret Murray deserving praise as a servant. The play, produced by Mr. Norman McKinnel, went very smoothly, and was cordially received.

MR. CARL HENTSCHEL writes:—"In reference to the discussion which took place last Sunday at the O.P. Club, and the agitation which is now going on in Manchester regarding the theatre queue, there appears to be only one remedy, and that is to allow pit and gallery seats to be booked. At the present time the queue in certain busy thoroughfares is becoming as much of a nuisance as the old crowds, and any attempt to do away with it is bound at first to be received with a certain amount of opposition. But if the police were to declare these queues were illegal, managers would have to book all parts of the house, a proceeding that would be appreciated by many playgoers who are now prevented, especially during the inclement weather, from patronising the cheaper parts.

"IT is not everyone who can afford to risk standing for an hour or so at a draughty street corner at this time of the year, and, after all, why should the humbler patrons of the theatre be placed at a disadvantage to those patronising the better parts? Those who frequent pit and gallery are just as much entitled to go in comfort as those who are able to pay for dress circles and stalls. The difference should only be in the point of view and the advantage of the seating arrangement.

"IF the booking of all parts of the house became universal, doubtless there would have to be some rearrangement of the prices charged for certain parts of the house, especially the pit. The use of messenger boys for pit and gallery is also an abuse which it is surprising that playgoers have not resented very strongly, for it hardly seems fair to the pit and gallery patrons that that part of the house should be invaded by those who can well afford to buy more expensive seats."

"THE LOOKING-GLASS" and Under the Greenwood Tree, the two pieces written by Major Philip Trevor and acted by his children, which drew a crowded house to the Haymarket on Jan. 12, in aid of a popular charity, will be repeated at a matinée, on Feb. 19, at the St. James's Theatre, kindly lent by Mr. George Alexander. The forthcoming performance is to be in aid of the (Hampstead Branch) Ladies' Guild of the British and Foreign Sailors' Society, and Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales has promised to be present if possible. There is to be a guard of honour, composed of little boys in man-o'-war suits, to receive her Royal Highness.

DEATH OF ERNEST COQUELIN.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

On Monday afternoon, during the rehearsal of La Furie, the news reached the Comédie-Française that Ernest Coquelin had passed away. There were all his old friends: Mme. Bartet, Mme. Segond-Weber, M. Dufias, M. Truffier, M. Grand, M. Albert Lambert, M. and Mme. Silvain, and many others. "Poor Cadet," they exclaimed; and then a long silence followed, for all were impressed by this death following so closely upon that of the elder brother. The sad tidings spread like wildfire all over the city; but those who knew something of the worries under which Coquelin's mind had broken down could not help thinking that death had come as a happy relief to the unfortunate man.

Ernest Coquelin—"Cadet," as he was commonly called—was born in Boulogne-sur-Mer on May 16, 1848. After the elder brother had deserted the paternal roof, their father, the old baker, consoled himself with the thought that Cadet was still there and would soon blossom into a skilful baker. Things, however, turned out differently. Although much younger than aîné, the latter had made his little brother his confidant, and had told him all about his theatrical aspirations. The little fellow used to listen spellbound to aîné's recitations, which he rarely understood. But, gifted with a marvellous memory, he remembered them, and would repeat them aloud whilst carrying the bread to the customers. When the solemn moment arrived for the boy to be initiated into the mysteries of baking, he struck. "I want to be an actor, like my brother!" he cried; and the good-natured father allowed him to follow his inclinations. Admitted into the Conservatoire, in Regnier's class, he distinguished himself by carrying off the first prize in comedy. This was in 1867, and on Sept. 16 of the same year he made his début at the Odéon in L'Anglais ou le Fou Raisonnable. Curiously enough, almost the last new play wherein he created the chief rôle was L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle. In fact, nothing pleased Coquelin better than to appear in a work that had an English cachet. Like most people born in Boulogne, he spoke English well, and was always happy when he could visit London, where he had many friends.

Then came 1870, "l'année terrible," and Coquelin did his duty nobly. After a hard day's work, either in the ambulances or on the ramparts of the besieged city, he returned to the House and played there nearly every night. May it be said to the honour of the Comédie-Française that Sociétaires and pensionnaires of both sexes did wonders in those days. They never abandoned hope, their constant aim being to keep up the spirits of the Parisians. Coquelin used to tell a funny anecdote of how, when on Jan. 15, 1871, he impersonated Gros Réné in Le Dépit Amoureux and threw away the piece of cheese which Mariette had given him, several spectators in the boxes and stalls involuntarily held out their hands as if to catch it. For cheese was a luxury in the beleaguered city. From 1871 to 1875 Cadet appeared as Hrigani in Monsieur de Pourceaugnac, Pasquin in Le Jeu de l'Amour et du Hasard, Lepine in Le Legs, Crispin in Le Légataire Universel, Ergaste in l'Ecole des Maris, Annibal in l'Aventurière; and he created among other rôles Niçaise in Paul Férier's amusing comedy Tabarin. In 1875 Coquelin considered that M. Perrin, the director of the Comédie-Française, had not dealt fairly with him. There was an altercation between them, after which Coquelin left the House in a huff and went to the Variétés. After a year, however, his anger cooled down, and in 1876 he reappeared among his comrades, glad to welcome him back. In 1879 he became Sociétaire; the Cross of the Legion of Honour was bestowed upon him—he had reached the zenith of his career. Then came the crash. A sentimental love-affair gave him sleepless nights, and a few monetary losses—although not of a serious nature—completed the mischief. He turned melancholy, became absorbed in his own thoughts, and one night he had to be taken to a home, absolutely insane. Seized with a fit of trembling at the slightest noise, seeing an enemy in every stranger who approached him, he suffered from the "prosecution mania," which is almost incurable. During his stay in the home he very rarely referred to his former career, but he took a great interest in his moustache, which he allowed to grow. It was his pride, and he loved to admire himself in the glass, stroking and trimming the said moustache.

Although what is commonly called "clever," Cadet never was a great artist. He lacked the sense of proportion, and a constant striving after effect caused him to perform tricks unworthy of a good actor. Unlike aîné, who was always subtle and refined, Cadet overacted his rôles, and never could be made to understand that it is possible to be funny without being grotesque. But he was a gentleman at heart, kind-hearted to those in trouble, and he will be regretted by all.

THE SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL.

Under the direction of Mr. F. R. Benson, the annual series of dramatic performances at Stratford-on-Avon, commencing on Monday, April 19, 1909, will be given by Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their Shakespearean company. Fifteen plays of Shakespeare will be presented, including the histories: King John, Richard the Second, Henry the Fourth (Part 1), Henry the Fifth, Henry the Sixth (Part 2), Richard the Third, and a scene from Henry the Eighth. The programme will also include four Chester Mystery Plays, The Belle's Stratagem (by Hannah Cowley), Richelieu (by Lord Lytton), A Midnight Bridal (a play in one act adapted from the story of Halliwell Sutcliffe by Mrs. F. R. Benson and H. O. Nicholson), and The Passing of the Third Floor Back (by Jerome K. Jerome).

The following is the programme:—First week: Monday, April 19, Julius Cæsar; Tuesday, April 20, Much Ado About Nothing; Wednesday afternoon, April 21, Coriolanus; evening, A Midnight Bridal and The Belle's Stratagem; Thursday afternoon, April 22, Chester Mystery Plays; evening, Hamlet; Friday, April 23, Cymbeline; Saturday afternoon, April 24, Henry the Fifth; evening, Richard the Third. Second week: Monday afternoon, April 26, The Merchant of Venice; evening, A Midnight Bridal and The Belle's Stratagem; Tuesday, April 27, Richard the Second; Wednesday afternoon, April 28, The Passing of the Third Floor Back (preceded by Act II. scene 1 of Henry the Eighth); evening, King John; Thursday afternoon, April 29, Cymbeline; evening, Shakespearean costume ball in the Town Hall; Friday, April 30, The Merchant of Venice; Saturday afternoon, May 1, King John; evening, The Merry Wives of Windsor.

Third week: Monday afternoon, May 3, Henry the Fourth (Part I.); evening, Twelfth Night; Tuesday afternoon, May 4, Hamlet; evening, Henry the Sixth (Part II.); Wednesday, May 5, Cymbeline; Thursday afternoon, May 6, Much Ado About Nothing; evening, Richelieu; Friday, May 7, A Midnight Bridal and The Belle's Stratagem; Saturday afternoon, May 8, Cymbeline; evening, The Taming of the Shrew.

The following artists have kindly consented to take part in the festival:—Miss Genevieve Ward, who will appear as Volumnia and Queen Margaret; Mr. Matheson Lang, Hamlet; Miss Hutin Britton, Ophelia; Mr. Henry Ainley, Shylock; Miss Constance Collier, Portia; Mr. Forbes-Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott, with their company, will play The Passing of the Third Floor Back, and this play will be preceded by Act II., scene 1, of Henry the Eighth, in which Mr. Forbes-Robertson will give Buckingham's farewell speech; Mr. Lewis Waller will appear as Hotspur; Mr. Robert Loraine as Benedick; and Miss Ethel Irving as Beatrice.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPRESS.

Under the managing-directorship of Mr. W. J. Grimes and the management of Mr. Nelson Francis, the Empress Theatre of Varieties, Brixton, is enjoying an unparalleled patronage, and this in spite of the fact that there are three other places of entertainment within a short distance from its doors. This week the programme consists of eighteen items, all of an attractive nature. Miss Lenora Walker, daughter of Mr. Walker, of the well-known Walker and May duo, makes her first appearance on the music-hall stage, and a very successful first it is. The young coloured lady possesses a pleasing voice, and she renders in most expressive style a couple of songs of the coon order, "Feather your nest" and "Brandy Wine." She also dances in most attractive fashion. The Bogannys, the "lunatic bakers," are amazingly clever tumblers, and furnish an interesting act with the aid of a wrestling dog. Miss Billee Burford, the talented chorus comedienne, has an altogether delightful number in "I was proud of you and you were proud of me," the sentimental verses of which she gives in quite an enchanting style. Not less delightful is the musical turn of the Edwards Trio, who appear in a scena, Spirits of Past, in which those accomplished artists creditably acquit themselves with performances on the violin and banjo. Mr. Harry Hayton, attired in naval costume, prove diverting in some comedy verses on the subject of a coastguard; and Selbo is seen and admired in a wonderful club juggling and china-plate throwing demonstration. Mr. Phil Bransby, the eminent coster-comedian, has a comedy convict song and a bricklayer's song, which quite take the fancy of the audience, and win the artist roars of applause. Mr. Fritz Rieseler in his Continental novelty, "Looping the loop on a half-inch wire," provides something in the nature of a sensation in his bicycle circling act, which creates in the minds of the spectators a feeling of uneasiness as to his safety, but when he appears before the footlights in a perfectly sound condition after having executed an exceedingly daring feat, he is vociferously applauded.

Miss Marie Lloyd is the subject of a most warm reception, and this week she is giving her latest successes. Her songs, "Those tell-tale eyes" and "Live in hope if you die in despair" are interpreted with all that characteristic quaintness which has so much helped in bringing fame and fortune to the "one and only" Marie. Mr. L. B. Athol applies his cultured vocalism with good effect upon a sentimental number, "Don't tell your trouble to your pals"; and Mr. Charles Baldwin and company are shriekingly funny in their absurdity Merry Wives, in which two of the company impersonate female characters. Miss Maud Esmond, the Brixton pantomime favourite, sings in most winning and engaging fashion a couple of ditties, "Are there any more girls like Mary?" and "If there's a girl there, that's where I'd like to go." Walker and May, described as America's premier coloured singers and dancers, submit three capital coon numbers, "Dixey," "Lady of my own," and "Get your money's worth," and these and their dancing are highly appreciated. According to the programme, Mr. Walker is the only blind comedian in the world. The great Bosanquet appears in his novel and extraordinary musical act, and by the aid of his invention, the Bosanquephone, produces startling musical effects, including the singing violin. It is a wonderfully skilful entertainment. Reed and Stevens present their comedy duologue, Married or Photographed. This is mainly an amusing conversation between two young people, a man and a girl, the former of whom is expecting a lady who is being sent by a matrimonial agency, and the latter, who goes in mistake to the young gentleman's rooms, believing it to be a photographer's. The duologue is well carried out. Ruffell's pictures conclude an attractive bill of fare. Mr. Robert Allington ably directs the orchestra, and Mr. Gaston admirably fulfils the office of stage manager.

THE FORESTERS'.

A most interesting programme is submitted to the patrons of this cosy East End establishment, which has been very tastefully redecorated, the premier item being Mr. Geo. Marriott and company, including Miss Edith Finlay, in a romantic military sketch, Cigarette, adapted from Ouida's novel "Under Two Flags." Miss Finlay as Cigarette played perfectly throughout, her French song, rendered with an extremely musical voice, being greatly appreciated. The other characters were admirably depicted by a talented company, whose names were not on the programme.

Mr. Gus Harris, the dramatic Hebrew delineator, has a special scena, representing a statue of the late Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Harris portraying the character in a well-written song, "'Tis Primrose Day." The gentleman has a fine powerful voice, his reciting, too, being a feature. The Singing Jockeys, piloted by Mr. Will Netta, have had an admirable training, their business, combined with excellent singing, proving each youngster an artist. Their many songs are all well rendered, the harmonising being perfect. Mr. Will Mason, billed as a "Study in Black and White," sings tunefully a couple of songs, "Sweden" and "Colombo," concluding with a neat dance. Miss Maud Garland has a stirring number in "Someone is waiting for me," which is well sung. Mr. Nat Clifford, being unfortunately prevented through illness from appearing on the evening of our visit, the popular young manager, Mr. Stuart Macdonald, apologised to the audience in a few well-chosen words, which quite satisfied his hearers. Miss Bessie Neilson, with the aid of illustrated slides on the Biograph, gives a pretty ballad, "Shadowland," her second item, with a good chorus that is well taken up, being "Take me on the Flip-flap." Mr. Fred Wright, comedian, amuses with a number, "Slippery Jack," his final item relating to the "Girls." He excels in a flap-boot dance. Messrs. Betts and Betts, an interesting comedy couple, provide good fun, and Mr. Arthur Royce is a popular entertainer at the piano. Many interesting films are displayed by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

"HELP THE LITTLE ONES!"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—First let me thank you for your kindly appreciative notice in the last issue of The Era of my new song, and the rendition thereof by my girlie, Miss Hope Trevelyan, of Mr. St. John Denton's Sinbad company, last Wednesday, at the King's Theatre, Sunderland, on the occasion of the benefit matinée for the poor children of St. John's parish. Secondly, allow me to say that the song's correct title is not "His care for the little ones," as quoted by error, but that given above.—Yours faithfully,

CLAUDE TREVELYAN.

Concert-Direction Trevelyan,
Levette's Music Stores,
Broad-street Station, London, E.C.,
Feb. 3.

To Mr. Arthur Burton, the manager of the Palace, Cardiff, will be given on Wednesday, Feb. 24, a grand complimentary benefit. Mr. Burton has scarcely been two years with Mr. Macnaghten, but during that time he has earned and retained the greatest respect of Mr. Macnaghten, Mr. Baugh (the former gentleman's general-manager), artists, and public.

THE ROLLER-SKATING BOOM.

We are indebted to the Sheffield Evening Mail for the accompanying illustration of Mr. Harley Davidson and Mr. Oscar Naumann in the attitude of the roller-skate athlete on the famous Richardson skates. Mr. Davidson has accomplished what no other roller skater has ever done—the feat of beating on rollers the record time for similar distances on ice. On the River View rink, Chicago, in 1907, Mr. Davidson covered a mile in the phenomenal time of 2min. 37 3-5sec., the ice record being 2min. 41sec. For this he won an artistic silver trophy, the Harmon Cup, which is one of Mr. Davidson's most treasured possessions. The cup carried with it a prize of $3,000. Then there is a gold medal for the world's record time of 5min. 25 4-5sec. for two miles. This again is faster than the ice skating record, which is 7sec. longer.

Such wonderful achievements could not, of course, be accomplished on the ordinary rink, the River View track being an oval one, with banked corners. Even so, the times are sufficiently remarkable. Mr. Fred Nall, the courteous manager of the Drill Hall rink, who is acting as the champion's guide and friend in Sheffield, assures us that in these big contests the skaters assume the most extraordinary attitudes to help to increase their speed, and he promises an "eye-opener" when the experts get together in the London tournament.

Not only on "castors" has Mr. Davidson excelled, but he is also an accomplished ice skater, a boxer, a cyclist, and a runner, though he has, of course, principally devoted himself to skating, and is now a representative of the Richardson Ball-bearing Skate Company.

If (says the Sheffield journal) he can beat the pick of Sheffield's castor skaters, he will go to the great international tournament in London as the representative of the cutlery capital.

As the accredited roller skating speed champion of the world, he has come all the way from San Francisco to take part in the tournament.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

SPECIFICATION OPEN TO INSPECTION.

1,534.—Fournier. Swings.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

20,629.—Targets. Cole, H. L., of Dronfield, Derbyshire.

A rotary disc target-carrier (F) mounted on a pivot (E), secured to a bracket or clamp (A) fixed to a timber support (B), and is provided with lugs (H) for supporting the targets (L), and with bolts having wing-nuts (G) for clamping the targets. The target is maintained in an upright position when in use by a spring sliding bolt (C3), or a weighted pivoted catch, engaging with either of the two slots (I, J) in the disc. The bolt or catch is withdrawn by a cord (K), &c. The bottom of the target-frame is slotted to slide over the bolt between the wing-nut and disc.

20,657.—Amusements for fairs, &c. Morgan, L., Singer, B., and Draper, H., all of London.

Tobogganing; railways for recreation.—A sledge is mounted to slide and to oscillate sideways upon a mono-rail inclined track, which is first concave, then convex, and so on. There are special means for returning the sleighs to the starting-place. A track (X, Fig. 1) follows the inclines shown by the lines (1-6) in due order. The sledges (Figs. 8 and 9) have vertical or reclining seats (*c*3, *c*4, and may have foot-rests (*c*5) and straps. A guide-rail (B, Fig. 12) of T-cross section carries the sledges, and guides (*b*1) on each side prevent undue oscillation. In addition, rollers (R) mounted in box-like constructions (8) bear when necessary on the underside of the mono-rail. The constructions (8) may be replaced by parallel blocks bearing spindles for rollers. The sledges are returned by an endless chain (D, Fig. 2) mounted flush between slides (d), and provided with carriers (*n*3, Fig. 5). If desired, a vertical chain (Fig. 5), with carriers (*n*5) for the sleighs is used. When the sleighs arrive at the top of the staging, they are tilted off the carriers by arms (*f*1, Fig. 7), and are delivered to a kind of turntable gear (G, Fig. 2) which passes them to one or other of the tracks. The turntable consists of a carrier mounted on rails (*w*1) and attached to an arm (G) pivoted at *g*1.

20,667.—Tobogganing. Mangels, W. F., and Brewster, C. N., both of New York, U.S.A.

A circular car (G) is conveyed up an inclined track (B) by means of a continuously-moving endless chain (I) worked from a motor (J6). Lugs attached to the chain engage with recesses formed on the under-sides of the cars. When the car reaches the top of the track (B) it disengages from the chain-lug, and passes along the inclined path (C) to the circuitous track (D), down which it travels by its own weight. The car runs on castors, and is provided with an external ring of iron, backed with resilient material, in order to prevent the occupants from receiving severe shocks as the car bumps against the side walls of the track (D). In order to prevent the car from running back if the chain breaks, spring-actuated retaining arms (N) are pivoted to the side walls of the track (B).

NON-FLAMMABLE STAGE DRAPERY.

Everyone is aware of the terrible risk run from fire by wearers of flimsy stage drapery, and of the risks, too, which have to be run in every theatre or other building where textile fabrics are near a light or are liable to be touched by the irresponsibly-dropped match. Yet the flannelette trade is so large and the fabric which it makes is so cheap and tasteful that for the Government to prohibit its use would be to invite disaster—certainly for the trade, and probably for the Government. Under these circumstances quite unusual interest has been aroused by the invention of Mr. S. Levene, of Townley Castle, Ramsgate, who has produced a fluid which renders all these cotton and jute fabrics absolutely non-flammable at a cost which adds nothing appreciable to their price, and involves no more trouble than its mixing with the water on washing day. Mr. Levene recently demonstrated the power of his invention to a representative of a contemporary, in whose presence one naturally inflammable fabric after another was held in the flame of a candle and obstinately refused to burn, or even to smoulder. Mr. Levene has, he claims, hit upon something which is chemically and industrially a revolution, and the pending introduction of the product to the public on a large scale and under powerful auspices will be watched with great interest.

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS. — The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

CAN YOU INVENT?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd-George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents', and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

FINANCIAL.

MOSS' EMPIRES.

For 1908 the profit, inclusive of £13,811 brought forward, is £107,348. After deducting preference dividend for 1908, which amounted to £22,655, and interim dividend on the ordinary shares for the half-year to June 30 last, the sum of £62,378 remains to be dealt with. The directors recommend: (1) That the total amount of the expenses in connection with the recent issue of debentures, amounting to £16,264, be written off; (2) that £6,825 be placed to a reserve fund for the redemption of the six per cent. debentures in accordance with the trust deed; and (3) that a dividend be paid on the ordinary shares for the second half-year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, free of income-tax, which will leave £11,288 to be carried forward. The decrease in profit is, in the opinion of the directors, to be accounted for in part by the state of trade and in part by the exceptionally fine summer. The greater part of the decrease took place during the summer months. As the new debentures are repayable by annual drawings over a period of fourteen years the company will at the end of that time be relieved of this debt. The company acquired the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, during the year, and also acquired an interest in the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, London.

PLANS have been passed by the Harrogate Corporation for the erection of a large roller skating rink to be erected on the Dragon estate. Two of the directors are well-known local gentlemen. The prospectus of the company was issued on the 6th inst. Another rink is to be erected on the Otley-road, in Harrogate, by the North of England Roller Skating Rink Co. It is hoped to have this rink open by Easter.

WHERE HONOUR IS DUE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I note in your last issue a letter with the above heading, referring to the singing rights of the song "Afraid to come home in the dark." I am prepared to give a ten pound note to a theatrical charity if Miss Hetty King can prove that Miss Scott did not sing the song before her in England. Miss Scott was requested by Mr. Remick himself (the publisher of the rong) to sing it in England. Miss Scott is doing so, and most successfully.—Yours faithfully,

ALFRED WOOD,
Manager for Miss Maidie Scott.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In my postscript to my little paragraph I wrote "The marvellous Steene no longer exist." I made a serious mistake. I should have said: "For the past six years we have been known as Mahatma and Prof. Steen."—Yours truly, MAHATMA.

MR. S. GARRATT had a grand farewell night at the Pavilion, Ilkley, on Saturday night last, on the termination of his lease, and the building was crowded with an enthusiastic and representative audience. Mr. Garratt, in a telling speech, thanked his audience for their kindness during his five years amongst them, and hoped they would support his successor, Mr. Frank Barron, in the same manner.

LUCENTIO.—G. V. Brooke's last appearance on the stage was on Saturday, Dec. 23, 1865, at the old Theatre Royal, Belfast. Among the company supporting him during his farewell engagement there was Mr. Edward Terry, who played Bob Acres in a performance of The Rivals.

A. P.—We have had no advance news at present concerning any revival of Everyman this year. Possibly Mr. W. Poel (address care of THE ERA) might be able to tell you. It was played on a draped stage, both at St. George's Hall and at the Garrick Theatre (April 9, 1906). The costumes are of the early sixteenth century (1530). The book of the play was published in 1903 by A. H. Bullen, 47, Great Russell-street, London, W.C. Miss Wynne Matthison played the title-rôle, both in England and America, with very great success. The performances of the play at which we have been present were of a semi-religious character, and were given in a darkened house. No programmes were issued, and applause was rigorously tabooed.

M. BLAND.—The special interview with Mr. Bert Dent was published in our issue of April 16, 1904. This copy is now out of print.

H. A. GARVEY (Waterloo).—Humpty Dumpty, pantomime, by J. Hickory Wood and Arthur Collins, was produced at Drury Lane on Dec. 26, 1903. Dan Leno played Queen Spritely, Herbert Campbell was the King Sollum, and Harry Randall Little Mary. Both Campbell and Leno died the following year, 1904. See notice above.

F. CHANDLER.—The hall was demolished in 1891 for the Rosebery-avenue improvement. The exact date is not certain. Captain H. E. Davis, proprietor of the Gaiety Theatre of Varieties, Chatham, could tell you.

RUBY ROSINI.—We do not publish a cheap pamphlet on the subject; but you will find all the information you require in Strong's "Dramatic and Musical Law," published at this office. The Lord Chamberlain's fee varies according to length of piece. The first thing the author of a dramatic piece should do is to have it registered at Stationers' Hall by filling up a form given there, and paying a fee of 5s.

H. J. DACRE.—Miss Elise Craven's teacher is Miss Elise Clerc, now the "maitresse de ballet" at the Alhambra, where a letter will find her.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth, a Marriage, or a Death, or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

MARRIAGE.

DEATHS.

CADWALADR.—Feb. 7, from cancer, Llewelyn Cadwaladr, operatic singer, aged 49.

CASEY.—Feb. 10, at 36, King-street, Barnsley, Annie Casey, the dearly beloved mother of Will and Annie Casey. Deeply lamented by her sorrowing son and daughter.

CRAGG.—On Feb. 10, 1909, at 68, Kennington-road, London, Amanda Cragg, the beloved wife of J. W. Cragg, of The Cragg Family. Deeply lamented by her sorrowing husband and family. "Oh, Lord, Thy will be done."

EDWARDO.—At Hebburn, Jan. 30, 1909, Dorothy Garner, daughter of Otto Ethardo and Dolly Pardoe, age 17 months.

FULLER.—On Feb. 10, 1909, at Manchester, John Fuller, sen. Deeply lamented by his sorrowful son, ALF. ROZELL (Santol).

HARWOOD.—Jan. 27, from heart disease, George Julian Harwood, musical director.

MOLLOY.—Feb. 8, James Lyman Molloy, musical composer and barrister-at-law, aged 71.

MORGAN.—Feb. 9, at South Shields, after six months' illness, Violet Morgan (Mrs. Jack Ford), mimic.

ROSEBURY.—Jan. 18, at Airdrie, W. T. Rushbury, theatrical manager.

IN MEMORIAM.

BYRNE.—In affectionate remembrance of Florence Kate, dearly beloved wife of William Byrne (Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra), who passed away Feb. 13, 1907. Sadly missed.

NELSON.—In loving memory of Harold Broughton Nelson, beloved brother of Harry Adair Nelson, who died Feb. 15, 1901.

WEST.—In ever-loving memory of Florrie West, who left us Feb. 8, 1908. Sadly missed by your brother and sister, PETER and LILLIE CONROY. We shall meet again.

FOR SYMPATHY.

SCOTT.—On behalf of my mother and self, I thank the Eccentric Club, Our Club, The Alhambra, Palace (Plymouth), Mr. T. Scott (N.S.C.), Mr. Sheridan (Tavistock), Laurence Irving, Esq., and friends too numerous to mention for wreaths and kind letters during our great sorrow.—HARRY SCOTT.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your last week's issue it is stated that the incidental music, &c., of King and Benson's new act was arranged by Mr. T. H. Taarbon. Every note of the orchestration of "Round the town," "Popular girls," &c., was done solely by yours faithfully, J. H. CLEVE, 2, Kingscote-road, Bedford Park, W., Feb. 11.

MR. JACK CRAWLEY was presented with a lovely set of pipes last week at the Empire, Dublin, by Messrs. Peterson, of Dublin. He has christened the big one (which they specially made and gave him, and which he uses in his pretty act Lights Out) Big Ben.

PIRATED MUSIC.

Hugh Harvey, 22, a costermonger, was charged before Mr. Hopkins at Lambeth with offering pirated music for sale at Camberwell Green.

On Saturday night Police-constable Allen, 418P, found the prisoner vending pirated copies of music and arrested him. He replied, "All right. I bought it for a shilling. There are others up the road." He had eleven copies in his possession.

Mr. Herbert Cooper, an agent of the Music Publishers' Association, mentioned that there was a great revival in the traffic in pirated music, and in spite of the efforts of the police, it seemed to be going on all over the country. On Friday there was a seizure of 40,000 copies.

The prisoner said that he bought the music from a man, and did not know it was pirated. He usually sold flowers, but they were too dear on Saturday.

Mr. Hopkins: I know perfectly well that you men go into this business with your eyes wide open. The fine is always £5.

MR. T. EDWARD OWEN, late of Messrs. Broadheads' Pavilion, Ashton-under-Lyne, has been appointed manager at the Bury Hippodrome, and commenced his new duties on Monday last.

IN connection with the renewal of licences at the recent annual meeting of the Kensington Division Licensing Justices, a detective-inspector of police said he had been instructed to bring to the notice of the justices the fact that a Kensington licensee had published an alleged fraudulent advertisement announcing that a young woman dancing in the lion's den at Earl's Court last autumn was his barmaid, and she appeared behind the bar at his house to give colour to the announcement and attract customers. The application for the renewal of the licence was adjourned for a fortnight.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1909.

PLAGIARISMS AND PLAYS.

The history of the drama is full of real and alleged instances of plagiarism. "Conveyances" from foreign novelists and dramatists have long been considered venial offences; but there have been at intervals complaints on the part of authors who have sent in manuscripts to managers, and have, as they think, discovered that their ideas have been used in other plays. This was the case even with the great RICHARD BRINSLEY SHERIDAN; for GALT, in his "Lives of the Players," gives, on the somewhat vague authority of "an aged friend," the following particulars respecting the origin of The School for Scandal: "Mr. SHERIDAN was in habits of particular intimacy with the RICHARDSON family. Miss RICHARDSON, a very accomplished young lady, wrote a play, which Mr. SHERIDAN undertook to bring out forthwith at Drury Lane Theatre. A season passed, but, to the great disappointment of the young lady, the play was not produced. When she protested, as she often did, against this delay, he adroitly shifted the subject, strenuously urging her to cultivate a talent in which she excelled, that of painting. Another season drew towards its close, when out came The School for Scandal. But a small progress had been made in the representation, when Miss R. fainted, and was taken from the pit of the theatre; so strong was the impression on her mind that her own piece had been pillaged, and the materials worked up for the performance in question. She did not long survive this mortification."

Many cases of alleged plagiarism are so mysterious that it is impossible to come to any satisfactory conclusion regarding them. Mr. A. W. PINERO has been a great sufferer in this way. All will remember the paper war which was waged about the resemblance between his piece The Squire to Mr. HARDY'S famous novel "Far From the Madding Crowd," and the late Mr. CLEMENT SCOTT'S statements that The Second Mrs. Tanqueray owed its origin to a German piece. The latest claimant to a grievance of this kind is Mr. NORMAN WRIGHTON, who has appealed to the daily Press in a letter in which he says:

I beg to point out to you that my drama, Britain's Awakening, a forecast, dealing entirely with the modern invasion of England by one or more foreign Powers, having been duly passed by the Lord Chamberlain, and registered as a stage play, was produced by me at the Royal West London Theatre on February 8th, 1908. A report of this production you will see in The Era of Feb. 15, 1908. My play opened in a Coastguard Cottage upon the sea coast, and the enemy landed in the fog and darkness precisely as is described in An Englishman's Home. My principal character was also a Lieutenant. Shortly after production I sent this play to Mr. Curzon and received a reply that it was unsuitable to him, or words to that effect. My play was received with great enthusiasm by an audience of 1,500 people, especially in the scene where we got to the burning of gunpowder.

It is pleasant to see the value and utility of our paper once more acknowledged; and it is only fair both to Mr. WRIGHTON and Mr. CURZON to print, side by side, our accounts of the two plays.

BRITAIN'S AWAKENING.	AN ENGLISHMAN'S HOME.
The action takes place inside Scuttler Lee's cottage, on the sea coast, late in the evening. Lee is apparently frequently employed in the wrecking of vessels, and other nefarious business, in which he is assisted by an even baser scoundrel than himself, Orressa Nicolini, also an Anarchist and spy. Staying at the cottage is Lieut. Dillon Roberts, of the 10th Hussars, who has evidently been severely wounded—exactly how, for various reasons, we were not able to gather—and we quickly learn that he is in love with Maysell Lee, the adopted daughter of the smuggler. Nicolini, who sees how the land lies, and who has designs on the girl himself, puts the old man on his guard against Roberts and Maysell, telling him that a love-sick maiden is not to be trusted, but Lee replies that the girl has never betrayed him yet. Lee, however, takes the precaution to warn her that if she discloses any of his secrets there will be a terrible reckoning. The precious pair have even more villainous business than wrecking and smuggling on hand, and are aiding the invasion of a foreign power. When they have departed, Maysell discloses all she knows to young Roberts; but Lee and Nicolini, who have been watching, and overheard all that has been said, return, and the safety of the young couple is threatened. The lieutenant, however, speedily knifes the old smuggler, and Maysell shoots the Anarchist, and the scoundrels having received their quietus, Roberts, in a speech which might be shortened, seeing the seriousness of the situation, announces his intention of warning the authorities and saving England.	The scene is the small house in Essex of a certain Mr. Brown, a bumptious Briton with a craze for diabolo. His young friend, Geoffrey Smith, is a typical, self-indulgent, slangy, "cheeky" young clerk, an enthusiastic spectator of football matches. Geoffrey's taste is shared by his sisters, Maggie and Amy; and Paul Robinson, a volunteer who is in love with the former, is in a minority of one in the little circle, being laughed at both by the lads and the lasses. A thick fog and a strike have cut off all communications and Myrtle Villa is practically isolated. The first intimation of the landing of the troops of the "Empress of the North," who have landed on the Eastern Coast, is the entry of Prince Yoland and his lieutenant, Rian Hobart, who put Mr. Brown and Reggie under arrest, and billet themselves on the premises. The defence of the villa is hurriedly organised by a company of the 6th Volunteer Battalion Blinkshire Regiment, commanded by Captain Finch, a fussy and overbearing officer, very irritable and ignorant of the art of war. Mr. Brown's house is shelled by the enemy from a distance, a bit of shrapnel striking the blatant Reggie, who falls dead at the end of the second act. The villa becoming untenable, the volunteers are ordered to retire; but Mr. Brown refuses to leave, and after some blundering attempts manages to load a rifle and kill a couple of the enemy's infantry, which is advancing to occupy the position. Prince Yoland, on arriving, treats Mr. Brown as a franc-tireur and send him out to be shot. The arrival of the English regulars, who have been hurried up from London on motor 'buses, saves the situation, and on this comforting conclusion the curtain falls.

A comparison of the two scenarios shows at once the innocence of Mr. FRANK CURZON and the weakness of Mr. WRIGHTON'S claim. Briton's Awakening is essentially a condensed melodrama, the invasion of a foreign power being merely incidental. The whole strength and point of the play is to interest us in the adventures of the characters. The pivot of the piece is the love affair between the lieutenant of Hussars and the smuggler's daughter, and the fact that Dillon announces his intention of "warning the authorities" is obviously subordinate. Major DU MAURIER'S drama, on the other hand, is essentially a satire. The personages are used merely as instruments of the author in his attack on our unpreparedness for national defence. The characters are typical and almost symbolical; and what we gain in topical flavour we lose in personal interest. It is impossible for anyone acquainted with the art of playwriting to imagine Britain's Awakening suggesting An Englishman's Home. The only wonder was that the writing of such a play as Major DU MAURIER'S should have been so long postponed; and many ambitious playwrights must be reproaching themselves for not having thought of the "notion," which has been used in fiction again and again. The celebrated "Battle of Dorking" pamphlet drew attention to the confusion and want of organisation which would make an invasion of the South Coast feasible; and quite recently a serial story in a morning paper described a similar attack on the East Coast.

In judging of the possibilities of plagiarism, we must not be misled by mere resemblances of detail, which are often accidental, but must attach importance only to essential elements. Even then the onus of proof rests on the accuser. It is quite possible for two plays almost identically the same to be written by authors entirely unconnected. There are a number of ideas floating in the air, and there are some "notions" which inevitably work out in the same way. The invention of wireless telegraphy suggests, indeed, that, in addition to the "unconscious cerebration" which was so often mentioned at the time of dispute about The Squire, there exists a sort of mental telepathy between minds ardently fixed on the same object. The average judge and jury are scarcely the best judges of so technical a question as the plagiarism of a play; and it would be better if these cases were submitted to the arbitration of a committee of experts in the profession, whose ruling would be much more satisfactory.

M. CATULLE MENDES, whose body was found on Sunday morning on the railway line near the mouth of the tunnel which opens at the station of Saint Germain, Paris, was a dramatic author as well as a poet and novelist. Among his plays were Médée, Scarron, and La Vierge D'Avila, produced by Mme. Bernhardt at her theatre in 1906. The Théâtre Réjane is at present rehearsing his Impératrice, founded on the story of Madame Walewska and Napoleon at Elba. As a librettist he collaborated with Massenet and other composers.

AT the Manchester City Police Court on Thursday, the summonses taken out by Mr. A. E. Wachter, of the recently formed Theatre Reform League, charging Mr. Fred Hart, lessee of the Prince's Theatre, with causing a public nuisance by allowing queues to be formed on the footwalk were heard. The Stipendiary dismissed the case. He held that the mere fact of people occupying the footpath did not prove a public nuisance. It was open, however, to the complainant to present a bill to the grand jury at the City Sessions.

COMMENTS ON THE CHILDREN ACT, 1908.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (LONDON).

We call our readers' attention to the above Act of Parliament, which comes into operation on April 1, 1909. The sections applying to licensed properly are the following:—

By Section 120. (1) The holder of the licence of any licensed premises shall not allow a child to be at any time in the bar of the licensed premises except during the hours of closing.

(2) If the holder of a licence acts in contravention of this section, or if any person causes or procures, or attempts to cause or procure, any child to go to or to be in the bar of any licensed premises except during the hours of closing, he shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding, in respect of the first offence, forty shillings, and in respect of any subsequent offence, five pounds.

(3) If a child is found in the bar of any licensed premises, except during the hours of closing, the holder of the licence shall be deemed to have committed an offence under this section, unless he shows that he has used due diligence to prevent the child being admitted to the bar or that the child was apparently a person over the age of fourteen.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply in the case of any child of the licence-holder or in the case of a child who is resident but not employed in the licensed premises, or who is in the bar of licensed premises solely for the purpose of passing through in order to obtain access to, or egress from, some other part of the premises, not being a bar, where there is no other convenient means of access to, or egress from, that part of the premises, or in the case of railway refreshment rooms or other premises constructed, fitted, and intended to be used in good faith for any purpose to which the holding of a licence is merely auxiliary.

(5) In this section the bar of licensed premises means any open drinking bar or any part of the premises exclusively or mainly used for the sale and consumption of intoxicating liquor, and the expressions "licence" and "licensed premises" have the same meaning as in the Licensing Acts, 1828 to 1906.

By Section 121. (1) Where an entertainment for children or any entertainment at which the majority of the persons attending are children is provided, and the number of children who attend the entertainment exceeds one hundred, and access to any part of the building in which children are accommodated is by stairs, it shall be the duty of the person who provides the entertainment to station and keep stationed wherever necessary a sufficient number of adult attendants, properly instructed as to their duties, to prevent more children or other persons being admitted to any such part of the building than that part can properly accommodate, and to control the movement of the children and other persons admitted to any such part whilst entering and leaving, and to take all other reasonable precautions for the safety of the children.

(2) Where the occupier of a building permits, for hire or reward, the building to be used for the purpose of an entertainment, he shall take all reasonable steps to secure the observance of the provisions of this section.

(3) If any person on whom any obligation is imposed by this section fails to fulfil that obligation he shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding, in the case of a first offence, fifty pounds, and in the case of a second or subsequent offence, one hundred pounds; and also, if the building in which the entertainment is given is licensed under any of the enactments relating to the licensing of theatres and of houses and other places for music or dancing, the licence shall be liable to be revoked by the authority by which the licence was granted.

(4) A constable may enter any building in which he has reason to believe that such an entertainment as aforesaid is being, or is about to be, provided with a view to seeing whether the provisions of this section are carried into effect.

(5) It shall be the duty of the Council of the county or county borough in which a building in which any contravention of the provisions of this section is alleged to have taken place to institute proceedings under this section if the building is a building licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, or is licensed by the Council of the county or county borough under the enactments relating to the licensing of theatres or of houses and other places for music or dancing, and in any other case it shall be the duty of the police authority to institute such proceedings.

(6) This section shall not apply to any entertainment given in a private dwelling-house.

The expression "child" means a person under the age of fourteen years.

AFTER the performance on Saturday night at the King's Theatre, Glasgow, the property staff and a few friends presented Mr. John Buick, property-master, with a gold albert and badge as a token of their esteem.

MR. AND MRS. W. HENRY HARGREAVES recently received an offer from Mr. Maurice E. Bandman to return to the East, which, however, they were unable to accept owing to the contract which Mr. Hargreaves holds with that enterprising manager Mr. Wentworth Croke.

A MEETING, with the object of instituting a fund to aid those who have suffered through the bog-slide in the West of Ireland, was held at the Hotel Cecil on the 5th inst., and presided over by Mr. T. P. O'Connor. A London committee was formed, the names of Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., Mr. John O'Connor, M.P., Mr. J. M. Glover, and Father Bernard Vaughan were submitted, and other well-known sympathisers have been asked to co-operate. The hon. secretary is Miss Patricia Hoey, 14, Weymouth-street, Portland-place.

MR. JUSTICE SUTTON and a common jury commenced on Tuesday the hearing, in the King's Bench Division, of an action brought by Mr. John Ferguson Robertson to recover damages from Mr. Frederick William Eustace Gruggen, a solicitor, for alleged fraud by misrepresentations, the plaintiff alleging that he was induced by the defendant to enter into an agreement with Mr. John Wellesley Lynn in regard to the production of an illusive sketch, entitled Tharsei; or, the Doctor's Experiment, and that he had lost considerable sums of money. The defendant denied misrepresentation, and pleaded that if he did induce the plaintiff to enter into the agreement he did so bond-fide, believing that the statements he made were true. The case had not been concluded when we went to press.

THE Stage Society will produce two new plays at the Kingsway Theatre on the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd inst. The first is The Rights of the Soul, a piece in one act, by Giuseppe Giacosa, translated by Miss F. M. Rankin, and produced by William Haviland. In this will appear Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Miss Margaret Bussé, Mr. A. S. Homewood, and Miss Margaret Halstan. The second is entitled The Bread of Others, a translation by J. Nightingale Duddington of a play in two acts by Turgénev. The cast will include Mr. Leon M. Lion, Mr. A. S. Homewood, Mr. F. Grove, Mr. Henry Kitts, Miss Jean Bloomfield, Mr. J. Fisher White, Mr. Ernest Cosham, Mr. Frederick Kings, Miss Helen Boucher, Miss Evelyn Hall, Mr. A. Holmes-Gore, Mr. Leon Quartermaine, and Mr. Stanley Lathbury.

ACTORS AND DICKENS.

Sir John Hare presided at the meeting of the Dickens Fellowship at Essex Hall, Essex-street, W.C., on the ninety-seventh anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens. Sir John was supported by Sir William Treloar, Mrs. H. F. Dickens, and the Misses Olive and Elaine Dickens.

Sir John Hare, who read a telegram, also a letter of regret, from Mr. Whitelaw Reid, American Ambassador, said the object of the society was:

"(1) To knit together in a common bond of friendship lovers of that great master of humour and pathos.

"(2) To spread the love of humanity, which is the keynote of all his work.

"(3) To take such measures as may be expedient to ameliorate existing social evils, and to help the cause of the poor and the oppressed.

"(4) To assist in the preservation and purchase of buildings associated with his name and mentioned in his works."

Could any object, said Sir John, be more worthy, any tribute more noble? He heard the previous night at the Boz Club dinner a eulogy on the modesty of the great writer. He was modest, but his breast would have swelled with honest pride if he could have foreseen that the great purpose of his life and work would have been fulfilled, and that thousands of the poor, the needy, and the oppressed should live to bless his name. They had often heard it said of princes, statesmen, soldiers, who in their life had enjoyed the applause of the people and a dazzling popularity, how dead they were! Great and useful as their work had been, they were soon forgotten, and others rose to fill their places. But the memory of Charles Dickens would never be forgotten. No man would ever fill his vacant throne. And here they were in the sixth year of the establishment of this fellowship, with their enthusiasm unabated, and their numbers increasing. Indeed, year by year the seed sown by this great writer and benefactor must increase and multiply, and the immortal name and memory of Charles Dickens would be for ever held in the hearts of his countrymen in honour and deep affection.

Mr. George Alexander presided at the annual dinner of the Boz Club at Prince's Restaurant on Sunday. Among those present were Lord Lilford, Lord Massereene and Ferrard, Mr. H. F. Dickens, K.C., Sir Anderson and Lady Critchett, Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir Luke Fildes, Sir Charles and Lady Mathews, Sir John and Lady Hare, Sir George Frampton, Sir Walter Lawrence, Sir Malcolm and Lady Morris, Sir Bruce and Lady Seton, Sir E. A. Waterlow, Sir Richard R. Holmes, Sir H. and Lady Bushman, Sir W. and Lady Allchin, Mrs. J. M. Barrie, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, Mr. J. Martin Harvey, Mr. W. W. Jacobs, Mr. Walter Jerrold, Mr. John Lane, Mr. J. MacWhirter, Mr. E. T. Reed, Mr. Pett Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. Briton Riviere, and Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Stone.

The Chairman proposed the toast of "The Immortal Memory of Charles Dickens." He said that every actor must be very grateful to Charles Dickens for what he did for the stage and the drama. Some of his detractors were wont to say that his books and characters were "stagy." God bless him for that, because, in his sympathy for the stage, he had done a great deal to pave the way for the better position of the actor and the dramatist. Dickens was the actor's novelist par excellence. There was scarcely an actor of eminence, with perhaps the exception of Sir John Hare and Sir Squire Bancroft, who had not been associated with the great characters of Dickens. Emery, the Keeleys, Toole, Irving, John Clayton, and of our own day Martin Harvey and Beerbohm Tree, had all made great successes in the impersonation of Dickens's characters. Dickens himself was a great friend of the actor. He dedicated "Nicholas Nickleby" to Macready and was in the habit of borrowing his dress waistcoats. His books were the actor's delight, though the adapter found it most difficult to give a satisfactory account of the author. When Oliver Twist was first produced at the Surrey Theatre Dickens at the beginning of the first act sat on the floor of the box and remained there until the curtain fell. Dickens was always happy in the company of actors, both in his own life and in his work.

The toast was drunk in silence.

Mr. Percy Fitzgerald gave some interesting reminiscences of the novelist.

Mr. H. F. Dickens endorsed Mr. Alexander's verdict that his father was the actor's friend. He was imbued from top to toe with the instinct of an actor, and very nearly became one. That he was an actor no one could doubt who had heard him recite. They were not there to bolster up Dickens's reputation, but to show the sympathy existing between him and his readers.

The Prince and the Monkey.

"ON Tuesday," says the Daily Chronicle, "you will have read about the success of Mr. H. B. Irving's Hamlet, and also about the almost human chimpanzee at the Hippodrome. Well, on Aug. 24, 1661, Mr. Pepys went to 'the opera, and there saw Hamlet, Prince of Denmark, done with scenes very well, but above all, Betterton did the Prince's part beyond imagination.' And earlier in the day Pepys had been 'to see the strange creature that Captain Holmes hath brought with him from Guinea.' This was a great baboon, so human in intelligence that Pepys did 'believe that it already understands much English, and I am of the mind that it might be taught to speak or make signs.'"

A Dramatist's Diet.

GABRIEL D'ANNUNZIO, the Italian dramatist, has completed a tragedy, Phedre, in seventeen days, and is now engaged on a drama, which he hopes to finish in a fortnight. He does all his work at night, and never rises before 5 p.m. At seven he has a substantial meal which does duty for breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and at eight o'clock he starts work and goes on till nine next morning, when he has two boiled eggs and retires to rest. Whether they are hard-boiled is not stated.

A Princess Critic.

"THEATRES," says Cassell's Saturday Journal, "have a great attraction for the Princess of Wales, and she was once referred to by the King as 'our musical and dramatic critic.' When she is in London, and her other engagements permit, she almost invariably attends a theatre in the evening, either with only a Lady-in-Waiting with her or with one or more of the younger members of the Royal Family, such as Prince Arthur of Connaught or her brother and sister-in-law, Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck. She is an inveterate 'first-nighter,' and theatrical managers in London, when they have a production of more than ordinary importance, have become accustomed to make inquiries at Marlborough House to see whether Her Royal Highness proposes to occupy the Royal box or not. It is largely upon her report that other members of the Royal Family decide whether to visit a certain play or not; and particularly is this the case with the King and Queen.

A PENALTY, with costs, amounting to £5 9s. was imposed at Bow-street on Monday on the management of the Duke of York's Theatre for contravening the Employment of Children Act, 1903. It was stated that on two occasions the children did not leave the theatre until some 50 minutes after the time permitted by the licence. Mr. H. H. Curtis Bennett said the case was the result of a misunderstanding. The children had not been employed after ten o'clock since the matter was brought to the knowledge of the authorities.

"STRANGERS WITHIN THE GATES."

Play, in Three Acts, by H. C. M. Hardinge. Produced for the first time at the Court Theatre on Sunday, Feb. 7.

Aylmer Forsyth .....MR. MALCOLM CHERRY
Kate Dallison ....MISS AMY BRANDON THOMAS
Hon. Margaret Dallison ..MISS MAUDE MILLETT
Hon. and Rev. Ralph Dallison..MR. FRED LEWIS
Sir Desmond Antrobus, K.C.M.G. MR. A. E. ANSON
Horace Fell, M.D. .....MR. O. P. HEGGIE
Mrs. Pritchard .....MISS BLANCHE STANLEY
Mrs. Forsyth .....MISS GRANVILLE
Footman .....MR. DOUGLAS HOMER

The mission of the Dramatic Productions Club is being carried on courageously at the Court, where, on Sunday, their third venture was tried in private and repeated publicly the following afternoon. Strangers Within the Gates well justified its production; but its appeal to playgoers at large would, we think, be more effectively made within the limits of one act. The author has shown a considerable facility for invention in the plot, but he seems to have seized upon every opportunity for running off the line and to space out the piece into three acts with dialogue that rarely rises above the commonplace, and tends to weaken rather than strengthen the action. The story begins with the love-making of Aylmer Forsyth and Kate Dallison, the daughter of the Hon. and Rev. Ralph Dallison. Aylmer is the protégé of Sir Desmond Antrobus, a Parliamentary leader, who also cherishes an affection for the Hon. Margaret Dallison, the clergyman's sister; but he cannot offer her marriage, as he already has a wife from whom he has lived apart some twenty-three years, having in his possession ample evidence of her infidelity to obtain a divorce. Aylmer's only relation appears to be his mother, whom he idolises, and it is during his stay at the rectory that she takes the opportunity of paying him a visit. Sir Antrobus is the first to meet her on arrival, and recognises in her the wife from whom he had been so long parted. Mrs. Forsyth, as she calls herself, begs to be allowed to see her son and go, but her husband will not permit it, and insists on letting the son into the knowledge of his mother's shame. The boy, who had been made to understand that his father was dead, and that he had treated his mother with cruelty, will not believe him, and loads him with abuse. He determines to give up his career and go abroad with his mother; but that lady, fearing that sooner or later her son will learn the truth, sends him a letter in which she admits her guilt, and takes advantage of a dilapidated bridge which spans a neighbouring stream to end her life.

Again the representation was in the hands of prominent artists. Of the opportunities afforded, Mr. Malcolm Cherry had perhaps the greatest, and his portrayal of Aylmer Forsyth was artistic in every way. The enthusiasm and buoyancy of youth were affected in delightful fashion, and the bitter scenes towards the close were expressed with unerring skill. Mr. A. E. Anson gave an intellectual study of Sir Desmond Antrobus, grappling cleverly with the difficulties of an exacting character; and Miss Granville utilised her dramatic ability effectively as Mrs. Forsyth, the erring wife, who clings tenaciously to the son's love of which she is threatened to be deprived. The grace and refinement of Miss Maude Millett were employed with the most agreeable results in her representation of the Hon. Margaret Dallison, who for so many years has kept her affection for Sir Antrobus concealed; and Miss Amy Brandon Thomas as Kate Dallison acted with freshness and charm, carrying through her love scene with admirable delicacy. It is usually expected of Mr. Fred Lewis that he shall be funny, and he quite fulfilled requirements as the Hon. and Rev. Ralph Dallison. He was the jolly and contented country parson to the life, and aroused merriment with every remark. The play, the scenes of which are laid in a country village, was mounted to perfection. An audience much larger than at the previous matinées gave the piece a hearty reception, curtain calls being numerous.

MR. COMPTON AT HULL.

At the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Hull, on Monday, in a performance of Davy Garrick, Mr. Edward Compton and his company celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of the company. Mr. Compton, with the success which always attends his efforts, played the part of the actor, Miss Kathleen Leigh was a pleasant Violet, Mr. Henry Croker read the part of the Alderman with excellent effect, and Selina found an admirable representative in Miss Constance Merton. A curtain raiser, Proteus in Petticoats, gave Miss Violet Compton a chance to shine and show that she can dance as well as act.

Mr. Compton, being called before the curtain, said—"Ladies and gentleman, the Compton Comedy Company really commenced its historical career, I may so call it, on Feb. 7, 1881, but as Feb. 7 fell this year on a Sunday—yesterday—I was compelled to mark the event to-night, otherwise I should have had no celebration, and you, ladies, would have had no souvenir. Many sincere thanks for your presence here to-night. It's good to be back in Hull once more, and it's good to be playing Davy Garrick once more to such a friendly and enthusiastic audience. And now about to-night's celebration, the completion of twenty-eight years' hard labour with the Compton Comedy Company. How do I feel about it? Well, I must own to a great pleasure and a little natural pride, for such an event is absolutely unique in theatrical annals. When I started out on Feb. 7, 1881, I was told that I was a rash young man; that old comedy, like Shakespeare, 'spelt ruin,' and that I should live to repent my foolhardiness in sackcloth and ashes. And yet here I am, after twenty-eight years, still holding aloft the standard of legitimate comedy; not by any means sitting on any stool of repentance, but standing up before you elated with triumph, flushed with success, and more than ever determined to emulate Tennyson's brook, and 'go on for ever.' (Applause.) During the period I have named I have always taken care to have a first-class all-round company. I have always rehearsed every play thoroughly and often, and I have always costumed and produced them correctly and well. I have revived numbers of old comedies and produced several new ones, and I have always clung to the ideal I started with, namely, to play only such pieces as made for good; and I think my audiences will bear me witness that 'the evening's amusement' has always borne 'the morning's reflection.' But there is one thing I am very sensible of—the constancy and support of the Press and the public all over the country, without which I could have done nothing. Beggar that I am, I am even poor in thanks, but I thank you, and I can never thank you enough. By the way, I must not forget to tell you that to-night marks a double celebration, for my Mr. David Garrick, who first came into being on Feb. 7, 1884, attains his twenty-fifth year to-night. I hope you have found this rising young actor going strong and well, and not looking a day more than his twenty-five years. Again, let me thank you for your attendance and enthusiasm, and permit me to wish you a grateful, warm good-night."

LAST Saturday evening after the performance of A White Man company at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Petley were presented by the company with a silver mounted travelling clock on their leaving to join the South Company of Pete, opening next Monday at the Grand, Derby.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Prince of Wales and suite witnessed the performance at the Empire Theatre on Thursday evening, on the occasion of the 100th performance of the ballet, A Day in Paris, and the first night of the bioscope pictures of the King in Berlin.

Miss Decima Moore will make her London music-hall début at the Tivoli on Monday, when she will sing, whistle, and indulge in a little story-telling. Miss Moore is exclusively engaged by the Tivoli management.

Miss Maud Allan made her reappearance in a series of new classical dances at the Palace Theatre on Friday afternoon (yesterday). The artist's répertoire is said to be the most ambitious that she has yet attempted, and includes the famous "Peer Gynt" Suite. In deference to the avalanche of correspondence that has come to hand, Miss Allan, however, presented her ever-popular "Spring Song" and "Valse Caprice" dances.

Mr. Alfred Butt, the managing-director of the Palace, in securing the London Symphony Orchestra, under Mr. Landon Ronald, to accompany Miss Allan for Friday afternoon's performance, realises in the best way that a music hall should be a hall where it is possible to hear the best music. This fine combination of instrumentalists gave a number of selections, including Beethoven's Leonora No. 3 and "The Ride of the Valkyrie."

Mr. Fred Trussell, manager of the London Hippodrome, while leaving his home on Thursday morning to go to business, had an unfortunate accident. As he was riding to the station his bicycle side-slipped, with the result that Mr. Trussell sustained a very bad fracture to the right foot. He was seen by two doctors, and, after examining the foot, they reported that two of the principal bones were broken. Mr. Trussell's many friends will be exceedingly sorry to hear of his misfortune, and we join with them in hearty wishes for his speedy recovery.

The Empire Theatre has recently been described as the "Cosmopolitan Club of the World." With every desire to live up to this ideal, and realising that the traveller arriving late in London, or the City man who has been too busy until the evening, is unable to find a barber still open, the management have decided to inaugurate an up-to-date and completely-fitted toilet saloon in the theatre, with every requisite of a West End hair-dressing establishment. It will be available for the use of their patrons throughout the performance.

Miss Elise Craven, the little Queen of the Fairies in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's Theatre, is perturbed about the £100 a week which she is to receive at the Coliseum, and, considering that such a sum is beyond the needs of a person of her few years, she has written to Sir William Treloar inviting twenty-five crippled children to tea at the Coliseum on Tuesday. Sir William has accepted, and the youngsters will have tea on the stage at 5.30.

Miss Marie Nott (daughter of Mr. W. Peacock, of the Scarborough Hippodrome, and granddaughter of the late Miss Cicely Nott (Mrs. Sam Adams) made her début in the profession last week at the Scarborough Hippodrome. She is possessed of a pleasing voice, and is a most able exponent of the art of violin playing. She made a most pleasing impression, and should be heard of again and eventually go far in the profession of which her mother (Miss Addie Blanche) was so bright a star. Miss Addie Blanche, it will be remembered, played Dick Whittington in the children's pantomime at the Avenue 1882-3.

Mr. Bolossy Kiralfy's spectacle To-morrow is to be withdrawn from the Hippodrome bill, and on Feb. 22 will be produced by Mr. Frank Parker The Motor Chase, a spectacular piece written by Mr. Sydney Blow, part-author of No. Two, now being played at the Palace Theatre. The novelty will be in five scenes, the most sensational being a motor dashing over a cliff. Drury Lane has up to now had a monopoly of this sort of sensation, but the resources of arena and stage at the Hippodrome will be quite equal to the special exigencies of the production. Mr. C. Somerset, Miss Maude Cressall, and Mr. Arthur Grenville will be in the cast.

The Empire directors submit the report and balance-sheet for the year ending Dec. 31, 1908. After making provision for depreciation, renewals and repairs, interest on debenture, and premium on redemption policy, amounting in the aggregate to £19,151 2s. 9d., the net profit (including balance of last account) is shown at £19,416 3s. 3d. The sum of £1,000 has also been paid off the debenture.

It is now proposed to pay a dividend in respect of the year 1908 of 3s. on each "15s. paid" share, and of 2s. on each "10s. paid" share respectively, being at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, absorbing £6,250, and carrying forward to next account a balance of £13,166 3s. 3d. This dividend will, if approved by the shareholders, be paid on or before Feb. 27, free of income tax. Mr. G. C. Wentworth-Fitzwilliam, the retiring director, offers himself for re-election. The auditors, Messrs. W. B. Peat and Co., retire, and also offer themselves for re-election. The meeting of the shareholders is at the Empire on Friday next at twelve noon.

Barton and Ashley are paying a return visit to the Hackney Empire on Monday in their sketch Adam the Second. John Barton says "Adam the first was born in Eden; I saw the light in Philadelphia. Nothing worth recording happened until one day I boarded a tramcar and sat opposite a lady. Suddenly she jumped up exclaiming 'There's something in my hat!' There was—a tiny mouse. I captured the terrible animal, and saw the lady home. I asked her to have me. She was willing, and I've been had ever since. Everyone has seen the act we have laid aside—Canal Boat Sal. My wife was the heroine of that little sketch, and smacked my face twenty times nightly for fourteen years. That means that her dear hand has chastised me 101,800 times. Think it over, married men!"

The London Hippodrome, after a continuous run of upwards of 5,000 performances, closes from May 1 to August Bank Holiday for structural changes costing about £40,000. The plans provide for the covering of part of the arena with stalls, but the ring space can be restored in a few hours if required for special performances, such as water shows. The present elevated orchestra will go to the front of the stage. Hydraulic and electric power will do the mechanical lifting, and when all is complete Mr. Oswald Stoll will have practically a new house, with unique facilities.

Miss Henriquette Maude, looking very smart and neat in khaki as a Colonial trooper, has been scoring most unmistakably at the London Pavilion in her recitation of a powerful appeal for the veterans of the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny, which she has recited with such success during a provincial tour. Miss Maude has been provided with a capital scene by Mr. Frank Glenister, and is accompanied on the stage by a war-worn and bemedalled veteran of eighty-six. She concludes this week a most successful engagement at the Piccadilly-circus house.

The Glasgow Hippodrome will positively close on April 24, 1909, and all contracts for the establishment after that date are cancelled.

The terribly sudden death of Mr. Albert Edward Davis, aged fifty-four, musical conductor, on the stage of the Willesden Hippodrome, was proved at the inquest on Wednesday to be due to syncope.

We regret to announce the death on Wednesday, after a short illness, of Mr. R. A. Nicholson, sole proprietor of the Hippodrome, Stockton-on-Tees. The sad event came with great suddenness. The deceased gentleman was only thirty-six.

Mr. Harry Bowerman, the popular manager of the Gaiety, Glasgow, held his annual benefit on Thursday of last week. The house was crowded. In addition to the ordinary programme, several pantomime artists gave their valuable assistance.

The acting-manager of the Hastings Hippodrome, Mr. Walter Norman, has received a number of telegrams and letters of condolence and sympathy for the widow and family of Mr. Vivian Fisher, the late manager, more especially from the Terriers' Association, of which Mr. Norman is a member.

Mr. Bert Dent, the popular manager of the Palace, Attercliffe, in announcing the other evening the forthcoming visit of Doctor Walford Bodie, was interrupted by the irrepressible would-be wit, generally to be found in an audience, who shouted, "Hey, mister! can Bodie cure me?" Quick as thought came the reply from Mr. Dent, "My dear sir, Doctor Bodie is not a brain specialist."

Mr. Billy Richardson, who for many years was a member of Hague's Minstrels, was given a benefit on Tuesday at the Star Theatre, Liverpool, which was lent by Mr. Harris Fineberg. The audience was a packed one, and a thoroughly enjoyable programme provided by many artists contained a minstrel show in which many local theatrical managers took part. It is expected that a substantial sum will be realised.

The South Parade Pier (Portsmouth) Committee held a special meeting on Wednesday for the purpose of appointing a new manager at a commencing salary of £300 per annum. From the numerous applicants for the position six were selected—Messrs. G. Fitz-Gibbon (Crystal Palace), A. F. Lalande (Colwyn Bay), Morley (Portsmouth), Roberts (Blackpool), H. C. Sait (Southampton), and P. W. Watkins. Upon the vote being taken Mr. Lalande was appointed.

Mr. Cecil Holden applied on Feb. 5 at the annual licensing sessions for the borough of Birkenhead, on behalf of the lessee of the Hippodrome, Grange-road, for permission to reduce the charge for the gallery from 3d. to 2d. He stated that when the licence was originally granted, the justices suggested that the charge for the gallery should be 3d., instead of 2d., as proposed. It was now desired to reduce it to 2d. There was not a great deal of money in Birkenhead, and it was difficult to compete with the Liverpool places of amusement.

The Chairman said the reason a charge of 3d. was suggested was that there had been a number of prosecutions of parents of children who had been found begging or selling things in the streets, and the excuse given by the parents had been that the children begged to get money to go to places of amusement. Mr. Holden observed that those would be children under fourteen years of age, and such children would not be admitted to places of amusement without their parents.

In answer to the Bench the Chief Constable said the Hippodrome was well conducted, and he saw no objection to a charge of 2d. for the gallery, so long as a good entertainment was provided. The application was granted.

At the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, last week Dr. Walford Bodie broke all records, the huge building being packed nightly with the élite of the city. The advance booking was phenomenal, and on Saturday night, at both houses, every seat was nearly booked, and hundreds had to be refused admission. So great has been the doctor's success that the management have offered him an early return date.

The Doctor's fame as an author is fast spreading. His latest sensation, entitled "Harley the Hypnotist," now running in the Novel Magazine, has been described by a leading London daily paper as a new character in fiction and a serious rival to "Sherlock Holmes" and "Captain Kettle." Next week he is at the Palace, Attercliffe, with his own company.

Among the presents to Miss Kathleen Gray on the night of her benefit at the Gaiety, Dublin, were a toy dog, a live duck, a canary in cage, and a gold clock. Any wag who might express surprise that the joyous Dublin bhoys should give Miss Gray "the bird" may be easily silenced with the remark that "duck" is an affectionate term for the greatest stage favourites and that the word "canary" epitomises vocal sweetness in the recipient.

The Hippodrome, Blackburn, the latest addition to the De Frece Circuit, opened on Monday. The new house, planned by Mr. Bertie Crewe, supplants the old Blackburn Theatre Royal, and is a luxurious house, with well-appointed dressing-rooms, large stage, and everything up to date. At the opening the house was packed to the doors. The Mayor and other people prominent in the town assisted in the send-off, and the programme was excellent. Mr. Harry Yorke is resident director, and the managing-director is Mr. Walter de Frece.

Councillor Sidney Bacon entertained some notable gentlemen from the North of England at the Florence Hotel on Monday, including the Mayor of Gateshead (Ald. Gillies), the Town Clerk (W. Swinburne), the Magistrate's Clerk (Mr. Tom Lambert), and Ald. Costelloe. In the course of the evening the Mayor of Gateshead, in proposing the health of Mr. Bacon, stated how greatly they missed him in Gateshead, and hoped he would be amongst them as often as possible. They then adjourned to the Palace Theatre, where a very enjoyable time was spent.

Plans have been submitted to the West Hartlepool Town Council of a roller-skating rink. The building, which will be of brick, is to be erected in Whitby-steet, on the site opposite the Post Office, and the skating area will be 127ft. by 44ft. The plans are submitted by Messrs. Kirtley and Geipel. It is a number of years since the town possessed a skating rink; but at one time the sport of roller-skating was very popular there, and the old rink, situated in Ouston-street, was well patronised.

Plans for a new Theatre and Hippodrome, in St. Mary's-road, Garston, Liverpool, for Mr. J. B. Lloyd, of Bolton, have been approved by the magistrates. The plans, prepared by Mr. Albert Winstanley, of Manchester and St. Anne's-on-Sea, who has had considerable experience in theatre construction, show seating accommodation for 1,344 persons. The building, of ornamental design and commanding elevation, will form a distinctive and attractive feature, and will be replete with every modern convenience, including waiting-room accommodation, an important desideratum with a twice-nightly house.

A builder's advertising board recently erected outside Gatti's old music hall in Villiers-street, Strand, announces that as soon as the necessary alterations are completed the place will be opened by "Arena, Limited," as the "grandest boxing and wrestling hall in London."

Miss Kittee Rayburn will appear on Monday at the Palace, Hammersmith, where a warm welcome awaits her. Miss Kittee made herself extremely popular in the western suburb during the run of Mr. G. Brydon Phillips's pantomime The Babes in the Wood at the Lyric Opera House.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas opened in New York on Feb. 2 at the American Theatre. The success of their act was marked by five calls at the conclusion. The New York papers are enthusiastic in their praise of the act.

Mr. John Lawson is still attracting crowded houses with the evergreen Humanity. The new scenery for this popular episode is magnificent, and the addition of a new fire effect makes this thrilling sketch even more thrilling. "House full" is "writ large" both at Richmond and Camberwell this week.

Mr. Frederic Baugh produced at the Surrey, Feb. 1, Brien McCullough's latest episode, The Midnight London Express. The scenery, which is of the most elaborate character, is by Francis H. Bull. The sketch met with the greatest possible success, and bookings are as plentiful as the most sanguine could wish.

We regret to learn that the painful mystery of the disappearance of Mr. Mark Melford remains still unsolved. The anxiety of Mrs. Melford and family must be terrible, and it is to be hoped that Messrs. Stringer and Stringer, Bank Chambers, High-road, Kilburn, will receive some clue. Mr. Melford was negotiating for America, but no contract was settled.

This week Miss Florence Creagh pays a return visit to the Middlesex in the powerful dramatic episode, entitled Daddy's Boy, which has already gained such great popularity both in London and the provinces. Included in the cast are Messrs. Dick Cruikshanks, Henry W. Hatchman, and Miss Florence Creagh.

An artistic equestrian act will be seen at the Hippodrome next week, when Lina Marrder appears with her golden-hued horse and fine St. Bernard dogs. In statuary acts it has been a common practice for men and women to cover themselves with a golden preparation, but the tinting of a beautiful charger is something new in arena acts.

A new and original satirical sketch, entitled What's Charles Worth? or, The Maid and the Motor-car, written by Cayley Calvert, will be interpreted at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, by Miss Sylvia Cavalho, supported by Mr. Edmund Gurney, Mr. Clifford Pembroke, Mr. Alf. Donohoe, Mr. Geo. Edwards, Mr. Horace Corbyn, and the Bureau Quartet.

Mr. Yardley, manager of the Southampton Hippodrome, is quite up to date with a verse by F. V. St. Clair, which is thrown on the screen by the Bioscope, the lines being much applauded. The verse runs:—

Did we need conscription in the days of Waterloo?
Shall it be conscription now?—England answers "No!"
Join the Territorials; help to bear the brunt:
Britons, do your duty; Hampshire to the front!

Miss Violet Morgan, the well-known mimic, after a painful illness of six months' duration, passed away on Tuesday morning at the Ingham Infirmary, South Shields. She was the wife of Mr. Jack Ford, who has the sympathy of his brother and sister artists in his bereavement.

Miss Morgan was only twenty-seven, and made her stage début in drama at the tender age of seven, following the legitimate stage successfully for fourteen years. Six years since she went on the halls as a character mimic, and met with considerable favour. Lately she had worked with her husband in a double act. The deceased lady was interred at St. Stephen's, South Shields, on Thursday.

The Chelsea Palace will be brightened on Monday by the appearance of Joe Elvin in the famous Over the Sticks, which is to be produced there with 100 auxiliaries. Joe will be "obliging his brother," and laughter in consequence will reign. Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the Chelsea Palace manager, has issued a humorous booklet concerning the Sunbury Hurdle Handicap which would do credit to a member of Tattersall's.

Once more we call attention to the evening concert to be given at the Empire, Camberwell, to-morrow (Sunday) evening in aid of the Fred Millis Testimonial Fund. The movement is under the patronage of Sir Edward Moss, Frank Allen, Arthur Branscombe, Joe Elvin, John Lawson, and Albert Chevalier. It has also the support of the Water Rats, the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, and the Variety Artists' Federation.

Mr. Percy Honri will present at the Oxford on Monday a new musical phantasy, entitled Concordia, described as a dream in eight scenes. It teems with bright music, wildest hilarity, and graceful dancing. Dainty girls, clever musicians, brilliant scenery, beautiful dresses, and novelties in the way of scenic and lighting effects do the rest. Of course, Mr. Honri, with his famous concertina, is the leading spirit of the production.

The host of friends of Mr. J. W. Cragg, the doyen of performers, will extend to him their heartiest sympathy on the loss of his wife, who passed away on Wednesday. Mrs. Cragg was a devoted wife and mother, and her death at the early age of forty-two is regretted by a wide circle of friends. The funeral will take place on Monday, the cortège leaving 68, Kennington-road, at 10.30, and arriving at Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting, at 11.45.

George Lashwood, though banished to that part of the theatrical world known as Siberia (otherwise Ireland) for pantomime, has already had the enviable experience of receiving three offers for next year. The most gratifying comes from Mr. Stanley Rogers, asking him to name his own terms to resume his old part of Dandini, next Christmas, in the Cinderella production which last season gained record-breaking fame at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, and which this year graces the boards at the Grand, Glasgow. Until a very recent date dandy parts in pantomime were restricted to ladies, but the magnetic personality of Lashwood has changed all that.

A pigeon shooting match, in which members of the profession in the Newcastle pantomimes are keenly interested, is fixed for decision on Monday at the headquarters of the Hotspur Gun Club at Fenham. The contestants are the two popular pantomime principals Arthur Carlton, of the Tyne Theatre, and Harry Tate of the Theatre Royal, for a stake of £10 a-side at twenty-one birds. Mr. J. Roberts has been entrusted with the preliminary arrangements, and he announces a sweepstakes in addition to the match, so that the afternoon's sport promises to be attractive. By the desire of Messrs. Carlton and Tate the proceeds of the gate, after the payment of expenses, will be handed over to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the unemployed.

Two celebrated showman families are to be allied by the marriage of Mr. Fred Ginnett's son, "Gubby," to the third daughter of Lord George Sanger. The ceremony is to take place early in March at Horley.

That popular fun-maker Little Tich makes his return to the London Pavilion on Monday. "Imperial Cæsar," his newest song, though the phrase is from Hamlet, will have nothing but comedy to recommend it. It should be an excellent parody.

Mr. Alfred Reynolds, business manager for Mr. Brydon-Phillips's Red Riding Hood company, on Saturday at Maidstone was presented by Miss Kittee Rayburn (principal boy) with a handsome cigarette case, inscribed "as a token of esteem."

The staff of Messrs. Francis and Day have organised from among themselves a football club, to be known as "The Arpeggios," and Mr. William Francis is the captain. The club have secured a capital ground at Golder's Green, and will commence operations this (Saturday) afternoon.

Frank Crozier and Tom Rose, the winners of the Middle-weight and Light-weight Wrestling Championship at the Alhambra last week, creating a great sensation in the finals, have placed the whole of their business in the hands of Ashley Beale and Co., Oakley House, Bloomsbury-street, London, W.

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road. Mr. Fred D. Harris presided, and there were also present Messrs. Pat Carey (hon. treasurer), T. B. Brydge, G. Fredericks, W. Brisco, O. Grimaldi, H. E. High, and R. T. Baines (secretary). Mention was made of the fact that the vice-president (Mr. W. J. Wainratta), who occupied the chair at the last meeting, had arrived at New York.

The secretary reported that he had written a letter to the widow and family of the late Mr. Frank Heath (who was hon. treasurer of the society for several years) expressing the sympathy of the committee and officers of the Fund in the loss they had sustained. Mr. Fred Karno, president of the Fund, wrote expressing his regret at his inability to be present, as he was at Bristol arranging for a matinée in aid of the Messina Earthquake Fund.

In the vestibule of the Palace is now exhibited a large oil-painting of Miss Allan by Baron de Pasztory, the well-known artist, who has executed a remarkable work without receiving one "sitting," relying only on his sketches of Miss Allan taken at many visits to the theatre.

Mr. Joe Elvin will be pleased to hear from members willing to give their services for the matinée to be held at the Surrey Theatre on Thursday, Feb. 25, in aid of the Two Primroses. Offers of help should be sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the Era; or to Mr. Elvin, at 63, Effra-road, Brixton, S.W. Mr. Oswald Stoll and Mr. Henry Tozer have given permission for artists under engagement to them to appear at this matinée.

The 595th meeting of the committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday. Mr. G. B. Sinclair occupied the chair, and Messrs. Albert Voyce, H. Cee Mee, Wm. Welsh, and W. H. Atlas were also present. At the opening of the meeting a vote of condolence was passed to Mr. J. W. Cragg on the death of his wife. The weekly statement showed an increase of forty-nine new members, and receipts of £59 5s.

Miss Maude May Murray's beautiful electrical aerial dancing is again causing quite a sensation this week at the Theatre Royal, Rotherham, and she is greeted at every performance with the greatest enthusiasm. Next week she will make her first appearance at the Opera House, Middlesbrough, in a new sensational dance with beautiful novel lighting effects.

The next committee meeting of the Music Hall Home will be held at the Empire, Camberwell, on Thursday next, at 12 noon. Will ladies and gentlemen who have collecting cards for the Era Appeal Fund kindly send them to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer to the fund, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.? Men's cast-off clothes, underclothes, and boots are always useful. The secretary's address is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E.

The Terriers' Association held a grand ladies' concert on Sunday last at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington. Mr. B. Almon occupied the chair, supported by Mr. George Cooper as vice-chairman. The following artists appeared: Miss Ada Norman, Miss May Stuart, Mrs. Traynor, Andie Caine, Charles Stevens, Charles Cornish, W. L. Murray, Bert Marsden, T. Waters, Alfred Norton, Stanley Collins, Chas. Girton, Barney Hyams Eddie Comet, and Gus Harris. Mr. J. Chas. Moore officiated at the piano.

On behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) begs most gratefully to thank Mrs. Arthur Roberts, gift of a guinea; Miss Ada Webb, 2s. 6d. (through Miss Flo Banks); Miss Louie Davis (collecting), 8s.; Mrs. James Horne (collecting), 1s. 6d.; Miss E. Guilburt (collecting), 2s. 6d.; parcel of clothing, Miss Graham, Princes Gate; Miss Crowther, clothing; parcel, anonymous; and one from Miss Lottie Albert. The anonymous parcel last week was sent by Madame Haydee.

Mr. T. G. Hales has contributed £5 towards the relief of Miss Flora Lington and family. The husband has been blind for five years, and there are two children. Miss Lington is now at the National Sanatorium, Bournemouth. Any further contributions to the same good cause may be sent direct to the Guild. Miss Lington will be grateful for any books or papers posted direct to her.

Will all members please communicate with Miss May and send an address that will find them for the next two weeks? All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions held every Wednesday, four to five o'clock. Every kind of clothing is urgently needed.

The annual dinner and ball of the Terriers' Association is fixed for March 21. At one time the function was a fixture in which the members appeared in all the bravery of fancy dress, but that was in the days of the Association's youth. The Terriers have just published a handbook giving full particulars of the Association, its benefits, and the social advantages it offers to members. A copy will be sent free of charge to all bonâ-fide variety performers on application to Arthur Were, secretary of the Terriers' Association, 69, Kennington-road, S.E.

Mr. George Adney Payne left estate now sworn for probate as of the gross value of £47,895, of which the net personality is £28,643. A former grant of administration, "pendente lite," was issued in August, 1907, when the property was sworn at £48,285, with net personality, £28,827. His will was lately the subject of the action, Payne and another v. Payne, in which Mr. Justice Barnes pronounced for the force and validity of the will. Probate thereof (superseding the grant of administration "pendente lite") has accordingly been granted to his son, Mr. Walter Payne, barrister, of 1, Garden Court, Temple, and his son-in-law, Mr. Walter Gibbons, of Park Cottage, East Sheen. The testator left the whole of his property upon trust, in equal shares, for his children, Walter, Minnie, Amelia, Nellie Isabella, and Ida Maude.

A special extra turn matinée is billed for the 20th at the Queen's, Poplar, and the management offer a week's engagement to selected talent. The announcement has stimulated enthusiasm in the district, and the local "stars" are actively engaged at rehearsal.

A rumour, happily unfounded, that old genial Fred Abrahams was on the sick list gained currency, and on enquiry we were very pleased to hear that the popular veteran is down with nothing more serious than a chill, at Brighton.

Three beds at the Poplar Hospital is the result of the Sunday night concerts at the Queen's. Not a bad reflection upon the house. No wonder it opens to full audiences nightly.

In consequence of the Millis concert at the Empire, Camberwell, on Sunday, the Terriers' usual meeting will not be held on that evening.

Mr. Ben Nathan sailed for America on the Baltic on Friday last in order to complete arrangements for the establishing of Day's Agency in connection with the Edward S. Keller Vaudeville Agency (Inc.).

Miss Helen Trix, the talented young American comedienne at the piano, will arrive at the London Hippodrome next Monday. In her novel style she will render four songs. One of them is named "A little farther." A special setting is being prepared for the arena, where Miss Trix will do her turn.

Mr. Alf. J. Lawrance, of that well-known trinity of writers, Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, has been specially retained for three years by Mr. G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, to supply him with characteristic ditties.

Mr. Harry Nation has produced a humorous skit on his namesake, Mrs. Carrie Nation, at the Hippodrome, Putney, this week, with very gratifying success.

Miss Madge Temple, who has now quite recovered from her throat trouble, is this week scoring another triumph with her charming rendering of "Esau," "Come, be my rainbow," and "The matinée hat," at the Empire, Nottingham, where she has made these songs an absolute rage.

Master Max Darewski, the famous boy composer, conductor, and pianist, is recovering from the attack of influenza from which he has been suffering during the past week, which compelled his cancelling his engagements. His physician, Dr. Forbes Ross, hopes he will be well enough to resume his engagements Monday next.

Douglas, of Talberto and Douglas, the Comedy Boys, is back in harness after his serious accident whilst playing polo on horseback. He was carefully nursed back to health in Chalmers' Private Hospital, Edinburgh. Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke, who ably filled his place, was on Saturday night last the recipient of a handsome silver cigar-case.

"The Ten O'clock Squad," which was proclaimed an instantaneous success at the Canterbury on Monday night last, is due at Walthamstow next Monday. The book is by Harry M. Vernon, the lyrics by Charles Wilmott, and the bright and catchy music by Hermann E. Darewski, jun., whose name associated with any musical numbers are always sure to be good.

Messrs. Jay and Mann open their season at the Palace Theatre, Brighton, on March 22 next, with the special starring engagement of Mr. Edward Terry, who has not appeared in Brighton for many years. For Goodwood Week, July 25, Miss Marie Lloyd is the attraction, with her own company. Several very strong star and musical attractions are booked.

Mr. Hermann E. Darewski, jun., has completed a march, "Bravo, Territorials," founded on the new song, "Bravo, Territorials," by Charles Wilmott and Hermann E. Darewski, jun. Within the next fortnight both song and march will be heard, sung, and played all over England. Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter are the publishers.

The Brixton Sports Club held their first concert at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Thursday evening. Among artists who appeared were Sam Mayo, Gilbert Girard, Kenneth and Kane, Harry Taft, Rose Hamilton, Fred Earle, Harry Nation, Lew Loman, Hettie Lee, Dolly Bell, Addie Adell, Dorothy Irving, George Formby, Ada Martine, Bert Errol, Jordan and Harvey, Sivronis, Morny Cash, Dunning and Kahn, and Dora Lyric. Quite twenty other well-known performers were on the spot ready to appear, but time would not permit.

Miss Marie Lloyd, T. E. Dunville, and Kate Carney, who had promised to appear, were prevented by their times at other halls. As chairman of the committee Mr. Sam Mayo thanked both artists and audience for their attendance, and on behalf of the Brixton Sports Club said that he was confident that the profession would support this, the only variety club whose aim was to promote outdoor sports amongst artists. Mr. Sam Aarons presided at the piano.

Little Miss Elise Craven, the tiny fairy queen, who has made such a hit at His Majesty's Theatre, will appear at the London Coliseum on Monday in a play entitled The Queen of the Fairies, specially written for her by Mr. Sydney Blow. Elise is engaged at the largest salary ever paid at any time to a dancer of eleven years—namely £100 per week. The play has six speaking parts, and will be presented amidst gorgeous surroundings, the Queen of the Fairies, for instance, arriving on a splendid dragon fly in a blaze of light.

Elise is a quaint little girl, with intelligent blue eyes and long fair curls falling about her face—in short, a natural fairy. And there is nothing vain about her, although her wonderful dancing is enough to turn the head of many a "star." The music of the play is by Mr. Edward Jones.

Negotiations are now pending between Mr. Oswald Stoll and Mr. Norman Wrighton for the immediate production of a sensational invasion sketch, entitled Wake Up, England, which Mr. Wrighton has adapted from his play Britain's Awakening, produced a year ago. An important feature of this stirring episode will be the singing of the national song "Wake up, England!" by the same author, music by John Bull. This song, which is rapidly becoming popular, has been lately honoured by the acceptance and acknowledgment of his Majesty the King and Earl Roberts. Mr. Lionel Wallace, of Messrs. Blackmore, is negotiating all business for Mr. Wrighton with reference to the above sketch.

La Milo, after playing the provinces under her own management, opened her fourth Stoll tour at Hackney last week, and followed up her successes by crowded houses. Amongst the features of her exhibition are many new creations of breathing marble, chief of which is the Three Graces, which is a lesson in impersonal representation of art. Two of the figures have been modelled by La Milo, who makes up the trio in such a way as to offer a spectacular enigma to her audiences. The representation of Joan of Arc, recently canonised, is not a little pathetic, and quite in keeping with the tableaux of the famous maid of Domrémy. These new features uphold the reputation of La Milo, and her success is a happy augury of a successful tour.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Two notable items in the programme at the State ball at Berlin given in honour of the visit of King Edward and Queen Alexandra were Leslie Stuart's "Florodora Waltz" and "Gavotte der Kaiserin," by P. Hertel, both of which are Messrs. Francis and Day's publications.

MISS VESTA TILLEY'S new song, "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," has just been issued by Messrs. Francis and Day as a "Sixpenny Pop."

HARRY HEATH and Will Hyde have just disposed of a song to Miss Marie Lloyd, who on Friday celebrated the thirty-ninth anniversary of her birthday. By a slip of the pen in our last issue the authorship of Miss Kitty Colyer's "Goodbye, Jenny," which is (words and music) by Mr. Hyde, was ascribed to T. F. Robson. Mr. Robson has been associated with Mr. Hyde with a number of songs, notably Miss Colyer's "Little snow house."

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT, who has during the week, at the Holloway Empire been topping the bill after her successful pantomime engagement at the Marlborough Theatre, has secured Edgar Bateman and H. F. Greenfield's humorous song entitled "Just because ma went to see the great invasion play." Miss Scott opens at the Tivoli on Monday week.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO.'S topical song, "A white man," introduced by Mr. George Lashwood, has been the hit of two hundred pantomimes. It has also done some good for the country. Through its instrumentality no fewer than nine recruits were gained for the Territorials at one show alone at a theatre on Wednesday night.

"THERE'S A FOE AT THE GATES OF ENGLAND," which we mentioned last week, has already caught on, and Messrs. Feldman and Co. inform us that they are prepared to give a few music hall rights for this song, which has already proved its worth to the performer.

ANYBODY on the look-out for a big Irish song to produce after pantomime cannot do better than write to Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. for their great song "Connemara," written and composed by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford.

MR. WILL GODWIN has just secured for immediate production two chorus numbers, entitled "The girl for me" and "Mary of Dundee Town." Both numbers are written and composed by Harry Marlow, author-composer of several recent successes. He has also supplied Miss Gladys Godwyne with a striking motto chorus song entitled "Don't turn on a pal."

MISS EDNA MORGAN, principal boy at the recently-concluded Broadway (New Cross) pantomime, opened the Stoll tour on Monday at the New Cross Empire, and scored an unmistakable success, the audience quickly joining in the refrain of "I'm going back to-morrow morning." This hit was specially written for Miss Morgan by Percy Ford and Offley Ronyart, and will soon be issued by the Denmark Music Publishing Co.

MISS KITTY CLINTON is creating an unprecedented success with Medley Barrett's "Baden-Powell's Scout" in the Elephant and Castle pantomime, being compelled to repeat the last verse and chorus, after taking three and four calls. She has fifty of the Walworth and Camberwell troops of boy scouts to assist.

ON account of the excellent addition to The Babes in the Wood pantomime, the management of the Elephant and Castle have been compelled to run four weeks longer—a record for this South London house. The Denmark Music Publishing Co. are indeed fortunate in finding such a winner.

MISS MAUD ESMOND, the Brixton panto favourite, is this week appearing at the Empress, Brixton, and is nightly adding to her popularity. She has just produced a great winner, namely, "I've been out with Charlie Brown," a fine chorus song by Mills and Scott.

V.A.F. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

As the result of the election for the Executive Committee of the V.A.F., Mr. Wal Pink has come out at the top of the poll. Mr. Fred Russell, the well-known ventriloquist, follows. Both are level-headed and capable advocates of the best interests of the profession. The following have been elected for three years:—Messrs. Wal Pink, Fred Russell, Fred Herbert, George D'Albert, Charles McConell, Peter Bijou, Albert Le Fre, Harry Griff, G. B. Sinclair, Harry Lauder, Harry Tate, Joe McConnell, Ryder Slone, Will Poluski, Horace Wheatley, Steve McCarthy, Max Berol-Konorah, J. Alexander, Bob Leonard, Signor Borelli, Alec Hurley, H. Delevine, V. L. Granville, J. Tennyson, J. Foreman, Bert Byrne, W. Munroe, H. Wright, S. Delevine, M. Edgar, Andie Caine, Bert Williams, J. W. Knowles, Fred McNaughton, Billy Brown, Leoni Clarke, M. Geraldo, H. Barrett, M. Nolan, Chas. Rich, Apollo, and Ben Obo. Messrs. J. Gilmore, Jim Obo, and W. Blake have been elected for one year.

TYNEMOUTH Palace figured in an application brought before the licensing magistrates at North Shields on Tuesday. On behalf of its new owners Mr. A. Whitehorn applied for the renewal of the licence, and for permission to carry out certain structural alterations, such as the raising of the floor; the improvement of the lighting, heating, and the acoustic properties of the place; the providing of increased comfort, and the making of a skating rink in the basement.

IT was thought that there should be also a modification of a clause endorsed on the licence, and that the lowest charge should be threepence instead of sixpence. In the event of the Licensing Committee consenting, 192 seats at that price would be provided, besides standing accommodation for a similar number. The Licensing Committee approved of the proposed structural alterations, and granted the licence, reducing the minimum charge of admission from 6d. to 3d. as requested. Something like £18,000 is to be spent on the place.

THE annual pantomime subscription ball organised by Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe, the popular manager of the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, took place on Tuesday evening at the Grand Assembly Rooms. There was a gay assembly of about 200 dancers, music being provided by the Tyne Theatre orchestra.

AMONGST the many public favourites present were Happy Fanny Fields, Mrs. Deane and Miss Doris Dean, the Misses Maud Thorne, Ida Rene, Lily Iris, Rhoda Gordon, Iris Coley, and Florence Hersee, Messrs. Harry Tate, Malcolm Scott, Horace Lane, Carlton, Nightingale, Arthur Prince, Jock Walker, and many artists from Middlesbrough, Darlington, and Edinburgh. There were also present Mr. Teale Lingham (manager of the Royal Theatre) and Mrs. Teale Lingham, and Mrs. and Miss Sutcliffe. Aiding Mr. Sutcliffe were Mr. W. H. Boardman (manager of the Pavilion), Mr. J. J. Lloyd, Mr. Mark Abrahams, and Mr. Charles Campbell, as M.C.'s.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906. Effect on Theatres and Music Halls. By Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor Price 6d. Published at The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

A CHAT WITH CHARCOT.

Charcot has been telling his life-story. He says: "I was born in a county where the people are all known for being very strong in the arm and weak in the head. The late Herbert Spencer—the greatest philosopher of modern times—and I hail from the centre of the Midlands—Derby. My father, an Irish surgeon, died when I was seven years old, my mother's spirit fled six years later, and I was left to fight the battle of life alone. It would take a big book to chronicle all my 'ups and downs' since that time. I've known what it is to walk the road, without home or habitation, and have a penny bloater for my dinner. I've also experienced the delights of riding in a carriage, with footmen behind me, and being fêted at some of the most aristocratic houses in Europe.

"Yes, I've seen both sides of the curtain, and I should require more than a Prime Minister's salary to get a 'swelled head' from my present triumphant successes. Mine has, indeed, been a strange career. When I look back over the years that have gone, none marvels more than I at what has been accomplished. It's doggedness that does it. For several years I studied hard against tremendous odds; I burned the candle at both ends. I never knew the word 'failure.' I started with nothing. The fire of literature at eighteen burned within me.

"When the whole country was in a blaze of excitement over Mrs. Maybrick's trial, I wrote a defence for her which earned me the esteem and lasting fellowship of one of the leading lights of the medical profession. This was my first excursion into the world of letters. The line of argument and technicalities with which it abounded dumbfounded and almost paralysed some wise men almost old enough to be my grandfather.

"I followed by contributing articles on every conceivable subject under the sun, winning monetary prizes right and left, till at twenty an idea seized me that I could improve on something else.

"At this time I was dispenser to a Scotch M.D., whose friendship I trust I hold to this day. Deciphering Latin prescriptions had no charm for me, but while doing so I here laid the foundation of a book that eventually brought me in £7,000. Not only that, I entered and lectured, advancing its claims in over 3,000 leading universities and colleges in Great Britain and Ireland. I very much question if there is a man living who has had the honour of addressing more students than I.

"From a Cistercian Monastery, surrounded by its great sanctity and glorious scenery away on the borders of Cappoquin, to the wild and up-to-date methods of the modern 'Varsity is a far cry, yet I have had them both. What a contrast, to see, as I have seen, hundreds of young men in cap and gown rise to their feet at my entrance on the platform, and that of the monks, clad in their spotless white raiment, wishing me God-speed in far-away Roscrea. I am digressing.

"After touring every town and city of note in the British Isles, I yearned for more worlds to conquer. Experience had taught me that the more you interest people, the more you get for it. Anything mysterious always appealed to me. Years ago I watched with bated breath the conjurors of my youth. How I marvelled at the sight of a disappearing handkerchief or coin, but, strange to relate, what has always struck me more forcibly than any other mystery is the fact that I once planted two precisely similar bulbs in the earth, and one came up a beautiful tulip and the other an onion. This, to my mind, beat all the mysteries I ever saw, and I studied another remarkable form of nature which finally made me adopt the line with which I am at present occupied. I am only trotting now, wait till I gallop.

"If my act could be copied to-morrow down to the smallest detail, there is one thing that could not be imitated, and which is the foundation of its triumphant success—my experience and personality."

IN Killing Time, a music hall sketch produced at the Empire, Shoreditch, on Saturday, the authors, Farries Moss and Mark Stone, both quite new to the music hall stage, have introduced a number of smart sayings, and play the two parts. The scene is laid in the rooms of a modern-day young man, who has invited a party of three to bridge, and only one turns up. The music is by Herbert Schartau.

DEATH OF H. VIVIAN FISHER.

The death of Mr. Harry Vivian Fisher, manager of the Hastings Hippodrome, and landlord of the Mitre Hotel, Hastings, at eight o'clock on Saturday night, will come as a shock to many of our readers. He had not been well for some time past, and took to his bed on Wednesday with severe heart affection, complicated with an attack of colic. There was a change for the worse on Saturday, and he quietly passed away as stated.

The deceased came of an old Hastings family, his grandfather living at what was then a confectioner's shop with a wine licence. Later on, this was turned into the Mitre Hotel, and the father of the deceased held the licence until his death, about ten years ago, when the business was taken over by the son. Mr. Fisher had made a name for himself as a singer, appearing with great success in Rip Van Winkle and Faust. He married, six years ago, Miss Bessie Watson, also a well-known singer, and about two years ago he was appointed manager of the Hastings Hippodrome. Deceased's age was forty-five years. He was buried at the Borough Cemetery, Ore, Sussex, on Thursday. The deceased gentleman was one of the Hippodrome Syndicate.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE HIPPODROME.

A wonderful simian, almost human—and at first thought to be a specimen of the missing link—was found some two years ago and trained. He was brought to London recently, and examined by Dr. Forbes Winslow, the brain specialist. Dr. Forbes Winslow noted the manner in which the animal's big toes shot right away from the other extremities, and pronounced him a monkey, but a very fine specimen. "Consul," as the animal has been named, was at once "commandeered" by the management of the London Hippodrome, and appeared there on Monday. He had given his trainer considerable uneasiness during his journey from Bournemouth on Sunday, but he is quite the best-conducted of his tribe that we have seen on the stage. The charm about his performance is that he seems to thoroughly enjoy it. Entering on a miniature tricycle, he utters some curious sounds by way of welcome, and dressed as an "exquisite" with top hat takes his place at table for dinner, which he eats while he is introduced. He is a chimpanzee "by birth," and has been in captivity for two years, having attained the age of six. Consul ate his meal on the night of our visit with evident relish, and his behaviour at table was excellent. After his last course he called for a cigarette, which he immediately proceeded to light with a match taken from a silver box presented to him at Bournemouth. After his smoke he scrubs his teeth with a tooth-brush, and undresses for bed. Eventually he rides off triumphantly on his tricycle clapping his hands. He does everything unassisted, and is an intelligent creature whose performance is as puzzling as it is interesting.

A great success is scored by La Scala Opera Company in Mascagni's opera Cavalleria Rusticana. The chief episodes of this popular lyric work are given, without chorus; and it would not be easy to find so accomplished a singer and actress as Mrs. Rousbey in the part of Santuzza. Her voice, of excellent quality and volume, fills the vast building, and it is some time since we have heard the numbers allotted to the part so well interpreted as they were on Monday evening. Mr. John Ridding (baritone), Mr. Edward Arthur (tenor), and Miss Alice René (contralto) gave excellent support, and the quartette were rewarded with several recalls. Newcomers to the Hippodrome since our last visit are the Kaufmann troupe of lady cyclists. Twelve pretty and shapely girls, dressed in neat blue and white costumes, are responsible for some beautifully executed evolutions; and one of them is a trick performer of remarkable skill.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

The old truism that "the best succeeds in the long run" has ofttimes been borne out at this smart little house, but never perhaps with more weight than this week. Certainly the finest box receipts for a very long time have justified the advantage of a programme of surpassing excellence. The one who easily holds pride of place is Peggy Pryde—"at home" at Brighton, but certainly at home in equally affectionate surroundings at Poplar. The old business of the Suffragette has in a measure lost its hold on the public, but Peggy bursts forth fresh and fragrant with an original and legitimate soliloquy under cover of an enticing scena, entitled "Mister Moon." Peggy has a grievance against the "thing called Man," and Peggy knows how to air it; but it does not stop at the masculine gender, and rambling on in delightful mock repartee with the Moon, she lashes out in mock-heroic strains at those "horrid Suffragits," Carrie Nation, and their ilk, and in confidence lets her audience into the secret that in the Territorial Army of the future those "Suffragits" will wear the trousers. Peggy for the week is Poplar's idol, and if applause counts for worship, she rests upon the very pinnacle of fame.

Rita Rylie has also been well received, and so has Alf. Ripon in ventriloquial items. Another who cannot complain of the warmth of his welcome is a deputy for Nat Clifford, who gave some fine burlesque and facial contortions. Frank Harwood has a particularly catchy number, with a special depth of sentiment, which arouses enthusiasm. Margaret Ismay and her White Coons present a novel and pretty dancing scena; Johnson and Burt, in a comedy duo, and Peter Kelly, with some smart patter, strengthen the programme, in which there are a couple of finely played sketches, An Old Man's Idol and A Dog's Devotion, replete with dramatic power, and possessing a succession of thrills. The Queen's Pictures are also a feature.

THE CANTERBURY.

There is a new and interesting dramatic sketch in two scenes, adapted from Sir Walter Scott's novel "Ivanhoe," produced by Mr. Charles Garry, to be seen for the first time this week at the Canterbury. The title and cast are as follows:—

"A DAUGHTER OF ISRAEL,"

Isaac of York ..... MR. CHARLES GARRY
Sir Brian de Bois Gilbert .. MR. EDWARD SORLEY
Front de Bœuf ..... MR. EDMUND LEA
Ulrica ..... MISS LE SAGE
Rebecca ..... MISS GRACE ILLINGWORTH
A Saracen ..... MR. C. PHILLIPS

The first scene is a dungeon in Front de Bœuf's castle, and here we see Rebecca, the daughter of Isaac the Jew, who, along with her father, is the prisoner of Front de Bœuf. It is the intention of the last-mentioned to extract money by means of threats of torture from old Isaac, while it has been arranged that Rebecca shall be given to Sir Brian de Bois Gilbert, who visits the dungeon and imparts to the girl the secret as to his designs towards her. She pleads with him at first; and then angrily repels him, vowing that she will commit suicide if he makes the slightest attempt upon her chastity. The knight is so impressed by her earnestness and purity of character that he undertakes not only to protect her but to escort her to her father. The second scene introduces us to the torture chamber of the castle, and here Front de Bœuf is demanding a thousand pounds in silver from the Jew, who undertakes to find the money rather than be submitted to the horrors of the "grille." But when he is told of what is likely to happen to his daughter, he indignantly refuses to hand over a single penny of his wealth, and in a violent altercation he succeeds in gaining possession of a dagger and fatally stabbing de Bœuf, just as Sir Brian enters with Rebecca and restores her to her father. The piece is capably acted, and the scenes are most appropriate. Mr. Charles Garry brings a remarkable degree of passion to bear upon his enactment of the character of the Jew; and Miss Grace Illingworth acts with realistic forcefulness the rôle of the Jewish maiden Rebecca. Mr. Edmund Lea is seen in a convincing bit of portraiture as the exacting Front de Bœuf, and Mr. Edward Sorley makes a commanding figure and speaks well as Sir Brian de Bois Gilbert; while Miss Le Sage as Ulrica and Mr. C. Phillips as a Saracen also submit able impersonations.

Miss Victoria Monks' delightful vocalisation of the songs "I love only you" and "If you want to have a row" wins for her all the enthusiastic applause which invariably greets this talented artist's efforts. Another artist who is proving extremely popular this week at the Canterbury is Miss Hanid Alexander, who commences an interesting "turn" by an enchanting pianoforte rendering of "For all Eternity," and then sings an amusing song, "Hippopotamus," to her own accompaniment, concluding her efforts with an equally pleasing interpretation of "Sweet Rainbow" and a graceful dance. Mr. W. B. Raby has a most entertaining ditty on the subject of sleep, which is given with much expression; and Mr.

Harry Pleon appears once more in his attractive comedy act. Seiko engages in some exceedingly smart club juggling and china plate throwing; and Mr. George Formby is highly diverting with his Lancashire witticisms. Miss Millie Howell, the sweet-voiced character vocalist, delivers her numbers, "Wedding Bells" and a series of verses on a Darby and Joan subject, in quite an engaging style; and Mr. Chris Van Bern, the "curious comedian," offers a good deal of really laughable patter, the humour of which is intensified by the employment of trick properties, as, for instance, when he suddenly produces a flower in his buttonhole in a most unaccountable manner. Mr. Eric Williams appears in what is described as a costume recital, bestowing his admirable elocution upon his delivery of Mr. G. R. Sims' poem "The Life boat," in connection with which, it may be mentioned, a collection is made among the audience during the evening on behalf of the National Lifeboat Institution. The Oakes, the talented comedy duo, are responsible for many humorous passages, and the quick change of the lady from a costume character to a red-nosed comedienne is an effective and rapid bit of work. The Stellings (Bella and George) give an amazingly neat hat-throwing exhibition in a restaurant scene; and Lotto, Lilo, and Otto earn unbounded praise for their expert trick and comedy cycling. Miss Rose Hamilton creates amusement with her song, "If we all had what we wanted in the world," in which she introduces a few apt topical allusions; and Bob and Jennie Leonard furnish a rare treat with their comedy character act.

A second new sketch this week is entitled

"THE 10 O'CLOCK SQUAD; OR, THE PRIDE OF THE FORCE."

A Musical absurdity, in Two Scenes, by Harry M. Vernon, lyrics by Charles Wilmott, music by Herman E. Darewski, jun.

Inspector Busybody .....Mr. Tom E. Conover
Jim Kennedy .....Mr. Beverley Benjamin
Sergt. Rozzer .....Mr. G. Clifton Yates
Sergt. Williams .....Mr. W. Ridgwell
Tom Leonard .....Mr. Maxwell Stuart
Molly .....Miss Ida Morgan

This is a very exhilarating "episode" of police life, and if it is anything in the nature of a reflection of actualities, then we can well believe that the members of "the force" are an extremely frolicsome lot. Thus we have an eccentric inspector, whose antics prove highly amusing to the rest of the squad. A little girl (Molly) is adopted by them, and an engaging and clever child she turns out to be, for she sings to them in most enchanting fashion. Eventually, however, she is identified as the child of rich and aristocratic parents, who claim her. The scenes, consisting of the exterior and the interior of a police station, have been suitably carried out from the point of view of the scenic artist. Miss Ida Morgan is a delightful and winsome little personage as Molly, and she gives a very pretty and tuneful rendering of her vocal numbers, including "Molly" and "Won't you come to tea, boys?" Mr. Tom E. Conover is excruciatingly funny as Inspector Busybody, and his rendering of "Oh, the Police!" is much relished. The other members of the cast furnish able support, assisted by the chorus of housemaids, military maids, constables, and prisoners. Altogether this musical absurdity is refreshingly entertaining. Ruffell's Bioscope projects a few attractive films. It is satisfactory to note that under the new management of Mr. Charles W. Adams the Canterbury is receiving abundant patronage from people of the neighbourhood, and that the house is packed nightly.

PECKHAM HIPPODROME.

Mr. Cecil Paget, who so long has presided over the destinies of the popular Peckham house, is now busily engaged in welcoming his two-houses-a-night audiences, who greatly appreciate the ample feast of fun, music, and dramatic sensation which is put before them. The programme commences with the appearance of Missano, an expert conjurer made up à la Captain Kettle, who is worthy of a better place on the bill. This gentleman manipulates coins, cards, and rings in a most amazing manner, obtaining a very hearty reception at the close. Miss Dora Daly is a young lady who, with more experience, should do well. She possesses a pleasing voice, and renders effectively a good chorus song, "Your home, sweet home." A rather novel turn is provided by Olive and Owen, the gentleman appearing as a mender of pots and pans, and the lady looking very attractive in gipsy dress. They sang with much success in harmonised duets, "Come back to Erin" and other favourite melodies.

Walton and Lester, described as "the world's worst wizards," appear most grotesquely made up, and sing "Bathing in the sea." Subsequently they come on again as a red-nosed professor of magic and a stout, red-haired boy in an Eton jacket. Uproarious fun is caused by their burlesque tricks, which culminates with the fat boy being forcibly pushed into a cannon, in spite of his loud protestation. A dummy figure of a boy suddenly pops out of a box on the other side of the stage, and the professor claims that he has fired his young friend there.

Miss Amy Clevere, looking radiantly handsome in a light blue bespangled dress, sings very sweetly "Pretty little Dresden china" and "Ain't you got a black moon up there?" thoroughly pleasing her audience. Farley, Rennie, and Farley provide some very funny knockabout business in their act, Fun at a Railway Station. The shorter of the two gentlemen represents a railway porter; he is a very clever acrobat, and can apparently twist himself into knots. The remaining gentleman as Bertie, the dude, and the lady as a would-be passenger at "Drowsy Town," where the next train "starts at six to four," ably aid the fun-making. Mr. George Campbell, a North Country comedian with considerable dry humour, scores well with his song, "I rattled my money-box," and gave some amusing patter. A very favourite turn, and perhaps a good advertisement for the Territorials, are the Gordon Highlanders, twelve in number, who go most excellently through their lightning drill, and in a marvellous manner scale a wall, making strong appeal, to judge by the hearty cheering, to the patriotic sentiments of the audience. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is an old favourite, and pleases us with some good films of work done by the Fire Brigade.

The excellent programme concludes with Mrs. John Lawson and company in their well-known sketch, The Devil's Sunday, which tells the tale of a man's infatuation and a woman's greed and vice. Mrs. Lawson looks very handsome as Mrs. Faber, delineating with many skilful touches the evil nature of the extravagant and heartless young wife. Two gentlemen whose names are not on the bill act very well as the revengeful young husband, David Faber, and the elderly roué, Lord Harrington. The sketch is well mounted and enthusiastically received. With its former prices greatly reduced, and its interior now reupholstered and recarpeted, the Peckham Hippodrome should prove a permanent attraction to the good folks of South London.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

As usual, Mr. George Dance has provided an excellent all-round company here this week; as a result, excellent business is being done, and full houses have been the rule. "Money" is the title of Merry Maidie Barker's contribution, and is quite delightfully rendered by this bright little comedienne. With a reputation of some quality, George Gilbey was soon in form, and the house roared at his witticisms. George got away by poking fun at the Fourth Estate generally; then he waxed confidential, and discussed "little things that make you think." Stone and Tracey, clever artists, sing with considerable charm; they "dress" their songs delightfully. "It is of a simple country maiden" that charming Madge Beresford sings. In quite a naïve way Madge told of the rapid rise of Gertie from the bucolic surroundings of the country. Miss Beresford was enthusiastically received.

There is a rage just now for Hebrew impersonations, and one can find no fault with Hayman and Franklyn, in a screaming scena, entitled A Matrimonial Agency; roars of merriment punctuated the efforts of this amusing pair. Miss Nelly Lunelle expressed vocally her admiration for a certain drummer boy who is to be felicitated; but it is as a dancer rather than a vocalist that Nelly won her way right into the hearts of the gallery boys. She did a skipping dance which resulted in a salvo of applause. There is a distinct air of novelty about the act of Heeley and Meeley, a couple of irresponsible wags whose antics are responsible for a lot of merriment; as eccentric acrobats Heeley and Meeley are right away in the first rank.

Jack Smiles, fresh from his Coliseum triumphs, was in fine form, and delighted the audience with his peculiar ditty "For months, and months, and months." Quite an acceptable trifle is this. Jack's dance resulted in a perfect torrent of applause, for he foots it quite as cleverly as he sings. Humanity, interpreted by Mr. John Lawson and company, left nothing to be desired; and especial mention may be made of Mr. Lawson, and Mr. J. Powell as Cuthbert. Mr. C. W. Richardson presides over a capable orchestra, and deftly keeps things together, and the front of the house is admirably looked after by Mr. Fred H. Trussell, than whom there is no more courteous manager on the road. All things point to prosperity at Richmond

BENEVOLENT FUND WORK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Allow me through your paper to convey my best thanks to the committee of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund. Having received information that a performer was lying ill, I visited him, and found him in great need of medical aid and in an almost starving condition. I at once went to the V.A.B. Fund, stated the case, and they, with their usual kindness, immediately donated a sum of money. With one of their committeemen I returned to the poor fellow. Nourishing food was procured, a doctor sent for, and the invalid was made as comfortable as possible, and I am pleased to say he has much improved.

Allow me to again thank the committee on behalf of this poor brother artist, who is very grateful to them. As for myself, the courtesy shown by the V.A.B.F. committee is not likely to be forgotten by yours faithfully,

BENJ. WOODGER,
Secretary Music-hall Home.

MR. A. E. PICKARD.

THE WELL-KNOWN GLASGOW AMUSEMENT CATERER.

Mr. A. E. Pickard, the well-known Glasgow amusement caterer, is a gentleman of more than ordinary and versatile parts. His business tact and acumen are en evidence in the way he runs the Britannia Panopticon, in the Trongate, the American Museum close by, and the Gaiety Theatre, Clydebank, while his own bonhomme, kindliness, and courtesy have made him universally popular. He is a good-hearted, free-handed honest, honourable Englishman, of which we are proud in whatever part of the globe we find him.

MR. A. E. PICKARD.

Mr. Pickard was born at Horton, near Bradford, in the year 1874, so that he is a genuine Yorkshireman. On leaving school he went to the printing trade, but it was quite unsuited for his taste, so he took to engineering. During a period of extreme trade depression throughout the country, he bade adieu to Yorkshire and became a wandering showman. After a time he made the "little village" his headquarters, where during the winter he ran sideshows at the Royal Aquarium and the Agricultural Hall. Mr. Pickard next turned his abilities to account in Paris (1897 Exposition), Lyons, Marseilles, and Monte Carlo. He returned to London, and opened amusement resorts in the city and suburbs—Oxford-street, Camden Town, Hammersmith, and Borough. In 1904 he arrived in Glasgow, and became proprietor of Fell's American Museum and Waxworks at 101, Trongate, Mr. Fell having sold out and retired from business. In the summer of 1905 the old Britannia Music Hall was taken over by him. A distinct boon has been conferred on lovers of entertainment in Scotland by the enterprise of Mr. Pickard in providing a fancy fair, roof gardens, and a zoological collection, and in catering to variety taste in the most careful and consistent manner. It was a good stroke of business as well as a welcome action to all Glasgow lovers of entertainment when he rescued the old "Brit" from the slough of despond and neglect into which it had fallen. He spent a lot of money on it, and reopened its doors on July, 9, 1906. Last year Mr. Pickard became lessee of the Clydebank Theatre, which, like the "Brit," had fallen on evil days. With bad trade against him, but with his own pluck in his favour, Mr. Pickard made a start, opening his doors on Sept. 14, 1908. It is pleasant to record that he has been successful. He took a wise step in instituting popular prices, and he spares no effort to induce first-class variety artists to visit his theatre in the Clydeside burgh.

"Yes," said Mr. Pickard to an Era representative, "the Britannia Panopticon has come to stay. When it was reopened in 1906 the pessimists declared that it would have a short life and not a merry one. These fine prophets based their ideas on the records of previous music hall entertainments, which only failed because they were not run on the proper lines. Yes, the daily variety entertainments at the 'Brit' are four in number—two in the afternoon and two in the evening. It is my greatest pride to know that my entertainment is regarded as an entertainment to which parents can bring their families without fear of offence. There is no doubt that animated photography holds a high place in our variety entertainments to-day. I was the first to introduce the chronophone—singing and talking picture—into Britain. I showed them at the 'Brit' on a Saturday two days before they were shown at the London Hippodrome. I am continually introducing fresh novelties and attractions, no expense being spared to bring everything right bang up to date and ahead of the times. By the by, W. Ashmore Gill broke the world's record in club swinging by three hours at the 'Brit.' He swung the clubs daily for 12½ hours for six days—a wonderful performance.

"Victor Beaute, the Swiss fasting man, was the biggest sensational hit at my American Museum. The way I advertised the performance had a good deal to do with the sensation created. The public were really expecting to see me marched off to prison on a charge of culpable homicide, so convinced were they that Beaute could not succeed in the test that he set himself. Of course it was a wonderful feat of endurance to fast for forty days, but he knew perfectly well before he tried it that he could come through it all right. Then, this was a new business for the people of Glasgow. I don't think there had been a fasting man in the city for something like forty years—since the time of Dr. Tanner. The most interesting personage ever I exhibited was a dwarf called Tom Thumb. He was, to my mind, the smallest human being ever exhibited, being only 23in. high, 12in. shorter than the original General Tom Thumb exhibited by Barnum. To watch the little gentleman grinning at an audience from the inside of an ordinary silk hat was, as an old country lady remarked, 'a sicht for sair een.'

"What do I think of the present roller-skating craze? This popular pastime to-day is as marked a feature of British sport as golf or football. Every day great skating rinks are being opened all over the country. I am not afraid to say that roller-skating has a long life before it. The public taste in the matter of entertainments has undergone great changes in recent years. The public take their pleasure in tabloid doses—many and often. The times are too strenuous for the one show a night variety show of ten and twenty years ago. Britain is rapidly becoming Americanised. A good job, too, or Yankees know how to get more out of life than most other people. What the toiling masses of this country want is more pleasure fairs, carnivals, and White Cities, with their great water-chutes, dragon slides, gravitation railways, mystic rivers, airships, jungle and Bisley rifle ranges, games of skill, and other sideshows. For toil-worn people the fun and hilarity of a pleasure fair was an effective medicine and corrective. In a few years time the open-air carnivals will be as popular with the public as the variety theatres are to-day."

KITTEE RAYBURN.

THE GIRL IN BLACK AND WHITE. ON TOUR.

Pullen's Kent Argus.—To Miss Kittee Rayburn the principal honours must be accorded, and at the Palace Theatre, Ramsgate, she soon became a popular favourite.

Thanet Advertiser.—Miss Kittee Rayburn soon took pride of place, and she speedily ensured the approbation of the house.

Hastings Pictorial.—In Miss Kittee Rayburn we have a vivacious Prince, who acts and sings charmingly. Her songs bring down the house.

Hastings Argus.—The principal attraction is Miss Kittee Rayburn. This popular lady is Prince Amaroso. Her Canadian song at once caught on and will be voted one of the best things in the pantomime.

Hastings and St. Leonards Weekly Mail.—Miss Kittee Rayburn as the Prince cuts a handsome figure. She is full of vitality, and there is no mistaking the almost affectionate reception she has won at the Gaiety.

The Era, Jan. 30.—Miss Kittee Rayburn came to Hastings with a big reputation which she fully maintained.

Kent Messenger (Maidstone).—Mr. Phillips's successful pantomime, "Little Red Riding Hood," is at the Palace Theatre. The Prince Amarosa is in the thoroughly capable hands of Miss Kittee Rayburn, whose acting and singing is a great success.

The Stage, Feb. 4.—First place in the charming pantomime at the Palace Theatre, Maidstone, must be given to Miss Kittee Rayburn, who soon sings herself into favour, and uses her voice to advantage.

G. Brydon Phillips, Esq., writes, Feb. 6:—Must thank you for your most admirable work in my pantomime "Little Red Riding Hood," and, despite your great success, your duties were carried out in a most conscientious manner from first to last, and with distinct fairness to your brother and sister artists.

Wentworth Croke, Esq., writes, Jan. 27:—There is no doubt in the pantomime you made a big personal hit at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith.

Mr. Fred Neiman, having concluded his arrangements with the De Frece Circuit, has transferred his agency to his former address, viz., 108, Strand, W.C., where he will be pleased to see all clients.

The ubiquity of the animated picture photographer has become strongly marked during the past year, but never more so than last week, when but little over thirty hours after the arrival of the King and Queen at Berlin visitors to the Palace Theatre were enabled to witness the event on the Urbanora Bioscope. These were exclusively shown by Mr. Charles Urban, who, on behalf of the Palace Theatre, dispatched a special corps of expert operators to accompany the Royal Party.

The glittering scenes at the station, where the Emperor and Empress received their guests, scenes and incidents en route in Unter den Linden, and finally the arrival within the castle are graphically depicted. The series, taken by special permission of the authorities, is being added to each evening, and thus the public have an opportunity of following all the movements of the Royal party on their historic sojourn in the German capital.

Miss Winifred Hare opens on March 1 at the Empire, Liverpool, for one week, and then returns to London and the Oxford and Mr. Walter Gibbons's halls on March 15, with new songs and dresses. Meanwhile Miss Hare goes to Cork on Monday with the same pantomime in which she has been appearing in Dublin. The stay in Cork will be for a fortnight. Last Tuesday at Dublin Miss Hare was presented by the management with a beautiful floral cushion, the design being in wild flowers with a large white hare jumping over them. The "boys" of the company also gave her a bouquet, and dropped into poetry.

The interesting series of "Talks About Old London," contributed to our contemporary the Evening News by old citizens, is about to be enriched by a contribution by Little Thomas, the celebrated corner-man of the Mohawk-Moore and Burgess Minstrels, now in his seventieth year. The veteran, whose voice is as powerful as ever, and who was seen striding towards Carmelite-street on Thursday, with all his faculties unimpaired, for the purpose of being interviewed—he does not even wear glasses—sang on Friday night last at no fewer than four concerts—giving four songs at the Polytechnic, four at the Café Monico, a like number at Barnsbury Hall, and two at Myddleton Hall, Islington; and this week he journeyed to St. Albans to assist at an entertainment organised by Mr. Dunn, the hatter. Mr. Thomas celebrates his golden wedding on March 16 by a grand Bohemian Concert at Stanley Hall, Junction-road, Tufnell Park, which is exactly opposite the tube station of that name, and already offers of assistance and applications for tickets are reaching his residence at 84, Huddlestone-road, N.7 from admirers of the sturdy old man who has always been so willing to give his services for brother and sister artists.

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

1,878½ SHILLINGS.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Brecon Pleasure Fairs.

For some time past the executive officials of the Showmen's Guild have been in correspondence with the Brecon Corporation concerning their pleasure fairs. The questions at issue arose over a petition of a few residents against the continuance of the fair in the heart of the town. It is never the policy of the Guild to oppose the removal of a street fair to a properly-provided and municipally-controlled fairground; but rather to co-operate with the local authorities to make the fair more successful under modern and improved conditions. An example of this may be seen at Gloucester. The circumstances at Brecon are peculiar. Up to quite recent times the market tolls were in private hands, and the fair being held in the streets on convenient sites was under Corporation control, and brought in a profit to the easement of public burdens. Now the Corporation have purchased the market tolls, and the fairs and markets are public property.

The Extended Days of the Fairs.

During the past fifteen years the fairs have grown in popularity, and the Corporation has wisely recognised the needs of the people for extended opportunities of enjoying the amusements of the fair. It is now a five-days' fair.

The Minority of Residents Against the Fair.

The insistent minority who wish to remove the fair threaten to compel the Corporation to limit the people's fair to its old legal days—the 4th and the 5th days of May and the 17th and the 18th days of November, irrespective of what days in the week these dates may fall upon. The modern custom has been to hold the fair the first week in both May and November. It will be seen at once that the threat to compel the Corporation to reduce the fair days to two only, and to stick to the legal dates only is practically a threat to destroy the business value of the fair. For the show-people the fixture would lose two-thirds its present value, and the people would be deprived of their full opportunities for rational open-air amusement.

The Petition of the Objectors to the Fairs.

The petitioners made the usual vague accusations against the conditions of show-van life, in order to frighten timid people and to strengthen their attack on the Fair Rights of the people. The Guild chaplain, in an able and trenchant letter, dealt with the petition. We published the chaplain's defence of the showpeople in our issue of Oct. 24, 1908.

The Guild Joins Hands with the Corporation.

The Town Clerk of Brecon made it quite clear to the Guild executive council that the Corporation were as anxious as the Guild to preserve the fair on its modern and acceptable lines. This was shown in the following communication:—

"Town Clerk's Office,
"Brecon, Nov. 17, 1908.

"Dear Sir,—I am directed by my Council to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th ult., with reference to the petition recently received as to the pleasure fairs in Brecon and the showmen's living vans attending same, and am to inform you that the Council have made no accusation against them.

"Do you know of any case in which the Secretary of State has increased the days of holding pleasure fairs in streets on application made under the Fairs Act, 1873? If you do, I shall be very glad if you could let me know before next Thursday week, and also if, in the event of my Council making such an application, would your Guild be prepared to assist them in any way.—Yours truly,

"G. Hyatt Williams, Town Clerk.

"Rev. T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain Showmen's Guild, care of The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C."

The Guild at once promised to co-operate with the Corporation, and to join in the petition to the Home Secretary to perpetuate the fairs on modern lines.

As recently as Jan. 14 last the Guild received the following letter from the Town Clerk. It is needless to say that the Guild at once assented, and the executive officers took the necessary steps to support the petition:—

"Town Clerk's Office,
"Brecon, Jan. 14, 1909.

"Dear Sir,—Adverting to your letter of Nov. 18 last with reference to the Brecon May and November pleasure fairs, I have now to inform you that my Council has decided to petition the Secretary of State to extend the days for holding these fairs, and I send you herewith a copy of the petition, which I trust your Guild will support.

"I am writing to-day to the county Member of Parliament, asking him to present the petition, and I will let you know when it is to be presented.—Yours truly, "G. Hyatt Williams, Town Clerk.

"Rev. T. Horne, care of The Era,
5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C."

Strong Local Support for the Corporation.

The people of Brecon have rallied to the support of their fairs. The following is the petition of over six hundred ratepayers in favour of continuing the fairs on their present lines:—

"TO THE MAYOR AND CORPORATION OF BRECON.

"May it please you:

"We, being burgesses of the borough, desire respectfully to point out to you that for about fifteen years it has been the practice to continue the May and November fairs during five days in the first weeks of those months.

"This custom has proceeded without interference or protest from any body of ratepayers during the whole of that period, but we now learn that a petition has been sent to you by a small body of the ratepayers, asking you to limit the number of days in each month to two, and, further, that you have been threatened with an injunction at law if you do not accede to their request.

"We would remind you that under the present system large numbers of persons are brought into the town by train and also by road from the neighbouring villages, and that the crowds of people thus attracted to the town much increases the volume of business, and so materially adds to the prosperity of the general trade of the borough, which has no manufactory of any kind upon which to depend for its commercial well-being. We, therefore, consider that any steps taken to diminish the attendance of visitors to the town will considerably affect its financial interest.

"We would also add that during the past few years you have secured at heavy cost the whole of the property and rights of the old Brecon Markets Company, and that you have spent large sums of money to carry out improvements and enlarge the area of these markets. To effect the purchase of these improvements you have charged the tolls of the borough with loans amounting to many thousands of pounds, and to meet the interest upon these loans a considerable sum is annually required.

"The markets and fairs of the borough have, during the past fifteen years, materially increased in importance, and the tolls have advanced from about £300 to £800 annually.

"We greatly fear that if you proceed to interfere with the present arrangements of these fairs you will by this disorganisation so affect the fairs that the tolls will diminish.

"That being so, you will be driven, in order to meet the charges upon your markets account, to resort to a levy upon the rates for that purpose, and such a contingency we contemplate with some alarm, in view of the increased burdens already placed upon us by the poor rate and the rate you now levy.

"We therefore petition you to resist the efforts now being made to compel you to limit the fairs of May and November to two days each respectively, and, if necessary, that you will yourselves petition the Hon. the Home Secretary to grant the borough such powers as will legally enable you to continue to hold the May and November fairs for five days in the first week of each month, as has been the custom during the fifteen years last past.

"And we will ever pray, &c., &c."

Awaiting the Home Secretary's Decision.

When the matter comes before the Home Secretary for his decision, the Guild will strongly support the Corporation's application to legalise the five days' Fair, and will, of course, strongly oppose the petitioners who wish to kill the fair under the pretence of removing it from its present excellent position. The animus of the movement to remove it is fully revealed when we state that the Corporation have no suitable site of business value at their disposal. To provide one would for years burden the town rates. The greatest reason for retaining the fairs on their present position is that the people want them there. "Let the will of the people prevail."

Attack on Bedford Fair.

At the recent meeting of the Bedford Borough Council a discussion arose on the question of the fairs. Although nothing was determined of an adverse character to the continuance of the fairs, Dr. Willmer Phillips, the Medical Officer of Health, made a most alarming speech, conjuring up all possible bogies of evil, to frighten the good people of Bedford. There is nothing so unfair as for a medical man (holding high office in the town) to get up and make a violently partisan speech on a question that contrary opinions may and do prevail. In every town there are a few persons who believe that fairs have outlived their usefulness, and that the sooner they are abolished the better. These men we have always to contend with.

The Guild Chaplain, at the request of the show-people attending the fairs, has taken the matter up, and the following letter has been sent to the Borough Council:

"The Showmen's Guild of Great Britain.
"President.....Mr. P. Collins.
"Hon Secretary.....Mr. T. Hurst.
"Chaplain and Organiser..Rev. T. Horne.
"Guild Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.
"Feb. 9, 1909.

"THE MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH AND BEDFORD FAIR.

"To the Mayor and Corporation of Bedford.

"Gentlemen,—The attention of this Society has been drawn to certain statements of your Medical Officer, Dr. Willmer Phillips. If correctly reported in the local Press his remarks were of the most damaging character to the showmen and vandwellers attending your pleasure fairs.

"This Guild exists for the purpose (inter alia) of defending showmen whenever attacked unjustly, either with regard to their moral or social fitness, or their business interests.

"The council of this Society are confident that the Corporation (whilst of necessity paying the greatest respect to the opinion of their medical expert) will at the same time deal justly with the showmen.

"The damaging statements to which we call your attention are contained in the following report of his speech:—

"'Speaking as Medical Officer he advocated it (the abolition of the fair) primarily on the grounds of the public health, but as a citizen of this town he could not refrain from expressing his emphatic conviction that there were other, and not less important, grounds on which the change might be advocated. Bedford was now a town of forty thousand inhabitants, and largely dependent for its prosperity—even for its existence—upon its good repute from the health point of view. Twice a year from all parts of the country came a collection into this town of a nomad population. It was impossible for the health authorities of the country to exercise a rigid sanitary control while this van population exposed them to a risk of an epidemic.

"'He had not been able to prove to his own satisfaction that the rise and fall of epidemics of scarlet fever were directly due to the presence of the van population, but he thought that he was well within the mark in saying that there were always a few dropping cases of scarlet fever, and even, perhaps of diphtheria, following the fair. Post hoc was not propter hoc, but he would ask the Council to take that into consideration. There was another disease of which the whole community had a well-grounded terror, and that was small-pox. There was no doubt that it was carried about by the tramp class and a nomad population generally. He asked them whether, in a town dependent for its prosperity on its reputation as a health resort, it was not imperative to abolish that risk of importing that disease. He could not say that it had happened, but it might happen. He had no wish to interfere with the legitimate amusements of the population, but he respectfully submitted that in these days of other amusements and innocent recreations, the social conditions had outgrown the old fairs. Proceeding, Dr. Phillips expressed the opinion that the fair once subserved a useful and necessary function in the life of the community, but that that function had vanished, and the fair now remained a more or less dubious means of amusement which was carried on, perhaps to the profit of the show-people, but at the imminent risk twice a year of importing an epidemic which might cost the town tens of thousands of pounds. It was his intention to recommend in his annual report that the fairs be abolished by proper means.'

"The Executive Council of the Guild ask for some plain facts, that may be subjected to the honest tests of verification that will justify the extremely libellous and alarming statements of your Medical Officer of Health. This Society is prepared to take immediate steps, at all costs, and to spare no trouble to investigate the charges of your Medical Officer. The publicity given to the matter in the public Press makes it imperatively necessary that this should be done.

"It is impossible to imagine statements more damaging and calumnious upon the life and work of show-people that those I have quoted above. Let it be well understood that all the health and sanitary laws of the realm apply with equal rigour and vigour to the movable home of the showman as to the fixed home of the dweller in towns. It is a confession either of ignorance of the law governing his office or of incompetence to grasp the full measure of his duties that your Medical Officer should make such alarming statements.

"The show-people who attend your fair do not come from all parts of the country, but they are practically the same showmen, who, starting at the great Easter fairs controlled by the London County Council, go forth upon circuit, taking one or two fairs every week, stretching in time from Easter until the end of November. This circuit of fairs brings them week by week under the immediate attention of the medical officers and the sanitary authorities of the towns that they serve with their amusements at the statutory and other fairs.

"It is not a promiscuous and uncertain aggregation of human units, but it is a well recognised, well ordered and protected industry, that visits your town at your pleasure fairs. It is my privilege to know the show-people of Great Britain as perhaps no other man has taken the pains and devoted the time to understand them. I hold the authority of the Bishops of the Church to carry on an educational and religious work amongst them, and I protest with all the certitude of inside and expert knowledge of their life, which Dr. Phillips obviously cannot have (as yet) obtained.

"I know them to be honest, industrious, and loyal citizens of the Commonwealth, to be as cleanly in their domestic concerns and as moral and as good in all the concerns of life as any other class in the community. With the greatest possible confidence in the result of an impartial investigation I challenge Dr. Phillips to give proof of his extremely alarming and damaging statements.

"In the name of the organised showmen of Great Britain I deny everyone of his statements reflecting either upon the cleanliness of van life or upon the risks attending their migration from town to town, as a menace to public health.—Yours ever, for God and for good, "T. Horne."

The Seriousness of the Aspersions of Show-life.

The Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild has before it the urgency of the duty of making a stern example of people who make such grave and damaging statements. Of the showmen for hundreds of years past it might truly have been said "that suffrance is the badge of all our tribe." The time has now arrived, owing to the better organisation of the showmen of the empire, to give someone a salutary lesson, and to make them understand that even the showman "worm" will turn at last.

Maesteg.

The annual (February) flannel and pleasure fair was held on Monday and Tuesday. Pleasure seekers were well catered for by Messrs. Wadbrook's cinematograph and palace of varieties, J. Studt's motor-cars, and T. Butlin's zoological roundabouts. Messrs. J. North, J. Scott, and T. Butlin were in attendance with their shooting ranges, cokernut shies, and hoop-la stalls.

The Annual Guild Meeting at King's Lynn.

Next week being Lynn Mart, the annual meeting, always a feature of the Mart, will take place, as usual, in the Town Hall, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of Wednesday, the 17th. The Mayor of Lynn and other local gentlemen are invited to take part in the proceedings. The speakers will include the President, the Chaplain, the Parliamentary Solicitor, the Hon. Secretary, and others.

Alteration of Fair Date at Usk.

The Secretary of State for the Home Department gives notice in the London Gazette that on Feb. 26 he will consider an application to change the present fair dates, the third Monday in April and October, to aforesaid dates, the 20th of April and the 29th of October; or the following Monday, if these dates fall on Sunday. Will showmen using Usk Fair make sure that the new dates suit their business?

Alteration of Summer Fair Date at Bolton.

An important conference took place a few days ago at Bolton between Mr. R. Pike, acting for the Corporation, and Mr. T. Hurst, acting for the organised showmen. The subject-matter of the conference has been under consideration since the alteration by the local traders of the annual summer holidays from Whitsuntide to the last week in June. It was mutually agreed to drop the old Whitsun Week Fair, and to hold a Holiday Fair instead, beginning on June 25 and lasting a full week.

Is Hoop-la an Illegal Game?

Mr. Biron, one of London's ablest stipendary magistrates, decided, after hearing the evidence in full, that it was a game of skill and not gambling. Another case brought by the police was heard at Hyde, Manchester. In this case Mr. T. Watson Wright was for the defendant, and, in the end, the magistrates dismissed the case. From various parts of the country we hear of the police stopping the game, and of magistrates supporting the action of the police.

A Test Case to be Taken.

Arising out of a conviction against an amusement caterer with the hoop-la game at Rawtenstall, a meeting of hoop-la proprietors was held in Manchester last week. It was resolved to form a Throwing Game Proprietors' Protection Committee in connection (we understand) with the Lancashire and Cheshire Stallholders' Society. Amongst the well-known caterers present, or identifying themselves fully with the meeting and its objects, were Messrs. R. Ingham, T. Forshaw, R. Deeks, J. White, F. Smith, T. Tyas, T. Fitzpatrick, J. Jewell, J. Gill, H. Thomas, J. Ingham, E. Brennan, W. Turner, H. Saunt, J. Joy, A. Thomas, W. Pullan, H. Smith, A. Matthews, J. Herbert, and J. S. Beckett.

Preference to be Given to Guild Members.

Rule 20 of the Guild says: "To promote the interests of the Association it is recommended to all members who may be lessees of ground, or others who may have the letting thereof, to give preference in letting and sub-letting to members of the Association." We are glad to announce that a number of the leading lessees of fairgrounds have arrived at the wise decision to apply the rule in letting ground to applicants. This will mean that in setting out the ground tenants will be asked to produce their books of membership, and those who have them will be served first. Amongst the lessees who have announced their intention to enforce this salutary rule are Messrs. P. and J. Collins, T. Hurst, John and Jacob Studt, and (we understand) George Green, of Glasgow. We shall be glad to add to this list. Will other lessees write in and give us their names?

Notes from Wales.

Mrs. M. C. Sinclair's Victoria Theatre, situated on the Market Ground at Bridgend, South Wales, has been attracting good audiences during the past five or six weeks. Mrs. Sinclair, of principal boy fame in her younger days, occasionally performs and delights her audiences. The staff of artists are above the average found in portable theatres, and a series of excellent dramas are being presented.

Carmarthen.

Mr. Harry Cowell, of the Phœnix Theatre, brought his three months' season at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground to a close on Monday evening with the production of Mulldoon's Picnic, which was admirably performed. Before the termination of the proceedings, Mr. Harry Cowell thanked the public of Carmarthen for the patronage which they had extended to him during his short stay, and wished them every success in the future.

White City (Old Trafford).

As seen by advertisement on another page, this amusement park opens again on May 15 with many fresh attractions for the third season. The park will previously open on Good Friday and the eight following days, and it is proposed to have concerts on that day and on Sundays. These concerts promise to be exceedingly popular. Meantime, the magnificent ballroom and the fine skating-rink continue to be well patronised.

OPPOSITION TO THE OLDHAM CORPORATION BILL.

On Thursday, Feb. 4, a deputation from the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild, consisting of the president (Mr. P. Collins), the hon. secretary (Mr. T. Hurst), and the organiser (the Rev. T. Horne), laid the views of the organised showmen against the Oldham Bill before the Markets and Fairs Committee of the Corporation at the Town Hall.

The Rev. T. Horne for the deputation fully and concisely explained the Guild's objections to 109 clause seeking a monopoly of Fair Rights in the Borough. He pointed out how such powers if obtained would cripple the fairground industry within the borough. He quoted from the Halifax Corporation Bill of 1902 how such powers were sought by that borough, and showed how on the petition of the Guild, after an exhaustive argument lasting three days by eminent counsel on both sides, that objectionable clauses were thrown out. He intimated clearly to the committee present that the Guild stood for free trade in fairs, and that the showmen would oppose at every stage the Oldham Bill unless the Markets and Fairs Clause, section 109, in their proposed bill were thrown out, that is so far as affected the right to hold a fair or wakes within the borough.

Statement by the Guild President.

In answer to a question as what did the showmen specifically object to in the clause, Mr. P. Collins informed the committee that inside their borough were two important local wakes—wakes of great local popularity—one of these being Hollinwood. That to deprive the showmen of the right to continue these fairs without the licence of the corporation was an invasion of the trade privileges they had hitherto enjoyed. He endorsed all that Mr. Horne had set out so cleverly, and he emphasised the position of the Guild—that it stood for free trade in fairs, and resented all attempts to restrict their right to promote or to open up new fairs and centres for their business as amusement caterers.

The Chairman of the Markets and Fairs Committee said that they had listened to the statements of the deputation—statements that they would fully consider—and that the Parliamentary Committee would meet that evening and receive the matter upon their report to that body. He thanked the deputation for attending, and intimated that the reply of the Corporation would be sent without delay to the executive officials at the Guild. The business then being ended, the Guild deputation withdrew.

The Reply of the Corporation.

"Town Clerk's Office, Town Hall, Oldham.

"Dear Sir,— "Feb. 5, 1909.

"OLDHAM CORPORATION BILL (Markets and Fairs).

"Adverting to the interview between the deputation from the Showmen's Guild to the Markets Committee of this Corporation, which took place yesterday afternoon in reference to Clause 109 of the above Bill, the matter was afterwards considered by the committee, and I was instructed to inform you that they cannot see their way to accede to the wishes of the deputation, as this would mean withdrawing the clause so far as fairs are concerned, and this the committee are not prepared to do.—Yours faithfully,

"J. H. Hallsworth,
"Rev. T. Horne, "Town Clerk.

Immediate Action of the Guild.

As Feb. 12 was the last day for lodging a petition against the Bill the Executive official lost no time in sending on the necessary petition, as follows:—

In Parliament. House of Commons.—Session 1909.

OLDHAM CORPORATION BILL.

Petition Against the Bill Praying to be Heard by Counsel.

To the Honourable the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled.

The Humble Petition of the United Kingdom Showmen and Vandwellers' Protection Association.

Sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter referred to as "the Bill") has been deposited in the Private Bill Office of your Honourable House, intituled "A Bill to authorise the Corporation of Oldham to construct additional Waterworks Tramways and Street Improvements; to confer further powers with respect to the supply of Gas and Electricity; to make further provision for the Health Local Government and Improvements of the Borough; and for other purposes."
2. The promoters of the Bill are the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Oldham (in the Bill and hereinafter called "the Corporation").
3. Your Petitioners are an Association founded in the year 1890 for the protection of the interests of roundabout proprietors, showmen, and stallholders. The Association includes a number of persons who for the purposes of their calling have habitually resorted and still do resort to the Borough of Oldham. The property, rights, and interests of such persons are injuriously affected by the Bill, and your Petitioners object thereto for the reasons hereinafter appearing.
4. Clause 109 of the Bill is as follows:—"If any person shall without the licence of the Corporation on any land belonging or reputed to belong to or occupied by him in any part of the borough hold or permit to be held any market or fair he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds and to a daily penalty not exceeding ten pounds."
5. Your Petitioners humbly submit that to place it within the power of the Corporation to prevent the holding of a pleasure fair on land belonging to and occupied by private persons would not only be a great injustice to the members of your Petitioners' Association, but a serious infringement of the rights of landowners, and would also be likely to produce great inconvenience to the public at large.
6. It has been for some years past the settled policy of Parliament not to allow clauses similar to Clause 109 of the Bill to be included in Private Bills, such clauses having been rejected on several occasions.
7. The Preamble of the Bill in so far as it relates to the matters aforesaid is unfounded and incapable of proof.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honourable House that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that they may be heard by their Counsel, Agents, and Witnesses against the Preamble and Clauses thereof, and, in the event of the Preamble being proved, then in support of such Clauses and Provisions as may be necessary for their protection and benefit, and that your Honourable House may grant to your Petitioners such further and other relief in the premises as to your Honourable House may seem meet.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

For and on behalf of the United Kingdom Showmen and Vandwellers' Protection Association.

P. Collins, President,
T. Hurst, Secretary,
T. Horne (Rev.), Organiser.

What Stands Before Showmen.

Having defeated Halifax in 1902 after a most costly opposition, the showmen would be neglecting their most important interests if they allowed Oldham to obtain what Halifax failed to get. There are more issues than monopoly rights in fairs at stake.

The industrial development of great centres means great changes, and consequent migration of the workers. Districts that fifty years ago were profitable centres for the show business have ceased to be of any trade value. Owing to the changing condition of trade, the right to open up new fairs, and to follow the people in their necessary migrations in search of work is a prime necessity of the industry of the fairground, without let or hindrance from corporations. The showman, like any other man, claims the right under the protection and sanction of the law of the land to carry on his trade and business.

It is a constant source of amazement to us that corporations like Oldham, where trade unionism is the very breath of industrial life, should refuse to recognise that showmen, like other workers in the Commonwealth, are entitled to combine and to protect their interests.

Anyhow, Oldham, like Halifax, will find that the showmen will fight them at every stage in both House of Parliament.

A VETERAN PIONEER OF TRADE DEFENCE IN SHOWLAND.

An exceedingly valuable and most interesting letter from Mr. Caddick, photographer, now in winter quarters at the Fun City Annexe, Olympia (his third season there), was crowded out of our pages last week.

We gladly give Mr. Caddick's letter the prominence it deserves at the earliest possible moment. The letter (characteristic of the man) tells its own tale. We are sure that the whole body of showmen and fairground caterers and traders will rejoice to hear his words of sound wisdom on a matter in which he is in deed and in truth "a master in Israel." Many men have claimed the distinction of being the founder of the showmen's Trade Society. The fact is that it had several founders.

Like all great movements for God and for good in the world, it was a result of forces that compelled good men in various parts of the country, in face of a common danger, to draw together and to combine forces. It is admitted pretty generally that the germ idea—the originating mind—was in the office of The Era, and that the scheme to form a society to protect the trade of the fairground was the suggestion of Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era. It was in The Era office that Dr. Croft, of the Liberty and Property Defence League of those days, found the means of getting into touch with men like Mr. Caddick, the late Mr. and Mr. Tyler, the late James Dean, the late Randall Williams, Lord George Sanger, the late Frank Bailey, J. W. Bostock, F. T. Salva, A. Chamberlain, R. Dixon, J. Whiting, Collins Bros., and a thousand and one other strenuous champions of showland.

Our view is that no one man, nor yet a dozen men (however eminent), can be allowed the singular honour of founding the Vandwellers' Society, now known as the Showmen's Guild. Many men joined in the enterprise—all gave (at the right time) their best brains, time, and money to the movement. Let all share alike in the honours.

A Veteran Pioneer of the Guild.

That is, without doubt, the distinction due to dear old "Joe" Caddick, as we delight to call him. Long may he live amongst us to encourage us by his wise counsels and to hearten us by the noble example of his most good and useful life.

Again we hail with delight a letter from him. Its very presence takes us back to the early days of strife and struggle against puritanical rancour and narrow-minded bigotry—those had old days that are fast being buried in the limbo of the past.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

"Dear Sir,—I would like to avail myself of your columns to publicly thank Mr. James Bostock for his kindly remarks towards myself at the Showmen's Supper at the Agricultural Hall. It gives me great pleasure to know that at least one of my co-workers in the past has not forgotten the part I took in the agitation against the original Movable Dwellings Bill of the late George Smith, and, whilst admiring his (Mr. Bostock's) unassuming modesty, I cannot refrain from giving him his fair share of whatever honour appertains to a simple duty.

"To carry one's memory back to those strenuous times, one cannot fail to recall the splendid efforts by tongue and pen of James Bostock (our first president), the late James Dean, Mrs. Alice Tyler, Mr. Salva, and Lord George Sanger. These from the ranks of showmen. In addition, the unselfish advocacy in Parliament of Mr. Stephens, M.P. at that time for Hornsey (and the proprietor of Stephens' ink, so, as an act of gratitude, let us use only Stephens' ink), and Sir H. H. Howarth, then M.P. for Salford. Our particular Press friends were Mr. Ledger and Mr. Pedgrift, of The Era, and Mr. Labouchere, of Truth.

"Particular mention should be made of the sympathy and support of the 'Liberty and Property Defence League,' whose secretary, Dr. Crofts, and his able lieutenant, Mr. F. Millar, were indefatigable in their efforts for our salvation. Last, but not least, our anonymous friend 'W. W.,' of Nottingham, who kept the ball merrily rolling through the Nottingham Press. This gentleman is still living, and takes the keenest interest in all matters pertaining to the showmen.

"If my humble efforts kindled the spark, the continued work of the above fanned that spark into a flame of indignation that spread over the length and breadth of the land.

"It so fired the sympathy of all lovers of liberty and justice that it at once became apparent that all future efforts to curtail our rights and liberties by that or similar iniquitious measures would prove futile.

"This was the group of men who championed our cause, fought our battle, and won our victory.

"The culminating point was reached when brave, enthusiastic Lord George Sanger, at the inaugural meeting of the Vandwellers' Society in the Agricultural Hall, vehemently attacked George Smith, who was present, and whose previous boast to myself was that he would attend and 'soon put the quietus to my gabbling.' The result is well known, how Smith was glad to escape by a back window to avoid the personal chastisement that he saw awaited him. This he did, only to renew at a safe distance his foul libels on the unoffending vandwellers.

"I have purposely omitted the name of our honoured chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne (one of ourselves I am proud to say), as he is amongst us to tell his own tale. His unselfish devotion to us and our welfare deserves better recognition. (If we could only have made him Archbishop of York?) When his life's story comes to be told his many self-sacrifices on our behalf will be appreciated at their true value. Now, if I may claim a favour at the hands of my fellow-travellers, let it be, that all and every man in our ranks give their loyal support to our new President, whom I have known and watched from his boyhood upwards, and we have had sufficient proof that his heart and soul is in our cause.

"Then let us sink all petty differences and unite as one man to fight the Puritanical faddists, whose only pleasure can be measured by the amount of pleasure they can prevent others enjoying.

"Let our support be not only the support of money, but what is of equal (or even more importance), the moral support of numbers. Let it be his (the President's), when the occasion arises, to point with pride and confidence to the roll of members of our Guild and say, 'It is for these I plead, for these I demand the rights of citizenship, and for that justice and equality which is the inborn right of every Englishman who loyally obeys the laws of his country.'—I remain, yours faithfully, "JOE CADDICK.

"Olympia, London, Feb. 4, 1909."

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

THE OUTCAST'S SACRIFICE.—This is an interesting little drama, the story of which may be told in the following words:—Along the high wall which hems in the park of Mr. and Mrs. Conceit a poor man is enjoying his bowl of soup. Mr. Conceit, having seen his friend Pumpkins to the gate, sees the tramp, and thinks, as he retraces his steps, that he must tell the gardener to set a snare near the break of the wall. In the meantime, Pumpkins, having seen his friend disappear inside, scribbles a few words on a sheet of his pocket-book and places the paper behind a loose stone in the wall. Mrs. Conceit arrives in her turn. She finds the paper and reads: "Dear Friend,—I shall wait for you, as usual, at the break in the park wall." The gardener sets the snare. Pumpkins is the first to arrive, and he finds the tramp sleeping at the same place as he was in the afternoon. This makes him impatient, but seeing that the old man is sleeping soundly, he leaps over the wall, and utters a smothered groan. His leg is entrapped in the snare, whose teeth bite deep into his flesh. The tramp, awakened by the noise, arrives at the same time as Mrs. Conceit. Her husband has heard it also, and he leaves the house with a revolver in his hand. This is terrible for the two guilty people, and the only way out of the difficulty is for the tramp to sacrifice himself. "I knew it," says Mr. Conceit, pleased with himself for his foresight, when he sees the victim. He calls in the police, and the humble tramp, who is such a lover of open air and sun and liberty, is marched off, and confined in a dark cell.

MISS FLIRT.—During Miss Flirt's first season her flirtation and beauty play havoc amongst the men. Miss Flirt welcomes all her admirers with the same sweet smile, but she gets mixed up in her appointments, and is obliged to hide her lovers in every corner of the drawing-room. They become angry at last, and Miss Flirt's father, attracted by the noise, takes them all to the police-station. The Commissioner of Police, bewitched by Miss Flirt's charming manners, is very anxious to put matters right, and in order to prevent such a thing occurring again, he offers to marry the pretty girl.

THE MOHAWK'S RING.—Tonga has been taken prisoner by Mexican planters, and being the Chief of the Red-Skin tribe, he is on the point of being made to pay for all the injuries caused to the Pale Faces by his men, when a Mexican clergyman, who is sorry for him, gives him a revolver wherewith the young chief will free himself. Tonga gives him as a keepsake a filigree gold ring and escapes. Some time after these happenings an abduction is committed by the same tribe. Mercedes, the clergyman's daughter, is brutally kidnapped, and her enemies write on a piece of leather, run through with a javalin, the following letter:—"To the owner of this property, 50,000 dollars to-morrow by moonlight at the Green Rock. Come along with the money and your daughter will be given back to you in exchange, else you will not even have her body." As soon as this is known in her home, all the valuables are gathered together, and the Mohawk's ring is thrown in also. On seeing her father, the girl, who is already bound to the stake, breaks her ropes, and runs towards him. In the meantime, Tonga counts the money and articles of jewellery, and does not find the sum sufficient. The Pale Girl is to be attached to the tail of a colt and abandoned to her fate. Tonga now finds the ring he has given to the girl's father, and recognises in him the man who has saved his life. In a few words the young chief instructs his warriors to overtake the wild animal and its victim, and, after an exciting chase through the prairies, the savages return the daughter to her happy father, and peace is signed between the Pale-Faces and the Red-Skins.

PLAYING PATIENCE.—Here we have some exceedingly clever and well-arranged trick scenes. A page-boy shows on the screen the different ways of playing patience, and the pictures become alive and form a series of graceful and comical coloured figures.

A SUFFRAGETTE'S DREAM.—Mrs. Moderny is very charming, but she has funny ideas sometimes. She is a Suffragette, and while her husband goes to business, she troubles her pretty head with all sorts of things. Mr. Moderny has just left, when she receives the following circular note:—"At 2 o'clock. Society for the Future of the Weak Sex. Lecture on Woman's Emancipation." She is so pleased with the idea that she begins dreaming about the brilliant future, and pictures to herself the time when woman will rule over man. In her dream she hears a lecturer developing advanced ideas, and abusing a dummy representing a man, hanging from the lamp-post. The dummy serves as a target to all the excited ladies. Hurrah! Three cheers for women, they have just broken their chains, and are free! Clad in Man's attire, Woman is now a barrister, an officer, a scientist, &c. She goes to the cafés, there to discuss politics and smoke cigars, while the mere man is "the victim," and with flowers and ribbons in his garments he is now the one to look after the baby at home. Well! Every dream is an untruth, for Mrs. Moderny wakes up under the anger of her husband, who chides her for not looking after the house while he is out earning the money, thus showing her that woman is not yet the master of man.

A LARGE FAMILY.—"My Dear Coalman,—We are coming, myself, the wife, and children, for a fortnight. You will be pleased to hear it.—Vagrant." The dear friend communicates the good news to his wife, and both do their best to make the visitors comfortable. In their small town, the Vagrants, laden with numerous parcels containing chestnuts and other eatables, take a third-class compartment by storm, heedless of the angry looks shot at them by their fellow-passengers. In Paris, the whole family climb on the top of a 'bus. At the first jolts of the heavy vehicle, the parcels heaped in a corner, tumble over the railing, and on to the heads of the passers-by. The 'bus stops, angry words are exchanged. At last the Vagrant family arrive at the house of their friends, and after the first greetings, the newcomers, who are very tired, retire to their apartments, in the loft, for there is no other place available. Mattresses have been spread on the floor, where the large family of children sleep pell-mell. The little scamps are wideawake, however, and through the trap-door they empty two sacks of coal on to their parents' bed on the next floor. The noise the latter make on receiving this avalanche in their first sleep causes all the inmates of the loft to come down through the trap-door, and land on the furniture, which is the worse for it. The Coalmans are very sorry, but they have to send their friends away, who flee under the reproaches of their hosts.

Gaumont Company.

THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.—Charles Dickens' unfinished work has now been completed as a cinematograph drama, and the Gaumont Company may be said to have achieved a masterpiece of stagecraft, in which the real Dickens atmosphere is preserved. The first scene opens showing John Jasper, in opium den, under influence of the drug. In Scene 2 Rosa Bud is seen with her real lover, Neville Landless, although she has been betrothed to Edwin Drood since childhood. In Rosa's Seminary a party is being held. Edwin Drood, Neville Landless, and Rosa are seen seated at the same table. Rosa gives all her attention to Neville, and Edwin becomes enraged. He jumps up, and, striking Neville, informs him that Rosa is his affianced wife. Neville resents this, and a severe struggle ensues. Rosa dashes between them, and implores them to be friends once more. Reconciliation and departure of guests. John Jasper hides in Rosa's room. Rosa returns in high spirits, but is terrified on discovering Jasper there. Jasper avows his love, and tells Rosa that he will force her to marry him. In his study Jasper is seen writing a letter to his nephew, Edwin Drood, telling him to be sure to come and see him before departing to London. He then sends a messenger with the note, and later on we see him preparing for his nephew's arrival. He examines a secret trap-door in the floor, and prepares a drug. Drood drinks the drug. Jasper draws a knife from his pocket, and after a slight struggle succeeds in murdering Drood. Jasper now opens the trap in the floor, removes Drood's cloak and hat, takes his watch and pocket-book, and places the body under the floor of his room. He next fetches a sack of quick-lime and empties it over the body, adding a bucket of water to aid him in hiding the traces of his crime. He now prepares to depart, but is terrified by the ghost of his victim appearing in the doorway.

THE following scene brings us to the river bank. Jasper comes along through the bushes, and throws the cloak and hat which he has taken from his victim's body into the river, so as to make it appear as if Drood had been drowned. The Beadle of the town discovers the hat and cloak, and fishes them out with a branch of a tree. A reward of £200 is being offered for the capture of Edwin Drood's murderer. Datchery, the Bow-street runner, determined to earn the reward, disguises himself for this purpose. Scene 9: Stile by the Roadside. Neville and Rosa are seated on the grass, and Neville's cloak is hanging on the stile. Jasper unexpectedly discovers them there, and is furious on finding a second rival. He thinks of another plot, and places the watch and pocket-book, which he has taken from his dead nephew's body, into the cloak of Neville. Scene 10: Country Lane. Jasper tells the Beadle that he is convinced Neville Landless is Edwin Drood's murderer. Jasper accuses Neville; the Beadle discovers watch and book in Neville's cloak; struggle follows. Neville arrested. Datchery witnesses this, and follows Jasper. Scene 12: Opium Den. Enter Jasper; takes opium, goes to sleep. Datchery follows, and searches Jasper. Jasper revives, and struggles with Datchery, eventually stunning him. He next imagines that his victim's spirit returns to wreak vengeance upon him, and has an imaginary fight with it. Datchery recovers, and fetches the police. Jasper confesses to the murder of Edwin Drood, and then falls dead at the feet of the police. Last scene: Outside Country Church. Happy at last; dangers past. Neville and Rosa are married.

THE ANARCHIST PLOT.—A band of anarchists draw lots as to who shall remove a certain Consul, and the man chosen, meeting his victim, follows him. He asks the Consul for a light to his cigarette, and while doing this stabs him. The anarchist disguises himself as leader of an orchestra which plays on the sea-front. The murdered man's daughter vows vengeance, and, setting out, performs on a mandoline for money. The leader of the orchestra hears her play, and offers an engagement in his band, which is accepted. Meanwhile the two fall in love. She is next taken to the anarchist's haunt, where she overhears a plot to wreck the Paris express. Being caught listening, the plot is explained to her, and she goes with her lover to his dangerous work. While preparing the bomb which is placed on the line running over a high viaduct, he brags about killing the Consul, and shows the girl a photo of her father. She avenges him by stabbing the man, who falls into the gorge. Just as she removes the bomb the express rushes past safely.

THE PHANTOM ORCHESTRA.—The old musician is playing his 'cello when he falls asleep. A fairy appears and bids him follow her. She leads him to a large bar of music, and, on waving her wand, the notes change to figures. The old man asks for the wand, and, on waving it, the figures again change to four comic musicians. He only wakes when the 'cello, which he has placed in a corner, falls on him, and he finds all has been a dream.

THE ELECTRIC POLICEMAN.—A policeman standing in the road is directing a lady to a certain locality, when a cyclist knocks him over and rides off without offering any assistance. He is unable to follow the man, being on foot. While he is on the ground some sandwich-men pass carrying an advertisement for electric boots, which are guaranteed to run of their own accord. The policeman at once goes to the shop, and buys a pair of the wonderful boots. After being shown how to work them, he departs. He walks along until he sees a loafer asleep on a seat, and proceeds to rouse him. The loafer knocks Robert down, then runs off, fearing pursuit, but the policeman does not intend to hurry. He starts the boots going, and easily comes up with his late antagonist, but cannot stop. He is whirled round and round and catches a nursemaid with a pram, whom he upsets. The boots will not stop, and the unfortunate policeman is carried through a brick-wall and a fence, finally landing in the river. Even then they have not finished, but carry him up a standard on to the trolley-wire of an electric tram-line. He is walking along the wire when a tram passes, and an electric explosion occurs. The policeman falls to the ground, and assistance is at once given by passers-by, but on touching the boots they receive a shock. Eventually the policeman gets out of them and walks back to the station barefooted.

JUST as we are going to press we learn that the Gaumont Co., Ltd., have received from their operators in Germany a remarkable film of the State entry of the King and Queen into Berlin. Escorted by a squadron of Dragoons, the King and Kaiser, who are seen in an open carriage, pass within a few feet of the camera, followed by the Queen and Kaiserin and members of their suites. A view is shown of some of the stands and decorations, also a panorama taken in the street, giving some idea of the enormous crowds which lined the route. A further series of pictures will arrive on Saturday morning, showing the King at various functions.

WE understand that Messrs. Gaumont have made special arrangements for securing pictures from special positions of the Opening of Parliament. Weather permitting, they hope to uphold their splendid reputation for topicals, and rival their excellent picture of last year.

PAGAN AND CHRISTIAN.—The world has ever been dominated by two schools of thought—the Epicurean, addicted to pleasure, and the Ascetic, given to severe self-denial and austerity. In this picture we see the two contrasted—the restless, pleasure-loving Pagans vainly seeking happiness, and the austere Christians, who, indifferent to the world's temptations and pleasures, find "A peace that passeth understanding." The influence of the little "God of Love" is felt by both schools. Caius is a Christian hermit, and the dormant passion in him is thought to be subdued. This is aroused, however, by sight of Livia, a pagan Egyptian dancing-girl, who is taking part in a festal procession during a visit to Thebes. Try how he might, by prayer, fasting, or penance, he is unable to banish her from his thoughts, and his soul demands another sight of her. In order to satisfy his conscience, he undertakes her conversion. A friendly pleasure-loving nobleman arranges a meeting. Caius adopts his friend's suggestion, and attires himself in costly raiment by means of which his ascetic perfections are heightened, and Livia's imagination is fired, and the "Little God's" conquest is complete. Livia forsakes the pagan worship of Venus, destroys her idols, dons simple garb, and together they seek the desert. Conscience, however, will not down, so they reluctantly part—she to enter a nunnery, he to seek his hermit cell. He is still pursued by visions of her, and in one of these he sees her dying, and calling for him. Hurrying away, he arrives just in time to hear her breathe her gratitude and love before she expires.

A BURGLAR CUPID.—Artie is very much in love, but too nervous to make any headway with Gladys, the lady of his choice. Calling to escort her to a ball, he upsets her temper when he tries to embrace her, but clumsily steps on to her skirt. During their absence "Mike the Terror" and "Barney the Bike" make arrangements to imprison the fat butler and burgle the house, and proceed to action. After the ball Artie and Gladys have supper at a fashionable café, where further trouble arises through Artie upsetting soup over Gladys' ball dress. Arriving home in the pale moonlight, Artie feels romantic, and prepares to make love, to the disgust of "Mike." Getting tired of the show, "Mike" decides to hasten matters. Stepping forth, he forces Gladys—by sight of his gun—to bestow the long-sought kiss. This so delights Artie that he insists on "Mike" accepting all his money, jewels, and, further, makes a present of his fur coat and gloves to him. "Mike" and "Barney" get safely away, and enjoy their success in love matters very much.

CINEMATOGRAPH LEGISLATION.—The Home Secretary has informed the London County Council that he intends to introduce in the coming Session a short Bill dealing with cinematograph exhibitions. It was in February of last year that the Council first urged upon the Home Secretary the necessity of legislation in this matter. The question of legislation will probably be much modified owing to the recent successes of two firms of film manufacturers who have produced absolutely non-inflammable cinematograph films, so that the dangers of fire could be entirely obviated if their use were enforced. One of these is a specially-prepared gelatine film which has many advantages over the celluloid ordinarily employed, the other being a special form of cellulose film which is equally non-inflammable.

MR. FRED NEWMAN, with his customary enterprise, attended the great football match Dundee v. Rangers, at Dundee, last Saturday, and secured a capital film of the proceedings. It is proving a very popular item at his West End Picture Palace, Dundee, this week, and is also being exhibited with much success at the Empire Theatre in the same town.

KINEMATOGRAPH REGULATIONS respecting the use of the Kinematograph in Theatres and Halls, also the Regulations respecting the use of Limelight, can be had, price 1d. (by post 1½d.), from The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. All those who handle the Cinematograph or Limelight should possess a copy of these Regulations.

SHOWFOLK IN FICTION.

By CONGREVE HORNE.

The recent publication of Mr. Horne's "Stories of Showman Life" has served to show what vast stores of humour and tragedy are to be found on the fair-ground. But although Mr. Horne is, we believe, the first to draw his inspiration entirely from this source, he is by no means the first to recognise its romantic and dramatic possibilities, and among the great masters of fiction who have given us sketches of showman life, the first we call to mind is, of course, the genial democrat, Charles Dickens.

It would seem that the warm heart of Dickens had an especially warm corner for showfolk, for not only did Little Nell find friends among them, but in another of his books he gives so kindly a sketch of travelling showmen that he may almost be said to hold a brief on their behalf.

There is no doubt that "Hard Times" is a harsh book. Dickens hated Bounderby and all that Bounderby stood for, and the harsh severity which distinguishes "Hard Times" is the result. It is in this creation of cruel caricature that Dickens uses showfolk on the side of the angels; and instead of looking among them for the villain of the piece we find there the fairy godfather. The bulk of what follows is a transcription and a rearrangement.

Mr. Sleary (you will remember) was a stout man, with one fixed eye and one loose eye, a voice (if it can be called so) like the efforts of a broken old pair of bellows, a flabby surface, and a muddled head, which was never drunk and never sober. He suffered from asthma, and his voice came too thick and heavy for the letter "s." "My voithe ith a little huthky, Thquire," he said to Gradgrind on their first meeting, "and not eathy to be heard by them ath don't know me; but if you'd been chilled and heated, heated and chilled, chilled and heated in the ring when you wath young ath often ath I have been your voithe wouldn't have lathted out, Thquire, no more than mine."

But, in spite of the constant brandy and water which he gives Mr. Sleary, and the consequent flabby surface and lisping tongue, Dickens makes the riding-master altogether lovable and human—a true Dickens type. "I don't pretend to be of the angel breed myself," he warned Sissy, "and I don't thay but what, when you mith'd your tip you'd find me cut up rough and thwear an oath or two at you. But what I thay, Thquire, ith, that good-tempered or bad-tempered, I never did a horthe a injury yet, no more than thwearing at him went, and that I don't expect I shall begin otherwithe at my time of life with a rider." And we can applaud the picture of him standing in the middle of the room with his company all about him, exactly as he would have stood in the centre of the ring, wanting nothing but his whip, and saying shortly, for he never was much of a cackler: "Thleary. Thath my name, Thquire. Not athamed of it. Known all over England, and alwaythe payth ith way."

Mr. Sleary was the proprietor of Sleary's Horse-riding, a circus to dream about. There were wonderful feats of horsemanship; there were performing elephants and trained dogs; there were jugglers and tumblers; the nursery plays were simply immense, and the comic business was great. "If you wath to thee our Children in the Wood," Mr. Sleary confided to Sissy, "with their father and mother both a-dyin' on a horthe—their uncle a retheiving of 'em ath hith wardth, upon a horthe—themthelvth both a-goin' a-blackberryin' on a horthe—and the robinth a comin' in to cover 'em with leavth, upon a horthe—you'd thay it wath the completetht thing ath ever you thet your eyeth on!"

Miss Josephine Sleary inaugurated the entertainments with her graceful equestrian Tyrolean flower act. The clown used to announce it as the cauliflower act.

Among the other pleasing, but always strictly moral, wonders which had to be seen to be believed, Signor Jupe used to "elucidate the diverting accomplishments of his highly-trained performing dog Merrylegs." He used also to exhibit "his astounding feat of throwing seventy-five hundredweight in rapid succession backhanded over his head, thus forming a fountain of solid iron in mid-air, a feat never before attempted in this or any other country, and which, having elicited such rapid plaudits from enthusiastic throngs, it cannot be withdrawn." The same Signor Jupe used to "enliven the varied performance at frequent intervals with his chaste Shakespearean quips and retorts." Lastly, he appeared in his favourite character of Mr. William Button, of Tooley-street, in the "highly novel and laughable hippo-comedietta of The Tailor's Journey to Brentford."

Mr. E. B. W. Childers was also of the company, and of him Dickens gives a full description. His face, close-shaven, thin, and sallow, was shaded by a great quantity of dark hair brushed into a roll all round his head, and parted up the centre. His legs were very robust, but shorter than legs of good proportions should have been. His chest and back were as much too broad as his legs were too short. He was dressed in a Newmarket coat and tight-fitting trousers; wore a shawl round his neck; smelt of lamp-oil, straw, orange-peel, horses' provender, and sawdust; and looked a most remarkable sort of centaur, compounded of the stable and the playhouse. Where the one began and the other ended nobody could have told with any precision. He was justly celebrated for his daring vaulting act as the Wild Huntsman of the North American Prairies, in which popular performance a diminutive boy with an old face assisted as his infant son, being carried upside down over his father's shoulder by one foot, and held by the crown of his head, heels upwards, in the palm of his father's hand, according to the violent paternal manner in which wild huntsmen may be observed to fondle their offspring. Made up with curls, wreaths, wings, white bismuth, and carmine, this hopeful young person soared into so pleasing a Cupid as to constitute the chief delight of the maternal part of the spectators; but in private, where his characteristics were a precocious cutaway coat and an extremely gruff voice, he became of the Turf, turfy.

It is in private that we meet the other members of Sleary's company, in the room from which Signor Jupe has just disappeared. Dickens describes them in characteristic vein. There were two or three handsome young women among them, with their two or three husbands, and their two or three mothers, and their eight or nine little children, who did the fairy business when required. The father of one of the families was in the habit of balancing the father of another of the families on the top of a great pole; the father of a third family often made a pyramid of both these fathers, with Master Kidderminster for the apex and himself for the base; all the fathers could dance upon rolling casks, stand upon bottles, catch knives and balls, twirl hand-basins, ride upon anything, jump over everything, and stick at nothing. All the mothers could (and did) dance upon the slack-wire and the tight-rope, and perform rapid acts on bare-backed steeds; none of them were at all particular in respect of showing their legs; and one of them, alone in a Greek chariot, drove six-in-hand into every town they came to. They all assumed to be mighty rakish, and knowing they were not very tidy in their private dresses, they were not at all orderly in their domestic arrangements, and the combined literature of the whole company would have produced but a poor letter on any subject. Yet there was a remarkable gentleness and childishness about these people, a special inaptitude for any kind of sharp practice, and an untiring readiness to help and pity one another, deserving often of as much respect, and always of as much generous construction, as the everyday virtues of any class of people in the world.

Later on, at the end of the story, we meet them all again at the circus, in Mr. Sleary's little private apartment with canvas sides, a grass floor, and a wooden ceiling all aslant. Miss Josephine Sleary has married Mr. E. W. B. Childers, and Mr. Sleary is the proud grandfather of a boy who "though he'th only three yearth old thtickth on to any pony you can bring againth him. He'th named the Little Wonder of Thcholathtic Equitation; and if you don't hear of that boy at Athley'th you'll hear of him at Parith." It is not until after Sissy has kissed all the children (including the Little Wonder of Scholastic Equitation), and hugged all the women and shaken hands all round with all the men, that Sleary orders them to ring in the band for the second part, and we say good-bye to Mr. Sleary's company.

We close the book with the Sleary Philosophy. It sums up all that the Showmen's Guild of today is standing for. "Thquire, thake handth, firthat and latht." It is Sleary's farewell. "Don't be croth with uth poor vagabondth. People muthtn't be amuthed. They can't be alwayth a-learning, nor yet they can't be alwayth a-working, they an't made for it. You muthtn have uth, Thquire. Do the withe thing and the kind thing, too, and make the betht of uth; not the wortht!" The words are the words of Dickens, but the voice is the voice of the Showmen's Guild.

PRICES OF FILMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

Sir,—We have the pleasure to announce that the reduction in the price of our films to threepence per foot will cease on Feb. 15, as the purpose for which it was made has been accomplished. The object was, as stated at the time, to bring into line those non-associated manufacturers who claimed the right to give special discounts, and this has been effected by the Paris Convention at which the European trade has given its adhesion to the scheme originated last summer by the Kinematograph Manufacturers' Association of Great Britain for the betterment of the industry. This includes:

1. A minimum sale price of fourpence per foot for European films.
2. The withdrawal of used films sixteen weeks from date of issue, in certain countries.
3. The regulation of charges and conditions for hiring films.

For this result we have to thank M. L. Gaumont for his persevering co-operation, M. Chas. Pathé for his fair-minded attitude, and Mr. George Eastman for his active interest and support in coping with a dangerous condition of the trade.

It now only remains for the exhibitors and hiring agents to associate themselves for the purpose of co-operating with our association in "hammering away" at the remaining abuses which chiefly affect them. The cutting of hiring rates and the use of worn-out films having been abolished, the minor difficulties should be easily disposed of. We hope that such an association will be started at the meeting of the trade which it is proposed to hold on Feb. 18.

It will necessarily take a little time to get arrangements into working order, and the liquidation of surplus stocks will continue to be a temporarily disturbing factor, after which we feel assured will follow a period of sound and profitable business for all legitimate kinematograph exhibitors and manufacturers.

With the earnest hope that this may be so—We remain, yours faithfully,

Wadbrook's cinematograph and palace of varieties continues to attract large and enthusiastic crowds. Several new and interesting films are being shown, among which the Earthquake at Messina is the most attractive. The variety part of the entertainment is contributed to by Kent and Earl, comedy artists, whose performance is of a refined and exceedingly enjoyable character

Fifty pounds a week for a skater! Prodigious! Even in these modern days of the princely salaries of £200 and £300 paid weekly to star comedians and serio-comics it seems almost incredible. Yet that is the modest sum that a professor and his young bride in the present craze for roller skating are drawing weekly at a place of amusement in a rink at one of the most popular seaside resorts in the North of England.

Miss Maud Allan, who makes her re-appearance at the Palace Theatre on Monday, will deliver a lecture on "Classical Dancing," to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion on Sunday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. Mr. T. McDonald Rendle will be in the chair.

Mr. Maurice Fritz, late manager of several well-known agencies, opened offices of his own on Monday. His first week's bookings amount to £2,500. If he should continue to do business at this pace he will soon have to look for larger offices.

M. Harry Vaux, who, by the way, has no connection with the Salvation Army, produced his scena at the South London on Monday with considerable success. It is entitled The Night Policeman.

SHOREDITCH OLYMPIA.

Excellent fare is being provided at the above hall this week, and a crowded house at each performance is the result. The principal feature of the entertainment is undoubtedly the appearance of Mr. Dan Thomas in the pantomime Dick Whittington. Although a condensed version, the piece is complete in every detail, and runs smoothly from beginning to end. It contains eleven scenes, each set being an excellent example of brushwork. The dialogue is bright and sparkling, and the dresses would do credit to any similar performance on a much larger scale. Mr. Dan Thomas must be complimented on the manner in which the members of his company work together, and also on his own efforts to amuse. His humour as Betsy is highly contagious, and his ability as a dancer is beyond all doubt. His "Merry Widow" song is also a decided hit. Miss Daisy Yates makes an ideal principal boy, and in the title-rôle establishes herself a firm favourite; Miss Constance Moire, a charming Alice Fitzwarren, is the possessor of a fine voice, which she puts to good use whenever the opportunity occurs; Mr. H. D. Lyndon enacts the part of the Alderman with skill; Mr. J. Harris puts his heart and soul into his interpretation of Idle Jack, his burglar scene with Betsy being particularly amusing; Mr. M. H. Maddison is a breezy and characteristic Captain Kettle; the part of Bill Blower receives full justice in the hands of Mr. R. Morris; Mr. Harry Pastor fully realises the mock ferocity of Chopper, headsman to the Emperor; Mr. Pete Almonte as the Cat does much to amuse the youngsters; and Mlle. Lillian is all that could be desired as the Fairy Queen.

Mr. Dan Daly as a Hebrew comedian proves highly successful, and is well received. His song "Isi's wedding" has a catchy chorus, which is quickly taken up by the audience, and his parody on "Asleep in the deep" is capitally rendered He has a fine voice, which he uses to great advantage. Miss Bertha Winder is so well known by this time as a dancer that little need be said beyond that she meets with her usual boisterous reception, her steps being strictly to time and neatly and cleverly executed. The Fidardy Trio perform some really clever acrobatic feats, and display considerable agility in their various exhibitions of skill. Grey and Welford, a couple of comedians who cannot fail to amuse, indulge in cross-talk that is particularly humorous, and their boxing is a mixture of pugilistic skill and fun. Fielding and Hull cause delight with their somewhat different style of entertainment to the ordinary. Their turn is of a musical comedy type, and their bathing scene causes much amusement. Brent and Brand supply a musical treat in the song "Two beggars." Their well-trained voices are beautifully blended, and they thoroughly deserve the applause they obtain. The second contribution, "The moon has raised her lamp above" (from The Lily of Killarney), is artistically rendered and well received.

Mr. H. H. Ketteman, the general-manager of the house, is ably assisted in the front by Mr. Albert Victor Adams.

A masked and costume carnival at the Roller Skating Rink, Dundee, is announced for Friday evening, the 19th inst., when all skaters will for the nonce represent historical, topical, or imaginative characters.

A general-manager and secretary is wanted for the Southsea Clarence Esplanade Pier. Good experience in management and a knowledge of secretarial duties are required. The commencing salary is £250 per annum. Particulars will be found in our advertising columns.

The manager of the London Hippodrome has received a £5 note from Mr. Gibson, of New Malden, as a result of a statement he made in that house when he challenged Mr. and Mrs. Tomson to perform their act in the arena instead of on the stage. On that occasion Mr. Gibson said if they could do this he would give £5 to the unemployed. Mr. and Mrs. Tomson at once repeated their weird performance, and the £5 has now been sent to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the Unemployed.

Mr. George Mozart sails for America to-day to fulfil his second engagement in the States. He has booked passages for himself and Mrs. Mozart on that fine liner the Mauretania. Miss Marie Dainton, with whom Mr. Mozart played in pantomime at the King's, Hammersmith, is off to America also, but not on the 13th. "I wouldn't sail on that awful day for the world," she told the writer. George, on the other hand, declares he is not a bit superstitious, or, if he is, certainly regards the number 13 as a lucky one for him. "I was married on the 13th of the month," he laughingly said, "my son and heir was born on the 13th, I made my first appearance on the 13th (and it was a Friday, too), my motor-car number has two 13's in it, and I stormed New York on my last tour on the 13th, and on the 13th of last month I picked up a sixpence with a hole in it—what more can man desire?"

Mr. Frank Glenister has introduced into the bill at the London Pavilion Mr. A. de Bessell, a lightning clay-modeller, whose last appearance at the "Pav." was in the early part of 1901, and who retired from the stage almost immediately after that engagement and settled down at Messina. Mr. de Bessell comes direct from the stricken district, having escaped from the recent earthquake almost miraculously, after having been practically buried alive for three and a half days. His wife also had her legs crushed in the same calamity.

Mr. De Bessell lost everything, and appealed to Mr. Glenister for an engagement, sending on his former contract, in order that there should be no doubt about his identity. Mr. Glenister set Cook's Agency to work, and in a very short time the artist and his wife arrived in London, ready to work, but absolutely without belongings of any kind. Mr. and Mrs. Glenister acted the good Samaritans, found wardrobes for the homeless pair, and Mr. de Bessell recommenced his career as an artist on Monday at the London Pavilion before a sympathetic crowd.

The final in Belfast, in connection with the International Mile Roller Skating Championship, which is to be decided at the Olympia, London, on 23rd, 24th, and 25th insts., took place on Wednesday night last, 10th inst., at the Rink, Cliftonville, Belfast, with the following result: Dan Peterson (Belfast), 1st; R. Martin (Belfast), 2nd. Also competed, J. H. Edwards, Llandudno. Won easily in 4min. 13sec. Peterson secures the £10 prize, and Martin the second prize of £5, and both are eligible to compete in the final at Olympia. The arrangements were faultlessly carried out by Mr. O. E. Laumann, the esteemed resident-manager of the Rink.

Owing to the continued success of the animated pictures at the King's Hall, Gloucester, Mr. C. W. Poole has deemed it advisable not to interfere with the popular entertainment now running there, and coupled with the difficulty of procuring a hall large enough to transfer the pictures to, he has reconsidered his decision to make the King's Hall into a skating rink. He has, however, on behalf of his company purchased the large plot of ground known to showmen as Wildman's Ground, and thereon intends erecting a first-class skating rink, with every modern improvement. Operations are to begin shortly.

Belfast.
Dear Mr. Powell,—
I had the pleasure of seeing your piece last night, and am glad to be able to tell you that I think you have got a money-maker. . . . It is an excellent production, and judging by the business you are doing here, the public seem to like it. . . .
Yours very truly,
S. C. Allen.

"HOW GIRLS ARE BROUGHT TO RUIN."

Makes the public talk.
Arouses tremendous enthusiasm.
Draws the public to the pay-box.
Possesses that magic something which means enormous financial success.

"HOW GIRLS ARE BROUGHT TO RUIN."
Boomed as this firm can boom.

"HOW GIRLS ARE BROUGHT TO RUIN."
A powerful story, pulsating with human passions, true to nature, cleverly written, and, withal, bright, interesting, and natural. The situations . . . grip the audience by reason of their intense realism, yet be it acknowledged they rise naturally out of the development of the story, and are never forced.—Birkenhead Herald, Jan. 30.

"HOW GIRLS ARE BROUGHT TO RUIN"
is a story thrilling with human interest and pathos. . . . Arouses the enthusiasm of the audience, and keeps them on tenterhooks concerning what is to follow. . . . Interest is maintained from start to finish. . . . The right kind of humour—clean, bright, and breezy—in the right place.—Bolton Chronicle, Feb. 3.

THE EXPERT ADVERTISING CO., LTD., are open to take a few more Contracts for ADVERTISING RIGHTS on CURTAINS or PROGRAMMES
for immediate letting or until end of May.
We have no old-fashioned ideas, the firm being barely five years old, but during that short period we have built up a
BIG REPUTATION FOR SMART ARTISTIC CURTAINS, STRAIGHTFORWARD DEALINGS WITH THE ADVERTISERS, and
PROMPT PAYMENTS IN ADVANCE
without any humbug or delay.
We do not allow our men to seek out all the third-rate pubs and fried-fish shops and such-like, but place upon your curtains or programmes only the best class advertisements available.
If you have already done business with us you know our methods. If not, we refer you to any of the following Clients:—
Moss's Empires, Ltd.
Richard Thornton, Esq.
Thos. Barrasford, Esq.

IMPORTANT.

The above Agency has been established on strict business principles and a sound financial basis, and I do not intend therefore to allow either Agents' or Artists' Associations to interfere with my right to carry on a legitimate Variety Agency simply because I am an artist. I am working up a business in the same way as nearly all the present-day agents have done before me. I am a regular payer of Income-tax, and those with whom I have had business dealings will admit my honesty and fairness in all my transactions; therefore I consider that, having commenced this Agency, and received encouragement from a great number of proprietors, managers, and artistes alike, I shall not admit as anyone's right to interfere or dictate as to whether I shall continue my Agency or not; and, whatever may happen, I shall only abide by the laws of the land.

270 Replies.

WANTED, Wanted, Known,
Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
ALFRED BALL.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

THE MOHAWK'S RING.
Code Word, "FRISE."

Tonga, the Red Chief, has been taken prisoner by Mexican planters, but a clergyman gives him a revolver, which enables the Mohawk to escape. As a keepsake, he gives to his benefactor a filigree gold ring before returning to his tribe. Later on, the clergyman's daughter is kidnapped by the savages, who ask 50,000dols. for her ransom, stating at the same time that should the full amount not be forthcoming they would attach the Pale Girl to the tail of a young colt, and abandon her to her fate. On counting the money, Tonga finds the filigree gold ring he has given to the clergyman, and, explaining to his people the story of his own escape, he bids them go and overtake the runaway colt, and restore the daughter to her father. Peace is signed eventually between the Pale Faces and the Red Skins.

495ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d. Toning, £1 0s. 0d.

SUNSET.
Code Word, "GAULE."

The golden sun disappears in the west, reflected in the water upon which large steamers glide swiftly, giving out thick columns of smoke. Distant lands are outlined in the haze; everything seems to dissolve into oblivion, and things familiar take shapes quite fantastic and mysterious, for it is now twilight. These pictures are shown in a series of lights and shades, which remind one of the beautiful pictures by Rembrandt.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d. Toning, 9s.

A SUFFRAGETTE'S DREAM.
Code Word, "FUTUR."

Mrs. Moderny is very charming, but she has funny ideas sometimes. She is a suffragette, and whilst her husband is attending to his business she troubles her pretty head about all sorts of things. On receiving a circular letter advising her of a women's meeting for the same day, she is so pleased with the idea that she begins dreaming about the brilliant future, and pictures to herself the glorious time that is in store for woman. In her dream, she sees a lecturer abusing a dummy representing a man, and women shouting, "Hurrah for liberty!" Every dream being an untruth, Mrs. Moderny wakes up under the anger of her husband, who chides her for not looking after the house while he goes out to earn the money.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

MISS FLIRT.
Code Word, "FRONDE."

During Miss Flirt's first season, her flirtations and beauty play havoc amongst the men. She welcomes all her admirers with the same sweet smile, but gets mixed up in her appointments, and is obliged to hide her lovers in every corner of the drawing-room. They become angry at last, and the girl's father, attracted by the noise, takes them all to the police-station. The Commissioner of Police, bewitched by Miss Flirt's charming manners, is very anxious to put matters right, and in order to prevent such a thing occurring again he offers to marry the pretty girl.

396ft. The Subject, £6 12s. 0d.

PLAYING PATIENCE.
Code Word, "GANSE."

A page boy shows on the screen the different manners of playing patience. The pictures become alive, and form a series of graceful and comical coloured figures.

230ft. The Subject, £3 16s. 8d. Colouring, £2 8s. 0d.

THE NURSES' RACE.
Code Word, "GAIN."

A private is out for a walk, and in his wake comes a long string of nurses, which swells every minute with a new recruit. Poor Cracky is made desperate at the sight, as he does not know where to run to escape the crowd, but at last he has to let loose the regiment's dog upon his pursuers.

WHY HAVE YOU NOT CALLED ROUND?
WE ARE SURPRISED!

Are you satisfied with an inferior show? You must have a good programme and a good machine. Neither wise men, nor fools, can work without tools. Do not wait until it is too late before you buy a

DREADNOUGHT.

Buy one now, and

SLEEP EASY IN YOUR BEDS.

It is too late to give an order for a battleship when war is declared.

SHOWMEN,

Do not buy a machine because it looks pretty.

Do not purchase a machine which is rock steady when you buy it, and in a week's time is simply useless; buy a

which will stand the showman's wear and tear, as our motto is

THE BEST IS NOT TOO GOOD FOR YOU.
WE ALWAYS GIVE YOU THE BEST.

Have you ever asked yourself the question why all our customers are successful. It is because we know our business, and are successful ourselves. Our business is built up by not by swollen heads. Which is impossible. Get in touch with us immediately. Delays are dangerous. Don't think your business will run itself because you wear a gollywog.

IT WON'T.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

Those who need a record of stage doings have long regarded "The Era" annual as their sole source of reference, and the accuracy with which it is compiled makes it a very useful book. The volume for 1909, just issued, contains the casts of new plays and important revivals, both in London and the provinces, from Dec. 1, 1907, to Nov 30, 1908. A long-familiar feature, "Stories told by Well-Known People," reappears, the "people" including Mr. G. Alexander, Mr. H. B. Irving, and Mr. Martin Harvey.—Globe, Jan. 14, 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

"The Era" Annual for 1909 has doubled its size, from 122 pages in 1908 to 244, the increase being chiefly due to the publication for the first time of the full casts of new productions (including music-hall sketches) and revivals both in London and the provinces. The new feature adds greatly to the value of the annual, which has long been a recognised vade mecum of the theatrical profession. Among the contributors to "Stories Told by Well-Known People" this year are Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Albert Chevalier, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Willie Clarkson, and Mr. Alfred Lester.—Sunday Times, Jan. 17, 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

AN ENTERTAINING DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL ANNUAL.

"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1909 is an invaluable book to all those interested in matters theatrical and operatic. Professionals and those whose lot it is to write of dramatic matters will be specially concerned with such desirable information as that contained in the lists of (1) new plays and important revivals produced at the London and suburban theatres, (2) new plays and important revivals produced in the provinces, (3) casts of new plays and important revivals (a new feature, we think), (4) plays produced in New York, (5) new pieces produced at the principal Paris theatres, and (6) new plays and important revivals presented at the principal Berlin theatres. These lists, and also alphabetical lists of (a) plays produced in London and the provinces and (b) the principal sketches produced at London and provincial variety houses, cover the period from Dec. 1, 1907, to Nov. 30, 1908. The casts of new sketches, a theatrical, musical, and equestrian obituary, and lists of theatres and music-halls in the United Kingdom are also given. To the general reader the most attractive feature will be, however, a series of stories told by well-known people, each story being illustrated by the photograph and autograph of the author. The annual is both useful and entertaining, and has enhanced its already high reputation. (London: 5, Tavistock-street, Strand.)—Dundee Courier, Jan. 27, 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

Once more "The Era" Annual makes its appearance as a work of reference indispensable to all who have business relations with the stage, and of hardly less value to that vastly greater multitude who love the theatre and follow the fortunes and careers of its rising and risen stars with intelligent interest. The casts of all the important plays and revivals for twelve months are given, and there is a list of music hall sketches produced in the same period in England, and of new pieces in Paris, Berlin, and New York. Among other interesting features is a collection of capital stories by such well-known figures in the theatrical world as Messrs. George Alexander H. B. Irving, Albert Chevalier, Gus Elen, W. Clarkson, and Misses Hilda Trevelyan and Evie Greene.—Daily Telegraph, Jan. 14 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

The dramatic and musical annual published by "The Era" is a handy compendium of theatrical and music hall information about plays and players. It contains useful references to new plays and important revivals, not only in London and the provinces, but also in New York and Berlin. The annual is given a wider interest by a series of stories written by well-known members of the profession, including Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Albert Chevalier, Miss Decima Moore, and Mr. Gus Elen. Their entertaining contributions are illustrated with photographs and autograph signatures.—Edinburgh Evening News, Jan. 23, 1909.

BUSINESS MANAGERS.

How the Affairs of a Theatre can be Most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.

By CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.

Price 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" ("The Era," Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts." By Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.). Shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. 3s. 6d. The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Jackson Withers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Aladdin is being presented here this week. Miss Marie Wall makes a hit in the title-rôle; Abanazar is in the capable hands of Mr. George Helm; Miss Emmie Cozens is a captivating Princess; Mr. Bob Stephenson a humorous Widow Twankey; and Tom and Neil in their wrestling and boxing act, speciality dances by Hayes and Watson, and juggling by Staffo are other attractions.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Proprietors, The Aberdare Public Hall Theatre and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 company is here this week with Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Edward Bikker essays the rôle of General Kingsley with much effect; Mr. Harry Scott is a successful Captain Frank Carsdale; Mr. Oswald Douglas a powerful Captain George Darrell; Miss Violet Ingram a strongly dramatic Margaret Rivers; and as Alma Kingsley Miss Mary Ainsley acts with grace and dignity. Miss Elsie Dene is a vivacious Molly Meadows, and Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie Douglas as Eric Carsdale and Jack Smith (two drummer boys) are the recipients of much applause. Mr. Wilson Holmes is good as Tim Barker, and humour is freely supplied by Mr. Will Percy as Quiney O'Quirke and Mr. Dick Seddon as Timothy Trimmer.

ABERDEEN. — H. M. Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The delightful musical comedy Havana draws crowded audiences this week. Miss Gertrude Lester displays remarkable talent as an actress and singer in the part of Consuelo; Miss Jessie Broughton makes a conspicuous success as Lolita; Miss Luna Love is a most attractive Anita; Mr. George Gregory keeps the house continually convulsed as Nix; and Mr. W. H. Rawlins is no less amusing as Reginald Brow. Other parts are admirably portrayed by Misses Florence Phillips, Gladys Fontaine, Constance Clive, Vi Darling, and Ethel Wilson; and Messrs. T. C. Maxwell, Will Hindson, Frank Hector, Edward O'Neill, and Campbell Bishop. The piece is lavishly produced; and the orchestra, which has been specially augmented, with Mr. J. Reynders, jun., as leader, is splendidly conducted by Mr. Andrew Maccunn.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—A delightful operatic burlesque, The Singing Servants, is presented by Mr. Joe Peterman's company; the Twin Andersons (Lillie and Minnie) give a highly dexterous display of dancing on one rope; Bromby and Fontein are highly successful in their "Man Behind the Music Stand" skit; Mr. Carl Lynn is a brilliant animal mimic; Mr. Fred Vallance contributes a capital humorous ventriloquial act, The New Orderly; the Three Sisters Wynne are most vivacious burlesque actresses; Miss Edie Coolville is a capital comedienne and dancer; and Miss Lily Arthur pleases as a comedienne.

Alhambra Music Hall.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Both the Alhambra and the Empire are again crowded this week. Miss Florrie Du Barrie and Miss Dolly McCarthy are extremely popular as comediennes; Miss Bella Hardy sings and dances vivaciously; Miss Marie Rose and Mr. Archie Murray are enthusiastically encored for their singing, dancing, and playing; and Mr. Jack Marson, in addition to his first-class songs, tells some delightfully quaint stories.

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—Sydney Rennef and C. M. Copping's talented company are presenting the stirring drama How Women Ruin Men for three nights. Mr. Sydney Rennef acts with power and great force, and gives an excellent delineation of his part as Jack Fairclough; Miss Grace Jones gives a very fine rendition of her part as Sylvia Grey, to the delight of her audience; while Miss Lilian Herrick portrays Mercy Grey in a very pleasing manner. Comedy is fully supplied by Mr. Fred Elvin, who excels as Jimmy Chucket. The scenery and effects are good, and the production is highly successful.

Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Eight Lancashire Lads are a smart set of vocalists and dancers, and delight the audience with song and dance; Nellie Ridgway gives a clever trapeze act; while The Wyffs successfully produce the sketch St. Valentine's Day to the high appreciation of the house; Ailsa Douglas gives a capital rendering of her songs; while Paul Pelham scores highly as a character vocalist; Great Vincent gives a good tumbling feat; while the Howes mystify the audience in their marvellous mental telegraphy. Splendid films are shown on the canvas, and the music played by the band under the leadership of Mr. F. Drake is bright and cheerful.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Messrs. Edwin C. Jazon and Nightingale's company opened an engagement here on Monday before a large and highly-delighted audience, with the pantomime Cinderella. The show is handsomely staged and dressed, and contains some good musical numbers. In the title-rôle Miss Molly Doon has made a great impression with her winsome presence and capital singing; Miss Vera Mayne as Prince Brilliant is a general favourite, her songs meeting with unstinted praise; as Dandini Miss Beattie Foster scores heavily; and Miss Flo Burnett as the Fairy Godmother sang with much charm and grace; her song "Sweethearts" brings down the house. Mr. Fred Lake as the Baron is highly amusing; the Danbys worked most assiduously as the court bailiffs, Kuff and Kollor; Mr. Harry Plowden and Mr. Wallace Whitney as the ugly sisters create much laughter; and Mr. Leo Fields' remarkable agility as well as his clever dancing make him specially popular as Buttons; Miss Lily Hales makes the most of the part of Dorothy; and Miss Cissie Gordon looks smart as the Marquis of Taxes. The large and well-dressed chorus worked in most harmonious fashion.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The La Vails head the bill here this week, and receive rounds of applause for an exceedingly smart gymnastic turn; Miss Kitty Colyer goes down exceptionally well, her dancing being much admired; Miss Zeta Gray and company, in the sketch The Lancashire Lass, obtain appreciation; Ryder Sloan, comedian, is popular; and Syd Myra with his performing dog wins favour; Star and Leslie appear in a novelty act, and are responsible for some clever club-throwing feats; F. S. Hulme is a capital vocal comedian; Boy Glen provokes mirth with his smart patter; and Mlle. Eldée poses gracefully in a golden frame. The Bioscope pictures conclude an excellent entertainment.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—A capital programme is provided again this week. Tarro Miyaki is on a return visit, his performance consisting of an exhibition of the ju-jitsu system of wrestling. He is again offering various sums of money from £1,000 to £1 to anyone defeating him, and several challenges are being competed during the week. Of the variety turns Rene and Rene are two skilful comic knockabout cyclists and equilibrists awheel; the Lutinas (Lulu and Tina) give a marvellous exhibition in a gymnastic mélange, introducing trapeze, wire walking, and finishing up with a graceful Spanish dance; Sirus and Simpkin go through a burlesque legerdemain act which forms a novel change; Gracie Dane sings two numbers with good effect; Jack Heath is a clever comedian, and his contributions are well received. The Bioscope shows several amusing pictures, which are greatly appreciated.

ARBROATH.—New Public Hall.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. Joiner.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company gave a fine performance here on Saturday evening of The Dairymaids. Miss Janet Reeve as Peggy sang her various songs sweetly, and with evident culture; Miss Dorothy Belmore played with dignity the part of Lady Brudenell; Miss Maud Lucy as Eliza, maid of all work, is particularly clever, her dancing, singing, and acting being all that could be desired; Mr. Bernard Vaughan as Dr. O'Bryne gave universal satisfaction by his pleasantries; Mr. Edward Dodds as Joe Mivens was simply irresistable.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, Jun.—The stage at the Theatre Royal is occupied for the week by the members of the Ashton and District Operatic Society, who are presenting on behalf of the charities Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera The Yeomen of the Guard.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—A first-class variety company is here for the week. The Dayton Family, twelve in number, in their clever acrobatic novelty, Le Rendezvous, head the bill. The dancing ladies, the Sisters Belmont, are talented and graceful in song and motion; Mr. Walter Ellis introduces Captain Duncan and His Airship, an original comic scena. The two scenes are the Workshop and In the Clouds. Bob Barbour and Harry Danby are two amusing aeronauts; the Five Bombays are capital harmony singers and clog-dancers; Edwin Austin, as concertinist, is a player of that instrument of wonderful manipulative gifts; in the matter of clever juggling in a comic way the Brothers Idento are really neat and clever; Marie Bythe is a comedienne and vocalist of talent; Herma is a modern gladiator of surprising strength and muscle; the Five Vernons are xylophone specialists. The Bioscope shows the Ruins of Messina.

New Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Chas. F. Wilson.—The Pavilion bill for current consumption in the animated picture section is full of living interest. The coloured marvel in wooden shoes, Frank E. Ford; and a clever comedian and patterer, Will Sullivan, are responsible for vaudeville interludes.

The Picturedrome.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. Jas. Marks.—The animated section of the entertainment at this popular pleasure resort includes some comical films. Perhaps the most entertaining is that of 'Arry and 'Arriet's Evening Out.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—This week's interesting pictures include, amongst others, Anarchy in England, Baby's Chum, The Royalist's Wife, The Moth Hunter, The Curate's Honeymoon, and The Love Story of Thylda. The Cinephone is a big success, and the illustrated songs, ably rendered by Miss Ethel Sheffer, are a pleasant and popular feature.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The greater portion of this week's programme here is taken up by Doctor Walford Bodie, whose fame as a "bloodless surgeon" is well known throughout the country. A hearty reception was accorded the Doctor on Monday, and his electrical experiments, including "The Cage of Death," were watched with breathless interest. The vaudeville turns include Miss Bella Skene, burlesque comedienne; Litle Dolly Robson, vocalist; Mr. Harry Varden, ventriloquist; Clarke and Glenney, in comedy sketch, The Haunted House; the Bros. Carney, character duettists; and the ever-popular pictures by Mr. Clayton.

AYE.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—A packed house welcomed the Carl Rosa Opera Company here on Monday night. The opening piece was Carmen. Miss Doris Woodall in the title-rôle was charming, and her singing was in keeping with her splendid acting of the part; Mdme. Ina Hill made a fine impression with her beautiful soprano voice in the minor rôle of Micaela; Mr. Edward Davis as Don Jose gave an ideal rendering of the part of the luckless dragoon, while in his love-making he was impassioned and grand, and his tenor voice, of great compass, was heard to advantage; Mr. Chas. Victor as the bull-fighter, Escamillo, was equally good, and his toreador song in the tavern scene was magnificently rendered. The other members of the cast gave adequate support; the chorus was powerful and well-balanced, while the orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, played perfectly. The scenery was most complete. On Tuesday night Faust was presented, with Mdme. Hill in the part of Marguerite; and on Wednesday Lohengrin and Thursday Bohemian Girl.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime, Blue Beard, is here this week. Miss Daisy Lake is a handsome Selim, with lots of dash and go, and as a singer took the fancy of the audience; Miss Marie Duncan as Fatima is a very pleasing figure throughout, and she earned considerable applause for all her songs; the good Fairy Queen Asphodel is very agreeably filled by Miss Laura Wickenden, whose voice delighted the house; also prominent among the ladies are Miss D. D'Armour as Zoolah and Miss Gertie Gordon as Cashim. Among the laughter-makers, Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Ann provoked the most amusement and applause; Mr. Jack Parker as Bamboozlum played with much spirit; Shacabac and Abdulla, two busy and humorous characters, are cleverly impersonated by Messrs. W. Harlin and B. Hanlon, and the fun is further augmented by the efforts of Mr. Walter B. Frear as Pimple. The specialities include Miss Dolly Moore, male impersonator; Messrs. Harlin and Hanlon, the Florodorians, Russell and Gage, the Sandow Girls, and Walter B. Frear. The dresses and scenery are beautiful, and the augmented band is under the bâton of Mr. Louis Finch.

BARNSLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons is playing to very good houses. The company is excellent throughout.

Empire Palace.—The Cowboy Millionaire tops the bill this week; and Mr. Tubby Edlin fairly brings down the house with his funnosities. Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast are well received; Vowles and Bryan give a neat turn entitled "Song and Story in a Garden"; Lozelle is a gymnast with a new show; Fred Shepherd is a comedian with funny songs; Albert St. Clair, double-voiced vocalist; Miss Aggie Nolan, a smart clog-dancer; and the Palacescope complete a good all-round bill.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Long Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—On Monday and Tuesday Mr. Reginald Dance's company paid its initial visit here with Raffles. Mr. Dance himself in the name part sustained the keen interest of the audience; Mr. A. P. Bell made much of the part of Bunny; Mr. Edward Irwin was a clever exponent of the detective; and Mr. Oswald Griffiths delineated cleverly the revenge of the thwarted burglar, Crawshay. Miss Mollie Tremaine capably presented the disappointed Mrs. Vidal; Miss Frances Titheradge gave an engaging interpretation of Gwendoline; and Miss Doris Digby as the Maid did capable work. Misses Kitty Lofting and Marguerite Unett, and Messrs. P. Alexander, F. C. Pool, and J. W. Brighten added to the general success.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company is here with Moths. Mr. Cecil Wynne is an ideal Prince Sergius Louroff, and Mr. Raynor a typical blasé Lord Jura; Miss Henrietta Schriee is a downright but smart Fuchsia Leach, and Miss Cecilia Dare acts cleverly as the Duchess de Souvaz; Miss Lillian Kevill-Davies is sufficiently frivolous and worldly as Lady Dolly, and the Vere Herbert of Miss Dorothy West-Symes stands out in its artistic simplicity; the Duke of Mull is well done by Mr. Leonard Laurence, and the Correze of Mr. Conrad Heywood is most correctly drawn. Captain Swift is also billed.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Fred Granville's pantomime Beauty and the Beast is here. The Beauty, Miss Dollie Darrie, is captivating, and the Beast, Mr. Leslie Austin, sings uncommonly well; Miss Hilda de Gray is a sprightly Prince, Mr. Sam Foster a funny Sammy, and Daleno and Stream are humorous Bailiffs; Mr. Martin Practice is a capital Wilhelmina, and Dorothy Dane a satisfactory Sir Superior Polish. Specialities are contributed by Miss Flo Warner, who as Silver Buttons does exceedingly well, and also by, among others, Barrie and Ward, Miss Florence Milton, and the Casino Belles.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—An excellent programme is presented here this week, the premier position being held by Dewe Samuels. The Westbrooks give a pleasing entertainment, and Palles and Cussack are comedians of the good old style; other good turns are Keri and Kari, Japanese illusionists, and Fred Hallam, comedian.

New Hippodrome.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A series of capital pictures representing Shakespeare's drama The Tempest and other popular subjects, form the attraction here this week.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. Harry Benet, with an exceedingly strong company, presented Robinson Crusoe to a crowded house on Monday night. Miss Nellie Dyson was a bright and dashing Crusoe, and scored well; and Miss S. Millar was winsome as Polly Perkins. Miss Cissie Ramsey as Britannia sang delightfully the song "A Tiny Seed of Love"; and Miss Bertha Collins (Princess Pearlesa) gave "Poverty Street" in taking style; Miss Trixie Boscombe was admirable as Miss Nicey; Mr. D. Philips as Dame Crusoe hits the Welsh character off to a nicety; in Mr. J. H. Wakefield (Will Atkins) they have a comedian of no mean ability, and he helps the fun along in a happy manner; Mr. H. Benet as Billy Crusoe received a fine reception; Mr. Lonzo Brown was an ideal Friday, his dancing being quite a revelation; as Flip and Flap Messrs. Rand and O'Ryan were very amusing, their comedy act creating much laughter; Mr. Sam Saxo (King Koppem) proved himself a first-class instrumentalist. The speciality turns were a feature of the performance. Will and Rose, comedy conjurers; and Kloof and Ramsey, musical eccentrics, were distinctly successful. Mr. Ernest Grahame conducted efficiently an augmented orchestra.

Romilly Hall.—Proprietors, the Barry Market Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Cobbledick.—Mr. Harry Rogers's repertory company is playing the famous Welsh drama The Maid of Cefn Ydfa. Mr. Cyril Whitney presents a capital study of Will Hopkin, and Mr. Bert Barrie gives a satisfactory portrayal of Morgan the Seer, and Mr. Harry Rogers is good as John Maddox; but the feature of the piece is the humour introduced by Mr. Arthur Griffiths (Lewis Bach) and Miss Ethel Thomas (Gwenny Bach); Mr. Fred Tucker is also very quaint as Anthony Maddox.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Tom Jones is being played here this week by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Miss Florence Smithson creates a perfect furore by her singing as Sophia; Honour is pertly undertaken by Miss Jean Ritz; Lady Bellaston finds an excellent representative in Miss Alice Oppitz; Mr. Harry Welchman both histrionically and vocally fulfils all requirements as Tom Jones; as Mr. Allworthy Mr. John Morley has small chance to exhibit his fine baritone voice; Blifil is well enacted by Mr. Deane Percival; Mr. Ambrose Manning (in his original part of Squire Western), Mr. George Elton (Partridge), and Mr. J. T. Macmillan (Gregory) work with great success in their respective parts. Two other gentlemen who assist in the merry-making are Mr. Cyril Lane and Mr. Lionel Braham, with their quaintly different physical appearance as Grizzle and Dobbin.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Dean and Wilton, clever and eccentric acrobats; Maude Vera, a dainty comedienne and dancer; Nellie Moore, in studies in character; Russell Brandow, who dances with agility and success; Clark and Hayden, in a bright duologue, By Appointment; Poole and Maguire, in a well-arranged vocal act; Madge Grey, with child mimicry; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are among the attractions at this house.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—One of the best dramas seen in Bedford for some months past was presented for the first time here on Monday night. The Sailor's Wedding is from the pen of H. Brinsley Hill, and is being produced by Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's excellent company. As the cool and self-possessed hero Lieut. Gordon Drake Mr. Richard A. Greene is a splendid representative; Mr. Cecil Klein as Sir Victor Lascelles is extremely natural and is repeatedly applauded; Giovanni Ferici, the villain of the piece, is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Hodgson Taylor; and Mr. Finch Smiles very skilfully impersonates Giacomo, "the man with the evil eye." Most of the humour is supplied by Mr. Walter Pemberton, who as the jolly Jack Hawkins is inimitable, and Miss M. Sadie, who vivaciously assumes the rôle of Polly. Miss Mary Pemberton acts with grace and refinement the part of Mary Bellini; and Miss Laura Hansen proves herself a capable actress as Countess Bellini; Miss Winifred Pearson as Leonore de Cresac has a difficult part, but submits an excellent rendering. There are other characters, all most ably represented. The scenery is much about the average.

BELFAST.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company opened here on Monday with A White Man, which met with unqualified approval. In the rôle of Captain James Wynnegate, V.C., Mr. Frank Tennant achieved much success, his acting being irreproachable; and praise must be accorded Miss Margaret Fairleigh for her impersonation of the faithful Indian Nut-u-Rich. The villainies of Cash Hawkins were clearly depicted by Mr. Gerald Earle; the part of Big Bill was admirably sustained by Mr. R. A. Brandon; Miss Eleanor May did full justice to the rôle of Diana Countess of Kerhill; and Mr. Harold S. Richardson in the rôle of the Earl of Kerhill acquitted himself well. Mr. William Dempsey was the solicitor Malcolm Petrie to the life; and Mr. Eric Hudson was certainly convincing as Tab-y-wana.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—This week Miss Rose Moncrieff's company is here in The Bells of Old York. Miss Moncrieff herself appears as Trumpeter Romney Kent with much credit, her songs being highly appreciated; Mr. Rass Challis is well suited to the rôle of the Rev. Philip Gordon, his acting being decidedly clever; and Mr. J. O. Stevenson submits a good impersonation of the villainous Captain Romney Kent. Miss Lucy Courtenay in the part of Lady Angela Grantham achieves success; and Miss Nellie De Lacey is excellent as Angel Grantham. Mr. Horace Buckley as Trooper Jigger Popkins is most amusing; and Mr. George Tearle deserves mention for the able manner in which he presents the part of Colonel Kent. Miss Nellie Ingrim admirably interprets the rôle of Kitty Flash.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading attraction here is provided by Miss Beaumont Collins and company with a dramatic playlet entitled The House of Terror. Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris appear with success in The Adventures of a Happy Tramp; Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston gain approval in their latest success; the Eight College Girls speedily make themselves favourites; and the vocal items of Wills and Mackenzie afford much pleasure. Also here are Milner and Storey, comedy couple; Miss Kathleen Cogan, comedienne and dancer; U. C. Ugo, in his magical scena, assisted by Valetta; Three Orleans, in their drawing-room act; Steve Bartle, concertina soloist; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr John A. Walker.—Mr. Fred Ginnett's company tops the bill with the equestrian spectacle, Dick Turpin's Ride to York. The evergreen Walter Munroe returns to this hall to the joy of many admirers, and his songs and dances have been cheered to the echo; a clever and novel act is provided by St. Clair Brothers, knockabout cyclists who introduce their original football match on bicycles; Clown Argo, the eccentric farmyard mimic, takes well; and Miss Sybil St. Elmo, operatic vocalist, sings sweetly. Also here are Miss Josie Mooney, comedienne; Mr. Fred Keeton, comedian, and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr Will White.—Notwithstanding many other attractions, this old-established theatre commands a large measure of support. Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Tweedie, many films have been exhibited, including The Old Actor, Phantom Ship, When the Man in the Moon Seeks a Wife, Mother's Fault, Getting Evidence, &c. Also appearing are Joe and Pete Murray, capital negro entertainers; and Mr. Jack W. Hughes, vocalist.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The great patronage bestowed on this hall is certainly very flattering to the popular manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur. This week the following beautiful pictures have been exhibited: Pyrenees, Young Poacher, White Suit, Athletic Meeting in Switzerland, The Bully and the Recruit; Wreckers, &c. Also here are Mr. Will Montgomery, a smart actor-vocalist, with good songs; and Mr. Wm. Dent, comedian.

Cliftonville Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. O. E. Laumann.—There is no abatement in the patronage bestowed on this hall, rinking being the craze. Mr. Laumann announces a Barnyard Skating Carnival, which is certain to draw immense crowds. Many other novelties will be produced during the season.

BILSTON.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—On Monday Mr. Frank Adair and his company opened with The Heathen and the Christian, a play which is full of stirring interest and excitement. Li the Avenger is depicted in a striking manner by Mr. Frank Adair; and Miss Adeline Raby is eminently successful as Mira Sampson. Mr. Gerald Turner looks and acts well as Admiral Freebold; Miss Eva Reed is extremely amusing as Becky Fibbins, and her singing and dancing are well appreciated. Mr. Bruce Williams is also highly diverting as Bah Lamb Gentle. The scenery and effects are very fine.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—The Clifton Operatic Society, a local body of exceptionally clever amateurs, are appearing in a week's season of comic opera in The Gondoliers. Excellent business is being done, and a really fine performance does credit to all concerned.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Miss Victoria Monks, the popular comedienne, heads the bill here, and has a right royal reception at every appearance. Miss Lilian Dundas and her able sketch company are a centre of attraction in Convict Nance; and the reappearances include Mr. J. W. Rowley, a capital comedian, and always a favourite here. A first-class combination also comprises Tee and Tee, musical eccentrics; the Crown Trio of vocalists; the Lovelaces, with illustrated songs; Woolmer Young, comedian; Dick Austin, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical-director.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball. — Mr. Edwin Boyde, a really funny comedian with a fund of genuine humour, is in great demand; and Hinton and Wooton, in their football on cycles act, are a good turn. A comprehensive programme is also supported by the Godfreys, in a musical sketch; Angelina, lady juggler; the Rizarellis, trapeze artists; Mr. Fred Erick, comedian; Recar Trio of lady acrobats; Miss Frances Hanlon, comedienne; Harry Meegan, comedian; Clive and Vera, variety artists; the Forsyths, in a musical sketch; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dick Whittington is now in its eighth week, and still the public flock to its attractions. Miss Sybil Arundale as Dick, and Mr. Tom Foy as Idle Jack continue to fascinate and divert, according to their respective characters, and the rest of the company are very happy in their parts. Students' night is announced for the 26th.

Prince of Wales's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue, also in its eighth week, is turning hundreds away nightly, with its record-smashing company of stars and fine ensemble. Miss Hetty King in the title-rôle, Mr. Tom Murray as leading comedian, and Mr. G. H. Elliott in his "chocolate" confections, may be quoted from among these bright, particular stars.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is holding its own splendidly, the house being packed at the morning, as well as the evening performances. Messrs. Stephens and Rennior as the comedians have "grown on" the audiences here till there is "nothing like them," and Miss Ellaline Thorne is one of the nicest and best "boys" ever seen here.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Midnight Wedding is drawing crowded houses here, with its fine romantic situations, and clever company, headed by Mr. Alfred Paumier. Mr. Paumier, both in style and appearance, is eminently suited for the rôle of the handsome and daring Paul Valmar; Miss Yvonne Orchardson as the devoted and intrepid Astrea is greatly admired both for her beauty and her acting; Mr. John Nesbit is impressive as the Crown Prince; Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes cleverly suggests the shallow character of Lieut. Eugene; Mr. F. Booth Conway depicts the ruthless character of Capt. Rudolph in all its villainy; Mr. James E. Page acts in the bluff and good-humoured manner of Sergt. Max admirably; and the saucy Kathie, and her two suitors, Otto and Bebo, are well played by Miss Gladys Faunce and the Messrs. Vernon H. Vayne and Algie Spalding.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—How Girls are Brought to Ruin, the new success by Mrs. Morton Powell, has been promptly secured here, and, with Mr. Morton Powell's company, has found great favour. Mrs. Morton Powell's acting as the repentant Winnie Waters takes a large share of the admiration; Miss Constance Medwyn is good as Mrs. Burton; Miss Rona Merrick as Jessie Burton acts with touching pathos; Mr. Walter Steele plays the part of the sailor-lover with conviction and vigour; Mr. Wallace Clark enacts the character of the roué, Philip Edger, otherwise Dare, very decisively; Mr. Alrick Burton is cleverly suave and hypocritical as Solomon Sleek; and Mr. Sidney Bryant, Miss Jeannie Risley, and Miss Addie Adair, &c., support very ably.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—Dick Whittington, bearing the Hall mark of Mr. James Kiddie's name, has met with a rapturous reception here. Miss Lena Page as the hero who overcomes all obstacles, acts and sings with an appropriate flow of spirits and verve; Miss Nelly Merton is delightfully melodious and becoming as Alice; Mr. George Rydon makes the audience wax exceedingly merry as Idle Jack; while the Cook as personified by Mr. Fred Spencer is the quintessence of humour. Mr. Dennis McCarthy as Fitzwarren, Mr. Bert Hudson as the Cat, the Hannaway Brothers as the Apprentices, Miss Gipsy Ray as the Captain, and Miss Flo Hilton as Algy add to the fun and melody; and Miss Dorothy Dryden's Salome and other dances and numerous clever specialities attract.

Palace Theatre, Bordesley.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—The Prodigal Son is gaining the approval of vast audiences here. Mr. Wentworth Croke's present company still retains the services of Mr. Hugh Montgomery, whose impersonation of the nobler brother of the twain, Magnus, is instinct with strength of character and dignity; Mr. Gordon Macintosh invests the rôle of the prodigal, Oscar, with all its superficial graces; Miss Valerie Crespin secures sympathy for Thora and affection for Elin by her well-defined acting; Miss Mildred Cottell gives a fascinating air of abandon to the rôle of Helga; Mr. Bellenden Clarke delivers his reproaches as the Governor impressively; and Mr. Philip Renouf acts vigorously as the Factor; while Miss Marie Harcourt shows a grimness of humour which is quite in keeping with the rôle of Margret. Miss Barbara Gott shows the pathetic nature of the mother, Anna, very ably.

Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Mdlle. Camille Ober, Parisian chanteuse, although suffering from a severe cold, is delighting crowded houses here; Slippery Jim, a dramatic sketch by E. Dagnall, Charles Goodhart, and Violet Lewis, is capitally played; Annie Purcell has become a great favourite; The Green Dandies present a refined entertainment; and Lottie Leighton, Trentanovi Sisters, Bert Weston, Musical Sylvo, and Boganny's Bakers complete the bill.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—A Boy's Proposal is presented by Mr. Fisher White's company, which gives great scope for Master Philip Tongue, who plays the leading part in a clever manner; Hubert Carter's company appear in David Garrick, which is admirably played; the Three Prestons have an absurdity, The Liftman's Rise; Maud Edwards is a capital ventriloquist; and Gladys Mavius, Harry Lickson's Trained Dogs, Phil Parsons, and Edith Etherley complete an artistic programme.

Hippodrome. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—The Klein Family of trick cyclists do some new and difficult feats; the Broadway Girls sing and dance themselves into favour; the Compllins have a smart musical comedy duo; Frank Fenton and company appear in a sketch, Only an Actor; and prominent turns are done by Heeley and Meeley, Mdlle. Renée, Arthur Reece, and W. T. Ellwanger and company in The Peacemaker, which is successful.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Lew Lake and company are here in the comedy-drama My Pal Jerry; an attractive and novel item is Orbasany's Performing Cockatoos, whose tricks are entertaining; the Alberto Troupe of lady equilibrists are experts; the Voldam Bros. are comedy acrobats of no mean order; Barton and Franklin have a refined musical entertainment; and Edie Anderson is applauded for her songs, as also are Bert Brantford, comedian, and Dene and Dawson for their comedy act.

Aston Hippodrome. — Resident-Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company is appearing here in the tabloid pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk. The music, dresses, and scenery are all good. Alma O'Brey as Jack, Bessie Knight as the principal girl, and Dave O'Toole as the Dame are excellent; other prominent parts are played by Bob Baxter, O'Malley and Brown, C. Bright, and Hal Forde. There is also a good variety programme, the artists including Kitty Chandos and Marie Rayner.

King's Hall.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—The series of pictures here includes Saved from the Sea, A Mother's Love, and A Dream of Christmas. The vaudeville entertainment provided is well up to the usual standard.

Curzon Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—The New Century Pictures opened here on Monday for a season, and are attracting large audiences. Miss Dulcie Saunderson, soprano vocalist, finds favour; and The Players, a company which includes Dan Hardy, Eric Strange, Louis Holt, and Max Edwards, make their first appearance, and are well received.

Masonic Hall.—Catlin's Royal Pierrots are playing to good houses here. There are several clever artistes in this troupe, and the entertainment is appreciated.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Frodk. Melville's company is here this week in Her Forbidden Marriage. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is a capable George Maddison; and equal praise is due to Mr. Louis Hector for his presentation of Chas. Devereux. Mr. Wilfred Mansfield is capital as Sir Geo. Lancaster; and Mr. Fred de Vere is a good Timothy Tuttutt. Miss Grace Emery (Patty Lovejoy) and Miss Grace Lester (the Mother Superior) give great satisfaction. Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne is charming as Lucy; and the Lady Lucretia of Miss Florence Hunt is delightful.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone. — The Blackpool Amateur Operatic Society is playing Utopia, Ltd., here this week under the direction of Mr. R. Weathersby, late of the D'Oyly Carte companies.

Grand.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson. —Wickham, the strong man, tops the bill here, which this week includes Jessie Star, a very pleasing Scotch comedienne; Leo and Jerry, in a ventriloquial sketch; Harry Maynard, voc animated picture world, and Mr. Delmar keeps well to the front in giving his patrons a variety of the latest films, including some grand pantomime pictures, as well as dramatic and humorous scenes, all of which are to the liking of the numerous patrons of this popular resort.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Miss Maud Hildyard's company opened here on Monday with The Great Awakening. Miss Hildyard gave an artistic and thoroughly convincing impersonation of the unscrupulous adventuress Lola Selby, alias Lady Merton; Mr. Bernard Copping doubled the parts of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton with complete success; Miss Lilian Deane invested her enactment of Molly Merton with much sympathy; Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass and Miss Isa Bellington as Selina Worts were highly amusing; and able support was rendered by Mr. Wallis Clark (James Selby), Mr. Gordon Laws (Guy Rogan), Mr. Charles Ashwell (Captain Harry Lambert), and Mr. Gifforde Reynolds (Richard Wilson). The admirably-staged drama has attracted large audiences.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—May Clifton and company achieve great success in their Japanese extravaganza Jack in Japan; the Gregson Comedy Trio are very amusing in the speciality act, The Dummy; Wall Owen is a quaint and original comedian; Ruby Lester wins hearty applause for her artistic mimicry; the Three Delaries are acrobats of great merit; Zelda submits an excellent instrumental turn; Dandie Clinton is a good impersonator; Ford and Maxwell are a capital pair of comedians and dancers; Gene Brant is a droll comedian; Ivey Aberdare sings and dances admirably; and the Alhambra Picturegraph affords interest and amusement.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—An excellent programme is sustained here this week. Horace Goldin, illusionist, baffles the audience with his wonderfully clever conjuring tricks; Frank L. Gregory and his troupe of hoop-rollers and jugglers are highly successful; Lalla Selbini is well received in her song-scena, The Beauty and Her Sports; Dorothy L. Clark contributes songs in artistic style; Rosie Archer is a capital mimic; Wright and Dawson are amusing knockabout comedians; Emerson and Baldwin's comicalities are entertaining; and Russell Carr is a pleasing ventriloquist.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest E. Norris and company opened their third week here on Monday with John Glayde's Honour. Mr. Ernest E. Norris gave a fine enactment of John Glayde, whose neglected and erring wife had a clever and artistic exponent in Miss Kathleen Russell; Miss Florence Tresilian was a charming Dora Longman; Mr. Bert Morley made a pleasing Howard Collingham; Mr. F. Sutherland's Michael Shurmur and Miss Caroline Fenton's Lady Lerode were good character studies; Miss Nona Hoffe was a graceful Princess de Castagnary; and satisfactory support was given by Mr. J. Wood-Ingram (Trevor Lerode), Mr. Fred Castleman (Christopher Branley), and Miss Evelyn Cecil (Mrs. Rennick).

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—King's Royal Bioscope continues the attraction here. The Tottenham Tragedy, or, Anarchy in England, is a very striking film; Manon Lescaut and Sold by His Parents are interesting pictures, and the series includes several of a comic character.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The animated pictures here continue to prove highly attractive. Coffee Cultivation at Costa Rica is an interesting and instructive film; Ruins of Messina after the Earthquake is very realistic; Flash James and Last Year's Timetable convey strongly dramatic stories, and much amusement is afforded by Too Credulous and Bob the Scullion. The song "I'm afraid to come home after dark" is submitted by the Cinephone; and the Barrasford Sable Minstrels prove highly entertaining in the sketch Matrimonial Bliss.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The last night of the highly successful Aladdin pantomime has been announced for Saturday, March 6, but from the packed houses at each performance it would run for a much longer period if circumstances would permit. Several new songs were introduced on Monday evening. Miss Ouida Macdermott has a new patriotic song, "Bravo, Territorials," Miss Deborah Volar has introduced "I was dreaming," Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood sings "I'm afraid to go home in the dark," all the new songs and old ones going remarkably well.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Success still attends Little Red Riding Hood, full houses being the rule at each performance. New songs and comic business are frequently introduced, and the topical allusions are kept up to date. Popular opinion gives the palm to this pantomime as being the best produced at this theatre for many years. It seems to suit all tastes. The scenery is decidedly good, the dresses are elegant, and the company is a very competent and hard-working one.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Ten-Ji Troupe of Japanese magicians head the programme with a fine turn, many of their illusions being most remarkable and effective; Brown and Le Clerq amuse with their screaming absurdity, Black Justice; Reg Bolton has a funny sketch, The Editor's Imp; Florence and Victor Ellis excel in national songs and dances; the Seven Merry Marvels entertain as vocalists and eccentric instrumentalists; Hunter and Williams are smart speciality dancers and vocalists; the Sisters Allen are pleasing duettists and dancers; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore head the programme with a smart turn, entitled A Bit of Vaudeville; they present several tabloid sketches, character studies, &c., and obtain much appreciation. Hall and Earle, "The Chinaman and the Tramp," entertain with eccentric acrobatic acts, &c.; Charles Bignell, comedian, obtains much appreciation; Alma Campbell, comedienne, presents a pleasing turn; Gibbon and Bell amuse with their balancing, &c., speciality, Wanted a Partner; the Norman and Leonard Trio excel in their refined drawing-room musical and dancing act; Ben Albert, comedian, obtains considerable applause; and Blanche Vincent is an accomplished and pleasing vocalist. Excellent animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — Messrs. Pardoes and Miss Lottie Holland's comic pantomime Cinderella, written by E. Clementson, is a good draw this week. Miss Nellie Rose is a dainty Cinderella, and an excellent Prince Charming is presented by Miss Lottie Holland; Miss Beattie Howard as Princess Rosala and Miss Dora as Dandini also do well. Much fun is contributed by Mr. S. Dorma as the Baron, Mr. N. Dench and Mr. J. Dench as the sisters, Mr. George Hyam as Scoot, Messrs. Alf Grady and Mike Hastings as Blobbs and Blabbs, and Messrs. Wright and Charles Spencer as the flunkies. Miss Cissie Loveday as Fairy Rose Leaf and Mr. Tom Griffith as Father Time both sing well. There are several specialities, among which are the marvellous Pardoes, Miss Lottie Holland, in "Ayesha, my sweet Egyptian," Alf Grady and Mike Hastings (patterers and dancers), Miss Nellie Rose in speciality dances, Zenieth, animal impersonator, and Edingale Trio of Continental speciality dancers.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Miss Hook of Holland, produced by Mr. George Dance's company, makes her first visit here. Mr. Alfred Wellesley as Mr. Hook is an expert mirth-provoker; and Mr. Fred Lyne is most successful as Simon Slink. Miss Cissie Sefton is an excellent Mina; and a pleasing representative of Miss Hook is Miss Daisy Manning. Mr. Frank Crimp and Mr. Walter Balfour as the Bandmaster and Captain Paap respectively sing with good taste; and the chorus and orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Evelyn Baker are praiseworthy.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Capital houses are the rule here, and the programme is excellent. Leonard Charburn's troupe of Young Stars appear in a pretty scena, A Picnic up the River, and are enthusiastically applauded; James and Jenny Jee, in their daring dancing and jumping on tight wire, are accorded a warm reception; and the Three Hodgkis, in an aerial gymnastic performance, are likewise well received. Siems is particularly smart in palming coins and cards; and the Reduns, comedy duettists, evoke applause for an electric speciality, "The Garden." Hughes and Elliott, in a singing and dancing act; Miss Helen McGregor, contralto vocalist; and the Empire Theatrescope complete a capital programme.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The pantomime Jack and Jill, by Mr. Frank Macnaghten's company, supersedes the usual vaudeville menu here this week, and is receiving excellent attention. The title-rôles are capitally performed by Miss Cissie Iris and Nelly Grimshaw; and Miss Harriet Fawn makes an admirable Principal Boy; Miss Nellie Rodney being a captivating Princess. The Eight Merry Midgets are most pleasing; and the humorous element is in the capable hands of Mr. Bruce Green (Dame) and Mr. Horace Jones (Ginger), who meet with much applause. Other fun-makers are Mr. Harry Cotton as Baron and the Cren Trio. Interesting dances are contributed by the Tiller Quartette, and the chorus are numerous and excellent.

BURSLEM.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. R. Colin; Manager, Mr. Matt. Hall.—A fine collection of pictures is shown here, the principal being A Free Pardon and For the Peace of the Family. Appearing with great success are Mr. Frank Weaver, a clever sand dancer, Prof. Hulbert, ventriloquist, and Delil, sleight of hand performer.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's pantomime Aladdin is here for the week. In the title-rôle Miss Hettie Zillwood appears with the greatest success, playing and singing in first-class style; Miss Maggie Hobart is dainty and fascinating as the Princess; the Three Behans as Pekoe, Cher-Keen, and Mrs. Twanky respectively, are clever and entertaining; Miss Lou Charlesworth does well as Electral; Mr. M. H. Glenville (Emperor of China) and Mr. Fred Osmond (Vizier) work hard and score right through; Abanazar is cleverly represented by Mr. Fowler Thatcher; the Brothers Lavelle are good comedy acrobats. Other parts are well placed in the hands of Mr. Freddie Edwards (Wishee Washee), Mr. J. Sutton Pateman (Diabolo), Mr. Frank Wilson, Miss Sarah Wheatman, and Miss Kitty Collinson. Special mention should be noted of the Ella Willmer troupe of dancers and the Gando Sextette of male voices. The dressing and mounting is of the best.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Butterflies, presented by Mr. Wilfred Cotton's company, is accorded a very hearty welcome. Prominent in the cast is Mr. Harrison Brockbank, whose delightful acting and singing are highly appreciated. Another excellent performance is that of Miss Annie Heenan, a captivating Rhodanthe. Mr. Edwin H. Wynne is a capital Christopher Podmore, and together with Mr. Johnnie Wilkinson as Yarker, is responsible for considerable laughter; Mr. Alan Mudie is a clever Peter, of which part he gives a sparkling representation; Nora Podmore and Elsie have capable exponents in Miss Ada Davidson and Miss Lilian Wesson respectively. Miss Alice Roche as Lalage, Miss Gladys Dare as Myria, and Mr. Francis Rayne as Gilbert all do their work well. Mr. Cyril Biddulph as Max Riadore is heard to advantage in several numbers. The clever dances add considerably to the success.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—A well-varied and interesting programme is submitted this week, headed by Howard and Collinson in an original pantomimic farcette A Piece of Dresden China. Other good turns include the following:—F. A. Martell, equilibrist; David Fuller, baritone vocalist; Sisters Henderson in musical speciality act; Charles Ulrick, barrel king; Maude Rayne, comedienne and dancer; Little Lucy Gillet, acrobat, and Burley and Burley, acrobatic comedians.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—Mario, Racko, and Partner in their acrobatic novelties, top the bill here, their tricks are neatly executed; the Brothers Redmond are quickly on good terms with the audience, and laughter is continuous throughout their turn; a clever exhibition of wooden-shoe dancing is given by Phillips and Bristow; Will Willis, comedian; Lillie Le Main, Lilliputian artist; Tom Reed, comedian; Les Zeloras, acrobats; Amiens, musical entertainers; Tiny and Mite, clever child vocalists and dancers; King and Stang, comedy artists, complete the bill.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The Buxton Gardens Company, Limited; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For the first three nights of this week we had Mr. Seymour Hicks's principal company in The Gay Gordons. The piece went with a merry swing, and soon roused the house to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Mr. Stanley Brett fairly rushed through his part, and made every point, to the audience's great delight, and Miss Maie Ash was a piquant and charming Peggy; Mr. Ernest Torrence made an excellent Andrew Quainton, and Mr. Fred Rolph drew forth roars of laughter as Nervy Nat; Mr. Paul Plunket had no small share in the success of the show as the humorous Corporal Smith, and Mr. George Carroll was very grotesque as Edmund Siddons; Mr. George Paulton was a capable Archibald Speedy, and the Marquis of Dalesbury, Lord Elmington, and Lord Belstairs were very ably represented by Mr. Reginald Adair, Mr. C. Dewey Gibson, and Mr. Wilfred Norman. The latter possesses a remarkably fine baritone voice. Miss Nellie Dade was well cast as Charlotte Siddons, and Miss Lily Maxwell was bright and dainty as Victoria Siddons; Miss Ida Mann played Janet McLeod acceptably. The piece is excellently staged and beautifully dressed, and a good orchestra was under the bâton of Mr. K. Ernest Irving.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—A welcome return visit was paid on Monday night by Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson in Under the Red Robe. Mr. Norman gave a very fine portrayal of Gil de Bérault; Miss Beatrice Wilson is particularly suited to such a character as Mlle. de Cocheforêt, her conception of the part being very fine; as the Cardinal Richelieu Mr. Robert Hilton showed great power and restraint; Capt. Larolle and Sir Thomas Brunt were exceptionally well played by Mr. Reginald Lamb and Mr. F. Ambrose Flower; Mr. J. Anthony Snaith played Clon with remarkable skill; Mr. Norman Leslie and Mr. Cyril Percy also showed ability in their parts of Lieut. Manet and M. de Fargis respectively; Henri de Cocheforêt was capitally rendered by Mr. F. Lock; Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips (Madame de Cocheforêt) and Miss Ethel Coleridge (Madame Talon) were most satisfactory.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's productions are always most welcome in Cardiff, and on Monday night their company presented for the first time in Cardiff the adaptation of Mr. W. J. Locke's novel, Idols. Mr. A. B. Imeson is seen in the rôle of Gerard Merriam, his forcible impersonation being thoroughly enjoyed; Mr. Herbert Ford submits a fine representation of Hugh Coleman, his performance stamping him as a first-class actor; the important part of Irene Merriam receives a clever and capable portrayal from Miss Edyth Goodall; Miss Moira Creegan submits a really interesting representation of Minna Hart; very successful are Mr. Gilbert Clark as Mr. Harroway and Mr. Frank Powell as Jacob Hart; Mr. Alfred Ibberson's rendition of the butler Saunders is a fine piece of work; Miss Kathleen Maude (Mrs. Harroway) and Miss Adelaine Lester (Anna Josephs) present careful studies. Mention should certainly be made of Mr. A. E. Grahame (counsel for the defence) and Mr. Harvey Brabon (counsel for prosecution).

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Full houses have been drawn this week by an excellent programme. Occupying the premier position is the popular sketch entitled The Bailiff, presented by Mr. Fred Karno's company, with Mr. Albert Bruno as the chief comedian; the well-known comedian Austin Rudd delights again with his exceptionally humorous songs; Van Allen is as amusing as he is clever, which is saying a good deal; Tom Fancourt and Jennie Rubie, who are old favourites from the pantomime just concluded here, are given a hearty welcome back to the halls with their smart comedy act, entitled The Huntsman and the Waiter; Florence Yaymen goes down exceedingly well; and Stylo, with his wonderful hoops, provides a smart and original number; the Kroney Brothers in a knockabout performance; Beatrice Bonnie, a gifted vocalist; and John Macaulay, character ballad singer, also contribute to the programme, with the bioscope.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Miss Dolly Elsworthy is presenting Sweet Mistress Dorothy here; the Cromwells prove a capital duo; the Leotard Bros. create much applause by their acrobatic act and hat-throwing; Marion Armitage brings down the house with a couple of smartly-rendered songs; Frank Vallanos is an entertaining magician; and Rose and Wold, in their comedy bounding wire act; and Rose Cass, a pleasing comedienne, are others who contribute.

CASTLEBAR.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The first visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow has created quite unusual interest here. In the title-rôle Miss Mysie Devine acted with great charm and skill. Evidently suffering from a cold, her vocal efforts were hardly satisfactory, but her delightful vivacity and artistic treatment of the character made ample amends for any unavoidable shortcomings in that respect. Mr. Frank Greene fairly revelled in the character of Prince Danilo, his spirited and effective work soon made him a big favourite with his audience; Mr. Ripley Evans, in the tenor part, was an immediate success, his fine voice being heard to advantage in every number in which he was engaged; Miss Ada Thomas, too, has a capital voice, and as Natalie her singing and acting were alike admired; Miss Katie May, a graceful and clever dancer, gave a particularly clever exhibition of her art. In the "Danse d'Apache" with Mr. Fred Fowler several enthusiastic encores greeted their lively efforts. The chief laughter-maker was Mr. Edward D'Arcy, who, as Baron Popoff, had no difficulty in keeping his audience in the greatest of good humour. A comedian of undoubted ability and experience, he scored his points with delightful ease and freedom. He was well supported by Mr. Fred Fowler, who, as Nisch, showed a rare fund of humour, which he expressed to everyone's amusement. The minor parts were capably filled, the chorus numerous and powerful; while the handsome dresses and elaborate scenery were quite a feature of the performance. An augmented orchestra, conducted by Mr. Ernest Vousden, was a big factor in the success.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—"The Strolling Players," a quintette of cultured and clever vocalists, top the bill. They sing some excellent medleys in a most effective and taking style, and the enthusiastic applause which greeted every fresh bit of vocal "business" was thoroughly well deserved. The Cumberland troupe of cyclists are on another visit, with many new and daring tricks and the best of the old ones, and their hold on their audience is stronger than ever. Operatic songs, really well sung, are not too common on the variety stage, and Webb and Branston are to be congratulated on both their fine selection and their artistic rendering of the same; Jack Hilton is creating roars of laughter with his songs and full appreciation of his nimble dancing; Reszki and Reszki are wonderfully clever acrobats, with many original and fascinating feats; another popular acrobatic turn is contributed by the Four Athos, who also excel as ball manipulators. The Pepiscope is well to the fore with some quite excellent pictures.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. Roland Yorke, supported by a strong company, is delighting audiences here with The Old Home. Mr. Charles Franmore presents a pathetic picture of Daddy Dean; Miss Gertrude Bonser throws emotional power into her delineation of Hazel Dean; Mr. John B. Shinton's impersonation of the Rev. Eric Armstrong is relieved with touches of feeling; Lord Avondale could scarcely find a better exponent than Mr. Roland Yorke; Mr. Fred L. Connynghame is quite at home as Sam Adams; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite scores in the delightful part of Bridget; Miss Mattie Crawford makes a smart and amusing Polly; and Mr. Roland A. Bridge a realistic Dr. Warburton.

ALBERT THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Beanland.—Edward Marris's pantomime opened here on Monday. Miss Etty Waldron as Dick introduces the best and latest songs; Joe Waldron as Idle Jack is the life of the pantomime; the Beliasco Trio sing sweetly; and Mr. Arthur Lawrence is loudly recalled for "Asleep on the deep."

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The leading feature here is Mazeppa, the South African hypnotist and mesmerist; Chard's Dog Circus, including a particularly high jumping dog, is much appreciated; Sill and Silcott, in a railway skit, Lively Luggage, are silent comedians, who keep the audience in roars of laughter; the Yokels, in a musical comedy scena, Ye Village Revels, are mirth-provoking; Flo Chevalier is well rewarded for her songs; Geo. W. Pugmier sings two characteristic songs; Currie and Beatie, introducing a dog performance, are successful; and good pictures are shown by the Loyal Dominion Company.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The Merry Widow is being played by Mr. George Edwardes's company, and the dressing and mounting are on the usual lavish scale. Miss Dora Barry plays the title-rôle with much charm, singing the melodious "Vulia" number with great success; Mr. Leonard Mackay gives a capital study of the whimsical Prince Danilo; in the famous waltz scene both he and Miss Dora Barry are immense; Natalie Popoff, in the hands of Miss Octavia Barry, is very pleasing; and her lover, Camille de Jolidon, is excellently represented by Mr. Haigh Jackson; their two scenas are beautifully given. Mr. Lionel Victor's Baron Popoff is a delicious bit of pure comedy, individual and original; the doddering General Novikovitch is very cleverly studied by Mr. Grafton Williams; and Mr. Tom Redmond is again inimitable in his study of Nisch, scoring heavily in a new topical song, "What every woman knows." Miss Dora Langham (Frou Frou) and Mr. Alfred H. Majilton (Franz Fall) are remarkable dancers, their pas de deux in the second and third acts being extraordinary examples of the modern art of dancing; Mr. Bert Edwards is an extremely droll figure as head waiter at Maxim's; Miss Beryl Vaudrey is good as Olga, as are Miss Kathleen Courtney as Sylvanie and Miss Pollie Edwards as Prascovia. Mr. Somers Bellamy as Marquis de Cascada, Mr. Norman Greene as M. de St. Brioche, and Mr. J. S. Durant as M. Khadja all do well; and the quintette of Maxim Girls are well represented by Mesdames Elsie Spencer, Heather Featherstone, Olive Cherry, Phyllis Allen, and D. Pennington. The largely augmented orchestra is directed by Mr. Harrison Frewin.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—An attractive variety bill is the fare provided this week. The renowned Mohamed Troupe of Nine Genuine Sousa Arabs perform their lightning acrobatic feats with a skill and finish which delight the audience; Sylvia Bond is a charming American soprano vocalist; and Tom Marris an excellent whistler. In the eccentric jugging line Bonnetti and Corrie are smart, novel, and funny; and the Three Bordellas give an elegant and artistic gymnastic performance; Vena Valma, the musical comedy maid, deserves praise for her pretty dancing and singing; while Emil and Ediss excel as banjoists. Some good pictures by the Premier Imperial Biograph complete the bill.

CHORLEY (Lancs).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—This week we have Messrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company, in Little Red Riding Hood. Little Iris Vivienne in the title-rôle is exceptionally clever and taking; Miss May Gibson, an old favourite here, undertakes Miss Muffet, her singing being much appreciated; Miss Fannie Adamson capitally presents Boy Blue, Miss Helen Dunscombe vivaciously rendering Will Scarlet. Dame Trot is the chief mirth-provider, and in the hands of Mr. V. Wakeman wins entire approbation; while Messrs. Denby and Dent give humorous readings of Doleful Dan and Whimsical William; Mr. Will Gibson undertakes the Wolf with good effect; and Miss Trixie Whyatt is conspicuous as Silvia. The Pansy troupe of dancers do their work in competent style; and other specialities, all good in their respective efforts, are Mr. J. J. Mannix, Billy Melia, and Denby and Dent. The whole is under the management of Mr. Walter Bellian, and Mr. Leslie Russell controls the augmented orchestra and large chorus in good style.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. George Alexander's talented company presented The Thief on Monday night before an audience held spellbound, and it was undoubtedly appreciated to the full. Mr. Rupert Lister as Richard Chelford showed an appreciation of the part which was deserving of all praise, and the encomiums lavished upon him were of a profuse nature; Miss Marie Polini gave a delineation of the character of Marise Chelford with alternate force and pathos, compelling the applause of an audience fully alive to the undoubted merit displayed; Mr. Owen Nares in the difficult rôle of Harry Leyton played it with much naturalness; Mr. Cyril Harcourt dwelt splendidly in the more tense moments as the hard-hit father Raymond Leyton; whilst as his second wife Miss Jean Cadell acted with considerable merit. As a curtain-raiser a one-act play, The Nursery Governess, aptly fulfilled its allotted rôle, being admirably depicted by Mr. Luke Foster, Miss Eileen Kerin, and Mr. Charles King.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Company; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mr. Hagar Stern is this week presenting a condensed version of that powerful play The Corsican Brothers, and the cast comprises some very capable exponents of the dramatic art. Wilbert and Lealand, billed as the "flying sailors," live up to their line, executing some remarkable evolutions; they also carry some capital "props." The Rosana Quartette of dancers work assiduously, to the general delight of all; the Victas excel as barrel-jumpers; George Norton displays a fund of quaintness; and Lola Kornero goes nicely as a comedienne. Gaumont and Pathé films vie with each other on the curtain and are much enjoyed.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The Conscience of a Judge is being successfully produced here this week by Mr. S. Duckworth's company. Mr. Stanley Bedwell in the important part of the Judge acts convincingly; Mr. Martin Pedler ably depicts Cecil Bentley; Miss Eva Moss as Jessica Draycott is sympathetic; a capital representation of Sir Edward Mervin is given by Mr. Frank Eaglesfield; Mr. Cecil Renton is praiseworthy as Geoffrey Granstone; and Miss Mabel Coleman makes a charming Ethel Vaughan. Miss Elsie Isaacs is a bright Kitty. The comedy parts are in the able hands of Mr. Frank Eden and Miss Bessie Frank.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. Harold Hilliard's company, in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, opened a two weeks' engagement here on Monday night to a crowded house, and the production was received with great favour. The music, arranged by Mr. Sydney Shaw, is most meritorious, and the book and lyrics are acceptable. The arrangement of the ballets is good, and the scenery pretty and effective. Miss Winifred Hare is an engaging and sprightly Robinson Crusoe. She gets through the part with grace and spirit, and she sings well some pretty numbers. Miss Kathleen Gray as Jack Ratlins is also very pleasing, and played with spirit and impressiveness. Her songs were numerous and fetching. Miss Elsie Molloy as Polly Perkins is winsome and pleasing. She possesses an excellent voice. Mr. J. J. Dallas as Mrs. Crusoe kept the audience in a merry mood. His songs are amusing, and his topical allusions are capital. Mr. Barney Armstrong as Will Atkins is inimitable; his mannerisms and witticisms are always laughable. Mr. Harry Lappo as Crusoe, sen., is also splendid; Mr. Jimmy Steel as Little Jimmy is most amusing; Mr. Dan Seymour as Ben Mainstay, Mr. Walter Barrett as King Gollywobble, and Miss Gladys White as the Princess, Miss Marie Jones as the Good Fairy, and Miss Dorothy Raynor as Whistling Winnie, all filled their parts well and pleasingly. The Kirby Aerial Ballet, which introduces a flying act, is graceful and clever. The chorus is well trained, and the harlequinade was enjoyed.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Howard Brothers present a unique musical and juggling act, introducing flying banjoes, which they juggle and pick out tunes at same time. They also contribute some classical compositions. Theirs is a turn of undoubted merit. Rubie and Elsie Redfern, in their drawing-room act, are a clever pair of instrumentalists, vocalists, and dancers; the Brothers Werds, eccentric American acrobats, present a very clever turn; Dan Conroy is a comedian of the rollicking type, who pleases; Rose and Chaloner, in a comedy act, entitled The Porter and the Singer, provide an acceptable turn as impersonators and vocalists; Maude Courtenay, the talkative American, has a pleasing voice, and her jokes are capital; Mr. "C" is an entertainer of great ability, he sings well, and his patter is enjoyable; Cecile François and company present an American novelty, entitled An Artist's Studio, which is entertaining; and the Palascope show some splendid films.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A special attraction here is The Builder of Bridges. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, an old Coventry favourite, is seen to advantage as Edward Thursfield; Miss Rosalind Ivan is an interesting Dorothy Faringay; Mr. Henry Ludlow a capable Arnold Faringay; Mr. Brisco Owen a successful Gresham; and Mr. W. R. Staveley creditably fills the character of the breezy bachelor, Sir Henry Killick.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Director, Mr. G. E. Wright.—The top turn at this place of amusement is given by Miss Ada Colley, the Australian nightingale. She has a rich voice, and her songs are much appreciated. A successful turn is that by the Maningos, equilibrists, who do some marvellous tricks; Will and May Lannons, high pedestal dancers, have a most interesting entertainment; Mr. Leo Dryden appears in a selection of song-playlets of his own arranging, suggested by the leading plays of the day, Royal Divorce, Sherlock Holmes, and The Only Way, &c. Jack Marks, a little Hebrew genius, keeps the audience amused with his comical speech and songs; the Four Sisters Victoria are instrumentalists, vocalists, dancers, banjoists, and trick pianists; Wyndham and Wyatt, comedy vocalists, add some fun to a very interesting programme.

"I do like to be used with Vinolia Shaving Stick and so does my friend Razor and he is a sharp fellow"

Of all Chemists, Price One Shilling.

Vo. 28

Empire Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The Flag Lieutenant is attracting large houses this week. The company is a most capable one, pioneered by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper. Mr. Lionel Attwill makes an admirable Flag Lieutenant, Richard Lascelles; Mr. H. Montague Love makes the most of the dignified Major William Thesiger; Miss Florence Jackson is a vivacious Mrs. Cameron; and Miss Viva Birket a graceful Lady Hermione Wynne. Mr. George Mallet is a typical Admiral.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton. — Mr. F. H. Neville's company is here this week with Napoleon's Divorce. Mr. F. H. Neville himself takes the part of Napoleon, and shows a careful study; Miss L. Lewis as Josephine acts with much taste and expression; Mr. F. H. Fortescue infuses into his part a fund of wit and humour; Mr. L. Graham Hamlyn as Joseph deserves a meed of praise; Mr. J. Holt as Sergeant Baton is well chosen for the part; Mr. W. Verne as Colonel D'Ardville has a part to his evident liking; Little Ethel Nay as the King of Rome shows much promise; and Mr. C. Phillips as Jules and Miss L. Fountaine as Jeanette win constant recognition.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company is appearing here with success in Grit and Charlotte on Bigamy. In the first-named Miss Gladys Purnell acts with due delicacy, and is a charming Erith Winter; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is commendable as Mrs. Winter; Miss Violet Vorley's Mrs. Percival has many good points; Miss Violet Greville is neat as Suzanne; and Misses Elsia Hayden and Kathleen Yorke are good as Nora and Sarah. Mr. T. A. Shannon just touches the right note as Dick Travers; Mr. Philip Sanders is capital as Mr. Winter; Mr. W. H. Everard deserves praise as Mr. Norreys; Mr. Leslie Carter is quite suitable to the rôle of Jim Barr; and Mr. Ralph W. Hutton is well placed as Mr. Percival. The curtain-raiser is admirably rendered by Messrs. Philip Sanders, W. H. Everard, Ralph W. Hutton, and Miss Violet Vorley.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Anthony.—Animated pictures and illustrated songs continue to draw here, and they are much above the average. Praise is due to Miss Beatrice Vere, contralto; Ernest Tilbury, tenor; and Bert Williams, reciter.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Much interest and excitement are being caused in Croydon by the appearance here this week of Lafayette. A tremendous hit is made by the sensational spectacle The Lion's Bride; the travesty band of American musicians is a novel and fascinating performance; and the series "A Carnival of Conjuring" gains incessant applause; Lafayette brings the house down at each exhibition; Nora Stockelle is a taking comedienne; Hans and Lux are first-rate speciality artists; the Leonards give a smart turn; the Garricks, comedy four, are invigorating; and the Bioscope pictures are of the best.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Hamilton Stewart and company are here with Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Stewart in the title-rôle holds a strong grip on the audience; Mr. Arthur Shelton is a fine Dr. Watson; Mr. Walter A. Chetham as John Forman displays much ability; Mr. Robert Gilbert is much to be admired as Prof. Moriarty; Miss A. Bruce-Joy acts with charm and grace as Alice Faulkner; Miss Edith Vogue as Madge Larrabee gives a clever assumption; Mr. Mark D. Draper shows well as James Larabee; the part of Sidney Prince is ably shown by Mr. Douglas Murray; and the part of the page-boy Billy is made the most of by Master Thomas Russell.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Berzac's animal act, ponies galloping on the revolving table and the unridable mule, cause roars of laughter; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, comedy cyclists, meet with a good reception; Mr. Hamilton Hill, baritone singer, provides a pleasing item; other acceptable turns are Prof. Norton, conjurer; Tony Black, comedian; Violas, white mahatmas; Ada Cerito, comedienne; and the Pepiscope Pictures.

DARWEN.—Picture Palace and Theatre Royal. Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—The Musical Palmers are well received, as also is Daisy Palmer, the latter being a good dancer; Florence Raymond provides a ventriloquial sketch of great merit; and Maddison Brothers create laughter with their burlesque boxing. The pictures are of the best.

Public Hall and Palace of Varieties.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson.—In addition to varied pictures on the Bioscope, Pat O'Connor is a good Irish comedian and dancer; Maude Clifton a refined vocalist; and Harry Barclay a versatile comedian.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—This week Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's company is producing Pete, a new version of Hall Caine's book, "The Manxman." In the leading rôles Mr. Frank E. Petley and Miss Helena Millais are to be accorded high commendation; possessed of a splendid physique, Mr. Petley is a typical Pete, and Miss Millais shows commendable aptitude in a most exacting part, her expression of sorrow being heart-searching; Mr. Arthur Burne as Philip Christian is another praiseworthy assumption; as Ross Christian Mr. J. Brampton is successful; the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. Frank Stone is an admirable presentment; and Miss Lucy Murray is a capital Nancy. The remaining characters are capably sustained by Mr. E. H. Clarke (Black Tom), Mr. Chas. Clayton (Jonaique Jelly), Mr. Denis Bryan (Postman Kelly), Messrs. Chas. Lake, Joseph O'Brien, Arthur H. Hill, Henry Brooks, and Miss Eleanor Price, and others. The piece is well mounted, and the company an exceedingly good one.

Palace.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The attraction here this week is a sensational American dramatic sketch, entitled The Girl and the Tough, which is produced by John G. Brandon and company. The characters are well handled, and the piece secures the interest of the audience all through. The Three Sisters Lee, acrobats, benders, vocalists, and dancers, provide an acceptable turn; Harry Blake, a clever humorist, is eminently successful, and creates much merriment with his jokes and witty patter; Little Dando is as usual immensely droll; Marie Kay, juvenile comedienne and dancer, is well worthy of mention; Jamie Piper is a clever instrumental soloist; and Olive Gill appears to advantage in a pretty scena of country life. The bioscope also submits an interesting film.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—A costume musical drama, by name What a Woman Did, is the attraction for the week, and Messrs. Watson and Moffatt's company are doing very good business. Mr. Marriott Watson is excellent as the intriguing and unscrupulous Marquis de Viroq; Miss Florence E. Florence is magnificent as the wife of Conrad de l'Orme, having to submit to all manner of indignities to save her child's life; and Mr. Saunderson Moffatt as the husband is very popular. Some very attractive vocal numbers are interpolated in the piece, and a feature is the accomplished dancing of the Clancy Girls.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, by Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and company, is a very excellent star turn, humorous situations being cleverly intermingled with some skilful balancing; whilst the Vera Troupe of dancers supply an attractive terpsichorean number. The charcoal drawings and lightning sketches by the Four Kurios received much well-merited approbation; Captain Roberts, the Army Staff Trumpeter, assisted by a couple of ladies and some ponies and acrobatic boys, furnishes a number always of interest in a garrison town; the Hersleb Bros. are particularly clever eccentric acrobats, and their burlesque business cannot conceal their undeniable skill; Dion Wade is a first-rate mimic; Archie Pitt, comedian, is genuinely popular; and Little Rose Pink is the remaining item of a first-rate programme.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Empire, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company made acquaintance with Doncaster on Monday in the drama The Girl Who Lost Her Character. The outstanding feature is unquestionably the elegant scenery, more beautiful scenic and stage effects seldom being seen. Mr. Edward McLean is ideal in his sympathetic conception of the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. C. W. Standing makes a success of Jack England and Private Johnson; humour punctuates the utterances of Dick Punch, assumed by Mr. George S. Asquin; Miss Lydia Mannington is interesting as Marian; Mr. Richard Ferris's nonchalant stage villainy is effective; as James Sutton, alias Charles Fletcher, Mr. George Mitchell is well placed; Miss Laine is acceptable as Lucy Vere; and Miss Cherry Veheyne is popularly acclaimed as Rose Seymour; Miss Doris Brookes is captivating in the title-rôle.

DOVER.—Royal Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—Miss Bessie Slaughter, who made her first appearance in this town on Monday, must be gratified at the magnificent reception accorded her; "The Better Land" is a song eminently suited to the low, rich voice of the vocalist, and "Ever and Alway" and "The Lost Chord" were rendered with a dramatic power that aroused the greatest admiration. Tom Jones, the popular Welsh comedian, has a couple of good songs; Rezene and Rezene offer a variety of amusing tricks, their gags and business causing much hilarity; while Klean and Klean's cross-talk and expert dancing is to be commended. The pleasing voice of Reg. Phillips is heard in "Chloe," an exceptionally pretty plantation song, and another number, called "London Town"; Agar and Agar prove themselves clever tumblers; and Ray Sinclair's versatility is well displayed in the contrast between the sentimental and light comedy songs in her répertoire.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. Frank Curzon's musical production, My Mimosa Maid, was presented here on Monday night to a large and appreciative audience, and met with a flattering reception. Miss Marie Studholme is charmingly attractive in the rôle of Paulette, being warmly applauded for her excellent singing and dancing; Mr. Charles McNaughton gives a richly humorous representation of Victor Guilbert; Miss Ruby Gray is highly commendable as Marcella de Pelaine, her vocal numbers being greatly admired; Master Archie McCaig is intensely funny in the part of Bock; Miss Nancy Garstang is seen to advantage as Mme. de Pelaine; the part of Max Guilbert has an able exponent in Mr. Charles E. Paton; Miss Daisy Yule sustains with credit the rôle of Mimi; and M. Emile Gerard has a capable exponent in Mr. Percy Carr. The remaining parts are satisfactorily played, and the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Harry Matthews, also merit praise.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The popular pantomime Jack and Jill, which has achieved such a success since the opening night, continues to draw full houses. All the artists work hard in their endeavour to amuse their patrons, and are well rewarded by the unstinted applause bestowed on them nightly. Miss Dorothy Ward as Jack and Miss Edith Fink as Jill are both as attractive as ever; Mr. George Lashwood as Prince Opulent is still going strong; and the comic element is well sustained by Mr. J. A. Warden as Baron Bounce, Mr. George Miller as the Widow Coble, and Mr. Fred Conquest as Jack Straw.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The premier position is occupied here this week by the Four Holloways, whose marvellous acrobatic and trick cycle act on the tight wire elicits loud applause; Rhoda Paul, in his latest success, "It's the Gay Gordons," scores heavily; Fayre and Manning, "the two in green," achieve considerable success; as does also Alf. Holt, American comedian and whistler; Little Ruby, child cornettist, drummer, and vocalist, is deservedly encored; Oakdene, in his amusing ventriloquial entertainment, "Stowaways," provides a capital turn; Hugo and Smit, comedy bar performers, create much merriment; Burnetti is a character musician of exceptional merit; and the Empire Pictures are up to the usual standard.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy. — Charles Parker's Æolians, in a refined vocal and dancing act, head the bill here, and prove a strong attraction; in a sensational equilibristic act, Kioto and Esa are loudly applauded; Blanche Leslie sings songs (illustrated with pictures), which are warmly received; the Arthur Bedini Trio causes much amusement in their pantomimic comedy act; May Clarke, a pleasing vocalist, is well appreciated; and Harry and Wade, in an amusing comedy act; Celest, in a smart wire performance; Joey Sterling, character comedian; and Queery Stratton, novelty impersonator, are all good turns; and the Bioscope shows a good picture.

Round Room Rotunda.—After a most successful season, the Irish Animated Picture Company entered on their last week here on Monday, when large audiences patronised both the afternoon and evening performances. The programme presented, which was, as usual, instructive and amusing, included some splendid pictures of Belgium, China, From Quebec to Niagara, The Pearl Fisheries, &c., and the capital variety entertainment, contributed to by Miss Evelyn Duffy, an excellent soprano vocalist. Mr. Ralph Goggin, the favourite baritone, and the Sisters Colley, vocalists and dancers, were all keenly appreciated.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The change of programme here this week includes Rhodes and Lane, patter comedians; Fred Payne, comedian; Prof. Mowbray, ventriloquist and conjurer; Bessie Dinmont, comedienne; Jim Meadows, descriptive vocalist; Fern and Faun, duologue artists, and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley. — The Dairymaids (Mr. Robert Macdonald's company) have taken Dudley by storm this week, and met with a very cordial reception. Mr. Dan Agar combines effective stage-directorship with the highly-diverting part of Joe Mivens, and puts plenty of original humour into the part, and the appearance of him and Miss Edie Martin as Eliza is the signal for unrestrained merriment; Mr. Richard Telford as Lieutenant Sam Brudenell and Mr. G. Scott Melville as Lieutenant Frank Meredith both play with dash and spirit; Mr. Frank Barclay did excellent work as the jovial Dr. Byrne, R.N.; Miss Dorothy Belmore acted with artistic grace as Lady Brudenell; Miss Isa Bowman as Peggy has a charming presence, and captivates everyone by her infectious vivacity; and Miss Kathleen Severn as Winifred (her sister) is the personification of daintiness and charm. Special praise must be given to a bevy of pretty Sandow girls and school girls. All the principals are heartily applauded for their numbers, and there is not a dull moment throughout the piece.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Messrs. G. N. Polini and Austin Melford's company is appearing here this week in The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a very admirable interpretation of the part of Wilfred Denver; Mr. Edward J. George gives a delightful character study of the faithful old servant, Daniel Jaikes; the Spider is very cleverly enacted by Mr. E. Stanton Sharp; Mr. E. Stidwell depicts the detective Samuel Baxter uncommonly well; Messrs. Leslie Ellis, Arthur Wright, and Fred May are alike excellent as Henry Corket, Elijah Coombe, and Cripps respectively; Miss Madge Morley sympathetically treats the character of Nellie Denver; a very promising young artist, Miss Flossie Hale Daviss, does exceedingly well as Cissie; and Miss Lila Barclay appears to advantage as Olive Skinner. All the other members capably sustain interest in the drama, which is most effectively staged.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Topping an excellent bill here are Parks' Eton Boys and Girton Girls, whose fine singing is much appreciated; a most enthusiastic reception is accorded the Four Royal Scots, whose act is of the most novel and entertaining character; Richards Trio introduce some remarkably clever feats of balancing in their acrobatic sketch, entitled The Giddy Golfers; Carlotta Lunn pleases with her delightful vocalisations; the Musical Keiths provide a very enjoyable turn; Walter Aubrey is a coon singer and dancer par excellence; Mlle. Sylvesto gives a contortionist act which is quite out of the ordinary run; Harry Bent gives a popular display of his art as a mimic; and Charles N. Daly's company create no end of merriment in their funny sketch, I Must Have It. The Palascope with some up-to-date films completes the list.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Evans.—At the head of an exceedingly strong company are the Ten Zerbinis, who present a remarkably fine transformation scene, entitled The Enchanted Glen, with musical effects; their second scena, which depicts the story of Ora Pro Nobis, is another item which meets with much acceptance; Lindsay and Harte (who made a big hit in pantomime here) get a very hearty reception; Dobson's Day Off, an amusing skit on the troubles of married couples, proves exhilarating fare in the hands of Maude Elliston and company; Corman's Juveniles in their pretty vocal scena, The Waif, are well received; an original scena, The Love-making Dancing Master, in which Paul Sundberg is assisted very charmingly by Angela Renee, proves a most artistic and enjoyable item; Dacey and Lewis serve up a most delightful performance; Master Edward Frisby, a remarkable boy soprano, sings well; Chas. Woodward is a capital light comedian; Chas. J. Johnson, "the black diamond," proves very popular; and Gladys Earle an excellent comedienne and dancer, completes.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Ross.—A bright and varied assortment of films is exhibited this week by Newman's British Empire Picture Company, the most popular pictures being: A Friend in Need, The Face on the Bar Room Floor, Jealous Husband, Rural Elopement, Money Mad, The Potter's Dream, and Jones's Enterprises. In addition enjoyable variety turns are presented by Cavalli, a very clever and amusing ventriloquist; and Lester Brothers, who prove to be dancers of quite unusual ability.

Newman's Picture Palace. — Mr. Fred Newman may well congratulate himself on the great success of his venture here. The programme this week includes some very fine pictures, humorous and serious in turn. A rousing reception is accorded to Charles Voltaire, who gives a really clever roller-skating exhibition, while a barrel-boxing competition for young lads creates great merriment.

Gilfillan Hall.—Britain's Best Animated Pictures are drawing good houses here. Amongst the best films are: Lord Algy's Beauty Show, A Countryman's Day in Town, Jack in the Letterbox, The Professor's Anti-gravitation Fluid, An Auto-heroine, and Face to Face, the latter two being very excellent dramatic pictures. Dave Summerhill, who is styled the comical Scotch joker; and John McErlain, humorist, lend variety to the entertainment.

—Roller Skating Rink. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins; Manager, Mr. Bert Crump.—Day by day this magnificent rink is increasing in popularity as an amusement resort with both sexes, the high class character of the rendezvous being one of its most admirable features. For Friday evening of this week the first grand mask and costume carnival is announced.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is appearing here in Lady Frederick. Miss Eleanor Delaporte merits very high commendation for her excellently successful work as Lady Frederick; Mr. Robert Minster contributes strong and able work as Paradine Fouldes; Mr. W. Barnett Parker is well and happily placed as Sir Gerald; Mr. E. F. Meads is a helpful Lord Mereston; Mr. Edward Bonfield proves a capable Captain Montgomery; Captain Gerald Gambier is a realistic and lively Admiral Carlisle; Miss Celia Gordon displays evident talent as Lady Mereston; Miss Lynn Fontanne is a bright and girlish Rose; Miss Phyllis Manners repeats a skilful performance as Mme. Claude; and Miss Rita Ward is a lively Angelique. The Peacemaker precedes the comedy, and is well played.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. G. Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Les Xentrix worthily head the bill here this week, and the clever dancing and fine singing given in a pretty scena are very popular; Miss Ida Barr, too, is quite a success as a burlesque actress; Mr. Pau Corrix and his boy juggler give a taking and clever performance in a juggling and Herculean act; Essman, too, is an expert and original as a juggling waiter; Mr. Cyril Dare is a very effective comedian; Omar and Rose are a couple of funny patterers, singers, and dancers; Ken Jones is a quaint comedian; and new pictures complete the bill.

The Pier Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Alfred West is paying a return visit here this week with his interesting and attractive pictures of Our Navy and Army. The general excellence of the pictures is fully maintained, while clear pictures of Wilbur Wright's flying machine, and records of the recent disaster at Messina bring the entertainment right up to date.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Sandy McNab and his company, in the sketch The Egyptian Mummy, prove a great attraction, and cause much amusement; Sidney Brandon gives clever character impersonations in selections from Oliver Twist and Les Cloches de Corneville; the Rose Trio, acrobatic waiters, perform capably; Ethel Loftus furnishes a most attractive turn; Morrisey, in original equilibristic musical act, is much appreciated; Major Moss delights with old songs; Lew Peterman, Hebrew comedian, presents his various representations effectively; Tod Lowen, comedian, is responsible for much mirth. The Fisherman's Daughter is depicted on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Moody-Manners Opera company began the second week of its engagement here on Monday last with a fine performance of Gounod's Faust. Mme. de Vere-Sapio displayed her vocal and dramatic gifts to advantage in a delightful impersonation of Marguerite, her command of tone and expression, particularly in the famous "Jewel Song," calling forth warm tributes of applause from the crowded house; Mr. Seth Hughes as Faust, although lacking power slightly on the dramatic side, gave an artistic interpretation of the music of the part, and shared with Mme. Sapio in the honours of the evening. Mr. Charles Manners made a striking figure as Mephistopheles, revealing his mastery of the humorous and tragic in his impersonation, and singing with the notable vigour and effect that mark his style. Miss Olive Westwood acted with much charm and pathos as Siebel, gaining great applause for a telling rendering of the beautiful air "When all was young"; and Mr. William Dever was a manly Valentine, and sang well. The chorus, strengthened by the Edinburgh Grand Opera Society, sang with an attention to light and shade and a balance of tone which aroused general admiration, and the massive "Soldiers' Chorus" was applauded to the echo. Signor Romualdo Sapio conducted with his usual ability. Tannhäuser was played on Tuesday evening, the feature of the performance being the beautiful interpretation, vocally and dramatically, by Mme. Fanny Moody of the exacting part of Elisabeth; Miss Toni Seiter, an admirable artist always; Mr. Paul Weiss, a tenor with a capital voice; Mr. Lewys James, and Mr. Charles Magrath completed a splendid cast, and the orchestra, under the direction of Herr Richard Eckhold, played with distinction, the rendering of the overture evoking much applause. Verdi's Aida, magnificently mounted, was given on Wednesday, The Bohemian Girl on Thursday, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci on Friday. Lohengrin will be played at Saturday's matinée, and the visit of the company will conclude in the evening with Maritana.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The run of the pantomime Dick Whittington will be brought to a close this (Saturday) evening. The spectacle has been very popular, and matinée and evening performances have been crowded with delighted audiences since the opening night. Miss Jane Eyre by her impersonation of the title-rôle has added much to her reputation. She has never abated the vigour of her acting and the interest in her part during the run of the piece, and has been conspicuously successful both from the dramatic and vocal standpoint. Mr. Will Evans's drollery has been of great service, and Mr. Wm. Dounes, Mr. Phil Ray, Mr. Albert Felmo, and Mr. Bickley have all helped greatly to the brightness of the entertainment. Mr. Ernest J. Langford has scored a hit by his very clever acting as Rupert Raffles, in which the player shows undoubted ability as a comedian, while Miss Ethel Erskine as Alice, Miss Florence Warde as Ahmed, Miss Mena Brae as Zoe, and Miss Molly Maguire—a pleasing singer—as Blue Bell have contributed to the essentials of success.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The production by Mr. Fred Karno's company of a new sketch entitled The G.P.O., with Mr. Fred Kitchen in a congenial rôle, has caught on most unmistakably, and the turn has helped to draw crowded houses twice nightly throughout the week. Nor does the programme lack other well-varied attractions. McCann's trained Irish terriers, including the champion leaping dog, show wonderful intelligence in their exceedingly interesting performance; while the human Stein-Eretto troupe almost excel their canine rivals in the nimbleness with which they hop over the floor and the furniture. The Martineks contribute an amusing novelty styled The Rag Doll; Miss Nellie Wallace makes the most of her grotesque comedy accomplishments; acceptable comedian and comedienne turns are supplied by Mr. Tom Collins, Mr. W. J. Churchill and Miss Beattie Kent; and the Bioscope shows some films depicting incidents of the King's recent visit to Berlin.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Illustrations of ju-jitsu wrestling by Yukio Tani and his assistants, besides bouts in which local adepts take part, have added considerably to the interest of an otherwise attractive bill; Caicedo's performances on the tight-rope are watched with thrilling excitement, and loudly applauded; the Zeenas give a good display of skill on the triple bars; Talbot and Pearce contribute a very pleasing Japanese musical duologue; and Kennedy's Kiddies appear in a lively Terpsichorean and athletic scena. The characteristic single-handed turns submitted by Jack Alison, negroistic entertainer and expert sand-dancer, and by Mr. Carl Colyer, a New Zealand representative, who intermingles some smart juggling with his vocal efforts, are favourably received; while the songs of Mr. Herbert Clifton, the possessor of an extraordinary falsetto voice, and the dancing of Miss Daisy Taylor add to the merits of a programme which also includes, as usual, a series of excellent Bioscope pictures.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—For the closing week of the season Mr. Cooke has provided a programme of exceptional excellence. The favourite spectacle The Brigands of Calabria has been revived, and the stormy episodes of the piece, enlivened by droll scenes, in which Mr. Leon Douglas Cooke acts with much humour, are received with enthusiastic applause. A thrilling equestrian sketch, Prairie Life, affords Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke the opportunity of displaying his horsemanship and his undoubted dramatic power. Globella, a dexterous performer on the rolling globe, gives a clever juggling and gymnastic act while manipulating the large ball on which he stands apparently as securely as on the ground; the clowning by Shadow, Comical Walker, Talberto, and Douglas is admirably carried through; and Mr. Harry Dale is equally at home as jester, vocalist, and instrumentalist. A very pleasing feature of the programme is contributed by Miss Edina Marion Cooke in the introduction of a pretty pony and a Pomeranian dog which evince the combined results of intelligence and perfect training. The fair equestrienne was recalled on Monday amidst a storm of applause, and was presented with a beautiful basket of flowers. Friday evening will be devoted to the benefit of the popular veteran proprietor, whose smart, upright figure has been so well known in Edinburgh for many years, and on Saturday the present season will be brought to a close. Mr. W. C. Burns, the courteous and energetic acting-manager, deserves the thanks of the public for the untiring efforts he has made for the comfort of the audiences at all times.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is presenting the romantic comedy Robin Hood. The company, which is under the able direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross, is an exceedingly capable one, and the old-time story loses none of its charm or interest in the telling. As Robin Hood Mr. Ethelbert Edwards has found a part for which he is exceptionally well suited. He is gifted with a fine presence and possesses histrionic ability of the highest order, and on Monday last scored a well-deserved success. Mr. J. N. Briant is a convincing King Richard; while the cruel, crafty John was depicted most skilfully by Mr. H. Elliott Ball; Mr. Ernest Gray makes the best of the part of FitzAlwynne; Mr. Jack Litchfield as Hugo de Longespée submits a thoroughly capable delineation; and Messrs. Lambert Plummer and Ralph Leon portray the Abbot of Jourvaulx and Tracey in satisfactory manner; Mr. F. Clive Ross effectively and humorously characterises the rôle of big Little John; Friar Tuck is jovially presented by Mr. Colin Johnston; Mr. Laurence Tessier is a spirited and manly Will Scarlet; and as Allan A'Dale Mr. Sidney Courtney wins deserved applause for his excellent singing; Miss Cahill as Marion plays with a charm and grace which speedily win unstinted approval; Miss Laurie Flockton proves an attractive and vivacious Adela; Miss Madge Devereux is effectively placed as Alison; and Miss Roberta Pulleyne gets the most possible out of the part of Queen Eleanor.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—A prominent feature here this week is the appearance of Mr. Fred Karno's Mumming Birds company, who keep the audience in a continuous roar of laughter; Miss Maidie Scott is thoroughly deserving of the applause which attends her vocal efforts; a clever acrobatic performance is presented by the Gladenbecks; and Clara Alexander is to be praised for her representation of Old Uncle Jake; Nellie Neil both sings and dances in pleasing manner; Lee and Bentley's sketch, The King's Counsel, is received with much merriment; and Lloyd Morgan, light and vocal comedian, proves another effective turn.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—The Eve of Her Wedding is proving a great draw here this week. The company is a very powerful one, including Mr. Wilson Benge as George Tremain, who proves himself to be a "hero" of especial ability; Mr. Arthur Keand as Squire Leverton; Mr. Frank Kelland as Giovanni, a secret service agent; and Mr. K. Arthur as Jack Herne, a cripple, who gives a powerful rendering of his part. Miss Sadie Smith as Mavis Leverton displays histrionic ability of a high order, and earns the unstinted applause of the audience; Miss Florence Zillwood takes the part of Rene de Telle in a convincing manner; and Miss Mary Maillalieu is clever as "Kinkie."

FOLKESTONE.—The Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company, in Diana of Dobson's, forms the amusement for the week. In the title rôle Miss Emelie Polini delights the audience with her brilliant acting; Mr. Leslie Rea makes a refined Captain Brotherton; whilst Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce gives a perfect character study of the pompous self-made Sir Jabez Grindlay (of Grindlay's Emporiums); the parts of the match-making Mrs. Cantelupe and Pringle, the martinet housekeeper were again in the safe hands of Miss Ada Palmer and Miss Daisy England. The shop assistants in the amusing opening scene were ably portrayed by Miss Violet Gould. Miss Dorothy Bell, Miss Nannie Griffin, and Miss Eva Leonard Boyne. The play is preceded nightly by the powerful little drama, The Bishop's Candlesticks, in which Miss Daisy England, Miss G. de Serville, Mr. Kingsford Pearce, and Mr. J. Benedick Butler are seen to advantage.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—This week we have a variety company on the two-shows-a-night principle. The Corcoran Bros. are the leading turn, and give a clever and interesting musical effect and quick-change turn. The rest of the company includes Luna Lyndon (comedienne), Dan Rodney (comedian), Connie Mascot (comedienne and dancer), Lidden and Hayward (musical sketch), and pictures.

GATESHEAD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Chas. Baldwin's company, in The Bank Clerks, give an entertaining absurdity here this week; Archie Royer has the latest in topical gags, and also performs original acrobatic feats; Sibb and Sibb are graceful trapezists; Mona Garrick gives character impersonations from The Bondman and Faust, and is enthusiastically praised; Henry Hilton presents refreshing magic; and Sam Williams, vocal comedian, and the Kingscope add to the pleasure.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. Robt. Elder; Acting-Manager Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime Red Riding Hood is presented here this week by Mr. Bolam, after proving a sound attraction at Byker for many weeks. Misses May Merry and Jessie Templeton speedily ingratiate themselves with the audience, and amongst the comedians Messrs. Lawrie Barclay, C. K. Martinetti, jun., and Fred Lawrence put a lot of heart into their work and lend invaluable aid A feature is the mounting, and it can safely be said that we have not witnessed here more tastefully-arranged and acceptable ballets.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. M. Russell Rosse's company is here presenting Captain Swift, with Mr. Edward Sorley in a strong impersonation of the ex-bushranger. An excellent portrayal of Mrs. Seabrook is given by Mrs. Bennett; Mr. Maurice Denham represents Gardiner in a vigorous manner; and Mr. Fred Lester is also good as Ryan. The character of Marshall is ably unfolded by Mr. Penn Hammilton; Mr. Arthur Dennis gives a fine rendering of the elderly Mr. Seabrook; and Harry is well delineated by Mr. Ben Barnett. Miss Ida Phillips as Stella and Miss Betty Fairfax as Mabel are pleasingly drawn characters; and Miss Gertrude Le Sage gives a dignified rendering of Lady Staunton. The play is preceded each evening by My Friend the Major.

King's, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Mr. Chas. Frohman's company is here for a couple of weeks with Peter Pan. This fairy tale of Mr. Barrie's has always been a good draw, and on the present visit its attractiveness shows no signs of waning. Miss Pauline Chase records her 500th appearance as Peter and the play its 1,000th performance in the British Isles and Paris.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Miss Horniman's company commenced a two-weeks engagement on Monday with The Amateur Socialist. Mr. Henry Austin gave a delightful impersonation of Sir Hubert Pennefeather; Mr. Charles Bibby's acting as Inspector Bott was highly creditable; the characteristics of Sergeant Fell were nicely hit off by Mr. Edward Landor; well-contrasted fashionable types were seen in the Hon. Philip Wykeham of Mr. Lewis Casson and the Spencer Pennefeather of Mr. Basil Dean. Miss Ada King was well suited in the rôle of Lady Pennefeather; and society was represented by Miss Hilda Bruce Potter (Evelyn Rivers), Miss May Saker (Cora Moberley), and Miss Sybil Thorndyke (Lady Mabel). The Moberley of Mr. Jules Shaw was a finished bit of work. The comedy was preceded by the one-act play Reaping the Wind.

Grand.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Fun still reigns at the Grand, and the nightly visit of Cinderella to the ball is thoroughly enjoyed by packed houses. Miss Queenie Finnis as Cinders still delights her audiences with her sweet ways and capital singing; as Prince Casimir Miss Violet Halls is excellent, and has proved herself an exceedingly popular artist; Miss Kate Walbran and Miss Nelly Cozens as the Ugly Sisters are simply untiring in their work, and come through it with credit. Much of the pantomime's fun is produced by the combined efforts of Mr. Geo. French and Mr. Tom Conway as the most energetic and clever combination. The MAX WESSELY quartette of juggling pantomimists are also smart exponents of their art.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Doody and Wright, Australian comedy duo, make a welcome return visit; Stewart and Morgan are successful with their vocal act Return to Ireland; Brinn performs some remarkable juggling in Pastimes on a Battleship; and Datas provides another novel turn. The other artists include the Sisters Aindow in a refined musical act; Andy Burns, comedian and dancer; Kitty Lavinge, comedienne and dancer; W. H. Smart, versatile comedian; and Oliver Martyn, comedian and patterer.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Ernest Cadle's Casey Court is at the head of affairs here, and with Will Murray in his accustomed place as Mrs. Casey the fun is well maintained. Truth in Absence, produced by Harry J. Crane and company, is a pathetic little sketch; Tom Bryce and Miss Price pay a return visit with The Dude's Wooing; a talented artist is Miss Mabel Mavis, who is indeed a society entertainer of exceptional ability. Her reception is a cordial one, and thoroughly appreciated is her work. W. F. Frame is as popular as ever; the Three Welsh Girls have excellent voices; Frank Sylvo does many clever things in his juggling show; and Mazie Hibbs in her speciality dancing act takes well. The Bioscope concludes the entertainment, to which Joe O'Gorman also contributes.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Prominent in the programme here is an exhibition of animal-training in Harry Rochez's Circus, the chumship existing between ponies and dogs being remarkable. Nellie Hughes makes a good impression in a top-boot dance; Annie Freedman is a rising comedienne; Mr. Harry Sydney sings and dances well; the Nevilles (Bert and Will) entertain with patter and dance; and a farcical sketch by Herbert St. Clair and company, entitled Half an Hour with Baby, is capably performed.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The Westcots are an amusing comedy duo; and J. H. Harris is as quaint as ever. Marie Dey, comedienne and dancer; Tom Donaldson, Dutch comedian; and Fred Emsley, Scotch comedian, are responsible for merriment; and the Bioscope proves popular.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Horace Stanley and Co., in The 10.30 Down Express, occupied the boards for the first three nights of the week. Mr. T. Arthur Plummer depicted the heroic character of Jack O'Malley cleverly; as the repulsive James Inderwick Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh gave an equally clever portrayal; Mr. Harry Emmerson as Huntly Mason made a typical sleuth-hound; Cuthbert Leigh was soundly enacted by Mr. David Curtis; Mr. Fred Seymour skilfully handled the part of Seth Coombs; Mr. Cliff H. Astley as Bletherley Bagg was effective; Miss Cora Linda added dignity and refinement to the part of Bessie Leigh; Miss Myra Mayne was eminently suited to the exacting part of Olive Coombs; and Miss Ida Fayne effectively played Letitia Leigh. Mr. Horace Stanley as Sam Wagstaff and Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts were responsible for a good deal of fun.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—Mr. Henry Coutts presents a clever protean act entitled Outflanked, which is well received; the Five X Rays, "mad athletes," are smart and at once find favour; Tom Joy, comedian, sings a couple of good songs; and Miss Minnie Love, serio and dancer, also agreeably contributes to the programme. The Lauri Brothers do a neat performance as society acrobats; and Cliff and Kean are seen to advantage in a vocal comedy and dancing act. Shirley and Ransome, with comedy and pathos, are applauded; and Miss Irene Meldon, vocalist and dancer, appears successfully. Cinematograph films of the Messina disaster and also of the landslip at Pentre are very interesting.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Mr. Arthur Farren's Cinderella company opened on Monday to a crowded house. The musical numbers are bright and catchy, under the able conduct of Mr. Fred Hargreaves. In the title-rôle Miss Eva Travis is very winsome, singing and acting with easy grace; Miss Florrie Anderson is a dashing Prince Charming and her songs are loudly applauded. She is ably supported by Miss Alice Westbourne as the Prince's Valet. Mr. Dave Anderson as Phil and Mr. Bert Norman as Garlic do excellent work and keep the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Eugene Maccabe and Mr. Alf Stokes are equally successful as the Ugly Sisters; Mr. Willie Pinn is a capital Baron. In the Palace scene specialities are successfully introduced by Monsieur Le Clair's troupe of performing dogs; Miss Lola Reine, a clever speciality dancer; Messrs. Norman and Anderson, knockabouts; and the Three Sisters Johnson, tambourine dancers.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt and company are occupying the boards here this week in A Victim of Villainy. Mr. H. Creagh Hunt gives a clever rendering of the villain Stephen Cavanagh; Mr. Frank J. Pitt is excellent as Frank Manton; Mr. Frank Dallas creates a lot of fun as Patrick Maloney; Miss Dollie Lester is a charming Eric; Miss Kathryne Eckart sympathetically portrays the character of Mary Manton; Mr. Fred Carroll is very good as Tom Leckie; Miss Jesse Ermonde is a smart Vera Diamond; and Miss Alice Clark a vivacious Norah Maloney.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Very attractive films are being shown here this week, and one of the best is the tragic story, entitled Tilda and Her Lions; Jas. Brady, the character comedian, is very successful; Yorkshire Tom is an expert animal mimic; Miss Helen Raye scores with her illustrated songs; Charles Leighton as the tramp pianist is very popular; and Penley and English create a lot of fun with their sketch Four-a-penny Mackerel.

THE GEM.—Lessees, The Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—A first-rate set of films are being exhibited here this week, the one depicting the King's recent visit to Berlin being worthy of special mention. The illustrated song "Yours is not the only heart that is aching" has caught on.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. John A. Thomson's company is appearing here this week in The Babes of the Wood. Miss Pattie McCarthy as the dashing Robin Hood and Miss Nina Carlton as Maid Marion both captivate the audience by their charming style. The Babes are played with great success by Miss Cissie Williams and La Belle Sylvia, a pair of clever juveniles, who sing and dance exceptionally well. Mr. Gus Walker as Pansy Blossom keeps the house in continuous laughter; Weary Willy and Tired Tim are two humorous characters in which Messrs. Lovell Rowlands and Herbert Walton display genuine ability; Mr. Frank Halpin sings remarkably well as the Will-o'-the-Wisp, and Miss Norah Prendergast, whose vocal contributions are good, is most efficient as the Queen of Good Intent. The dances of the Butterfly Troupe are graceful and particularly pleasing; the Sisters Hypatia, duettists and dancers, Les Milicent Freres, gymnasts, and the Sisters Thornton, International dancers, all have specialities which are well received. The scenic effects are good, and the dresses are tasteful and pretty.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—John Warren presents his great illusion, The Magic Carpet, with success; that very amusing comedian, N. C. Bostock, has had a hearty reception; Billy Walters gives an original and novel ventriloquist performance; the Rowantrees reel off a fusillade of funny songs and jokes; Teresa da Silva proves herself a favourite with her songs; Nellie Ellienne, comedienne, is good; and Harry Marte, comedian and dancer, also appears. The Bioscope shows most interesting pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Gus Garrick, the popular comedian, wins rapturous applause for his songs, whilst Phil Rees' Stable Lads are well received in their new production, entitled Not a Crook; the Boxing Kangaroo, introduced by Mr. Ben Tully, provides an entertaining turn; the Tossing Austins are clever comedy jugglers and dancers; Gladys and Alber submit a smart pot-pourri act; F. S. Gilbert does well as an operatic vocalist; and the Dromoscope contributes some pleasing pictures.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. Walter Howard's latest play, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, is here. Miss Annie Saker acts with distinction as the Princess Monica, and is especially good in the emotional scenes; Mr. Wallace Court gives a fine representation of the chivalrous Prince Olaf; Mr. Ivan Cleveland is excellent as Prince Hildred; the part of the unfortunate Prince Michael is played with suitable pathos by Mr. Graeme Campbell; Mr. Reginald H Stephens does well as the loyal Captain Hector; Mr. Richard Lane portrays Lieutenant Stromberg with good effect; Mr. Kendall Chalmers is good as the dumb servant, Nathan; and the parts of Viola and Camiolia are charmingly played by Miss Elsie Walton and Miss Ivy Millais.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—The pantomimic burlesque, Sports in the Jungle, presented by the Donaldson Brothers, is a thoroughly entertaining turn, and is full of surprise effects and quaint business; Tennyson and Wallis, two comedy policemen, have a rich fund of humorous patter, and are very popular; the Three Orros give a skilful acrobatic display on the silver rings; Clack and Clack, lady barrel jumpers, combine comedy with smart feats; Richard Finberg is a clever impersonator, and delineates a variety of famous characters; Mary Glenn is a pleasing singer of popular Scottish songs; and Nell Cotter contributes good chorus songs.

GUERNSEY. — THEATRE ST. JULIANS.— Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week the patrons found diversion in Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Miss Florence Carlile is a shapely Robinson, singing her numbers with success; Alice is engagingly played by Miss Gertrude Blanche; Miss Fay Desmond should have had more scope for her well-trained soprano voice than that afforded her as the Queen Coral; the Sisters Geronde are very taking, singing and dancing in an effective style; Mr. Henry Eglington dispenses Dame Crusoe with his customary success; Mr. Fred Anderson's make-up is extremely funny as Tommy Tickle, his appearance is a signal for roars of laughter; Mr. Will Sherlock (Atkins) and Little Billy Bracy (Captain) are both prolific in their comic resources. The Violetta Troupe are responsible for some graceful dancing. The chorus work well together under the bâton of Mr. C. B. Yearsley.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is here this week with the New East Lynne. Mr. Fred Terriss is gentlemanly and natural as Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Leonard Booker makes a good villain as Francis Levison; Mr. Richard Nugent's Murty O'Flynn is an excellent performance; Mr. E. J. Coyne is all that can be desired as Richard Hare; Mr. Byron Pedley makes an ideal Mr. Dill; Miss Sophy Shenton's Cornelia Carlyle stands out as a successful and praiseworthy effort; Barbara Hare is nicely played by Miss Madge Beresford; Miss G. Shilton successfully doubles the parts of the two sisters, Afy and Joyce; Miss Doris Denville is a conspicuous success as Willie Carlyle; and Miss Marion Lind acts with rare force and feeling as Lady Isabel.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks. A Soldier's Honour is paying a return visit to the Grand this week. Miss Edie Macklin, by the excellence of her acting, makes the low-comedy part of Jemima Eliza stand out prominently; Miss Lilla Wilde plays well in the rôle of Cora Lee; Mr. T. A. Ellis makes a soldierly hero as Captain Deane; and Captain Gerald Temple is well played by Mr. W. Vane. Henry Thornton is excellently portrayed by Mr. A. Money; Queenie Deane is nicely played by Miss Edie Trapnell; and the pathetic part of Doreen Illingworth receives full justice at the hands of Miss Violet Langley.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Sable Fern, with her good songs, clear enunciation, winning manner, and dainty dresses, has met with deserved approval; Hicks and Hunter, dancing on ice skates, are warmly applauded; Norah Desmond, song illustrator, is another successful turn; Harry Tate's No. 1 company, in Fishing, keep the house in a continuous roar; the Arntes (Billie and Gracie) are clever coloured dancers; the Six Brothers Luck are again well to the fore as fun-makers in Lift-Em's, Limited; the Sisters Hampel, comedy couple, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete an excellent programme.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Managing-Director, Mr. René Clayton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Bostock.—The Ten Loonies in their funny musical farcical turn Dotty are topping the bill here and proving a big draw; Walter Ellis and company are exceedingly funny in a clever sketch, The Sleepwalker; William McIvor is a pleasing vocalist; and the Royal Delomes are capable dancers. Arthur Slater is excellent in his whistling scena; Carl Volta is a clever conjurer and illusionist; Pop Dearly, the dandy coon, sings well; Gold and Sterling, in their musical comedy business, and the Bioscope conclude an excellent programme.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Messrs. Leigh and Armitage's company is here in With Edged Tools. Mr. Chas. Hartopp is good as Guy Oscard; Mr. C. Goldsmid is brilliant as Durnovo; Mr. J. A. Rosier as Sir John Meredith plays with decided skill; Mr. W. F. Grant as Jack Meredith is well suited and makes a hit; and Mr. Graham Pocket is capable as Gordon. Miss Alice E. Belmore is a charming Millicent; Miss Marie Leonard as Jocelyn Gordon portrays the rôle with great effect; and Miss Florence Dunhulty is excellent as Lady Herries. The staging and effects are good.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Jan Rudenyi, Hungarian actor-violinist, appears here in a sketch called Music's Power; Raymond's Bio-tableaux shows Edward VII. in Berlin; Millie Howell is a character vocalist of great promise; Ivy Adelaide is a charming comedienne; Dan Filmer is a comedian of decided merit; D'Arc's Marionettes are truly wonderful; Wee Mona Vivian, vocalist, mimic, and dancer, is a tremendous success; Lilian, a clever lady cyclist, makes a hit; De Wynne Brothers are marvellous athletes; and La Pia's bathing dance is realistic.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—A fine collection of films is shown here, including The Woman Chauffeur, When the Man in the Moon Takes a Wife, Young Sexton Blake, &c. Mr. Geo. Edney, character vocalist, makes a hit.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Mr. Gar Kiddie's company occupy the boards here this week with the pantomime Babes in the Wood. It is an exceedingly good all-round show. Mr. Dan Tandy as Sir Brokah de Pawn, the Baron, was excellent; and Mr. Mark Stuart was all that could be desired as the Dame Araminta, a hard worker who proved a great favourite with the audience. Mr. Dawson Dewick as Soft Sammy was also to the fore; the Sisters Maudsley were well placed as the two babes Harold and Lucy; and Miss Marion Scott was a handsome and accomplished Robin Hood. Messrs. Conan and Doyle as the two Robbers were productive of laughter, and Messrs. Taylor and Elliott danced themselves into favour. Mr. Edwin Lambert as the Demon King and Miss Dolly Moore as the Fairy Queen were both well placed and sang well. Miss Margaret Cathcart was Maid Marion. The rest of a long cast was in reliable hands. The dresses and scenery were good.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—The building was packed in every available part on Monday, when the films shown by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope were thoroughly enjoyed. The coloured picture A Trip to the Land of the Midnight Sun is a magnificent piece of work and very interesting, as also are those of Catching Crocodiles and A Trip Through the Pyrenees. There are many dramatic and humorous films shown, and variety is added to the programme by Fred Pollard, the original singing and talking Hebrew, whose songs and patter keep the audience roaring with laughter.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—A week's visit was opened on Monday by Mr. William Greet's cheif company in The Sign of the Cross. The popular parts of the house were densely packed by an enthusiastic audience on Monday, who followed the ennobling play with enrapt attention. The virile character of Marcus Superbus was strongly rendered by Mr. Cyril Austin Lee, whose impassioned appeal to Nero was a splendid elocutionary effort; the vanity and ferocity attributed to Nero were finely realised by Mr. C. Yorke; the cunning and treachery of Tigellinus and Licinius' envious hatred of Marcus were finely exemplified by Messrs. Charles Aldred and J. Weatherall respectively; Mr. Frank Wood impersonated the bibulous Glabrio and Mr. Harry Jones played well as the sensuous Philodemus. The licentious period was further exemplified by Miss Mary Newcombe as Ancaria; Miss Cissy Carlton as Dacia; and Miss Lily Ward as Berenice, the latter's passionate love of Marcus being played with dramatic force; Miss Beryl Hamilton's rendering of Poppæa being very effective. Mr. Walter Fleet was powerfully impressive as Favius; Miss Edith Drayson successfully realised the rôle of Stephanus; Miss Constance Little was tense, earnest, and impressive in her delineation as Mercia. The staging, dressing, and scenery were excellent, and in the scene of Marcus's House a fine contrast of revelry and Christianity was afforded. Mr. H. Thurston-Harris stage-managed.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Mr. H. Boyd and Mr. F. Higham; General-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman. — Miss Ethel Yorke, an attractive comedienne, opens an interesting programme; the Alhambra films are varied and effective; an accomplished violinist and musician is seen in Warriner; Chas. Field is expert in juggling, and, assisted by Mlle. Mansell, exhibits some wonderfully rapid landscape painting in oil; some versatile dancing is shown by Bob Puelo and Katie Cropp; and an original and laughable monologue is given by Sam Voss as the quack doctor. Well-staged scenes from the opera of Faust are admirably given. Miss Lena Shirley renders the part of Marguerite with delightful ease and fluency; Mr. Claude Anderson as Faust sings with great expression; and Mr. Ward Cowdery as Mephistopheles has a telling voice and finished method.

PIER PAVILION.—General Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The Ticket-of-Leave Man is occupying the boards here. Mr. Oliver Rogers as Robert Brierly is admirably clear and natural; Maltby is well taken by Mr. F. Williams; Mr. J. E. Cowell is a convincing James Dalton; Mr. E. Maule Cole makes a capital Hawkshaw; Mr. Edward Harrison faithfully represents Melter Moss; Mr. Frank Growcotte does ample justice to Gibson; Miss Blanche Bayley is particularly vivacious as Mrs. Willoughby; Sam, by Miss Helen Anderson, creates much fun; and Miss Clarissa Selwynne makes a charming May Edwards.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—Mr. Ernest Bodkin's company had a most enthusiastic reception here on Monday when The Thief was presented for the first time in Hereford. A better exponent of Raymond Leyton than Mr. Ernest Bodkin could not be found; Mr. C. W. Lindsey (a young actor) gave a strikingly good representation of Harry Leyton, throughout the play holding his audience keenly interested; Mr. Frank Darch submitted a fine portrayal of Richard Chelford, his speech in the third act being admirably delivered; Mr. Taylor Vinson was particularly good as Mr. Protheroe; Miss Kathryn Stocks as Marise Chelford presented an artistic delineation which was enthusiastically appreciated by the audience; and Miss Mary Forrester proved an admirable Isabel Leyton.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.—This week Mr. Julian Graham's Gay Goddess company is the attraction, and the reception has been of a very hearty description. The piece is admirably staged, the dresses handsome, and the scenery (notably the Bal Masque scene) very appropriate. Miss Kate Graham-Beck is an instantaneous success, her splendid voice and stage appearance both as Juno, the statue, and Black Domino being greatly admired. Miss Amy Wood's impersonation of Mrs. Marie Strong, Priscilla's stepmother, is a fine specimen of a strong-minded, always right sort of lady, full of very good comedy; Miss Leah Howard makes a charming Priscilla Strong, Twinkle's bride, and plays the part to perfection; Miss Louie Gray as Lottie Stimson deserves every credit for her singing and dancing, her duet with Mr. Teasdale (Dutch clog-dancer) being vociferously encored; the Misses Dolly Shaw and May Davis as Priscilla's cousins, Winifred and Alice, help the piece considerably by their dancing and singing. On Mr. Arthur Staples' efforts, as Timothy Twinkle, a solicitor's clerk, largely depend the many embarrassing situations created by the coming to life of Juno, and he richly deserved the unstinted applause accorded him; Mr. Fred Hammond is very amusing as the deaf old gentleman, Samuel Strong, Marie's father-in-law; Mr. Richard Teasdale both as Sherlock Blake, detective, and Mephisto scores heavily, his songs and dances being very effective; the musical burglars (Downey and Leary) are safe in the hands of Messrs. W. Millard and Sam Baylis; Mr. Geo. Watson as Anthony Somers, Twinkle's friend, is good. Les Papillions give a very fine pirouette dance in the Bal Masque act, and receive loud applause. Mr. Harry A. Laycock as musical conductor has a very heavy task, and succeeds in keeping the augmented orchestra up to the mark.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in the very original and striking comedy Brewster's Millions is here this week, and the business done has been very fair. Mr. Percy Hutchison created a very big success in the leading rôle, and his reading of it is a very interesting one indeed. Miss Sybil Walsh replaces Miss Lillias Earle as Mrs. Dan de Mile, a part she plays very naturally; as Peggy Miss Cicely Stuckey has a rôle which fits her like the proverbial glove. The mounting is magnificent. Brewster's Millions is preceded by a new one-act play reviewed in another colume of this issue.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—At the end of this week the Morton management ends at this popular playhouse, and on Saturday night Mr. Morton proposes to say adieu to his patrons. The final engagement is Mr. Chalmers Mackey in an Irish play interspersed with music, entitled Rollicking Rory. Mr. and Mrs. Mackay by their work add to the enjoyment of the evening.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. Morton.—The pantomime, now in its last week, has been a huge triumph. Every night the circle has had an audience standing three and four deep. Aladdin is one of the best productions Dottridge and Longden have brought to this playhouse, and they have reaped a rich reward.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Three Calbas, in an acrobatic act, and a boxing act between Bert Hughes and an American darkie, are two of the principal turns here. Other artists include "Venus," W. H. Blackman, the Langley Juveniles, Lynn, Lisbon, and Barker, and Arthur Hickman.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—The Continental Circus is doing good business. The Three Royal Ohmys, Mrs. Dudley Smith, Mr. Claude (in a bare-back act), the Three Mattresses, Mlle. Lilly, Mlle. Roseltha (transformation dancer), the Aeroplanes (gymnastic act), and the military sketch The Despatch Bearer are all good items.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Idol of Paris is proving an attraction at the hands of Mr. James Bell's capable company. Miss Annie Bell, who is no stranger to the Ilkeston theatre, makes her usual success in the part of Flare-Flare; whilst the character of Victor Cashelle is cleverly dealt with by Mr. Sydney Arnold. Mr. Frank H. Dale as Tatave is a treat; and Miss Annie Megson is good as Ann Sancterre, the pair providing quite a fund of amusement. Miss Frances Bruce presents a capital study of Mme. Sancterre; Messrs. C. St. John Medley and Gordon Robey as Gustave Langloise and H.R.H. Prince Sergius Zoresky respectively deserve mention. The shady doings of Phillipe D'Esterre are excellently carried out by Mr. Wilson Howard. Scenic effects and dresses leave little or nothing to be desired.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in Leah Kleschna is here for the present week. The company is a strong one, and includes Mr. William Clayton, whose powerful and dramatic acting in the exacting part of old Kleschna is admirable; Mr. Charles Barratt as Paul Sylvane; and Mr. Arthur Leigh as Raoul Berton. Mr. William Heilbron is good as Schram; the parts of General Berton and Valentine Fave are doubled by Mr. Algernon Hicks; Mr. Bert Gunther as Anton Pioff, Mr. Bernard Raie as Johann, Mr. A. Conway as Raichman, and Mr. F. Bannerman as Baptiste are all satisfactory. Miss Bessie Rignold as Leah Kleschna has a part which makes great demands upon the dramatic ability of an actress. The contrasts of passion and emotion are displayed in a manner deserving the highest praise throughout. The parts of Mme. Berton by Miss Ethel Russell, Clare Berton by Miss Emmie Wallace, Sophie Choponnière by Miss Dorrie Turner, Erieda by Miss May Hammond, and Charlotte by Miss Edith Summers, are all in good hands. The entire performance deserved the enthusiastic reception it received. The staging of the play is excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The Leslie Brothers are back again with their comical sketch called Music Mad, and as before were enthusiastically welcomed; Kurkamp, "the singing conductor," has an excellent voice, and was well received; as also was Miss Leah Arden in a couple of catchy songs. Sam Dalton also has some amusing songs; and Julian Mack, "the chatter-box," is irresistibly funny. Miss Lilian Travellie is an American vocalist of talent; the Zampas, duettist and dancers, are clever and extremely popular; Fritz Kooman as a whistler is certainly unique in his cleverness; Queen and Lebrun have a very funny sketch entitled The Cockney Huntsman, which keeps the house in roars; and the Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—The attraction this week is Messrs. Levey and Cardwell's pantomime The House that Jack Built. Miss F. Taylor makes an ideal Jack, and soon establishes herself quite a favourite; while Mr. H. Hillerby causes much amusement as Aunt Purdy, and Wee McGregor is most carefully handled by Miss Gladys Wyse. Mr. Macnorton is well placed as Squire Bounce; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as Scraggs and Scraggies cause much amusement with their various antics; Miss Evelyn Major as Jill is very charming, and her various songs are well received. Some excellent dances are executed and specialities are given by Doyle and Gibson, comedians. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

KETTERING. — AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is the O.K. Animated Pictures company with an interesting programme, including Leoni Clarke, the Cat King; George Russell, comedian; and the Levans, with illustrated songs.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—For the first three nights of this week the boards were occupied by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company with The Prodigal Son. Mr. Herbert Franklin ably portrayed the character of Stephen Magnusson; Mr. George Edwin Clive and Mr. T. W. Dunscombe those of Oscar and Magnus Shephenson; Mr. Arthur E. Holland did well as Oscar Neilsen; and Mesdames Chrissie Dunbar and Dora Gregory were good as Helga and Thora Neilsen. Miss Ethel Lodge as Anna, wife of Stephen Magnusson, was well placed. On Thursday Mr. F. C. Leighton's company in The Golden Ladder occupied the boards.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessee, Dr. Walford Bodie.—A good programme is presented this week, headed by Miss Sheila McNeil, a Scotch comedienne with some amusing patter; Miss Amy Bathurst sings well; and Buchanan and Farren, comedians and dancers, and Mr. J. C. Heffron complete the bill. A good series of views is shown on the Bodiegraph.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The attraction this week is Messrs. Dottridge, Longdon, and Livesey's company in The Village Blacksmith, which has attracted large audiences. Mr. Sam Livesey appears with much success as John Strong, the blacksmith, and the wrestling bout with Captain Leo, played by Mr. Albert Sinclair, works up the audience to intense excitement; Miss Kathleen Saunders as Harry Strong is a child actress of marked ability; and the comic element is supplied by Mr. Fred Haming as Billy Twig and Miss Edith Giddens as Martha Mopps. As the blacksmith's wife, Kate Strong, Miss Maggie Edwards is excellent; and the same may be said of Miss Cassie Le Grande as Ruth Parkins. The staging is very good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—At the head of the bill here is the Miles-Stavordale Quintette, whose return visit is much appreciated. Will and Alice Vokes, in a comedy dancing act, cause roars of laughter; Miss Violet Day sings and dances well; and Wat Tyler, character vocalist, has a good reception. Hess and Lisbon, in a roller-skating act, elicit rounds of applause and create much laughter; Primavesi is a smart juggler; and Reli and Butt, comedians, do very well. The Hippograph, with comical pictures, completes.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—An excellent attraction was provided here during the earlier part of the week, Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company appearing to crowded houses in The Catch of the Season. Mr. William Greene gave a clever performance of the Duke of St. Jermyns; Miss Dorothea Clarke was a charming Angela; Mr. Joseph Bruce a capital Lord Dundreary; and special mention should be made of Master Ernest Grata's Bucket, a remarkably good character. Miss Clara de Vere was excellent as the Duchess of St. Jermyns. Mr. Norman V. Norman and company appeared in Lady Ursula and Under the Red Robe during the latter portion of the week.

LEICESTER. — OPERA HOUSE. — There is a change in the business-manager here, the late manager having been transferred to another town. Quite an ovation awaited Mr. Martin Harvey on Monday evening, when he opened a week's engagement with The Breed of the Treshams, in which he gave a really fine performance of Reresby the Rat. Miss N. de Silva gave a charming delineation of Batty. The Last Heir was played on Thursday and Friday evenings, and to-day (Saturday) The Corsican Brothers, preceded by The Conspiracy, is underlined.

THEATRE ROYAL. — After many years of service in several capacities, there has also been a change in the business-manager at this theatre. The attraction is provided this week by Mr. Percy Williams's company, which is presenting (by arrangement with Mr. Bert Coote) The Fatal Wedding. The most prominent parts are capably sustained by Mr. Cecil A. Melton (Howard Wilson), Miss Ethel Kay (Mabel Wilson), Miss Elaine Vanburgh (Cora Williams), Mr. Percy Ballard (Robert Curtis), Miss Ethel Sarjient (Bridget), and Mr. Harry Vernon (Toto).

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—At the head of a "class" programme here is George Auger (the giant actor) and his company of Lilliputians in Jack the Giant Killer; Carter Livesey and Lilian Roseberry present, to the accompaniment of great merriment, their skit The Would-be Actors; Madge Temple, the delightfully smart musical comedy artist, is a popular favourite; Alexandra Dagmar receives a warm welcome, her stories and songs, especially "A marriage in May-fair," being given in a style worthy of the greatest praise; the Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie), Lilliputian actors; Barrington, with some clever freak performances at the piano; La Tamara and her dancer Ojeda; Jimmy Shields, one-legged dancer and comedian; Virto and Venita, in their refined musical act; and the Bioscope are other attractions.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The lead in a good show here is held by the Bouncing Dillons (Hilda and Willie); Shenton and Chicks are well received for their Anglo-American speciality act, The Children's Birthday Party; Cestria is a smart tumbler and juggler; Clifford Morgan, fresh from a local pantomime, is especially good as a light comedian; the Sivronis, burlesque artists, exploit a humorous turn Dewar and Dunville are smart dancers; Master Day gives an exhibition as a diabolist that would be hard to beat; and George Acre is an entertaining actor-vocalist.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—At this "home" of animated photography there is the usual full list of serious, coloured, and comedy pictures including A Tale of Two Cities, Nick Carter, the King of Detectives, The Man in the Overalls, Through Holland, The Viking's Daughter, and The Aspirator, which are interwoven with very acceptable items by the Two Palmers, musical comedy artists.

CORN EXCHANGE. — Proprietors, The Corporation of Leicester.—The London Animated Picture Company, under the management of Gunner Gooes, is on a return visit here.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. J. W. Chippendale.—Mr. Walter Melville's A Girl's Cross Roads company is paying a return visit, and is drawing excelent houses. Barbara Wade, the "woman who didn't care," is cleverly impersonated by Miss Hilda Beverley, the contrast between this character and that of Constance Cornell (Miss Muriel Dean) is particularly striking, the latter actress playing her part with much charm and tenderness. Mr. Norman B. Cannon gives a stirring and manly impersonation of Jack Livingstone; Mr. Edward Valentine is a conspicuous success as Dr. Weston; Mr. W. J. Butler gives a good study of the despicable Cuthbert Lumley; and as his accomplice, Nellie Meadows, Miss Nita Langford achieves success; Mr. Harry Cane submits a finely-conceived characterisation of the old farmer, John Meadows. The comedy side is well looked after by Mr. Fred Hodson as Toby Turvy; and Miss Jeannie Thomas as Tilly Vane and Mr. Fred Withers as Luke Ramsden deserve praise.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Leigh Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Lockhart's elephants head the bill, and give a clever and entertaining performance; the four Henry-Hearnes, comedy acrobats, are exceedingly smart and clever; the Ettenas, globe speciality artists, meet with well-deserved appreciation; Mr. Harry Taylor, the Lancashire comedian, scores a big success, as does also Mr. George Prince, who is very amusing. Messrs. Osborne and Gilmore are warmly applauded for their physical display and poses; Les Wambas, gymnasts and comedy musicians, are remarkably clever; Mr. Charles Coll, light comedian, is very refined; and the Bioscope pictures also appear with success.

LEITH. — NEW GAIETY THEATRE. — Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Like the many other successful dramas from Mr. Fred Melville's prolific pen, Married to the Wrong Man bids successfully for popular favour; and the opportunities afforded by the piece for sterling and meritorious work are fully developed by the touring company who have this week staged the production at the above theatre. Miss Gertrude Boswell wins high praise by her fine rendering of the part of Ruth; Mr. Oswald Cray is prominent and admirable as Jack Gladwin; and the rôles of Captain Deering and Archie Bird are well cont

Shop; Diana Hope, Monte Bayly, and Charles Levey present a hurricane thriller, entitled Her Good Name; A Bé Bé presents her exquisitely pretty interlude, The Picture Postcard Album; and the San Remo Girls, Rosie Reval, Mark Merry, and Mack Ollive meet with full appreciation.

LIVERPOOL.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The attraction here this week has been Mr. Fred Melville's company with Her Road to Ruin, which did good business. As the curate Mr. Henry Wolston made a most favourable impression, his acting being marked by much sincerity; the exacting rôle of Mary Dawson found an able exponent in Miss Nellie Bonser; as Jess Willoughby Miss Beatrice Edwards maintained her already recognised position; the heavy part of Philip Hardy was capitally undertaken by Mr. Alexander Bradley; Mr. Dane Clarke presented a natural Bishop; Miss Alice Bowes proved a refined and dainty May Willoughby; and other worthily-held rôles were Billy Boots (Mr. Harry Talbot), Jennie Crackling (Miss Marie Wright), Charles Cholmondeley (Mr. V. R. C. Moors), and Tom Wells (Mr. Duncan Yarrow).

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A return visit of the delightful play Sunday, Mr. Louis Calvert's production, has been welcomed here this week. Included in a good all-round cast was Janet Lind, whose assumption of the title part was greeted with every expression of approval. She was ably supported by the "boys," who were represented by Messrs. Richard F. Symonds, A. Cotton Holmes, James Hussey, and George Marriott, jun.; much appreciation was evinced towards the parts of Mrs. Naresby (Miss H. Graham Edwins) and a Nun (Miss Jessie Stone); Mr. William Giffard capably held the character of Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. Boyce Wellams acquitted himself well as Arthur Brinthorpe; and Mr. Richard Trieve gave an excellent rendering of Tom Oxley. The Thursday matinées here have become very popular.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Heading the programme here this week were Joseph Hart's troupe of "Rain Dears," whose turn, consisting of vocalism and dancing, afforded a deal of pleasure; to Miss Marie Kendall a most flattering reception was given, and her latest songs, including "Well" and "The taximeter car," were received with enthusiasm; Paul Barnes kept his audience in roars of laughter by means of numerous droll stories; an interesting talk by Frederic Villiers, the war correspondent, accompanied by photographs and sketches relating to his campaigns, was listened to with close attention; Staig's steeplejacks cycling the chimney was a sensational turn; Will and May Brennan provided a neat and artistic dancing act; Victor Newman gave some clever impersonations from Shakespeare and Dickens; Jean Macduff, "the new female Scotch comedian," was entertaining; and Steve McCarthy, as a comedian and dancer, was not the least acceptable in the list.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Here throughout the week Her Fatal Marriage was staged, the cast including Miss Ruth Zillwood, Miss Lydia Audre, Miss Laura Wright, and Messrs. G. H. Childs, Norman Tracey, Arthur Hinton, P. Morton-Wright, and Frank Brunell.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Prominent here this week were Clark and Hamilton, who gave an excellent turn of singing, dancing, and patter; Harry Grey, a capital comedian, proved very popular; the Seencr and Fridkin's troupe of Russian vocalists and dancers earned a deal of applause; France and Stewart presented their smart humorous sketch A 100 to 1 Chance, which delighted everybody; the Orchids sang nicely; and also in the list were Montague Biggs, the "male Marie Lloyd"; Olive Armadale, soubrette; and Nat Watkins, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The programme here was headed by Caryl Wilbur, whose American comedy 61, Prospect Street, gave general satisfaction; Jock Whiteford, a really admirable Scotch comedian, brought down the house, and had to respond to numerous demands for encores; Tom and Marie Motramo had their merry musical sketch Do You Reverse? Rappo and Ella showed great expertness as hand balancers and equilibrists; the sketch Sweet Innisfail, presented by Walter Reynolds' Irish company, was an acceptable item; the Bros. Ashley provoked continuous laughter with their comedy boxing sketch, Next, Please; Captain Grahame introduced Bostock's performing baboons; Beaty and Blanche were a couple of particularly neat duettists and dancers; and Anileda and August were well received for their eccentricities.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Good business continues to be done here by the stock dramatic company. During the week The Great Diamond Robbery, from the pen of W. R. Waldron, was staged, the principal parts being held by Messrs. David G. Noble (John Eaglesfield), Sydney Grant (Paul Dagonet), R. Sleath Innes (Magnus), Tom H. Solly (Pippins), Cecil Ravenswood (Stationmaster), Miss Lilian Radbourne (Estelle), and Miss E. Turner-Elliott (Emilie Eaglesfield). Some capital films were shown by Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The cinematograph pictures are still an attraction here. In addition to them during the week there appeared the Australian Bush Boys, harmonising duettists and dancers; and J. P. Carrol, tambourinist. The cinephone, singing and talking machine, was also shown.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Weighton.—The Sands of Dee water spectacle has caught on, and is in its third week; Oswald Williams, assisted by Miss Winifred La Barte and company, proved a clever illusionist, and completely bewildered his audience; Marstro and Oretta, equilibrists, had a refined and novel act; an entertining comedy sketch, Me and 'Er, was submitted by Duncan and Godfrey; Nellie Coleman, female comedian, was accorded a hearty greeting; the Four Figaros were international vocalists and dancers of a high order and pleased generally; Lil O'Gorman had some amusing songs, including "It's a terrible complaint to be tall"; and contributions likewise came from Arthur Gill, the man with many voices; and Lily Palmer, vocalist and dancer.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Crowded houses have been the rule here this week to witness Harry Burns' pantomime Robinson Crusoe. The production was richly enjoyed, being brimful of excellent comedy, and the principal artists showed a deal talent. In the title-rôle Mlle. Du Roche looked well and sang with taste, being possessed of a pleasing voice. Her numbers included "There's going to be a wedding to-day" and "Sweetheart May," there being a frequent demand for encores. Praise should also be bestowed upon Miss Marie Belle for her Polly Perkins, her singing of "Antonio" being greeted with loud applause; Miss Kittie Trewhitt made a vivacious Tommy Bowline, and earned considerable approval for her song "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" Mr. Henry Curwen, the author of the "book," was a most funny Dame; and strong supporters in the direction of causing laughter were Messrs. Arthur Aiston (Will Atkins), Edwin Ramsey (Captain Cuttle), Harry Ramsey (Captain Mate), and Will Sterne (Billy Crusoe). Harry Wilks as the Monkey and Billy Hubbard the man Friday did their work very capably. The chorus and ballet pleased greatly, especially the evolutions and dances of Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls; and Mr. Sidney R. Howard, the musical-director, kept the orchestra well up to the mark. A speciality, which was unannounced, was suddenly thrust into the pantomime on Monday in the form of two wonderfully expert club and hat manipulators named the Juggling McBans, who arrived from America on Saturday, and were immediately engaged by Mr. Burn. Their work evoked loud applause.

Grand Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—Topping the bill here this week were the Six Brothers Luck with The Demon of the Cellar; J. Wright Aitken and company gave their effective domestic sketch The Battle of Life; some neat and clever juggling was done by the "Child Cinquevalli"; Billy Richardson, stump orator, showed he was still a favourite; W. G. Webber, possessed of a rich voice, sang several popular ballads; and there also appeared the Denardo Boys, juvenile acrobats; and Rose Gower, vocalist. Some capital animated pictures completed the programme.

Park Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The pantomime of Aladdin, transferred from the Tivoli, has occupied the boards here this week.

New Century Picture Hall.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter W. Hook.—Public patronage of this excellent picture show continues satisfactory. During the week the following subjects were thrown on the screen.—A Modern Grace Darling, The Eclipse of the Sun, The Soldier's Heroism, The Traitor, and a number of humorous ones.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Hubert Woodward's company, in the dramatic play of Rouget de L'Isle, and Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, Trial by Jury, is here. Mr. Hubert Woodward's assumption of Rouget de L'Isle was an excellent effort; Mr. Keith Kenneth as Parachole was most lifelike; Miss Betty Rowland's Signora Rosetti was satisfactory; and Mme. Nita Payne Seddon's Angele was effective. In Trial by Jury Mr. Maurice Woolley scored by his clever acting as the Judge; Miss Hilda Stocker was a charming Plaintiff, her singing being much enjoyed; Mr. Leonard Faulks as the Defendant was good; Mr. Wilfred Moss was well suited to the part of Counsel for the Plaintiff; and the chorus was well balanced.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The Lowestoft Amateur Opera Company are presenting Erminie this week in aid of local charities.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The bill this week is drawing splendid houses. Leo Carle, protean artist, submits a clever performance; while Marlow and Manton secure applause for their sketch, Winning a Wife. Percy Emery is seen to advantage in "coonology and coster comedy"; while Harry Volran (comedian) and Arthur Bright also appear with success. The Biograph this week depicts the Burns and Johnson fight in addition to a number of other interesting subjects

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The theatre is ocupied for the week by Mr. Chas. W. Poole's up-to-date Myriorama, excellent fare being provided. In addition there are capital pictures on the Bioscope. The Banzai Family of Japanese equilibrists and jugglers top the bill with a clever performance; the Seven Bramusas are skilful instrumentalists; Mr. Harry Raymond and his daughter, Little Ivy, are a couple of exceptionally clever dancers; Mr. Sydney Bach is smart at the piano; Mr. Willie Dean is a comedian of merit; and Mr. Couper makes an interesting guide.

MANCHESTER.—Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—King and the Unknown Woman, last week's attraction at the Grand Junction Theatre, is staged successfully here this week.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—The principal attractions here are Lester and Moure, comedy duo from the New York music-halls; Valvero, in a dioramic illustration of a naval bombardment; Jack Truman, a very acceptable tenor vocalist; and the Rangers, expert cyclists. Interesting items are added by the Roxbys, speciality artists; Lallie Brooke, in a pleasing scena; M. H. Thiessen, with his acrobatic dogs; Cyril Jephson, a neat comedian; and Jack Crawley, in a novel act, Lights Out.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Brearley.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn presents here this week a romantic drama, entitled Send Him Victorious. It is crowded with stirring incidents, and picturesquely mounted, and Monday's large audience gave it a gratifying reception. Mr. Oliver Birrell has a fine heroic part as Captain Frank Allison, and his acting is admirably matched by Miss Isabelle Hunt as Ethel Harding. On the evil side of affairs, much admirable work is done by Mr. G. M. Montanini as Colonel Haufman, and by Miss Katherine Herbert as Countess Kara; while Mr. Frank Holyoake as the King of Ravonia is effective, and Mr. Edward Lowrie is commendable as Sergeant Max. Good fun, and also some good dancing, is contributed by Mr. Bert Woodin as Geordie Walker and Miss Madge Palmer as Gretchen Holtz.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietress, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The Irish Players from the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, are here this week in no less than fourteen plays. On Monday night Dervorgilla, In the Shadow of the Glen, The Gaol Gate, and The Rising of the Moon were given in characteristic style by an excellent company, including Miss Sara Allgood, Miss Maire Sinclair, Mr. Arthur Sinclair, Mr. J. M. Kerrigan, Mr. Fred O'Donovan, Mr. S. J. Morgan, and Mr. J. A. O'Rourke. On Tuesday the performance of Mr. J. M. Synge's play, The Well of the Saints, and Lady Gregory's comedy The Jackdaw, was greatly enjoyed, Miss Allgood and Mr. Arthur Sinclair being particularly good. The scenery generally is realistic and effective.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A very enjoyable programme here is topped by Joseph Hart's company in Polly Pickle's Pets in Petland, a dainty musical fantasy; while W. Selkirk's fine juvenile spectacle, The Gathering of the Clans, also occupies a position of prominence. The Falcons, comedy acrobats, add an excellent turn; and much laughter accompanies the burlesque humour of Wittie Wattie Walton, the popular comedian. Enjoyable items are provided also by the Vetter Brothers, in The Page's Recreation; Miss Marquis and her stud of trained cobs; Pat Rafferty, the genial Irish comedian; Nellie Taylor, juvenile male impersonator; and Ernest Clifford, comedian and dancer.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Les Fleury in "Paris Types" are at the top of the bill here this week, and their revuette is a smart piece of work. Zeynard's Lilliputians, in their clever equestrian and speciality acts, are novel and greatly enjoyed; Henri De Vries the famous Protean actor, ably assisted by Miss Florence Harcourt and Miss M. Gordon, is clever in Trapped by Telephone, each character being perfectly assumed; Margaret Parker and capable company are good in an episode, Sunshine; the Sisters Caselli gain great applause for expert dancing; and others who offer smart turns are Katie Moss, a pleasing vocalist, pianist, and violinist; the Three Laurels, in speciality act; Cliff Ryland, the droll one; and Takio, Japanese mimic of sounds. The King's Berlin Visit is shown on the Bioscope.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Fred Karno's comedians in The Dandy Thieves head the bill here this week, George Hestor playing the part of Sergeant Lightning in capital style. Joe Peterman's company in The Pawnbroker are also a prominent attraction; while the Croisit Trio give a novel sporting scena, and the Hyde and Cody Trio are seen in a smart eccentric act. Other good turns are Cara Magda, gymnast; Flo Deighton, vocalist; Rose Hamilton, comedienne; and Raie Walters, the fisher-girl.

King's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Wild, Willie, and West, the bounding navvies, are highly amusing and clever; Carl and Mary Ohm's animal circus is a fine show; Fred Maitland and assistant are capital in Talked Out, an up-to-date skit; Evelyn and Norrie, in comedy sketch, Set a Thief, are good; Lily Hayes, chic comedienne, makes a hit with excellent dancing; and other smart turns are contributed by Ben Harris in boxing speciality; the Deuchars, comedy duo; Jim Cunliffe, comedian; Farrell and Dunn, Caledonian duo; and Joan Dearing, vocalist-violinist. Pictures complete.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Clare Greet, very ably assisted by Dickson Moffatt, is highly successful here this week in an amusing playlet, The Top-side Dog. Lillie Langtry trips the stage in surprising style; Viviana, assisted by Constance Viviana, Milly Coles, Archie Drew, and Mark Lupino, makes a big hit in a delightful dancing scena, The Toy Shop; Mlle. Martha, in a very graceful trapeze act, scores a success; Ford and Hanson, in musical and burlesque act, are capital; and other entertaining items are given by George Porter, comedian; Kathleen Kennedy, comedienne; Gilbert's performing dogs; Wright and Elton, comedy duo; and Dallas and Varden, in That Husband of Mine. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures are interesting.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's comic pantomime Little Bo-Peep (one of the best on the road) is once more with us. The company is good throughout, and there is plenty of pretty scenery and dresses, smart dances, and good songs. Miss Ivy Gallard as Boy Blue and Miss Lizzie Payne as Bo-Peep are very pleasing; whilst plenty of fun is forthcoming from Mr. J. W. Groves, Mr. Harry Royde, Mr. A. K. Stern, Mr. W. Harris, and Misses Grapho and Jackson. Miss Elsie Peach as the Fairy sings well, as does also Mr. W. H. Gatty as the Demon Wolf. Mention should also be made of the pleasing work of Miss Bertha Cousins and Miss Marie Harding. The whole is stage-managed by Mr. Albert Kall Stern. The grand tableau of living statuary is very effective.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The famous Houdini, handcuff king, is to the front here is his usual astounding performance; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, proves very popular, her song "Mr. Poverty" being highly successful; the Five Musical Tritons are excellent in their gorgeous musical act; and Vanando makes a hit as a ventriloquist. The patter and dancing of Burns and Bentley are greatly enjoyed; the Three Cascaellas are smart comedy tumblers; Hector and Dale, acrobatic eccentrics, are well received; and others who entertain are Wynnie Darrell, a graceful dancer; and Dalton and Euston, comedians and simultaneous dancers of ability.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Kenne.—Mr. Tom Watt's company, in arrangement with Mr. Pitt-Hardacre, has been playing the Wilson Barrett version of East Lynne. The principal members of the company have been Miss Julie Kennard as Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine, Mr. Edmund F. Kennedy as Archibald Carlyle, and Mr. Frank G. Bayley as Capt. Levison. The old drama has been well played and well received.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—With the exception of Violet Fernie, comedienne, and Lester May, vocal character comedian, the programme is again made up of pictures; but included in the latter is a wonderful presentment of the hurry, bustle, and hurricane life of the present newspaper world depicted by pictures of the Morning Leader's publication. Other films include most amusing subjects, including comedy, dramatic, and descriptive pictures.

Hall-by-the-Sea.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—Joshua Dyson's Gipsy Choir opened here on Monday for a week, and the entertainment has each evening been well patronised. The vocalists are individually good, as a choir they sing tunefully, and among the ladies are talented sleigh bell and xylophone soloists; whilst the programme includes humorous songs and duets, sketches, and a series of instructive dioramic pictures, added to which are many amusing cinematograph films. Mr. Dyson personally conducts the picture tours at home and abroad, and the show, as a whole, affords two and a half hours' enjoyable entertainment.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Beggar Girl's Wedding, presented by Mr. Walter Melville's company, is here. Miss Vashti Wynne as Bessie Webster enlists sympathy throughout the play; Mr. Otto Minster ably fills the rôle of Jack Cunningham; Mr. Frank McClellan is good as Dr. Millbank; Mr. Herbert Lloyd is brimful of humour as Dicky Storm; and Miss Daisy Meynard is an amusing Tina. Mr. Herbert Morgan impersonates the villainous Gilbert Lindsay with ability; Mr. Ernest G. Batley is an acceptable Norman Marsh; Miss Doris Whyte a delightful Elsie Cunningham; and Miss Olive Warne a very effective Maud Villiers.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Engaged here are the Brooklyn Comedy Four; W. L. Murray, the Roman gladiator; the St. Johns, musical comedians; Filma, magician; Lambert and Butler, comedians and dancers; Gordon Welldon, comedian; and Albert Hope, the singing collier. The Biograph concludes.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Burnett.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Greed of Gold is proving an excellent attraction here this week. Mr. James Jarrett as Tom Welstead (a dumb man) is responsible for a clever portrayal; Mr. Vic. C. Rolf as Mr. Brightstone, K.C., acted in a first-class manner; Mr. Arthur Beaufort is good as Cully Snug, a Cockney tipster; Mr. Alf. Stretton displays considerable ability as Arthur Errol; Mr. Henry Parr makes the most of the part of the villainous Harry Hood. Comedy relief is afforded by Mr. Charles C. Wood as Conn Creamer, ably assisted by Miss Florrie Hayes as Patty Marfield; Miss Maud M. Powell deserves special mention for a very effective and pathetic impersonation of Dora (the wife of Harry Hood); Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks is a dignified Mrs. Maxwell; and Miss Beatrice M. Hughes achieves success in the child-part of Cecil.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company are this week presenting the pantomime Babes in the Wood. Little Peggy McDonnell and Little Cissy Wyse are delightful in the title-rôles, acting with much grace and singing pleasingly; Miss Dolly Dodds scores a big success as Maid Marian, her vocal efforts meeting with high appreciation; Mr. Jimmie Watson imparts a rare fund of humour to the part of Lucinda, the nurse to the babes; and hardly less successful is Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple. Miss Daisy Wood is a pleasing Robin Hood; and Miss Jenny Hughes exercises a good voice to advantage as the Fairy. The specialities are a strong feature, and are contributed by J. G. Aitken, Harry Leander, Jimmie Watson, Levy and Cardwell's Troupe of international dancers, the Marguerite Quartette, and Peggy McDonnell.

New Picture Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Included in a capital programme here this week are the following films: Drama in the Tyrol, The Jealous Fiancé, The Unlucky Winner, Dancing Girl, For His Child's Sake, Baby's Disappearance, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. Charles Constant is this week presenting his pantomime Aladdin, which has been produced by Mr. Victor Stevens. Good comedians are absolutely essential to a pantomime, and it is in this department that Aladdin can claim to be above the average. Mr. Victor Stevens is a very popular comedian wherever he goes, and in his impersonation of Widow Twankee he keeps the audience in a constant roar of laughter; Mr. Tom J. Morton is exceedingly funny in the part of Abanazar; and the Bros. Hinson, who act as the policemen, are also responsible for much laughter-making. Miss Daisy Lake, of Florodora fame, makes a dashing principal boy, and Miss Dorothy Dempster looks sweet and sings sweetly as the Princess; Mr. Martin Pitts as the Emperor uses an excellent voice to advantage. There is a powerful chorus, and the dresses and scenery are exceedingly pretty.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week, the attraction being Butterflies, which is being staged for the first time in Middlesbrough. The piece is entertaining and amusing. The libretto by W. J. Locke is teeming with wit, and there are several catchy songs. Mr. Blake Adams is well suited to the part of the Colonial broker Yarker, and keeps the house convulsed with laughter; Miss Phyllis Monkman adds in no small measure to the success of the play by her new classical dance, entitled "Danse du Papillon," for which she is loudly applauded; Miss Georgie Corlass is very charming as Rodanthe; and Miss Stella St. Audrie is very vivacious as Nora Podmore. Mr. Richard Green is responsible for a fine performance as Max Riadone, his grand voice being heard to great advantage; Mr. Alfred Selby as Paul, Mr. Ray Sydney as Peter, Miss Constance Clive as Elsie Podmore, and Mr. Louis Bradfield as Widgery Blake also do full justice to their respective rôles.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—A great turn is provided here this week by the Elliott-Savonas, whose musical items and beautiful effects in the scene The Palace of Orpheus fairly brings down the house; J. W. Hall is the cause of much laughter, and the Sisters Selwyn prove themselves excellent dancers; Lieut. Albini presents a mystery, and the Four Avocas give a good operatic scena; Bert Lyton sings well, and Spry and Austin are very amusing.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—The premier turn on the bill here this week is given by Fred Ginnett's sketch Hunting Morn. Another good turn is provided by Emlyn Jones and company in a screaming absurdity, Harmonic Cranks. Texas Hattie gives a good performance on the wire rope; Tiger Lily is a wonderful dancing acrobat; Bi Bo Bi, a clever comedian, and Goggin and Davis are pleasing comedy acrobats. Frank Bertram and company are also very amusing in a comedy sketch, The Chaperon.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. George D. Day's company is this week appearing in The Prodigal Son. Mr. Albert Ward gives a finely-conceived and ably-rendered conception of the character of Oscar Stephensson, and Mr. Alfred Goddard is at once strong, manly, and impressive as Magnus; Miss Pearla Gardner is excellent as the unscrupulous Helga; and Miss Dorrie Roberts is warmly applauded for her fine acting as Flora, and later in the play as the girl Elin. The Margret Neilsen of Miss Maud Locke is an excellent bit of character acting; Ana Magnusson finding a suitable exponent in Miss Florence Lovell. Stephen Magnusson is finely played by Mr. Jackson Hayes; Oscar Neilsen having an equally apt exponent in Mr. David Beattie. Doctor Olsen, the Pastor, the Sheriff, and Neils Finsen find excellent exponents in the persons of Messrs. J. E. Savery, A. J. Williams, R. C. Brooksmith, and J. H. Leigh.

NEATH.—Gwyn Hall.—Lessee, Mr. J. W. Robinson.—Miss Harriet Greet's company in The Sign of the Cross appeared here Friday to Monday. Mr. Leonard Yorke gave a fine performance of Marcus Superbus; Miss Hazel Dent made an excellent Mercia, Miss Edward Clowes an interesting Nero, Mr. G. Osmond Tearle and Mr. Rupert Carlton gave good portrayals of Tigellinus and Licinius; Mr. Donald McAdam ably acquitted himself as Glabrio; Miss Lilian Ward as Poppæa gave a satisfactory representation; Miss Florence Maber was a successful Berenice, and Miss Effie Dane a graceful and pathetic Stephanus.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—The Wakeman Quintette give a musical comedy sketch, and by their brightness and charming vocalism make a decided success; Mr. Charles Clifford plays harps of various sizes beautifully; whilst Dorien and Doritz are responsible for a pantomimical absurdity, The Erratic Hotel. A tabloid comedy, That Girl Carrots, is enacted by Miss Margaret Huntley and company, and causes laughter; the Keppels sing splendidly; and Mr. Frank Solbey's imitations are good. The animated pictures are beyond reproach, the subjects, as is usual here, being chosen with the greatest care.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The successful pantomime Aladdin still continues to draw crowded audiences each evening. In the absence of Miss Lloyd, who is indisposed, the principal boy is being played by Miss Constance Hyem with great success. Happy Fanny Fields, Maud Thorne, Doris Dean, and Florence Hersee still continue to maintain their well-merited popularity, whilst Harry Tate, Malcolm Scott, and Regan and Ryan never fail in their efforts to amuse. The dancing of the Mimosa troupe and the general excellence of the chorus are all factors in this very successful scheme.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The pantomime Humpty Dumpty has now entered on the last week of its run, and has maintained its popularity right to the finish. Undoubtedly the success has been due to the efforts of Messrs. Arthur Prince, Carlton, Shaun Glenville, J. E. Nightingale, Jock Walker, and Misses Ida Rene, Lily Iris, and Rhoda Gordon, who, with the excellent chorus, have fully upheld the traditions of this theatre.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne and company are here this week in the romantic play The Woman Pays. Mr. Phil Harper as Sid Armstrong has a part eminently suited to his style, and gives a most telling and finished performance; Mr. John Davidson is highly effective as the villainous Roger Marchant; Miss Maud Russell imparts power and sympathy to her impersonations of Madge Armstrong; while Miss Kate Blair displays considerable histrionic ability as Nell Morland. The author (Mr. Thorne) has a congenial part in Micky Maloney, being ably aided by Miss Anena Walton as Polly Stokes and Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Treadgold. Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Luke Morland renders valuable assistance in an interesting performance.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—Popular interest in pantomime is not waning in the East End, as was shown by the crowded audience which gathered to witness Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Dick Whittington, which opened here on Monday. Miss Florie Gallimore is very smart as Dick and received a hearty reception. The principal comedy parts are in the safe hands of Mr. H. O. Wills as Idle Jack, Mr. Jimmie Wood, and Mr. Jack Mackenzie.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Among the many clever and interesting turns provided here this week, King and Benson are undoubtedly the chief attraction, and on Monday in a new burlesque Around the Town they absolutely took the house by storm, being recalled again and again. Mr. John F. Preston and his company in the racing episode Rogues of the Turf also prove an attractive item; whilst a most pleasing as well as skilful performance is contributed by the Selbinis in a cycling and acrobatic act which was accorded a hearty reception. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott in a farcical sketch Semi-Detached prove extremely amusing; and other notable items on the bill are Baker and Balfe, xylophone experts; Bert Williams, ventriloquist; George Westland, Scotch comedian; Lily Esplin, character comedienne; Dennis Drew, military scena; and Watson's Royal Fox-Terriers.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—J. C. Piddock and company, in an original musical fantasy, The Capture of Venus, head an excellent bill here; and other artists contributing are Alick Lauder, the Cecillias, Paul Vandy, Hall and Macy, Harry and Paul, Effie White, Dave Carter, and the Woodwards.

Skating Rink, Exhibition Buildings.—Manager, Fred B. Crowe.—A graceful skating competition is announced to take place here this week, and is attracting much attention amongst the crowds of enthusiastic rinkers who daily patronise this popular resort.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Leonard Boyne's company in Raffles commands excellent houses here. Raffles, as played by Mr. Eille Norwood, is delightful; Mr. Arthur Willoughby does well as the Earl of Amersteth; Mr. Cecil Brymer provides a humorous character study of Viscount Crawley; and Mr. E. W. Thomas makes an ideal American detective, Curtis Bedford. Mr. Harold West puts a good deal of feeling into the part of Harry Manders; Mr. Dalziel Heron wins favour as Crawshay; Miss Agnes Knight makes the most of Lady Melrose; Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is a natural Lady Ethel; Miss Lucie Milner's Gwendoline Corwan is sympathetic; and Miss May Brooke's Mrs. Tidal is particularly attractive. A Lesson in Shakespeare precedes.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—One of the best farcical sketches seen on any provincial stage is Kleptomaniacs, in which the principal parts are taken by Miss Bertha Northam and Mr. Fred Edwards. Frank Lynne, the funny mantograph; Jennie Hartley, a dainty soubrette; and Billy Hobbs, coon impersonator and dancer, contribute excellent turns; and these are followed by J. H. Scotland, the possessor of a fine bass voice; the Ten Bedouin Arabs, the Achmed Ibrahim troupe, in a marvellous turn; Rapoli, with sensational juggling; and Chas. Fisher's Pocket Opera Company in Il Trovatore. The Bioscope, showing exceptionally good pictures, completes the bill.

NEWRY.—Town Hall.—Proprietors, the Newry Urban Council.—On Monday night Mr. Charles Harrington's company gave a representation of Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr, in the important part of Uncle Tom, left nothing to be desired; Mr. Charles Harrington as Phineas Fletcher gave a very creditable account of a typical Quaker; Mr. G. R. Thorne as George Harris was very successful; and Mr. John Gibson, Mr. G. Lubimoff, and Mr. Alfred Lafolle filled well the rôles of Wilson (factory owner), Legree (slave owner), and Dan Haley (slave dealer) respectively. Mr. W. Langford provided much merriment as Marks, a lawyer; and the part of Eliza Harris was in the capable hands of Miss Hero Hathaway. Topsy could scarcely have been better played than by Miss Annie Watson; and Miss Doris Brereton was equally successful as Little Eva.

NORMANTON.—Palace.—Proprietors, Dobito and Buxton.—This hall is now in full swing. Crowded houses assembled on Monday night, and a fine show of pictures was thrown on the screen. Variety items were supplied by Dobito and Buxton, vocalists; the Cedries, in a comedy act; and Oela, tramp on the clothes-line.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's répertoire company occupy the boards here this week, opening with The Stolen Birthright, which was warmly greeted by an appreciative audience. As Stefano Mr. Draycott was extremely successful; Mr. George Steel gave a capital denlineation of Prince Apdrea Celsi; and Mr. George Arthur proved a capable Count Marco Tadro. Mr. Wilfred J. Short did justice to the part of Prince Michael Silvan; Mr. Charles H. Herbert was good as Prince Antonio; and Mr. Harry Scatchard was funny as Pedro. Mrs. Draycott gave a fine interpretation of Princess Miranda; Miss Eva Norman made a capital Nita; and Miss Marie Ellis made the most of Fidelia Silvati. East Lynne, The Colleen Bawn, The Sorrows of Satan, and Shadows of a Great City have also been produced during the engagement.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—Heading the bill here is Captain W. V. Simmons-Lynn, in his sleight-of-hand act, which meets with favour; Mr. Tom Lloyd, the favourite comedian, has met with a most cordial reception; and Mr. Martin Henderson, the blind concertina soloist, is as popular as ever. Messrs. Taylor and Bridge, the Lancashire singing mill lads, have made a hit; and Mr. Bert Terrell, Tyrolean vocalist, meets with appreciation. Whizzing the Whirl causes much laughter, and the animated pictures are greatly enjoyed.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Across the Frontier is this week presented by Mr. John Soden's company. Mr. John Soden as Arizona Joe looks and acts the part of the American scout to the life; Mr. H. P. Kennedy as Harry Ashton distinguishes himself; Mr. Terence Nerrey gives a fine rendering of the Indian chief, Yellowhawk; Miss Kate Randolph is a graceful and powerful Flora Ashton; Miss Nora Temple does well as Silver Star; Miss Ada Stellings is taking as Kate Ferras; and Mr. Fred Rose as Mick McBride keeps the audience in good humour, and is well supported by Mr. Alec Taylor as Bob White.

The Pavilion.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—The Camerons appear here with great success; Miss COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—W. H. Hallett and Walter Howard's company occupies the boards here in Her Love Against the World. Mr. Fred Emery in the rôle of Eric makes a manly soldier; Mr. Lewis Gilbert as Prince Ulric acts well as a scheming villain; and the Countess Shula is ably played by Miss Blanche Steele. Miss Gracie Heywood as Princess Iris is most sympathetic; and Miss Rossie St. John as Lionel submits a clever portrayal. Miss Julie de Esco is most capable as Corona; Mr. W. H. Hallett plays the part of Prince Othmar in a clever manner; and Mr. Victor Rowland makes a smart Prince Maurice. Mr. Chas. R. Hann is much appreciated as the plain-spoken General Gessler.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Neil Kenyon is the attraction here in his latest creation, "The Postman of Dunrobin"; a delightful musical turn is provided by Olga and Elgar; the Wartana Trio are clever and neat in their juggling; the Howards are marvellous in mental telepathy; Nell Farrell is a dainty comedienne and dancer; John Lloyd's gondolier glee singers are excellent; Ruhart is amusing in his vaudeville burlesque; and Charles Vincent is a smart comedian.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrock.—Claude Duval, a new romantic story, in three chapters, which tops the bill here, is played by Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company. Mr. A. Max as Claude is excellent. Miss Ray Heyden being most delightful as Lady Doris, and Miss Victoria Douglas is a dainty Polly; Mr. Calver as Lord Leicester makes a dignified nobleman, and Mr. Jack Collinson as Fritz is a clever comedian, Mr. G. Hammond being good as Silas Deadgold. J. G. Grahame, jun., and Zerlina Harrington, in their Parisian episode, A Daughter of Pleasure, are much appreciated; the De Breans present a clever turn with shadowgraphy and juggling; Annie Heath sings and dances pleasingly; Tom Leamore sings smart songs well; Walter King is good as a comedian; and Captain Kettle manipulates coins well; Freedo and Preston sing and dance capably; and the Palace pictures are pleasing.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Miss Agnes Molteno and company again score with their clever scena An Old-time Story; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre is smartly worked; Jock Mills, character comedian, sings good songs; Queenie May is a dainty comedienne; Delafiore plays the xylophone in a masterly manner; and the Brothers Lawrence are capital in their act. All Scotch; Bert Castle is good in light comedy; and Charles Lewis is an excellent ventriloquist. Harry Luck, comedian, and an entertaining picture on the Dottoscope conclude.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lester King.—Excellent business is being done this week with a series of pictures.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr G. T. Lucas.—The latter half of last week Mr. Murray King with his company drew full and highly delighted houses here with Toddles, which decidedly "caught on." Mr. Murray King's droll and imperturbable impersonation of Toddles met with the keenest appreciation, and there was not a dull moment while he was on the stage. Mr. Mattie Cheshire as Boolby, the society entertainer, gave a very clever turn, and was encored for every song he gave; Mr. R. Webb was delightfully fussy and natural as the Mayor; while Gunner, Haslitt, Dr. Baird, Joblyn, and the Valet all found most capable exponents in Messrs. A. Chumley, C. Douglas Cox, J. V. Bryant, A. Linden, and A. Lee. Miss Naomi Neilson filled with natural ease the part of Lady Dover; Miss Evelyn Shelley got plenty of fun out of the part of Mrs. Joblyn; Miss Ada Champion was a capital Countess de Chantry; Miss Mabel Ormonde was excellent as the fascinating widow Mrs. Bowler; and Miss Doris Langdon was an interesting Constance Joblyn.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE. — Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. J. B. Hart is this week presenting Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company here in The Branded Woman. Mr. Cecil A. Olgar gives a very acceptable interpretation of Philip Maurice; Mr. J. W. Boyling is successful as Zarka; and Mr. Clifford Rean does well as Leon. Mr. Frank Hertie infuses plenty of life into the piece as Dick Brown, and is the possessor of a good voice; Mr. Miles Platting is effective as Louis Daroc; Miss Vera Neville is sprightly and entertaining as Jacqueline; Miss F. M. Daly is sympathetic as Marie; and Miss Ethel Tooney gives a powerful rendering of Genevieve Laroche.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Here this week is Mr. Augustine Knight and company in The Assassin. Prince Demetri is admirably interpreted by Mr. Augustine Knight; Mr. John Worth plays well the part of Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Henry C. Ward as Duke Carl is to be commended; Baron Alphonse is capably enacted by Mr. Murray Hathorn; Mr. Wilson Summers as General Nicol is capital; Captain O'Neil is faithfully embodied by Mr. Edwin Jenner; Mr. Harry Liddle submits a humorous portrayal of Peter; and Mr. W. R. Christmas is good as Evangie. Miss Ella Vane plays with ability the part of Countess Wanda; Miss Maude Steeple as Nita acts charmingly; Miss Rosa Webster makes an interesting Connie Jonathan; an excellent Nardine Farina is found in Miss Ada Douglas; and Miss Katie Lever is meritorious in the rôle of Katrina.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's pantomime Mother Goose is the attraction here this week, and the show is full of good things in the way of scenery, dresses, and fun. Miss Maud Prenton makes a vivacious Colin and sings delightfully; a winsome Jill is Miss Lily Palmer; Miss Marjorie Prenton makes a most engaging Phyllis; Mr. Harry Roxbury keeps fun fun well sustained as Mother Goose; the Jack of Mr. J. W. Gallaher is full of eccentricities; Miss Lois Caris makes a sweet Fairy Content; the Demon Discontent is capitally played by Mr. Brian Henry; as Eric and Muggies Mr. George Castrey and Mr. Fred Hutchings perform cleverly; the Lemaires are very funny as the Horse, their antics receiving due appreciation; and Mr. Fred Guinness does admirably as the Goose. The specialities introduced afford the greatest enjoyment, these being contributed by the Royal Welsh Singers, the Four Sydney Girls, dancers, and the Miltons, roller-skating comedians.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—A Woman Worth Winning, as presented by Mr. Percy Norman's company here this week, under the management of Mr. A. B. Mackay, is a play worth seeing, as testified by the splendid houses nightly. Miss Cissie Bellamy as Roma Pauloff, a woman worth winning, gives a capital interpretation; Miss Ida Mackay, as Katerina Kless, is a pleasing and vivacious actress; Miss Trixie Leighton plays the part of Lola Kalnovsky with sympathy; Mr. B. Crosby makes much of his part as Fergus Lovinski; Mr. Gerald Ord comes out strongly as General Borinski; as Ivan Bardoff Mr. A. B. Mackay is exceedingly clever; a store of fun is provided by Mr. Louis Newman as Bertie Scribbles and Mr. Ernest Kendrick as Peter Popples; Mr. Gilbert Standing plays well as Amos Pauloff; and the minor parts are all in capable hands. Trilby is also presented, with Miss Cissie Bellamy in the title-rôle, and Mr. A. B. Mackay as Svengali, with much success.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—On Monday Mr. Louis Elgar's company paid a one-night visit with Jack and the Beanstalk. Miss Isa Bernard made a capital Jack. Miss Rena Rees ably sustaining the part of Phyllis. The specialities included Will Belasco, expert instrumentalist; Charles Presto, illusionist; the Godfrey Girls, acrobatic dancers; Miss Isa Davis, the petite mimic; and Harry May, Welsh comedian.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Substituting the Eight Lancashire Lads and topping the bill are the Les Aribos in a clever and sensational gymnastic act; the Brothers Rees come in for a large share of approbation by their distinctly unique act in their manipulation of cannon balls and shells; the Daunton-Shaw cycling turn is a marvel of skill and dexterity; Marlo contributes some smart juggling tricks; Mamie Fenton gives an excellent performance at the piano; Ida Brophy is a charming soubrette. The Tivoliscope concludes a good programme.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The F. R. Benson Shakespearean (North) company is here this week, and opened on Monday with The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Henry Herbert gave an exceptionally good rendering of Shylock; Mr. James Berry made a capital Antonio; Bassanio was well represented by Mr. Everard Vanderlip; Mr. Cyril Sworder as Gratiano, Mr. Victor Wiltshire as Salanio, and Mr. Chas. Sparrow as Salarino were very good; Mr. Robert Atkins made a princely Prince of Morocco; Mr. A. Fayne amusingly impersonated Launcelot Gobbo; Mr. Charles Trail as Duke of Venice, Mr. Lewis as Lorenzo. Mr. Andrew Leigh as Clerk of the Court, Mr. Bisshopp as Tubal, and Mr. Sam Cohen as Old Gobbo were all good. Portia was admirably portrayed by Miss Gladys Vanderzee; Miss Violet Farebrother made a capital Nerissa; and Miss Jean Graeme a delightful Jessica. Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, Othello, Taming of the Shrew, Twelfth Night, and Richard the Third are also in the répertoire.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Murray King and company in Toddles opened a week's engagement on Monday, and created an excellent impression. The success or failure of the piece greatly depends on the presentation of the vacillating Lord Meadows, and in this part Mr. King is superb, his efforts to avoid his forthcoming marriage being indescribably funny, whilst his song "Nobody" proves him a vocalist of no mean ability; Mr. C. Douglas Cox admirably portrays the overdressed moneylender Haslitt, and, in a quiet way, is very amusing; Mr. Ardene Linden as the corpulent, wealthy parvenu Mr. Joblyn supplies a most original part; Mr. Richard Webb as Le Maire makes an excellent, excitable Parisian; and Mr. Alick Chumby is a capable Freddy Gunner. Miss Evelyn Shelly as Mrs. Joblyn reaps loud applause for her realistic representation of a would-be society-monger; Miss Naomi Neilson as Lady Dover is capital; Miss Mabel Ormonde as the widowed Mrs. Bowler is both graceful and fascinating; and Miss Doris Langdon is an attractive Constance Joblyn, her pas de seul in the second act being very daintily executed. Particular mention must be made of the attractive drawing-room sketch furnished by Mr. Mattie Cheshire as Boolby, which was encored.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Fred Earle, the well-known comedian, is starred for the week, and has a bevy of new songs and patter, but his amusing "Seaweed" song still retains premier position in the popular opinion; Rich Taylor's ventriloquial entertainment is far above the average, and deservedly earns much flattering applause; Tate and Tate introduce plenty of acrobatic skill into an amusing turn; John Bennett and Chas. Martell contribute a sketch entitled Shipwrecked Mariners; and the Emson Girls are fascinating vocalists and dancers. Miss Yolande Noble, burlesque actress, has an attractive presence and captivating style; the Dardinis are jugglery exponents of commendable ability; and Miss Frances Letty, the chorus queen, contributes the remaining number to a very acceptable programme.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—The Four Breens combine comedy with jugglery, and at times the stage appears to be a whirl of clubs manipulated with lightning-like rapidity; Bob Hamilton is a capital Scottish comedian; Will Saunders does not belie his description as eccentric comedian; and Mr. E. Who is E? What is E? has a lot of funny patter illustrated by lantern slides. Eva Haddon sings and dances daintily; the Evalos do some quaint juggling, and the lady is decidedly graceful in a ring act; May Vincent is a gifted songstress; whilst Evelyn Geldard sings with taste and humour to her own piano accompaniment. Charles H. Gould's company present a most amusing sketch showing the humours which may attend the career of an insurance canvasser; Morelli and Moore have diversified accomplishments, and quickly got on good terms with the audience. During the week the management are offering prizes in a local wrestling competition, which is sure to command big houses. The pictures are particularly good.

PONTYCYMMER.—BODIE'S HIPPODROME AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Dr. Walford Bodie; General-Manager, Mr. Tom N. Mills.—The well-known and popular drama The Power of Hate is here this week. Both the tragic and comic element are very well catered for. The drama is well staged throughout. Mr. Tom Raymond as the hero and Miss Edna Clare as the heroine are both distinctly good.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The chief place is occupied by the Three Sisters Sprightly, who make a big hit in their skit entitled Golfing; the Brothers Ford, in concurrent singing act and dancing, deserve special mention; they are enthusiastically received, and are given rounds of applause. Tom Kelso and company are exceptionally smart in their original comedy absurdity, The Silly Servant; a pleasing turn is that given by Boyd and Gilfain in their diverting operetta, Mixed Drinks; La Danseuse, in her dancing scena, Santa Claus, asquits herself creditably; Arthur Holland is an excellent refined character vocalist, and meets with a warm reception; particular interest was manifested in Corbin's Dogs, who gave a really clever performance: they were undoubtedly well trained; Percy Ford and E. C. Webb's company in the thrilling dramatic episode entitled The Spy were accorded an excellent reception for their acting, which undoubtedly pleased all. The Palascope with its fine films concludes.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The visit of the Moody-Manners Opera Company is an event which is always looked forward to by the music-loving residents of Preston, and the very large and representative audience which greeted their opening night on Monday must have been gratifying to artists and management alike. Puccini's opera Madame Butterfly was presented for the first time to a Preston audience on Monday. One cannot speak too highly of Miss Enriqueta Crichton in the title-rôle, which she filled in a most impressive manner, her singing and dancing being equally delightful. Miss M. Dennis is also to be congratulated on her very skilful rendition of the part of Susuki. In the unenviable part of the faithless husband Lieutenant Pinkerton (U.S. Navy) Mr. Charles Carter notably distinguished himself, and his rich voice was heard to much advantage; Mr. Marshall Vincent was extremely able and natural as the U.S. Consul Sharpless; Miss A. Gill as Kate Pinkerton and Mr. R. Brookes as Goro were also very able in their respective rôles; as were indeed all the cast. While this opera does not give very much work for a chorus, what there was was rendered in the manner for which this company has so long been justly celebrated. The largely-augmented orchestra can only be spoken of in terms of the highest praise. The répertoire includes Maritana, Faust, Carmen, The Bohemian Girl, The Daughter of the Regiment, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Tannhäuser. The company numbers eighty, with a full orchestra and corps de ballet, and in addition was augmented in Faust and Tannhäuser by a chorus selected from the Preston Grand Opera Society. Needless to say, the various operas presented have been received with the utmost enthusiasm throughout the week, and crowded houses have prevailed.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff. — The Babes in the Wood pantomime, as presented here this week by Mr. Fred Granville's company, is warranted to cure the worst fit of the blues, and in addition to the book specialities are given by Miss Cissie Paris, Ida Dore, Baby Boden, the Kimberley Boys, Boden and Wilson, and Alf Brooks; whilst the Six Emerald Gems are a talented troupe of dancers. Mr. Norman Hall as the Wicked Uncle is decidedly funny, and in conjunction with the Kimberley Boys as Burgling Bill and Gentle George, the two villains, keep the pot a-boiling with their eccentricities. Mr. A. Brooke is a funny Dame, Araminta Koffkake; and Bert Donnett succeeds as the Page. The Babes, by Violet Wilson and Baby Boden, are cleverly portrayed, and they prove themselves to be a couple of very versatile juveniles and excellent singers and dancers. Miss Cissie Paris is a most imposing Robin Hood with a fine presence and a good voice, and equally successful is Miss Ida Dorrie as Maid Marian. Mr. Arthur Leslie is a capital Friar Tuck; Miss May Cornish looks well as Little John; and Miss Nellie Boden is a vivacious Merry Mavis. As Will Scarlett, Allen-a-Dale, Walter, and Longbow, the Misses Cora Russell, J. Cliffe, D. Ainsley, and Eva Norman are very capable. Mention must be made of the singing of Mr. H. V. Morgan, who possesses a very fine voice, and adds much to the success in the part of Aconita. The chorus is a good one, and one and all play with a zest which makes the pantomime go with a regular swing from start to finish.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—The pantomime Cinderella, as produced by the Tally-Ho Trio and Sidney Cooper, is proving a great success here this week, and included in the cast are such popular speciality turns as Diamond and Beatrice, who give a most finished musical turn, Newham and Latimar, Sisters Florence, the Four Lancashire Roses, and the Tally-Ho Trio. Needless to say, such turns add greatly to the success of the pantomime, which is dressed and staged in first-class style, and leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Madge Daly as Prince Charming is, as her name implies, decidedly charming, and a great success; Miss Jessica Brooke, the talented young Australian actress, is an exceedingly winsome Cinderella; Miss May Maddison, the Ragtime Girl, is admirably suited as Dandini; while the Sisters Florence are admirable in their respective parts of Lord Veriwise and Cherry Blossom. Miss Ida Scott as the Fairy Godmother carries out her fairy duties in a very pleasing manner; Newnham and Latimar cause roars of laughter and are quite in their element as the Ugly Sisters; Mr. Harry C. Momber is also very funny as the Baron's Page; Mr. Gus Drake as Lord Verisoft, and Miss Violet Harris and Miss May Cameron as the Earl of Hulme and Lord Rusholme, are good in their respective parts. The Tally-Ho Trio (Messrs. Eric Farr, Wm. Dourt, Erne Chester) as Baron Doonaught, Graham, and Ceesam are excellent, their trios and harmonising being executed in a manner worthy of all praise, and are a decided innovation in pantomime, while the humour is well sustained. The chorus is most commendable, and the whole production reflects much credit on the producers, who are to be congratulated.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas Boothman.—Mr. Walter Melville's piece The Soldier's Wedding is being played this week. The hero of the story has a competent impersonator in Mr. W. Lawrence, and Miss Dorothy Richardson is an acceptable heroine; Mr. G. Jordon acts very effectively as Charles Courtney, the villain; Miss M. Macauly has a well-drawn character to take in Julie de Beauvrias, and rises to the occasion; Messrs. F. Biron and B. Whitcomb also do well; and humorous parts are capitally taken by Miss Everett and Mr. J. Chippendale.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—Twice nightly during the past week attractive programmes have been put on at the Royal Palace Theatre under the superintendence of Mr. Ernest Mansell, the enterprising lessee. The films exhibited in the series of Graphic Life-Motion pictures are thoroughly up to date, many being of a most ingenious character or humorous interest. Variety has been afforded by the clever vocal contributions of Mr. James Avon, the well-known comedian of the Bohemians.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. John Tiller's excellent pantomime company is here with Red Riding Hood. The songs, dances, scenery, and dresses are all charming. Miss Eva Colton is an admirable Red Riding Hood, and Miss Louie Davies is a charming Margery Daw, whilst Miss Florrie Page is excellent as Fairy Goodwill; and Miss Nancy Hearne a delightful and dashing Prince Charming. As Baron Fitz Mr. Fred Russell is most successful, and Mr. Howard Ward makes a thoroughly capable Dame Crump. As Johnny Stout and Johnny Green Messrs. Will Lytton's and Walter Watson's comicalities create much laughter; and Mr. Dave Laird is good as the Wolf Redfangs. There is plenty of fun in the piece and many dances, all enjoyable, especially those by the Poppy Quartette and the Merry Dutch Boys and Girls. A big hit is the turn of the Mystic Hussars, and the Excelsior troupe of children are also most entertaining. The music all through is bright and sparkling.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's London company is appearing this week in Mr. W. Somerset Maugham's highly-successful play Mrs. Dot. Miss Nancy Beresford makes a most bewitching and vivacious Mrs. Dot; Mr. Hugh Kennedy is a good exponent of the part of Gerald Halstane; Mr. Frank Lacy makes a great success as the cynical millionaire, Jimmy Blenkinsop; Mr. Charles A. Staite is very amusing as the unsophisticated and suceptible Freddie Perkins; Miss Emma Hutchison receives a warm reception, and acts most characteristically as the match-making dowager, Lady Sellenger; Miss Ethel Grahame gives a very natural rendering of the part of Nellie Sellenger; Miss Sybil Brooke is a prim and discreet Maiden Aunt; Mr. W. Midgham is an excellent Valet. The comedy is preceded by Her Dearest Foe, in which Mr. Hugh Kennedy, Miss Sybil Brooke, and Miss Ethel Grahame appear to advantage. A special matinée was given on Wednesday.

THE PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr. G. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco. —Amy Elvira is successful as a burlesque artist; the Two Missouris create much amusement in a comedy acrobatic act; Fred Villiers, society comedian, is well received; the Haydns, comediennes and dancers, provide an attractive turn; Laffen B. Jolly justifies his nomenclature by his clever laughing and sneezing songs; Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dene appear in a very smart sketch, entitled My Lady's Chamber; Farr and Farland give a very droll and humorous duologue turn, and conclude their show with a brilliant performance of the "Poet and Peasant" overture on two banjoes; R. V. Webb's quick-change scena is highly effective, some very novel and surprising mechanical changes are made in a wonderfully short space of time, the electric effects being very brilliant and pleasing. The four artists also give a clever and varied musical performance. The Bioscope pictures include a representation of the Royal Procession at the Opening of Parliament.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Dairymaids affords a most welcome attraction here this week. Several new songs and new features have been introduced since the play was last here. Mr. Johnny Osborne appears as Joe Mivens, and keeps the audience in roars of laughter with his bright and sparkling humour; Mr. Nelson Keys as Lieut. Sam Brudenell, R.N., is capitally placed, his disguise as the schoolgirl is admirably done, and met with hearty appreciation. Mr. Perce Marshall portrays with success the part of Dr. Byrne; and Mr. J. H. Willis makes the most of Lieut. Frank Meredith, R.N. Miss Carrie Lacey skilfully enacted the dignified, yet susceptible, Lady Brudenell; Miss Vera Crichton as Winifred scored heavily with her songs; Miss Lucy Edwin was admirable as the frigid Miss Pyechase; Miss Gladys Silvani delighted the audience with a clever conception of Eliza; and Miss Emsie Bowman captivated all hearts with a charming embodiment of Peggy.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Bensons, in their vocal and musical comedy act, The Page and the Maid, contribute both amusing and cleverly-rendered vocal numbers; Kartelli submitted a daring and marvellous balancing act on the slack wire; the Sisters Herbert are pleasing duettists and dancers; Day and Knight were heard to advantage in a musical episode, "What might have been"; and Cliff Rock scored a success as a baritone vocalist. Arthur Stacey, comedian and dancer, Jim Cheetham, whistler and mimic, Forest and King, acrobatic dancers, and the Empire Bioscope Pictures complete an attractive programme.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—The illusions and tricks presented by Roland and Miss Marjorie Russell are a source of great mystery to the audiences here this week; Davis and Gledhill introduce an ingenious machine for bicycle racing, interesting competitions for prizes taking place at each performance; Rex Vox is a clever performer on the wire; Joe Feichen and his dogs give a capital display of animal training; other turns are submitted by Beatrice Allan, comedienne; Alix Lukos, in "The Language of History"; Fred Ellis, comedian; Jennie Alexandra, child comedienne; and the Hippodrome Pictures.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy. — Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company are this week presenting that realistic military drama The Prince and the Beggar Maid to record houses. Mr. Ernest Cox gives a finished portrayal of Prince Olaf; and Mr. Alfred Brandon is seen to advantage as Prince Hildred. Prince Michael is capably enacted by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; and Mr. H. Burton is deserving of mention as Nathan. Mr. R. Noble is a great success as Captain Hector; and Mr. J. H. Vyvyan is very smart as Lieut. Karl Stromberg. Mr. Kenneth Black is seen to advantage as Bishop of Illyria; and Mr. W. S. Hardy scores as Colonel Wellenberg. Miss Jessica Black is clever as Viola; and Miss Gertrude Branscombe gives a pleasing rendition of Camiola, the title-rôle. Miss Ethel Bracewell delights the house in the difficult part of Princess Monica. The mounting and scenery are also deserving of mention.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Pantomime is again filling the bill at this house, Mr. Jack Haddon's company presenting The Babes in the Wood. Miss Millie Engler is very smart as Robin Hood, her songs being deservedly applauded; and Miss Winnie Usher is a sprightly Little John. Baron Skeemalot is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles May; and Mr. Harry Elliston is most amusing as Euphemia Gadabout. Messrs. August and September as Noby Tyke and Soppy Sam are old local favourites, and make many new friends by their whimsicalities; Miss Dorma Morgan is very pleasing as Maid Marian; and Miss Carrie Parry as Sweet Innocence sings with effect. The Kentucky Trio, as May, Kate, and Minnie, are a clever troupe of sand-dancers; and Miss Maude St. John is deserving of mention as Margery May. A sensational turn is introduced by Menotti, who skates and cycles on a quickly-moving wire about 8ft. above the stage, the climax being reached when the revolving wheels are electrically illuminated. The groupings are highly effective, and the musical numbers very catchy.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's drama, A Warning to Women, is on a return visit to this theatre, and being well received by good audiences. Dr. Marcus Dread is forcibly played by Mr. Harry C. Robinson; Mr. Edward Warden makes a manly Shaun; Mr. C. O'Connor carefully portrays Fergus McNaughton; Lord Eversleigh is well presented by Mr. Leicester Jackson; Moira Kennion is skilfully sustained by Miss Blanche St. Albans; Miss Gertrude Vickers is a charming Sheila; Mr. Oscar Power as Mike McQuade does well; Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Kennion, Mr. W. Pallister Acock as Ferdinand, Miss Edith Rutland as Myles O'Moore, Miss Ellen Beverley as Molly O'Moore, Miss Marie Ramuz as Hildred, are all equally successful, and the remaining parts are in good hands.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—As usual, an excellent programme is presented this week, and finds full houses twice nightly. Albert Toft's living statuary, entitled "Makers of History," with Mr. C. Lillford Delph as lecturer, makes a great hit; Ross and Grayson, in music, singing, and dancing mélange, get much applause; wonderful acrobatic feats are performed by the Faludy troupe; the Dancing Gilberts are well received. The other turns include George Hull, whistling comedian, the Society Quartette of singers and speciality dancers, W. H. Scott, coon comedian and dancer, and the Sages, comedy artists.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Her Secret Lover, by Mrs. F. K. Kimberley (which was produced at Wolverhampton last week), was enthusiastically received here by a full house on Monday. It is well written, and full of amusing and exciting incidents, which keep the audience on tiptoe of expectation right through to the last moment. Mr. Thompson Carruthers' company work very well togehter. Miss Mabel Mannering adds to her reputation by her clever acting of Ivy Seymour; Gilbert Seymour, the sorely-tried husband, is carefully played by Mr. Cecil Grey; Mr. Arthur Preston gives an excellent study of Captain Rose, a noble friend of Seymour; Mr. Millar Anderson as John Strange, a thorough villain, is very successful; Miss Amy Ellam also does well as Alicia Royale, an unscrupulous woman; Mr. Milner Noble as the worldly father, Mr. Murfield, makes the most of his opportunities; Miss Beatrice Reynolds as Jane Maria, Mr. Cecil de Lee as Bill Burley, and Mr. Fred George as Jim Jones, contribute much to the laughter of the audience. The scenery and staging are very good.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—Full houses appear delighted with the Regent new animated pictures, including The Wise Man's Ring, Follow Me and I'll Pay for a Dinner, The Bridge of Sighs, The Shepherdess, Wild Man from Borneo, Evil Spirit of the Boarding School, Football Match, &c., and the illustrated song, "Somewhere the sun is shining," by Mr. Tom Sherlock.

NEW CENTRAL HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Whiteley and Weiker; Manager, Mr. Fred Sharp.—The World in Motion pictures continue to draw full houses, and among the films shown this week are For Daddy's Sake, The Animated Newspaper, Baby's Friend, Over the Sticks, His Wife's Birthday, Spinks and Stoops, The Tramp's £1,000 Note, &c.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The leading item here is the Pichel Troupe of acrobats, who perform some exceptionally clever feats; Joe Dale, comedian, is well received; and Florrie Conolly is a pleasing Irish songstress. Coverdale and Huxley's juvenile troupe present a most interesting turn, their singing and dancing being excelent; Don and Mabel Keir are very successful in their Scotish vocal scena, Sandy's Return; Tiny Arnold is highly appreciated; and Gene Selby is a smart dancer and bone solist.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Jenny Johns heads the bill here, and is very popular; Harry Nelson is a first-rate comedian; and Renee Grahame appears with success. A fine turn is submitted by Phinias and Aida on the revolving pedestal; Jack Ramsay appears in a Scotch song; and Bert Bowden also appears. The rest of the programme is sustained by Milton Ray's company, in two sketches, The Puzzled Coroner and Hittem. Some good pictures are shown on the Kinematograph.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL. —Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and his Shakespearean company are paying a welcome return visit here this week. On Monday The Merchant of Venice was staged, and portrayed in a manner worthy of the traditions of this famous combination. Mr. Wilkie's conception of Shylock brought forth the warmest encomiums of the large audience; Mr. Alexander Marsh as Bassanio utilised his admirable voice and histrionic ability with telling effect; Antonio was finely conceived by Mr. John Paley; Mr. Frank Royde as Gratiano pleased immensely, and as the lover, Lorenzo, Mr. Ernest Diggs won hearty approval. Mr. Ian Fleming ably delineated the humour of Lancelot; Miss Haidee Gunn was a captivating Portia, and in the trial scene was heartily applauded; Miss Hunter Watts submitted an artistic portrayal of Jessica; Nerissa was pleasingly played by Miss Agnes Gagan, and as Stephano Miss Alice Meller won praise. The week's répertoire embraced in addition Othello, Romeo and Juliet, Corsican Brothers, The Sleigh Bells, and Davy Garrick, and The Two Orphans of Paris.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Dollar Princess was presented to an enthusiastic audience here on Monday. The mention of such popular and genuine artists as Miss Hilda Moody, Mr. Robert Michaelis, Mr. W. Warde, Mr. Fred Winn, and Miss Kitty Gordon, who appear respectively as Alice, the oil-king's daughter, Fred Fairfax, McGregor, the millionaire, and Princess Olga, is sufficient to prove what musicianly skill, feminine charm and comedy talent distinguish the interpretation of the leading parts. Recalls and encores were frequent on Monday, and the following performers were also included in the spontaneous ovation which followed the magnificent finale of the second act: Miss Alice Moffatt, Miss Kathleen Owen, Miss Mabel Duncan, Miss Doris Dewar, Mr. Robert St. George, Mr. H. Cridland, and Mr. Harry Parker.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey. Aldred.—Mr. John Hart's successful annual finishes its run of eight weeks to-night.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Women and Wine is again being played here to large audiences, by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. Vivian Edmond's company, which includes Mr. C. St. Elmo, the handsome and bewitching Marcel Rigadout; Miss Violet Lewis, the pretty and naive Mary Andrews; Miss Octavia de Noel, a graceful and fierce La Colombe; Miss Ethel Vinroy, the comely young widow, Janet Marlow; Mr. J. J. Milne-Taylor, the pathetic representative of Hugh Seymour; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds as Dick Seymour; Mr. Edwin Kisby as Caliban; Mr. Foulis as Alphonse Beaudet; and the agile and graceful ladies of the Lottie Stone ballet troupe, who are cordially applauded in the Bal Masque scene. The piece is splendidly staged.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A good company this week is headed by that talented and original trio, Servais Le Roy, Mlle. Talma, "the Queen of Coins," and Bosco, a genial humorist, who are appearing with great success in their marvellous and bewitching entertainment of "mirth, magic, and mystery." Other clever performers who are stamped with the hall-mark of popular approval are the Sisters Dorrell, duettists and dancers; the New Macs, comics; Miss Maud Rochez and her well-trained monkeys, in a unique act, "The Monkey's Variety Theatre"; Mr. Stratton Mills and company, in a humorous trifle; Mr. Harry Leybourne, vocal comedian and lady imitator; Miss Ida Kathrena, a pleasing artist; Mr. E. Sheldon, black and white entertainer; Terry and Lambert, the amusing Transatlantic duettists, who appear in a smart and cleverly conceived characteristic comedy sketch; and the American Bioscope, with artistic new films.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne. — Mr. Arthur Roberts, alert, debonair, and full of humour, tops the bill here, in the laughable sketch, Till Sunday, in which he is ably supported by Miss Ruby Celeste and other capable artists. Vasco, the "mad musician," plays div all hearts by her fine performance; Miss Beatrice Hodson is successful as Lady Gwendolen; and Miss Vita Spencer wins golden opinions as Lady Goldbury, the comedy element being safe in her hands and those of Mr. Edward Lewis, who plays James Hogg on mirth-provoking lines. Other who score are Mr. E. Vassall Vaughan (Sir Dorian), Mr. C. F. Collings (Noel Ferrars), and Mr. Frederick Anner ley (Mr. Morris).

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—An old-time favourite here is Leonard Barry and his company, who are appearing in a capital skit, entitled From Unemployed to Millionaire, which finds great favour with the audience. H. C. Lovell and company creat hearty laughter with Mamselle Pom-Pom, a charming musical comedietta; the Ando Troupe of Japs give a sensational performance; Gordon Stretton, a coloured vocalist, sings and dances remarkably well; and others who entertain are Gladys Witton, contralto; Les Elgonas, acrobats; Royal Czar Troupe of Russian singers and dancers; and the Sisters St. Julian, duettists.

Hippodrome.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—One of the most popular sketches on the road is Three of a Kind, and its presentation this week by Ethel Arden and Geo Abel is as successful as ever; the Pasquali Bros. are wonderful equilibrists; Fred Terry sings some capital new songs; Randolph King submits a well-liked turn; and others who contribute are Natalia and Diana, aerial gymnasts; Ada Fawn, burlesque actress; the Six Albyns, in a comedy sketch, The Squire's Hunting Party; and Jas. Basnett, vocal comedian.

SOUTHEND - ON - SEA.—Pier Pavilion.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—A musical treat was given on Monday evening to a most representative audience by the famous Hambourg trio, whose special engagement was largely attended and vociferously received, each item giving such evident pleasure to merit the heartiest of encores. The violin solos by Jan Hambourg were rendered with his accustomed cleverness, the 'cello solos by Boris Hambourg created equally favourable comment through his skilful manipulations, and the pianoforte solos by Mark Hambourg were given in a remarkable and admirable style. The programme also had assistance from Miss Sara Silvers, who was heard to great advantage in a series of enjoyable songs, while Miss Daisy Bucktrout was an able accompanist.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. H. V. Neilson's capable company, including Miss Amy Sangster, opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday in Ibsen's great play A Doll's House, which attracted a large and appreciative audience on the opening night. Miss Amy Sangster showed a thorough grasp of the rôle of Nora Helmer, which she depicted in a clever, artistic manner, and displayed uncommon versatility in the varying emotional and gay phases of the character, which elicited unstinted applause; Mr. Harold V. Neilson's interpretation of Nils Krogstad was an admirable representation, which was enacted with realistic effect, and with a fine appreciation of the Ibsen characteristics; Mrs. Linden had a very able and successful representative in Miss Vera Leslie; Mr. Henry Doughty submits a highly commendable impersonation of Torvald Helmer; whilst Mr. Orlando Barnett acceptably represented Doctor Rank; the minor characters in the play being well cast. On the last three days of the week Mr. Seymour Hicks's principal company, including Miss Maie Ash and Mr. Stanley Brett, presented the musical comedy The Gay Gordons.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Enthusiastic houses welcome J. A. Campbell's company with The Old Folks at Home. Mr. Horace E. Herbert stands out prominently as Andrew Ross, acting with admirable discernment; Mr. T. G. Vane characteristically handles Hugh Lovell; and the villainous Lord Kenilworth is well placed in the hands of Mr. Frank Liston. Among the ladies, Miss Kate Froude contributes a powerful portrayal of the adventuress, Patricia; and Miss Maud Warburton shows grace and sympathy as Dorothy Robin.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The chief item is Bellew and Stocks' company, in a racing sketch, entitled An Outside Chance, in which Master Edward Garratt, the wonderful boy actor, appears with success; Lily Burnand, the favourite comedienne, has a good reception; Leslie, Lyn, and Willie, three funny fellows, cause much merriment, and their singing is good; Doraswami, the Indian Kubelik, created an impression by his violin playing; Tom Child sings his songs sweetly; the Three Dixons are good bâton swingers, banjoists, dancers, &c; Neville Delmar, comedian and whistler, and the Bioscope, completes a good bill.

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Johnson.—Pantomime is again with us this week here, and Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale's Aladdin is drawing good houses. It is a bright production and well staged. Miss Edna Latonne as Aladdin charms everyone with her vivacity, and her singing of the popular songs is greatly appreciated; the part of the Princess is taken by Miss Luna Lisle, who also scores a success; the Sisters Brenton as Poeke and Caramel excel in dancing, for which they gain much applause; Clifton Hall as the Emperor makes his mark with some good songs; and Miss Cecily Darnton as the Geni of the Ring and Miss Gladys Darnton as the Slave of the Lamp sing splendidly together. Plenty of fun is supplied by Walter Bishop (Abanazar), Frank Vant (Gin Sling), Percy Curry (Widow Twankey), and Rex and Ford (the Bailiffs). They work capitally together, and make things go with a satisfactory swing. The chorus is composed of pretty girls with sweet voices, and the ballets arranged by Mrs. E. C. Jazon are a special treat. The dresses are magnificent.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—This week sees the return visit of many old favourites. Fred Land is greeted with much laughter and applause, and his efforts to please are quite successful. John Grun Marx shows marvellous strength, lifting tremendous weights; Leoni Dixon is a dainty little lady, and sings and dances well; Irve Hayman and company touch a pathetic chord with their episode, The Burglar's Christmas Eve; and Johnny Dwyer again scores. Les Marbas are both wonderfully agile; Julian Rose gives a good song; and Boden and Bell are smart juveniles.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Sexton Blake, with its many exciting incidents, is paying a first visit here this week and attracting large audiences. Mr. Jack Fortescue acts the part of the great detective Sexton Blake with skill and ability; Mr. Stanley Crump displays merit as Tinker; Mr. Russell Barry's acting is realistic and impressive as Roger Blackburn; Mr. R. Heaton Grey makes a capital Randolph Lovell; Miss Pauline Straus charmingly acts the character of Marjorie Lovell; and Euphemia Pattacake has a capable exponent in Miss Lilla Norden.

Empire.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—An interesting playlet, with an exciting water scene, entitled Blackmail, forms the chief attraction here, and is capably presented by Henry Hearne and company, which includes Miss Ida Millais. Others adding to a capital entertainment are the Garganis, comic acrobats, who are genuinely clever and amusing; Joe Cookson, in his novel and pleasing ventriloquial entertainment; Kydd and Kydd, mirth-provoking comedians and patterers; the Three Comedy Chanters, harmonising vocalists of merit; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wildes, entertaining shadowgraphy; Iris Banfield, comedienne; and Drum and Major, a successful comedy couple.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — Castle Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in The Bondman, is here this week. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin plays the difficult rôle of Jason with great skill; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is excellent as Michael Sunlocks; Mr. W. H. Rotheram supplys a graphic sketch of the clerical outcast, Father Ferrati; Mr. Oswald Lingard does well as Adam Fairbrother; Mr. Wilfrid Beckwith plays the part of Governor Testa in rare style; Mr. Fred J. Waller acts the rôle of the scheming Dr. Boni with great ability; as Greeba Miss Georgina Wynter gave an excellent impersonation; Miss Madge Lanerton is a natural Mrs. Fairbrother; Miss Emilie Mayhew as Christian Ann and Miss Lilian Mayne as the Housekeeper do well. The mounting is good.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Vonetta, queen of illusionists and lightning Protean actress, is the leading turn here this week, and is warmly received; Abel and Welsh, eccentric comedians, are very clever, and cause much merriment; Thomas and Taylor, in a comedy quick change act, Fun on the Midland, are very clever and entertaining; Chas. Santon, double-voiced vocalist, gains loud applause; Garna is a clever gymnast; Florence Carlow, comedienne, pleases; Nellie Howitt and Elsie May, instrumentalists and club manipulators, are much appreciated. The Bioscope concludes with A Fisherman's Hate and Ma-in-Law Beats Record.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company presents here this week, A Royal Revenge. Mr. F. S. Strickland as the King of Spain acts well; Mr. Ernest Wingfield gives an admirable representation of the part of Pedro de Castro; Mr. H. Hesselgrave does well as Friar Dominic; Miss Lilian Beaumont makes a charming Cosa Casilda; and Miss Lina Nazeby gave a capital portrayal of Angela. Payne's Bio-photoscope is still very popular.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—The management are presenting Messrs. Holland and Wood's company in The Forty Thieves. The lyrics are written in an up-to-date way by William Holland, and bright and pleasing music has been arranged and composed by Caffyn Baxter, who conducts in an able manner. The scenery is picturesque, and the dresses are artistic and pretty. The Sisters Tree as the Captain and Lieutenants of the thieves play their parts in a dashing and effective style, and their dancing and singing are much applauded. Their costumes are most tastefully thought out. Chris le Brunn is one of the smartest animal impersonators we have seen, and creates roars of laughter by his antics as Ali Baba's donkey. The parts of Cassim and his wife Cogia are ably filled by Walter Bosco and Robb Wilton; Cecilia Gold as Morgiana the slave is most graceful and submissive, and sings and dances in a very charming manner. Bob Salvidge is very funny as Ali Baba. Other rôles are most ably filled by their exponents, but they cannot, of course, do full justice to their parts in the short time available.

STOURBRIDGE. — Alhambra Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps; Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. F. C. Leighton's No. 1 company was here for the first three nights this week, with The Golden Ladder. Mr. Harry Cullenford, in the part of the Rev. Frank Thornhill, acts with great taste and expression; Miss Violet Ennis-Lawson as Lillian Grant showed histrionic ability; Mr. F. C. Leighton made a first-rate Michael Severn; Mr. E. W. Cudd as Samuel Peckaby threw just the right amount of humour and gusto into the rôle; Miss Dorothy Tullyhole as Victoria Alexandra Peckaby was capital; Miss Lily Fuller as Lily Thornhill played a difficult part with much aplomb; Miss Maud Leslie Cudd was natural as Mrs. Peckaby; Mr. Robert Pittard as Jim Dixon deserved praise; Miss Dora Lewis had a difficult part as Prisoner No. 2, but carried the audience with her; Miss Pamela Hodson played Mrs. Dixon in a very capable and dignified manner; Mr. R. D. Cooper as M. Peranza was a typical foreigner; Mr. E. Payne Megre as Rev. W. Stanley was a thorough parson; and the other characters were equally well filled.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford.—The Christian is being presented at this theatre this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Judging from the crowded houses each night, it is evident that the new version is being appreciated equally as well as the original. As the Hon. John Storm, Mr. Henry Renouf worked with whole-hearted fervour throughout, and his passages with Glory were marked with passionate feeling; Mr. Oswald Martin may be deservedly complimented upon his talented acting as Horatio Drake; Mr. George R. Montford gave a faithful and praiseworthy rendering of the part of Lord Robert Ure; Mr. Edwin Ling made a sympathetic and capable Father Lamplugh; Mr. C. T. Turpin as Archdeacon Wealthy made a typical high ecclesiastic; Mr. E. R. Holloway as Lord Storm merited encomiums; and other male parts were capably portrayed. Miss Doris Gilham's interpretation of the all-important rôle of Glory Quayle had the merit of originality, and in the impressive passages with John Storm her acting was meritorious; Miss Sinna St. Clare as Mrs. Callender was faithful and commendable; Miss Margaret Brodie as Polly Love won the sympathies of her audience; Miss May Dudley took the part of Black Meg in a most satisfactory manner; Miss Mima Renouf in the part of Mother Kent was deserving of a meed of praise. There are many other rôles, all of which are capitally filled. The play is splendidly mounted.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, in The Love of a Princess, are playing here this week to full houses. Miss Masie Hanbury gave a splendid protrayal of Princess Idalia; Miss Olive Lloyd as Lady Irene Ramona was the recipient of warm praise; her brother, Prince Conrad had a capital delineator in Mr. Wilson Coleman, who played the part to perfection; his friend, Lieut. Orlans, was capitally done by Mr. Beckett Bould; Mr. Douglas B. Watson showed much skill in his rendering of Lieut. Zaroff; the villainous characters, Josef, King of Ilarnio, Count Nicholas Danilo, and Duke Scarfe, gave ample scope for the abilities of Messrs. E. H. Dobell, Ernest E. Imeson, and Francis Serle, who acquitted themselves admirably. Miss Nellie Graham (Constantia), and Messrs. Graham Winsford (Prince Regent of Narava) and Edgar Morgan (Boris) are also deserving of special mention.

Empire Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—O Hana San and company are presenting a beautiful Japanese scena, comprising charming dances, magnificent panoramic views, and some wonderful decorative effects; Campbell and Barber gave a clever and amusing acrobatic cycling turn, in which the audience showed keen delight; Lydia and Amelys gave an attractive French dancing act, including the popular Apache dance; the musical turn of George Young, a local blind musician, was much appreciated; Dick Tubb is an exceptionally smart eccentric comedian, and won much applause for "Coke for the fire"; Florence Smithers, supported by Owen Dacroy and company, presented a particularly humorous sketch, entitled Our Mary Jane, in capital style; the Grosvenors are a trio of charming singers; Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo piccaninnies gave an attractive turn.

Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Foulkes Edwards.—A capital programme of pictures is on view this week. Specially noticeable is Beautiful Algeria, a very fine film. Harry Lauder, in a singing film picture, also had a good reception. Mr. George Young, a blind musician, also gave a popular turn.

Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry W. Phillips; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Reece.—The programme of pictures submitted here this week is having appreciative audiences. The Suffragette's Dream is a capital film, and created much amusement; Niagara Falls in Winter also gave some pretty effects. Other good pictures were The Chauffeur and the Cab-women, The Festival for an Old Comrade, and The Mohawk's Ring. Mr. McDermot, who was for some time assistant-manager for the King's Theatre, is here this week, for the purpose of taking over the management next week.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company is here in The Hypocrites. The Rev. Edgar Linnell is played in an exceptionally able manner by Mr. Laurence Leyton; Miss Violet Marley wins sympathy and applause for her careful delineation of Rachel; and Miss Muriel Mason as Helen acts with considerable grace. Mr. S. Denny's Leonard Wilmore is another fine study, and the blustering Mr. Wilmore is ably portrayed by Mr. F. Moreland. Miss Grace Murielle as Mrs. Wilmore is at all times good.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company give a thrilling performance of The Power of the King. Mr. Travis Green has a great conception of his rôle as Oscar, the sailor prince, and Mr. Gerald Blake as Captain Landgrave has a strong part, which he fills well. As Lady Anastasia Miss Zana St. George is seen to advantage; as is also Miss Frances George as Lady Florinda.

The Empire, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon. — Daly Cooper, Mabel Lait, and company, in a musical sketch, Passing the Time, are entertaining; Leipzig, the royal conjuror, gives a really astounding exhibition; and Haley's Garden of Girls sings and dance delightfully. The Airship gives the McConnell Trio opportunity to supply humour; and Tom Moore, character comedian, distinguishes himself. Clive and Clarke, black and white comedy artists, dance excellently; Elly Adair sings and dances artistically; Mr. Arthur Aldridge's songs are good; and the Bioscope concludes.

The Palace.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Another excellent gallery of Bioscope is shown here this week, the chief pictures being A Trainer's Vengeance, The Coastguard's Son, and Saved by a Dream. Instrumental and vocal items are excellently given by Miss Lilian Therese, Miss Burt, and Mr. W. Thomas.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Hardie and Von Leer's company, in Two Little Vagabonds, is appearing here. All the characters are in capable hands, and the mounting is good.

Mechanics' Institution.—Secretary, Mr. H. J. Southwell.—The Institute Amateur Theatrical Society opened here on Tuesday for five nights in Patience.

TON-Y-PANDY. — Theatre Royal. — General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company is this week presenting I Defy the World in a highly creditable manner. Leon Darville is admirably portrayed by Mr. F. B. Woulfe, while Mr. M. Coutts is a capable exponent of Count de Beaulieu; General Delaporte is safely entrusted to Mr. A. Denning; as Laroche Mr. C. Conway does well; Mr. C. M. Julian is at home as Samuel Wozzle; Blanche Darville is well represented by Miss Florence Delmar; and Miss E. Loraine wins much sympathy as Pauline Delaporte.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager and Lessee, Mr. Will Stone.—The Cinephone forms the biggest feature here; the Betsons do well as comedy cyclists; T. E. Johnstone scores heavily, as does Arthur Leslie; Frank Dunlop is a clever comedian. The chief film depicts the Tottenham Terrorist Tragedy.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—The Torquay Amateur Operatic Society is occupying the boards here this week in Gilbert and Cellier's comic opera The Mountebanks, which is being produced under the stage-direction of Mr. Edwin Bryan, late of the Savoy Theatre.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Opera House.—Lessee, Welton Dale; Manager, C. Hoskins.—Cinderella, from the Grand Theatre, Fulham, is having a most successful week's season here, and all the principals are having a great reception. Miss Nora Wadeley in the title-rôle, Miss Agnes Tandy as the Prince, Mr. F. French as the Baron, Mr. Ted Young as the Baroness, Mr. A. White as Capers, the Misses Alice Inman and Emily Stevens as the ugly daughters; Mr. Leslie Harris as Dandini, and Miss Mabel Rose as the Fairy Godmother, together with the Lottie Stone troupe of dancers, are all proving prime favourites.

TYLDESLEY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Harry Starr and company in Otto the Outcast were well received here on Monday evening. In the title-rôle Mr. Harry Starr gave a skilful and artistic performance; Lara, a flower girl, has a charming representative in Miss Kate Norris; Miss Madge Blundell was convincing as Corinne Jarbeau; and Miss Effie Macintosh a pleasing Sasette. Roderique D'Estalier has a clever exponent in Mr. Will Hee; Mr. Alvin Sawyer in the part of Daddy Bruneau created a good impression; Mr. Edwin Firth was an effective Marquis de Laporte. The minor parts were in good hands. For the last three nights of the week Carl the Clockmaker was billed.

WAKEFIELD. — Opera House. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Miss Edith St. Clair's pantomime Aladdin is here this week. Miss St. Clair makes a sprightly Aladdin; Miss Lily Londale is charming as the Princess, and earns deserved applause with her fine vocalism; Mr. Ernie Myers as Abanazar is very funny, and keeps the house in endless laughter by his quaint portrayal; Mr. Fred W. Graham makes a good Widow Twankey; the Sisters Brand as second boy and girl dance well; Mr. Frank A. Wood is imposing as the Emperor; and Mr. George Parry is admirable as the Vizier. Miss Ethel Lonsdale is pleasing as the Fairy; the Brothers Brooks are very amusing and droll as the Policemen; the Canton Girls win applause with their acrobatic dances. There are several fine scenes, and the dresses are beautiful and effective.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The New York Comedy Four contribute a good vocal entertainment; Arthur Ferris and Ethel May, sketch artists, are a hit; Kirk and Saraski, lady swimmers, give a clever aquatic turn; Parker and Parker as Taffy and the Toff sing in good style; the Cattanias Trio, acrobatic gymnasts, are popular; Jack Lester, descriptive vocalist; and Miss Claire Hastings, vocalist, also merit approbation.

WARRINGTON. — Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Smiley.—Mr. E. C. Jazon's pantomime company are delighting large houses here this week with Dick Whittington. Sparkling with fun, good songs, beautiful scenery, and up-to-date business, all progresses splendidly. There are some clever specialities, and reference should be made of the Vandas, globe and silver wire performers; Pearce and Ward, sketch entertainers; the Willoughbys, acrobatic eccentrics; Sahda and Vone, Creole performers; and King and Snowdon, duettists. Miss Maude Beaumont is a dashing Dick Whittington, and there is always plenty of "go" in her work, whilst her songs are well received; a capital impersonation of the Cat is that effected by Mr. Willie Meda. Mr. Fred Ward as Jack has ample scope to develop his drollery; Mr. Harry Abbey makes much of Sarah, the cook; and the Willoughbys score as the Captain and Mate. Mr. Walham Miller does justice to the character of Fitzwarren, and as the Emperor of Morocco Mr. Jim Vone is well placed; Miss Vera Snowdon is a charming Alice, dancing with sprightliness and singing delightfully; Miss Daisy Dashwood makes the most of the Prince of Morocco; Miss Olive Audrey as the Fairy and Mr. Cecil Terry as King of Ratland are good. The chorus is well balanced, and Mr. Augustus I. MacInnes wields the baton efficiently.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. H. C. Hardcastle.—There are some excellent turns here this week, and first and foremost is Ted Waite, whose droll songs and parodies are responsible for convulsive laughter; the Fordyces are clever juveniles, and Kinnard is an expert magician; Mike Gray, who fills a place consequent upon the indisposition of Gus Garrick, supplies an acceptable conjuring turn; Lillie Luraine plays delightfully on the cornet and concertina; the Gallimores are clever sketch entertainers; Feldman's troupe of juveniles are seen to advantage in a garden scena; and M. Molloy's songs are all encored.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—A capital series of pictures are being shown here this week, and those depicting the fight between Burns and Johnson are much admired, the sporting fraternity mustering up strongly. Excellent turns are also given by the Sisters Draycott, who are capital vocalists. George James is a quaint comedian, and King and Stange clever sketch artists.

WATERFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Collins; Acting-Manager, Mr. Maurice Collins.—This week Mr. A. E. Smith's pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, occupies the boards here. Miss Kathleen Garnon as Jack scores a distinct success, which is shared in no small measure by Miss Frankie Barton as Jill, his sweetheart. The production is admirably staged, and reflects the greatest credit on the enterprise of Mr. Smith in touring such a company with good properties and scenery.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. John McGurk.—The Musical Brooks top the bill here, and are ably supported by Mr. Tom Kingsley, refined Irish comedian, and Mr. Phil Mace, in song scena and character comedy. Master Fredericks, the boy violinist, has astonished all; his playing is wonderful. Pictures complete the entertainment.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Frank Lindo's company, including Miss Marion Wakeford, in the romantic play Love the Conqueror is producing good results here this week. Mr. Frank Lindo, who is the author of the piece, plays with remarkable effect in the rôle of Brian Norval; as William of Orange, afterwards William III. of England, Mr. Leo R. Neilson majestically displays the part; Mr. Norton Shields as Sir John Mortimer makes the most of his opportunities; whilst the rendering of Count Leon Lascelles is effectively portrayed by Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle. Mr. Tom E. Lewis makes up well as Captain Rupert Armadale; a charming and interesting interpretation of Mistress Beatrice Mortimer is admirably presented by Miss Marion Wakeford; as Susan Shortly Miss Hélène Thompson achieves marked success; and as Dame Norval Miss Nellie Benson makes a capital study.

WEST BROMWICH. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Pantomime again reigns at this popular place of amusement, and Mr. J. P. Moore's company, which is responsible for the production, is having a hearty reception, which, by the way, it well deserves. The pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat is from the pen of Mr. James P. Moore himself, who, by his long association with the theatre has made many friends in the town. These are likely to be increased by his latest production, which is a very admirable one, the cast being a very strong one. Miss Madge Locke is a very charming Dick Whittington, and Miss Nellie Berry as Princess Charming is as good as her name; Messrs. Doyle and Massey as Shuffle and Shirk are very clever; and the various turns given by Street and Round, duettists; Victor's Musical Dogs; Oswald and Locke, comedy couple; Victor Brothers, Olympian athletes; Paulette, in a bicycle act, are all very smart, and add much to the attractiveness of the panto.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. Chas. M. Bestic's company is appearing this week in a new and original musical comedy, The Flower Girl. The piece is a new one to West Bromwich audiences, but the reception that has been accorded it indicates that it will always be a welcomed visitor to the town. Miss Eva Nelson takes the part of Lily, the flower girl, with much charm and ability; and a good deal of fun is introduced by Georgie de Lara as a Suffragette.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company are again appearing in A Message from Mars, in which Mr. William H. Brougham once more gives his masterly interpretation of the part of the Messenger. Horace Parker has a capital delineator in Mr. Wallace Widdicombe; and Mr. Norman Clark does exceedingly well as the Tramp. Miss Parker has a capital exponent in Miss Winifred Knightly; and Minnie is well played by Miss Rose Helene.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The turns provided by Mr. Macnaghten this week are proving very acceptable. Hanvarr and Anna Lee, who are starring, are delightful in their club juggling, whilst the comedy of the lady is of a most entertaining description; Percival takes the place by storm, not only with his executive powers at the piano, but with his humour, which is irresistible; Leslie's Comedy Cadets keep their audiences well entertained with good musical numbers and clever ventriloquial contribution and excellent comedy. May Henderson, the dusky queen, is bright and vivacious, and her turn pleases mightily; she cracks her gags very neatly. A smart protean comedy sketch is played by Wilton Heriot and Co.; the title is An Anglo-American Alliance; both the artists acquit themselves well, and the quick change and the representation of the various characters by Mr. Heriot is worthy of all commendation. Cap. Ellis and Son in a comedy musical act excel as instrumentalists; and Miss Tina Frank, comedienne, sings very nicely. A capital series of Raymond's Bio-tableaux completes the bill.

WEXFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mr. George Mallin's company in a répertoire of pantomime was here on the 8th inst. and five following nights. The company in all respects was an admirable one, and well deserved the crowded houses which greeted them during their stay. On Monday Cinderella was presented. Mr. Howard Richard, who took up the rôle of the Baron at short notice owing to the serious illness of Mr. Mallin, did very well; the Ugly Sisters, Jemima and Tootsie, were capitally represented by Messrs. Clifford Spenser and Jack Grimes; Mr. George Grenville as Peter revelled in his part and kept the house thoroughly amused; and Mr. Dick Howard extracted all the fun possible out of the rôle of Syntax. Messrs. Marsden and Scarper as Flipper and Flopper made the most of their opportunities; Miss Dolly Richardson was a charming Dandini; and Miss Maude Harvie as Prince Paragon was all that could be desired. Miss S. Adie was well suited to the part of the Fairy Godmother; Miss Lil Richardson, the Cinderella, acted with great charm, and her songs, of which she had an admirable selection, were thoroughly enjoyed.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's company in Puss in Boots is here. Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie is a dashing principal boy; Miss Gladys Christoe a charming Princess Ivy, Miss Issa Steel leaves nothing to be desired as the Good Fairy, and Miss Zona Joy dances herself into favour as Gretchen. Mr. Fred Lincoln is a humorous Dame; Mr. Harry Rogerson is eminently successful as King Crabbus, the Baron Rumphiz finds an able exponent in Mr. Harry Edlin, and Zelina makes the most of his opportunities as Fritz.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—Captain M. Gruber's elephant, horse, and pony perform some exceptionally clever tricks; Coram is a ventriloquist of merit; Marion Fletcher, juvenile vocalist, sings in a pleasing manner; and Dolly Harmer is eminently successful as a character comedienne. Mr. George M. Marriott and company are loudly applauded for their act, The Maid of the Alps; Mephisto mytifies with his conjuring tricks; and Tom Gott causes quite an ovation with his songs. Arthur Harris contributes some vocal selections, and Charles Rowen, comedian, and Zenora conclude.

The Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—At this place of amusement a splendid film depicting the noble work of the British bluejackets at Messina is shown. The usual diverting turn is supplied by Jack Monks.

WILLENHALL.—Picture Hall (late Assembly Rooms).—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Hunter. — On Monday this house was opened by the Anglo-American Animated Picture Co. The place has undergone extensive alterations, and is now well suited to this class of entertainment. The films shown this week include Rescue Work at Messina, The Donkey Skin, Brothers in Arms, Auto Heroine, For Kate's Health, A Disastrous Oversight, and In Time of Rebellion. An amusing and clever ventriloquial entertainment is introduced by Mr. Will Hunter.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company opened to a capital house on Monday with In Holy Russia. The audience by frequent applause evidently showed that they were in sympathy with the company, for their plucky efforts after the trying experience they underwent the previous day, a report of which appears elsewhere. Mr. Henry Compton as Colonel Richard Forrest made a typical Guardsman; whilst in Mickey Nolan, his servant, Mr. J. Rice Cassidy had a part which gave him ample scope for displaying his inimitable Irish wit. Mr. G. H. Doyle gave a very capable representation of Laurice Steragoff; Mr. Frank Copeland was good as Sir Harry Beresford; and Mr. Rolfe Leslie played with force as Count Gregorie Petroleski. As Renée Rubinoff Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy was excellent throughout; Miss Amy McNeil gave a striking portrayal of Catska Lavotski; and Miss Agnes Holland was well placed as Mme. Natolski.

Empire Palace.—Managing Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. Edward Crossland's Melody Makers in The Burglar's Dream, head the bill here this week. It is a strikingly novel musical turn, the singing is excellent, and the audience have the unique experience of hearing four pianos played, and played well, at once. Wilson Hallett's imitations of children are truly described "really wonderful"; Mozetti's juggling with coins is quite out of the ordinary, and much amusement is caused by the quaint tricks of the little page in buttons who assists him; Fraser and French give a good exposition of wooden shoe dancing; Dexter's sleight-of-hand tricks are made all the more interesting by the funny patter which accompanies them; and Lara Leslie, comedienne, and Mark Brand go to complete a good all-round bill.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Warde.—The most prominent of the acts here this week is De Gracia's Royal Assam Elephants, a remarkably intelligent trio of animals; Rozal's acrobatic feats are of a particularly daring character; Morander, Darius, and Alma form a pleasing vocal, instrumental, and acrobatic combination; Hearne and Palmer combine humour and skill in their acrobatic act entitled The Hebrew and the Barman; and Leo Farkoa is a highly-amusing comedian. Some clever impersonations are given by Alice Maud, and Mabel Martin and J. E. James are instrumentalists quite above the average. The Bioscope pictures this week are wonderfully good, and deal with a home industry—hop-growing and curing.

WORKINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. McKenzie Morgan.—Miss Beattie Bloom is as charming as ever in her merry songs; Wisper, with his old hats, his railway train, and his conjuring, is a very funny turn; Mr. Charles Cassell sings a descriptive song; and Cavalli, the strong man, also does a turn.

Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—At this house large crowds have watched the Queen's Life-Motion pictures, which include A Traitor to the King, a dramatic episode from the life of Bluff King Hal. The Three Cyclines give a splendid exhibition of football on wheels; and Frank Whitely, our old friend of the banjo and the bones, gives us ten minutes of genuine laughter.

WREXHAM.—Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—Reilly and Templeton, as the Dutch girl and the Dame, give an amusing turn; they are very entertaining patterers and singers. Mint and Mart are very clever as fantastic paper manipulators, and gain quite their full share of applause; Bert and Fay appear in a funny musical duologue, The Curate and the Slavey; Fannie James is a popular comedienne; and Bradley, "the cycling Jew," does many clever tricks on a number of cycles. The Bioscope pictures complete a most enjoyable programme.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Messrs. Bliss and Bliss have done good business this week with their funny pantomime Mother Goose. Mr. Leo Bliss as the Widow is versatile to a degree, and sings in a quaintly original style; Mr. Ernest Pecival as Jack is responsible for a humorous creation; Ray Ford is an ideal principal girl, being equally at home in song and dance; Ethel Dunford looks handsome as the Prince, singing with taste and giving an enjoyable impersonation; Louis Kerno as the King assists admirably in the fun; Nellie Reilly is a quaint Katerina; and the Two Rubies have parts in which full opportunity is given them to show their merits as neat dancers. Special mention must be made of Pete and Juno, whose sand-dancing has been heartily enjoyed, and the Sylvia troupe of dancers. The scenery and general mounting of the pantomime have aroused much favourable comment.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Cullen and Carthy's Babes in the Wood pantomime is proving a great attraction. The proprietors of the company as the two Robbers have ample opportunity to display their undoubted talents as first-class comedians, and are a huge success. Miss Bessie Coh

GREEK PLAY AT OXFORD.

Last Wednesday night, at the New Theatre, Oxford, after a lapse of seventeen years, the Oxford University Dramatic Society for the second time produced The Frogs of Aristophanes in the original Greek. The theatre is never full on the first night of an O.U.D.S. performance, but the reception accorded The Frogs was genuinely hearty, and a success quite equal to that so undoubtedly scored by the Society in 1892 can be confidently predicted for the present production. The Vice-Chancellor of the University, Dr. Warren, President of Magdalen College, was present, as were also the Countess of Abingdon, the Keeper of the Ashmolean Museum (Mr. D. G. Hogarth), who so successfully produced The Frogs here in 1892, and Mr. Alan Mackinnon, who for so many years rendered such splendid and loyal assistance to the Society which he and Mr. Arthur Bourchier founded. Though once the curtain refused obstinately to go up and caused some amusement, there was really no hitch from start to finish, and the smoothness of the first night's performance reflects the greatest credit on the stage management of Mr. Cyril Bailey, Fellow of Balliol, whose hard work well merited the success so undoubtedly achieved. At the end of the play the applause was prolonged and hearty, and the curtain had to be raised again. The success of the evening was scored by the chorus, which, admirably trained by Dr. H. P. Allen, organist of New College, rendered the choruses and performed their evolutions in a way that drew forth the entire approbation of all present. The coryphæus, Mr. Grisewood, was worthy of the chorus he so ably led. The new scenery, specially designed and painted for the present production by Mr. Ernest R. Jones, was effective, and showed artistic taste of a high order. The weird lake in scenes 2 and 3 of Act 1, and the hall of Pluto's Palace in Act 3—a set that must have satisfied the severest archæological critic—are things that everyone will talk about. The dresses were simple but effective, and Mr. W. Clarkson was responsible for the wigs. An excellent acting edition of The Frogs, with Professor Gilbert Murray's witty translation on opposite pages, rendered it easy for those whose knowledge of Greek was limited to follow the action of the comedy. Considerable cuts had been made, the whole performance only taking a couple of hours; but we were glad to welcome again the witty scenes between the maidservant and the tavern keeper, which were omitted in the 1892 performance. The choric odes have been happily rendered into English. The incidental music and choruses, specially composed seventeen years ago by Sir Hubert Parry, were again used, and met with an enthusiastic reception. The overture has been altered and a new entr'acte written. The music was admirably rendered by Dr. Allen's own orchestra, conducted by himself, though Sir Hubert Parry will conduct on certain nights. Dr. Allen's magnetic influence as a conductor was quickly apparent, and the music went perfectly throughout. Sir Hubert Parry wrote the music for the Greek play The Clouds, but his music for The Frogs is more Aristophanic, and shows our great English composer at his best.

The cast of The Frogs was as follows:—

ARGUMENT OF THE PLAY.

The comedy called The Frogs was acted at Athens in 405 B.C., at the Lenaea. Produced, as it was, at a gloomy period of Athenian history, its motive is not at all political: to lay stress on politics would have been painful and perhaps dangerous. The first part of the play consists of broadly farcical scenes interspersed with choric passages of great lyric beauty; the second is literary criticism pure and simple.

Owing to the dearth of good poets at Athens, Dionysus (the god in whose honour the Lenaea were celebrated), disguised as Heracles and attended by his slave Xanthias, resolves to descend to Hades in order to fetch back to life the tragic poet Euripides, who had recently died. In Act I. the pair are discovered near the temple of the real Heracles, from whom—as he has been there before—Dionysus inquires the way to the nether world. After vainly trying to engage a corpse to carry his baggage, Dionysus is then rowed across Charon's ferry amid a chorus of croaking frogs (whence the name of the play): Xanthias is sent round by land. On arrival at the lower-world shore of the loke, Dionysus and Xanthias meet the Chorus of Mystae (celebrants of the Iacchus-ritual at Eleusis), who pass singing and dancing across the stage. These, henceforward, form the Chorus of the play.

Act II. is laid in Hades. Guided by the direction of the Chorus, Dionysus goes to the house of Pluto; but it appears that Heracles bears a very bad character in the nether world, and the god is so much frightened by the vengeful threats of Aeachus that he changes dress with his slave. Much comic business follows, Dionysus reassuming and again putting off the Heracles disguise as he expects to be well or ill received. On Aeacus' reappearance Xanthias is wearing the lionskin and Dionysus is the slave. Aeacus cannot discover which is really Heracles, and it is agreed that the power of bearing a beating uncomplainingly is to be the test of godhead. But even this fails, and the pair are brought into the palace of Pluto and Persephone.

The Chorus then, having the stage to themselves, come forward to sing the Parabasis, in which the poet has expressed his views as to current questions in Athens. Aeacus returns with Xanthias, now his bosom friend, and explains to him that Euripides has challenged Aeschylus' right to the throne of tragedy in the lower world, that a trial is about to take place, and Dionysus has been chosen as judge. The act ends with a choral ode of expectation.

Act III. represents the contest of the two rival poets before Dionysus. They dispute first as to the moral teaching of their respective plays, and then, turning to details, examine and parody each other's prologues and choral odes. At last, scales are brought in to test the "weight" of their words: Aeschylus triumphs, and Dionysus, treacherously abandoning Euripides, determines to take Aeschylus back to the upper world. Pluto invites all to a banquet, and the chorus sing a parting ode, wishing Aeschylus prosperity.

The representation of the play left little to be desired, and the Oxford amateurs need fear comparison with none in rendering the beautiful Greek choruses and speaking the lines that charmed the critical audience at its production in Athens 2,500 years ago. The beautiful singing, the animation, and natural gestures of the chorus were a positive treat to all beholders. Mr. Howard scored a genuine success as Dionysus; Mr. de Stein was highly amusing as Xanthias; Mr. Casswell, though he lacked the stature, cheered us with much the Heracles laugh that so pleased everyone in 1892 when the present Archdacon Furse played the part; Mr. Watt did exceedingly well in the small part of the corpse; Mr. Stevenson-Reece was a dignified and imposing Aeschylus; and Mr. Corbett was uncommonly good as Euripides, though he abandoned the æsthetic style that it was played in last time; Aeacus was a great success in the hands of the Hon. G. Charteris; and Messrs. Knatchbull-Hugessen, P. Guedalla, and G. C. Faber were very happy in their impersonations of the maid, the landlady, and the landlady's servant; Charon was well played by Mr. Oliphant. The Frogs will be repeated nightly till Tuesday next, with matinées to-day (Saturday) and Monday next. The advance booking is very heavy, and the extra accommodation at the handsome new theatre will be well tested. The O.U.D.S. are to be congratulated on their most recent Greek play

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, DEC. 29.—Mr. J. C. Williamson has no need to change his bill at either Her Majesty's Theatre or the Theatre Royal, for The Merry Widow at the former and The Sign of the Cross at the latter are doing the treasury immense good.

MR. EDWIN GEACH has two performances at the Palace Theatre, a children's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, in the afternoon, and a melodrama, The Woman Pays, at night. The pantomime is acted exclusively by Australian children, and was written, composed, directed, and conducted by Mr. F. W. Weierter. The scenery was specially painted by Mr. Ricketts; pretty and most effective it is. Miss Louie Crawshaw is Crusoe, and in this version has many hairbreadth escapes, including one from King Jumbo and his tribe of niggers. Miss Florrie Johnson is Polly, beloved of Robinson, self-possessed and bright. Crusoe's father is presented as a Scotchman, and well acted by Mr. J. Campbell. The Mother, Dame Crusoe, had a moderate impersonator in Jes Hallinan. Vera Huggett, the clever child in the Prince Chap, was the fairy queen, and a host of other children filled in minor parts and danced ballets and sang choruses.

"THE WOMAN PAYS" has a strong cast, including Misses Nellie Ferguson, Helen Fergus, Ethel Buckley, and Pattie Gourlay, and Messrs. Kenneth Hunter, Frank M. Thorne, J. P. O'Neill, Harry Norman, and Wilton Power The drama was well acted, and received with enthusiasm by a holiday house.

MR. WILLIAMSON ANDERSON is at the Criterion with The Gayest of the Gay, and of course, with his wife, Miss Eugenie Duggan in the leading rôle as Kate Lattice, Bell Bascombe, and Nurse Susan Meredith, all of which were acted with the lady's customary ability. The play is of ordinary literary merit, and contains ludicrously improbable situations, calculated to interest a general audience. Mr. G. P. Carey is the old Irish servitor Barney O'Brien, a clever characterisation. Miss Lena Langridge and Mr. Temple Harrison administer the comedy. Messrs. J. H. Nunn (also stage manager), Percy Walshe, and Max Clifton are guardians of the remaining parts.

THE TIVOLI was suffocatingly packed on Boxing night to enjoy Mr. Harry Rickards' holiday bill of fare. Crestofolo made his first bow to an Australian audience, which loudly applauded his balancing and juggling. Two handsome women, Amalia and Lenora, delighted the onlookers with their clever upside-down performance. It was unique and brilliant throughout. Then we had Mackinnon's Scotch Meisters, and the return of the old favourite, Charlie Fanning, who brings his little daughter Charlotte along to share his popularity.

SYDNEY, JAN. 5.—The Duchess of Dantzig was received by Mr. J. C. Williamson's adherents with welcome and enthusiasm. It is so vastly superior in music and book to the meretricious musical comedy that it deserves to be classed as comic opera. This production will be long remembered for the triumphant success achieved by Miss Florence Young as the laundress-Duchess. Beginning as a chorus girl with Mr. Williamson, her superb voice and personal vivacity secured notice, then came the usual "lines" and eight-bar solos, until industry and loyal work brought the fine singer into first rank. But on Saturday night she electrified the vast audience by her very fine acting and speaking of a quasi-serious part. Her scenes with Napoleon were excellent, and at curtain-fall a demonstration was made which should live in the memory of Florence Young all her life. Without any trace of coarseness, she retained the cheery nature of the blanchisseuse in the Duchess's robes. Mr. Wybert Stamford was well cast as the irritable bully-cum-hero Napoleon. At first he was weak and indefinite, but as the play progressed so did he, and as Bonaparte and producer he scored well. Miss Betty Ohls, now a great favourite, was Renée de Saint Mezard—dainty, piquant, vocally sweet, and refined all the time. Napoleon's two sisters were capitally cared for by Miss Nellie Wilson and Miss Georgie Musgrove. The Empress Josephine was doubtless pretty, and Miss Jessica Deane resurrected her in all her physical and regal attributes. Mr. Victor Gouriet had all the fun as Papillon, and that meant a treat for his audience. Mr. James Hughes was a manly, rich-voiced Sergeant Lefebvre, singing well and speaking well. Mr. D. B. O'Connor was Captain Regnier and Adhemar, making his mark in the latter character. He is a young actor with heaps of talent. Mr. Reginald Roberts, though in only one act, placed Phillipe, Vicomte de Bethune, in front rank as an aristocrat and a singer. His "Noblesse oblige" appealed to all, though opposed to Australian sentiment. Mr. C. R. Bantock had little to do as Sergeant Flageot, but he made a lot out of it. Miss Minnie Hooper provided sweet ballets, and Mr. Williamson costumed the play-opera deliciously. Mr. Howard Carr conducted, and his finale to the second act was fine, adding to his reputation as a composer.

NEW ZEALAND AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WELLINGTON, DEC. 7.—TOWN HALL.—The Kilties (the Canadian Band) and their monster drum-major are in the midst of a visit which seems highly appreciated.

OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, J. C. Williamson.—The mysteries of Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant are being exhibited here nightly, and the privilege of seeing perhaps the best show of its kind is a thing not to be allowed to pass without remark. Large audiences have crowded to see and enjoy the whole of the programme, from the ever-popular cabinet wonder to the unctuous humours of Mr. Barclay Gammon. There are further attractions in the Asiatic Gintaro, who does wonderful balancing, and the legerdemain of Mr. Owen Clark. The company is giving a weekly matinée, and finishing on Saturday fortnight.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fuller.—Miss Florence Baines, with Miss Lancashire, Ltd., is scoring a success, large audiences being attracted.

THEATRICAL PENSIONS.

MR. CHARLES BROOKFIELD'S SCHEME.

"Why do you think it necessary, Mr. Brookfield," we asked the well-known actor and author, "for actors to have a special scheme of insurance?"

"Because their incomes are so variable and intermittent. Life assurance and pension policies are admirable things in their way, if only you can pay the premiums. But the ordinary form of policy, under which a heavy premium has to be paid once a year on a fixed date, independently of whether you are in engagement or not, is quite unsuited to the requirements of the actor. In his bad years the premium becomes a heavy burden, and, as a rule, he could not alter the terms of the policy without serious loss. But under this new scheme you may pay premiums practically in any amounts and whenever you like, and each premium secures once for all a definite amount of insurance."

Mr. Charles Brookfield had kindly agreed to explain the novel scheme of insurance which he devised some time ago, and which has now been put into practical form by a first-class insurance office, and this was how he expressed the leading idea of it:—

"You will see," he continued, "that this special arrangement as to the payment of premiums exactly meets the case of anyone whose income is subject to fluctuation. The scheme is open to all, but I think it specially meets the needs of actors, in which term I include, of course, our friends of the variety stage, who are equally open-handed, and even more subject to the extremes of Fortune."

"Is it being well taken up?"

"I have had letters cordially approving of it from most of our leading London managers, including Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, Miss Lena Ashwell, George Alexander, Arthur Bourchier, Arthur Chudleigh, Harry Irving, Cyril Maude, Forbes Robertson, Fred Terry, and Sir Charles Wyndham. Kendal, too, writes enthusiastically. Sir Squire Bancroft fears that actors, as a body, are unlikely to take up such a scheme methodically, but I am sanguine that they will prove him to be—for once—mistaken. Charles Manners and several others promise to recommend the members of their companies to avail themselves of the advantages which the scheme offers. I have not been able to communicate personally with nearly as many as I could wish, but all artists read The Era, so I trust that those who have not heard directly from me will kindly 'accept this intimation,' as they say."

"Do I understand that under this scheme an actor loses nothing at all, even if in some years he fails entirely to pay any premiums?"

"Certainly. Each premium buys a certain amount of insurance or of pension, according to the kind of policy that is effected, and that amount of insurance or pension is absolutely secured, even if not a single penny is paid in premiums afterwards."

"And the premiums may be paid whenever one likes and in any amounts which suit one's purse?"

"Practically that is so. For convenience it is stipulated that only even pounds, and not odd shillings and pence, shall be paid, but that is no hardship to anyone. Under the pension policies that is the only limitation, until you have bought the pension you proposed for. If you like the scheme so well that you wish to go on after that you must, of course, effect a new policy. Under the other policies, which combine a provision for old age with life assurance, the matter is a little more complicated, but it only comes to this: that you must keep up a certain average premium per year. Even if you do not keep up the average, the only result is that you are not at liberty to pay in so much in later years as if you had kept it up, but you do not lose any part of the benefit purchased by the premiums you have actually paid."

"So that by taking out a policy under either scheme you do not in any way pledge yourself to pay premiums in the future?"

"Not in the slightest. You can obtain a policy by paying a first premium of £1, and you need never pay a farthing more unless you like. And if you repent and wish you had not paid even that first pound, you can have it back for the asking."

"Not the whole pound, surely! I thought insurance offices only returned about a third of the premiums paid if you wished to drop a policy."

"Not under this scheme. That is part of the beauty of it. Even under the insurance scheme, although the office has been liable to pay much more if you had died in the meantime, they will return the whole of the premiums you have paid. And under the pension scheme you can not only get back the whole of the premiums you have paid, but 3 per cent. compound interest on them into the bargain."

"Put in that way, the pension scheme seems decidedly attractive. Even if you think you will never want a pension, it seems to afford an excellent way of accumulating odd savings at a good rate of interest."

"Yes. Three per cent. compound interest, and both principal and interest absolutely guaranteed and withdrawable at any time on or before the pension age."

"Can you give me some examples, Mr. Brookfield, of the benefits that can be secured?"

In reply, Mr. Brookfield handed me a short printed circular setting out clearly the main points of the scheme and examples of how it worked out.

"I see you take the case of a young actor who begins by paying £25 when he is twenty-five years old. Must that £25 be paid in one sum?"

"Oh, no! It can be paid in twenty-five separate pounds if he likes, at any time during the year when he has the money to spare."

"I see. Then in the next year, when he is twenty-six, he pays altogether £20. Then when he is twenty-seven—surely this is a mistake, Mr. Brookfield; you have got twenty-eight on the next line!"

"No. That is quite right. Our young friend has a bad year when he is twenty-seven, and cannot afford to pay anything at all. The next year is a better one again, and he pays £25 that year, and so on, until by the time he is thirty-three he has paid £114. My example does not go any further, but these premiums alone will secure him an annuity of £24 15s. a year for the rest of his life after he is sixty, or, if he prefers it, a cash payment of about £290 on his sixtieth birthday in lieu of the annuity. If we had been considering an actress paying the same premiums the cash payment would have been the same, but the annuity a little less, because, you know, ladies live longer than we do."

"I see that that is under the Pension Scheme. Does that scheme provide any insurance?"

"Under that scheme, in the event of death before the pension age the company returns all the premiums paid with 3 per cent. compound interest. If more insurance is required, the policy should be effected under the Endowment Assurance Scheme. The £114 which we have assumed to be paid in premiums would secure a little less at age sixty—£259 instead of £290, but, on the other hand, in the event of death, at any time after the £114 had been paid and before age sixty, £259 would be paid."

"These examples, I see, only show the result of a few years' saving. Suppose an actor put aside ten shillings a week from age 25 to age 60. What provision would he secure for his old age?"

"Under the Endowment Assurance scheme a sum of £1,498 payable at age 60, the sum payable at death before that age gradually increasing up to that amount as the premiums were paid. Under the Pension Scheme a sum of £1,617 at age 60, or an annuity of £137 a year for the rest of life in the case of an actor, or £124 a year in the case of an actress."

"But do you think, Mr. Brookfield, that an actor who saw the advantages of the scheme and decided to put by 5 per cent. or 10 per cent. of his salary under it, would have the strength of mind to keep up these payments throughout a long engagement?"

"Frankly, I doubt very much whether the average actor would. His best plan would be to put himself in the hands of his acting-manager and have the premiums deducted from his salary weekly and forwarded direct to the insurance office, Several of the leading London managers have agreed to make arrangements on these lines."

"And how does one set about effecting a policy?"

"Under the Pension Scheme it is only necessary to fill up a very simple proposal form and send it to me or direct to the insurance office (the Commercial Union Assurance Company, Limited, of 24, Cornhill, E.C.), with a cheque for the first premium. Under the Endowment Assurance Scheme in the ordinary way medical examination is required, though this can be dispensed with on certain conditions. I should be glad to send proposal forms and any information which may be desired if anyone who is interested will communicate with me at the Rectory House, 3, Devonshire-square, Bishopsgate-street, E.C."

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, FEB. 10.—The Third Degree, a drama, in four acts, by Charles Klein, has scored a success at the Hudson Theatre. "Hypnotic suggestion" as a means of detecting crime is the central idea of the story, the efforts of the police to justify an arrest by fair means or foul being portrayed in a more or less authentic manner. Howard Jeffries, jun., a youth of weak character, marries a girl of lowly birth, and being disowned by his rich father, takes to drink. He comes to the rooms of his friend Robert Underwood in the hope of borrowing some money, and falls asleep on a sofa. Underwood is a dealer in bogus pictures who is threatened with prosecution for swindling his patrons, and he writes to Mrs. Howard Jeffries, sen., who has jilted him, to marry a much older man for his money, threatening to commit suicide unless she comes to his assistance. She visits his studio, upbraids him for using her name to further his swindling operations, and leaves him. The curtain falls for a moment, and a shot is heard. Underwood has walked into an adjoining room and sent a bullet into his brain. When the curtain rises again seven hours are supposed to have elapsed, and in the interim young Jeffries has been subjected to the ordeal known as the "third degree" at the hands of the police, the object of which is to extort a confession from a person supposed to be guilty of a crime. The young man has been discovered by the police in the act of leaving the studio, and is accused of murdering his friend. Captain Clinton, a brutal police officer, takes from his pocket the pistol with which Underwood shot himself. He holds it near a lamp so that the light shines on the bright metal barrel, and the reflection is supposed to affect the young man's brain to such an extent that he is impelled to make a confession, notwithstanding that he is innocent. He is thrown into a cell, and from this point the story deals with the efforts of his loyal young wife to interest a famous lawyer in his case, the prisoner's father refusing to help him. The ultimate success of the wife, the discovery of the letter written by the suicide, and the final clearing of the suspect are ingeniously worked out. Incidentally there are pointed allusions to the injustice of the "third degree" and the harm wrought by the sensational newspaper reports of murder trials. The play is splendidly acted, the principal honours being carried off by Miss Helen Ware and Mr. Wallace Eddinger. Messrs. Edmund Breese, Ralph Delmore, and Francis Byrne acquit themselves well in prominent rôles, and a minor part is ably played by Mr. Verner Clarges.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER recently made her reappearance in the metropolis after two years' absence, and her return was signalised by the production at the Liberty Theatre of a new five-act drama, by John Luther Long, entitled Kassa. The first performance of this play was marked by an extraordinary demonstration, there being no less than twenty curtain calls for Mrs. Carter at the close of the fourth act. The Prima Kassa, or first vestal of the fictitious convent of St. Lauka in Hungary, on the eve of taking the black veil is betrayed into a false marriage by Prince Bela Balvancssi. His rival, Zickros Varsova, Imperial Chancellor of the Austrian Court, holds a warrant for the Prince's death on the charge of having lured Kassa from the convent. Kassa saves the Prince, however, by temporising with Varsova, who is eager to possess her. Ultimately she returns to the convent to end her days in peace. The play is handsomely mounted, and is replete with details and effects that captivate the eye. Mrs. Carter's Kassa is a magnificent portrayal, and Mr. Charles Millward plays the profligate Prince Bela admirably.

"A STUBBORN CINDERELLA," a play in three acts, by Hough and Adams, with music by Joseph E. Howard, has been well received at the Broadway Theatre. Mr. John Barrymore and Miss Sallie Fisher play the principal parts entertainingly, and make themselves very popular. The "plot" is humorous and the music pleasing.

AMUSEMENTS IN BOMBAY.

BANDMANN'S THEATRE.—Grossi, the wonderful telepathist, has been drawing crowded houses here during the Christmas holidays. He has been tested by some of the leading people in this city, and in not a single instance has he failed. His card manipulation has been a revelation to Bombay theatre-goers, one great feature of his show being his work amongst the audience. The mental telepathy has drawn crowded houses from the native section of the city, who regard Grossi as a wonderful being. The show is great, as not a word is spoken between him and his subject Mlle. Renée. The London Bioscope fills in the second half with a fine programme of pictures. The Bandmann Opera Company and Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer in her Shakespearean répertoire are due shortly, and Bombay folk are anxiously awaiting the new companies.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Feb. 11.—Herr Gregor has shown his customary perspicacity in the selection of this merry work, which is just the thing for the Carnival time. The opera is not new, but its name has been changed, and it has been modernised. It was first given in Paris in 1877 under the title of L'Etoile, and later on was presented to a Berlin audience under the same title. It comes, however, quite as a novelty to the majority of our theatre-goers, and has made a tremendous hit. The music is charming, full of pleasant melodies and excellent orchestration, reminding us—without any suspicion of plagiarism—of that master of comic opera, Offenbach. A brief description of the plot will be sufficient, as it is probably known to your readers. The action passes in the mystical kingdom of Uff the First. It is the custom of the country to provide an execution on the monarch's birthday for the delectation of the people. Uff's natal day is drawing near, but his subjects have behaved themselves so well of late that there is absolutely nobody to execute, so the ruler lays aside his crown and sceptre and mixes (disguised) among the public in the hope of being able to convict someone of lèse-majesté. This is accomplished without much difficulty. In a heated argument the young huckster Lazuli gives Uff a couple of boxes on the ears, and there is every prospect that the people's victim is found. The King's astronomer, Siroco, a rascal with a pretty wit, casts His Majesty's horoscope, and declares—to the latter's horror—that he is born under the same star as Lazuli, and if one die, the other must speedily follow. Our young hero, therefore, rises to Uff's highest favour. He is cherished and cared for beyond his wildest dreams, and the end of it all is that Lazuli becomes the lover of the fair Princess Laoula—destined for Uff himself—and is proclaimed Crown Prince. The amusing nonsense caught the fancy of the audience, and artists and manager were called repeatedly. The interpretation was capital, Fräulein Mary Hagen in the name-part being—notwithstanding a long illness from which she has only just recovered—particularly successful. Herr von Recnizek was, as ever, a first-rate conductor, and the mounting (as is always the case under Herr Gregor's superintendence) was a marvel of skill and artistic taste.

"SEINE KLEINE FREUNDIN," the latest farce at the Lustspielhaus, is still doing good business, thanks chiefly to the charming acting of Fräulein Cerigioli in the principal rôle. The authors—Herren Engel and Horst—have every reason to be satisfied with their success.

HERR JOSEF KAINZ is still attracting crowded audiences at the New Schauspielhaus, and there is not a ticket to be had for several days before every performance. In Echegaray's drama Galeotto on Saturday the famous actor achieved a remarkable triumph in the rôle of Ernesto, which is in pleasant memory of the Berliners when Herr Kainz was a member of the Deutsches Theatre.

AT the Deutsches Herr Reinhardt is trying a new and interesting experiment, although for the critics a fatiguing one. On three successive nights Goethe's Faust is in the bill, each time with a completely different cast. Perhaps the ambitious manager is desirous of showing the strength of his company, which is indisputable. Herr Reinhardt is a great advocate of the no-star system, and his company, while its excellence is proverbial, is so even that it would be impossible to give the palm to any single artist.

I HAVE received the following notice from Mme. Meta Illing:—"The 'English Theatre for Germany,' which is being organised by Mme. Meta Illing, will open its season at the end of May with a series of performances at the Court Theatre, Wiesbaden. The contract has just been signed by the Intendant Herr von Mutzenbecher and Mme. Illing."

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, JAN. 8.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Woodman.—The New Aladdin, which on its previous production on the Rand had a record run, was staged at the above house this week. The vocal numbers were all brought up-to-date with many topical allusions, and the admirable chorus and orchestra did ample justice to the sparkling music. Miss Maud Aston's Lally is one of the finest characters she has given us; Miss Dombey as the Princess is capital, and Miss Florence Vie as the Spirit of the Ring scored a success. Mr. Alf. Beers was also well cast. A large amount of the fun of the evening rested on the shoulders of Mr. Foster Courtenay as the lost policeman, and he acquitted himself irreproachably. Mr. F. J. Blackman made a hit as the Geni of the Lamp, and Mr. Roy Cathie as Cadie of Cathy acted excellently. The production is one of the best that the present Gaiety company have given us.

STANDARD THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Leonard Rayne; Manager, Mr Grant Fallowes.—Old Heidelberg is still playing to good houses. The last three weeks of the Leonard Rayne company are announced previous to the company going on tour.

JOHANNESBURG.—STANDARD THEATRE.—Lessees, the Tressi Comic Opera Co.—The above company commenced a short season of Gilbert-Sullivan operas here this week. The opening production was The Yeomen of the Guard. Miss Harold Vickers made a winning Elsie Maynard, singing delightfully; the fine tenor voice of Mr. Gwilym Evans as Colonel Fairfax was heard to perfection; as Jack Point Mr. Stanley Evans was the life and soul of the piece, sustaining the rôle in a masterly manner; another fine merrymaker was Mr. Conwright as Wilfred Shadbolt. Herr Tressi personally conducted.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Woodman.—Messrs B. and F. Wheeler's latest production, The New Aladdin, is still playing to good houses. Miss Maud Aston as Lally is very bewitching; Messrs. Foster, Courtenay, and De Beers cause endless laughter. The Merry Widow is to be revived for the fourth time next week.

AT last the Leonard Rayne occupation of the Standard Theatre has come to a close after a successful season, lasting twelve months, and it is with regret the Randites are parting with their favourite actor-manager. As a proof of the excellent feeling that prevails between Mr. Grant Fallowes, the always courteous lieutenant of Mr. Rayne, and the staff in front of the house, on the penultimate night of the tour of the company a pleasant little gathering presented Mr. Grant Fallowes with a gold cigarette-holder, engraved with his initials, as a token of the esteem in which he is held. Mr. Rayne made the presentation.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 18, the Play, by Hall Caine and Louis N. Parker, entitled "PETE."

Considerable interest had been aroused in Hammersmith at the coming production of this Lyceum success, and therefore it followed that a large audience gathered at the King's on Monday evening to witness the new version of Mr. Hall Caine's celebrated novel. The spectators were not disappointed, for the piece appealed to them in no uncertain manner, and caused much enthusiasm. In fact, it was a success all the way through. The play is full of human interest, and, being happily devoid of extraneous sensational incidents, the old story of two men and a woman is extremely well told; and, illustrated as it is by the full strength of the Lyceum company, the authors have no cause to complain of the drama's reception. Mr. Matheson Lang—one of our most promising actors—completely fills the part of the hero, Pete Quilliam. His acting is perfect, and is thoroughly appreciated, resulting in many recalls after each act. As Philip Christian Mr. Eric Mayne excellently portrays the ambitious man who, when about to become Deemster, is not slow in cast off the woman whom he has betrayed, but who afterwards suffers so much remorse at his debasement. Mr. Pennington Gush is good as Ross Christian, and Mr. Charles L. Ludlow makes a capable Jonaique Kelly. Mr. Frederick Ross plays Cæsar Cregeen in sound style. His ripe experience helps in giving a piece of acting which could hardly be equalled, the character itself not showing to much advantage. Mr. Ellis J. Preston renders Black Tom intelligently, and the Postman Kelly of Mr. H. K. Ayliff deserves mention for a most artistic make-up. Mr. Joseph O'Brien and Mr. Sidney Vautier are worthy of praise for their representations of Constable Niplightly and Dr. Mylechreest. The Lord-Lieutenant of Mr. Wilfred Edmunds is dignified, and the Mayor of Douglas by Mr. Henry Brooks is capital. A clever and bright impersonation of Nancy by Miss Rita Tompkins keeps the audience in right good humour, her fresh and natural acting being much approved; and Miss Blanche Stanley is an effective Grannie. Kate Cregeen throughout the play is extremely tearful, but Miss Hutin Britton achieves a distinct and unequivocal success by her sympathetic and earnest acting, which rouses prolonged applause. Amongst a number of well-played smaller parts a baby in arms (name not given) attracts a great deal of attention by its collectedness. The scenery and appointments are most excellent.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 15, Balfe's Opera entitled

"SATANELLA."

Mr. J. W. Turner's English opera company still claims attention at the Dalston Theatre, where scores of folks who do not see the inside of a playhouse except when some special piece of musical production is on are just now taking advantage of this welcome visit of tuneful vocalists and actors. On Monday evening Balfe's opera Satanella was presented, and was accorded a most hearty reception. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton, on this occasion, as during the remainder of the week, rendered efficient service. Mr. Charles Le Sueur was seen and heard to good advantage on Monday as Count Rupert, and Satanella, Lelia, and Stella were effectively represented by Miss Sarah Williams, Miss Doris O'Brien, and Miss Jessie Dennis respectively. Miss Williams was again and again recalled during the performance for the rendering of the extremely pretty songs which fall to the lot of Satanella, and Miss O'Brien and Miss Dennis were equally successful with their numbers. Miss Maud Esdale appeared as Dame Bertha. Mr. Sidney Clifford's fine voice was admired in the part of Arimanes, and an equal measure of success was secured by Mr. George Ridding as Bracachio. Quaint touches of humour were supplied by Mr. Richard Cummings as Hortensius and Mr. P. Newton as Karl. During the week's programme Mr. J. W. Turner's name has been associated with the operas The Rose of Castile, Il Trovatore, and Maritana, the latter ever-popular production being the Thursday evening's attraction. Il Trovatore was billed for Thursday's matinée.

THE FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Melodrama, adapted from the Serial Story by Marie Connor Leighton, entitled

"CONVICT 99."

The play now in representation at the Fulham Theatre should be familiar in its outlines to a very large public, since it is a dramatised version of a serial story which appeared in a popular weekly. The play is a melodrama of somewhat ordinary type, and has some good situations, though an impartial critic might easily find some weaknesses. For example, the great trial scene in its abbreviated form conveys no particular sense of reality. Still, the piece will bear comparison with many another successful melodrama of the same type. The principal artists are well chosen and do good work. Mr. Frank Beresford is an excellent representative of the hero, Lawrence Gray, and Mr. Benson North makes an excellent villain of the insinuating kind. Mr. Archie Watts has good opportunities of moving laughter as the office boy, James Stinchcombe, and makes good use of them; Mr. Chas. Bruce gives a good study of the amiable and trusting parent, Christopher Lucas; Mr. Charles Douglas is capital as the hardened sinner, Jim Lacey; Mr. Archer Brown can be praised for his realistic work as Warder Gannaway—a good study of a sinister character. The counsel in the trial scene both fitted well into the picture: Mr. Arthur Ainley defended with spirit and earnestness, while Mr. William Grant was restrained and business-like for the prosecution. Mr. R. Duncan Bell was effective as the prison Doctor, as also was the Governor of the prison; and the part of Warder Hewitt was well filled by Mr. James Knole. Miss Mabel North was amusing as Mrs. Smedley, while Miss Violet Clarke was piquant and humorous as Maggie Mason. Finally, more than a word of praise must be given to Miss Dorothy Milne, who took the part of Geraldine Lucas, for her quiet and natural, but non the less effective, representation of the heroine.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Drama, by Harold Whyte, entitled

"WOMEN OF LONDON."

Women of London is evidently suited to the taste of the patrons of the Britannia, if we may judge by the applause meted out to the members of the company directed by Mr. Montgomery for their excellent impersonations of the characters entrusted to them. Mr. Harry Tresham again scores heavily as Lieut. Phillip Fancourt, the hero, a part that suits him well. Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh as Captain Dangerfield is, as usual, greeted with groans for the misery he imposes upon the sorely-tried Blanche Bellingham, sweetly and charmingly represented by Miss Lalla Stanhope. Mr. Conrad E. Clarke ably represents Joe Brassy, a shady sportsman. Mr. Herbert Young lends great assistance as Bob Binks. One of the most successful performances is that of Mr. C. Alan Hineson as Roy Raggles, a very fine character study. Mr. H. G. Brandon causes considerable merriment in his amusing impersonation of Rev. Septimus Simpkins. Mr. Ivan P Gore makes an ideal representative of the law. Miss Ethyle Gordon Murray as Stella Stanforth has a character that allows her many opportunities of distinguishing herself, and every advantage is taken of by her to display her histrionic abilities. Miss Edna Lester is very successful in the part of Flo Hernshaw. Miss Florence Barnes gives a very pleasing portrait of Daisy Dashwood, a music hall star. The programme is concluded by an exhibition of pictures by the Barrascope. The orchestra renders some tuneful entr'actes, including the overture "L'Elégante," in which the cornet solo is well played by Mr. Geo. Bickerstaff. Mr. Fred A. Fowler is greatly in evidence as Mr. Barrasford's able representative.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 15., the Drama entitled

"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

After the success achieved by this popular drama last year here, it was only proper that a return visit should be made, and on Monday the old favourites of Mr. Andrew Melville's company had a capital reception. Mr. Felix Pitt still enacts in his captal robust fashion the stern and irate father, Anthony Raybrook; Mr. P. George Beresford does good work as Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. Howard Thornley is admirable as George Clissold; Mr. C. Burdon depicts the villainies of Geoffrey Waring splendidly; Mr. Harry Cornwall deserves mention for his study of Jabez Thomas; Mr. Percy Dawsone's clever character sketch of Willie earned loud applause from the house; Mr. Fred C. Imbert cleverly assumes the part of John Anderson; and Mr. Henry Helling is a grave and dignified solicitor.. Miss Ada M. Ryder is to be congratulated on her acting in the difficult rôles of Walter Hatherleigh (the younger) and the sorrow-stricken Laura Raybrook. Her pathetic scenes made an impression on the large audience. Miss Lizzie Ingles was sufficiently haughty and overbearing as Raybrook's housekeeper; Miss A. Williams ably impersonated the good-hearted Irishwoman, Mrs. McCarthy; and Miss Florence Wilson was good as Peggy, the flower-girl. The remaining characters in a large cast all did well. Driven from Home is capitally staged, and the realistic London scenes deserve commendation, especially the Foundling Hospital and Saw Mill.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled

"THE GAY GORDONS."

This popular and diverting musical comedy is proving a great attraction at the Shakespeare Theatre this week, and Mr. Seymour Hicks' company is being received with great enthusiasm. Owing to a change in the cast, the part of Peggy Quainton was, at the last moment, undertaken by Miss Dorothy Giles, whose attractive manner and personal charm were well suited to the character. Possessed of a sweet voice and acting with delightful freshness, Miss Giles acquitted herself with success, and was well received. Excellent acting characterised the rendering by Miss Emily Mellon of the rôle of Janet McLeod, and the audience were quick to appreciate her sterling work. Another good performance was that of Miss Mabel Dent, who won considerable favour by her vivacious presentation of Victoria Siddons; Miss Ida Laurie was deserving of praise for her capital portraiture of Charlotte Siddons; and Miss Gwynneth Hughes as Mary McLeod, Miss Norah Guinness as Lady Graeme, and Miss Rosa Carlisle as Lady Millicent were also very effective. Mr. Tom Graves was irresistibly funny as Nervy Nat, and his extraordinary antics and clever facial expression kept the audience in uncontrollable laughter. Mr. Frank Lincoln submitted a most effective rendering of Angus Graeme, and his geniality and breezy good-nature, together with his irresponsibility of manner, made his performance most enjoyable. Mr. Edward Nainby was a droll Edmund Siddons, and Mr. Ernest Ruston satisfactorily sustained the part of Andrew Quainton. The piece, which was produced under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour, with Mr. Mervyn Dene as stage-manager, was staged with completeness, and the scenery was excellent.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled

"HUMAN NATURE."

This celebrated Drury Lane play is always sure of a hearty welcome in Marylebone, and this week the West Londoners have warmly expressed their approval of the production. Mr. S. Herbert Humber enacted the rôle of Captain Temple with telling force and striking ability; Mr. J. P. Dryden was full of cunning resource as the rascally solicitor, Matthew Hawker; Mr. Fred Morgan proffered a well-thought-out portrayal of Paul de Vigne; Mr. C. W. Maxwell did well as Stephen Mardyke; Mr. Edwin Fergusson pleasingly sustained the rôle of the Rev. Arthur Lulworth; Mr. Alf. Terris, excellently made up, played with vigorous earnestness as Farmer Lambkin, whilst Mr. E. Harvey White was decidedly alert and amusing as Horatio Spotkins. Miss Beatrice Burdett impersonated Cora Grey with plenty of cool assurance; Miss Esther Carthew played in experienced fashion as Mrs. Lambkin; Miss Maggie Byron was well placed as Mrs. Lulworth; little Lily Leicester was pleasingly intelligent as Frank Temple; Miss M. Armstrong was responsible for a most convincing and acceptable portrayal of the foundling Dick; Miss Nellie Peters was a pert Lucy; and Miss Ada Oakley played with womanly sympathy the trying rôle of Nellie Temple. The play was well staged and mounted, and reflects the utmost credit on the producer, Mr. R. A. Beaton.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Drama entitled

"THE GIRL WHO WRECKED HIS HOME."

Produced by Mr. Walter Melville, The Girl Who Wrecked His Home continues to find favour with a large number of the theatre-going public, and deservedly so, as it is a well-designed and powerfully written play, and cleverly interpreted by a judiciously selected cast of talented artists. The play was accorded a hearty reception on a visit it paid here about twelve months ago, and on the present occasion it has apparently lost none of its vitality, but still maintains a firm hold. Miss Louise Hampton imparts a good deal of pathos into the character of Bertha Marshall, and is successful in the emotional scene of the outcast and wandering woman, and in the more tranquil moments of the last scene acts with charm and sincerity, and earns the applause so liberally meted out to her. Mr. Fred W. Goddard presents a very capable rendering of the part of Jack Marshall, the sorrowing and deserted husband, and deserves praise for a talented portrayal. Mr. W. Gregory offers a good delineation of the scheming Leonard Kenyon. William Stevenson is capably undertaken by Mr. Alfred Richards; Mr. Herbert Goddard is most suitably placed as Henry Stevenson; Mr. Francis Hope as Tommy Biffin imparts much humour and evokes much laughter; Miss Winifred Whyte essays the rôle of Val Raymond, the evildoer, in an effective manner; Miss Lulu Bowes displays ability as Winifred Marshall; Josh Crockett has an able representative in Mr. George P. Lester; Mr. L. Charles makes a smart Detective Brockland, while Master Dick Evans and Miss Ida Thompson do well in the children's parts.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Comedy entitled

"ANGELA."

On the last occasion Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier paid a visit to this theatre they were greatly appreciated in various characters in their Shakespearean répertoire. They are now seen to equal advantage in the amusing comedy of Angela, and the company they bring with them is a well selected one, all the members of which lend excellent assistance in bringing out the mirth-provoking qualities of the play. Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, as the wayward widow Angela, acts with easy grace and gives a good delineation of the part; Mr. Frank Cellier displays much ability and experience in his capable handling of the character of Richard Evesham, and makes his points telling by his quiet manner; Mr. Charles Brown plays Christopher Keswick in a very droll manner; Mr. Arthur D. Layland is diverting as John Evesham; Mr. Arthur Keane makes the most of his opportunities as William Bithers; Mr. Eugene Wellesley as Alphonse makes a capital French waiter; Miss Gertrude Gilbert as Mary Pembridge is entirely successful; Elizabeth is humorously portrayed by Miss Mary Goulden. Other characters in the cast are ably submitted by Messrs. Francis Roberts, Murray Kinnell, James Mason, and Miss Gertrude Tate, &c. The comedy is preceded by a new one-act play by J. Harry Irvine entitled The Fur Cloak.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 16,

"THE CINGALEE."

Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, with a large corps of auxiliaries and specially-painted scenery, presented this favourite musical comedy on its first visit to the Crystal Palace, and they can have no reason to complain of any lack of cordiality in the reception accorded to them. Mr. Alan Turner's powerful voice and good acting as the Hon. Harry Vereker secured for him much applause and many encores, and he was fortunate in having the concurrence of Miss Molly Wolstenhulme as Nanoya, the Cingalese maiden, for her voice and clever manner made her performance a very acceptable one. Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram missed none of the drolleries of the Baboo lawyer, and was a favourite from the first. The Boobhamba of Mr. Douglas Munro was well conceived, and his appearance good. Mr. F. W. Ford as Sir Peter Loftus, the High Commissioner, was excellent, the testy Anglo-Indian official being limned to the life, and Mr. Scott Cullen as the volatile Bobby Warren danced and sang himself into the good graces of the audience very speedily. A word must be given to the careful acting of Mr. Harry Edward Ray in the small part of Myamgah, an Indian servant. Miss Alice Nixon made a very arch and charming Peggy Sabine, and had to respond to several encores, especially in her dolly dance with Mr. Scott Cullen. Miss Pauline Hague, with a good method and pleasing appearance as Lady Patricia Vane, was also singled out for many recalls, and Miss Margaret Pitts as Angy Loftus danced most piquantly in each scene and was a valuable addition to the success of the piece.

Mesdames Ida Ernest, Edie Burton, Maudie Ray, and Dorothy Temple made a most engaging quartette of Tea Girls. Messrs. Darrell Richards, John McDonagh, Claude Hogg, and Kenneth Scott were the four pupils, and they supplied an efficient backing, both in song and dance, to the action of the production. The Sisters Amaranth executed the clever "Parahara" dance in the second act, and Mr. Harry Edward Ray gave character to the "Devil" dance. Mr. Herbert Ivy wielded the bâton over a largely-augmented orchestra, and did full justice to the somewhat exacting music.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Musical Play, entitled

"HAVANA."

Musical comedy is always welcome at Stratford, and consequently the Gaiety success Havana was very cordially received on Monday night. The members of Mr. George Dance's company all acquit themselves with credit, and adequate justice has been done to this bright, sparkling, and tuneful play in the way of dresses and staging. Mr. Reginald Switz is exceedingly funny and entertaining as Nix; he works unflaggingly, and his quaint sayings and doings are always provocative of mirth. Mr. Tom Seymour is entirely successful as Reginald Brown; Mr. Cecil W. Parke is a manly and pleasing exponent of Jackson Villiers; and Mr. Bay Russell is a buoyant and bustling Frank Charteris. Mr. George Story portrays the beanish Don Adolfo very appropriately, and is heard to advantage in the numbers allotted to him; Mr. A. Gordon Begg does well as Bombito del Campo; and Mr. Herbert Bryan is a very satisfactory Diego. Miss Hebe Bliss acts with considerable charm as Consuelo, and her singing elicits warm applause; Miss Gladys Gay very daintily impersonates Anita; Isabelita is most appropriately played by Miss Helen Langton; Miss Jose Sullivan is a charming Mamie; Miss Maud Seymour plays Teresa very brightly; Zara has an able exponent in Miss Elsie Deighton; and Signora Verriotti is portrayed very successfully by Miss Maud Lennard. Miss Rosa Sullivan, Miss Beryl Gordon, and Miss Kathleen Haddon make attractive cigarette girls; and Bombito's servants are safely entrusted to Mr. Harry Campbell and Mr. Clarence Hart.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 15, the Drama, by Frank Bateman and John Douglas, entitled

"NO WEDDING BELLS FOR HER."

The return visit of Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath's company in No Wedding Bells for Her is attracting excellent audiences to the Stratford Theatre Royal this week, and the piece is easily repeating its former success. Miss Lizzie Montague carries off chief honours in the rôle of Lola Delaspierre, the wiles and machinations of this attractive adventuress being depicted with graphic yet well restrained power, while the deftly introduced glimpses of caustic humour add much personality and interest to the character. Mr. Stuart Lomath acts with expression, dignity, and earnestness as the Rev. Frank Hatherleigh, and looks the part well. Mr. Percy Shaw as the detective Dick Delver acts very convincingly, and is ever ready to assist in the fun-making as occasion requires. Mr. H. Aynsleigh as the villainous Abney Stone acts with much skill and directness of method, and easily succeeds in making the character thoroughly obnoxious. Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., is an amusing and entertaining Simpkins; Mr. M. Curtis portrays Montague Blair very appropriately; and Mr. George Herbert submits an experienced performance as Horatio Stone. Miss Mabel Durham plays with sympathy and charm as Doris Vane, and Miss Ellen Owen does exceedingly well as Marie Frail. Remaining parts are all in quite capable hands, and the scenic effects and dresses are tasteful and handsome.

Sapho, revised and adapted by Stuart Lomath, was in the bill on Thursday and for the remainder of the week, with Miss Lizzie Montague in the name-part.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The first item in the programme of the orchestral concert given at the Royal College on Friday evening, Feb. 12, was Smetana's symphonic poem, "Aus Böhmen's Hain und Flur," from "Mein Vaterland, No. 4." The composer of the "Bartered Bride" is never dull, and the spirited performance given by the orchestral students under the guidance of Sir Charles V. Stanford aroused considerable interest in a seldom-heard work of the Bohemian composer. Mr. Jameson Dodds sang Mozart's air "Mentre ti lascio" with marked ability, and was warmly applauded, and Miss Ellen Edwards greatly distinguished herself in a skilful performance of Chopin's Concerto, for piano and orchestra, No. 2, in F minor, op. 21, the orchestral accompaniment being also admirably played. At the close of the concerto Miss Edwards had no fewer than four hearty recalls. In Mendelssohn's scena, "Infelice," Miss Katherine Vincent, although slightly nervous, displayed intelligence in her singing, but more dramatic feeling and greater experience were required for such difficult music. The concert concluded with a painstaking performance of Brahms's Symphony No. 4, in E minor, op. 98.

"THE FUR CLOAK."

A One Act Play, by J. H. Irvine, produced at the Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, on Monday, Feb. 15.

Guy Tabary ..... Mr. Eugene Wellesley
Peter, the Slaughterer .... Mr. Arthur Seaton
Slit-eared Baptist ..... Mr. Stuart Vinden
Petit-Jean ..... Mr. Francis Roberts
François Villon ..... Mr. J. Harry Irvine
Boy ..... Miss Mary Goulden
Louis XI. ..... Mr. Tom Heslewood
Shopkeeper ..... Mr. Murray Kinnell
Apprentice ..... Mr. Charles Brown
Tristan L'Hermite ..... Mr. Arthur Keane

The theme of The Fur Cloak is but another episode in the life of that picturesque knave François Villon, about whose personality many tales have been woven. In the present instance we find he has been somewhat down on his luck, having been visiting many towns and spending a good deal of his time in the gaols of most of them. He returns unexpectedly and joins his fellow cut-throats in an attic in the Town Hall, Paris, used at this date as a powder magazine, but he is unrecognised for the moment as he is disguised in a fur cloak which he had removed from the body of a murdered man. One of the thieves having captured and brought in an errand boy carrying victuals in a basket, is admonished by his fellows for letting their hiding-place be made known to a stranger, so their first idea is to kill the boy, but at the intervention of François Villon he is allowed to depart with the caution to keep his mouth shut. Soon after they are disturbed by another unwelcome visitor, and although unknown to them, none other than Louis XI. King of France. Somewhat lengthy conversations here ensue between François Villon and the King, in which the former endeavours to impress his visitor with his flowery language and the self-styled genius of a poet. Eventually the King, complaining of the cold, is given the fur cloak which was taken from the murdered man. Soon after footsteps are heard approaching, and the discovery is made that it is the watch, who, having been informed by the errand boy, are on their way thither, so the King is thereupon seized and bound, and left, trussed up, to the tender mercies of the guard, and the rogues make good their escape through a window. François, before leaving, makes merry over the King's predicament, but the latter informs him that he will soon be able to extricate himself from the scrape, and tells François that if he will watch through the window he will see how he accomplishes his release. The guard enters, and the fur coat that the King is wearing is recognised as that belonging to the murdered man, so Louis is arrested as the murderer, but is immediately set free when he informs his captors that he is the King of France. It is then that François Villon, who has been watching the outcome of events through the window, is made aware of the personality of the visitor he has been entertaining. Mr. J. Harry Irvine offered a good rendering of the character François Villon, and Louis XI. had a very able representative in Mr. Tom Heslewood, who gave good effect to that king's eccentricities. The other members of the cast are suitably placed, but all play, more or less, subordinate parts. The mounting and costumes are appropriate.

THE BENSON SEASON AT THE CORONET.

The programme this week includes not only Shakespeare's Julius Cæsar, The Taming of the Shrew, Macbeth, and Richard III., but Sheridan's School for Scandal and A Midnight Bridal, and The Belle's Stratagem. Julius Cæsar is most noticeable for the very excellent management of the stage crowd and the great scene of Marcus Antonius's funeral oration, whilst the stormy interview between Brutus and Cassius and the murder of Cæsar strike notes of vehemence and tragedy of a high order. Mr. E. A. Warburton has done some very excellent work with the Benson company, and though his enactment of Julius Cæsar cannot compare with his performances in some other plays, such as Coriolanus, for instance, he contributes a very notable performance. He is a dreamy, melancholy, and morose figure—a kind of Hamlet in his prepossession and a veritable Macbeth in his bitter remorse and fatalism. Mr. Cyril Keightley very ably depicts the jealousy, envy, and venom of Cains Cassius, and, moreover, subtly suggests, together with the meanness and choler of the man, a nobler quality of natural admiration for the constancy and strength of Brutus's character, who, in his perfervid patriotism, was truly "the noblest Roman of them all." Mr. F. R. Benson as Mark Antony, of course, has his opportunity in Act III., when he addresses the many-headed multitude from the forum in the market place; and very grandly he delivers this mournful elegy on the dead Cæsar, moving the audience as well as the mob by his eloquent pleading. Mr. H. O. Nicholson gives a graphic portraiture of the envious Casca, a performance full of sterling merit; Mr. F. G. Worlock creates a good impression as Octavius Cæsar; and Mr. Worlock is impressive as Artemedorius, a soothsayer. Mr. Murray Carrington acts with dignity and majesty as the hapless Julius Cæsar, though surely he is made up a trifle too much, like a Nero or a Louis XI., in death-like pallor and senility? Mr. Johnston is good as Pindarus, and of the ladies, all do their small parts well, including Mrs. F. R. Benson as Portia, Miss Helen Haye as Calphurnia, and Miss Leah Hanman as the page boy, Lucius.

MR. MANNERS'S OFFER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—You will doubtless remember my offer a month or two ago to give a three weeks' season, possibly at Drury Lane, in May next. I was to provide free the scenery, costumes, band parts, the services of my wife and myself, &c. The company to consist of 100 in the chorus, 100 in the orchestra, not only the principals now with me, but others where necessary, and to produce three new English operas amongst others. A committee to be formed; if there was a surplus it could go to anything that the majority of the National English Opera Union required. I deeply regret to say that as the subscription only amounts to about £230 I cannot afford to risk it. No doubt there would perhaps be a few more applications in the near future; but as there is so much to prepare, so as to have everything in proper order, it is impossible for me to wait any longer. Therefore, there will be no season this time. I have now under consideration another plan, though I very much fear that opera in English, under present conditions in this country, to any great extent is impossible.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES MANNERS.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

After a successful week of Shakespeare at the Royal County Theatre, there was a welcome change on Monday, when the first of a week's performance of that bright musical comedy The Girls of Gottenberg was given, which was well presented by a most capable company. Chief honours were carried off by Miss Simeta Marsden in the leading rôle, whilst Mr. Bertie Wright, an old Kingston favourite, kept the laughter rippling as Max Moddlekopf what time he was on the stage. Valuable also were the efforts of Miss May Marshall as Clementine, whilst others who deserve particular mention are Miss Maisie North as Elsie, Mr. Tom Shelford as the Prince, and Miss Billie Taylor as the Mitzi.

"A BOY'S PROPOSAL."

Comedy, in One Act, by Arthur Eckersley, produced at the Empire Theatre, Birmingham, on Monday, Feb. 15.

Mr. Sheringham ..... Mr. Hubert Willis
Tom ..... Master Philip Tonge
Lady Pilkington ..... Miss May Chevalier
Dean ..... Mr. Ashton Tonge

Mr. Fisher White's company is engaged in the production of A Boy's Proposal, which proves to be one of the best and brightest things vouchsafed the halls for some time. The plot, which is amusing in its complications and cleverly constructed, ranges round the daring little joke of a bright and by no means offensive little chap named Tom, who has developed the pernicious habit of imitating other people's handwriting, however. It transpires that Mr. Sheringham, the uncle of the "enfant terrible"—as well he might be dubbed on a short acquaintance—has been astounded to receive from his old friend, Lady Pilkington, a refusal of an offer of marriage which he has never really made her, and discovering that it is "a little joke" perpetrated at his expense by his nephew Tom, he has straightway fetched that young gentleman from school to apologise to the lady. Thus we see them ushered into the drawing-room of Lady Pilkington's flat by the old butler, Dean, and Sheringham is soundly rating the delinquent on his escapade. The young rascal is by no means overcome with the enormity of his offence, being more concerned over an "air-gun" which his benevolent uncle had promised to buy him. And when his uncle, in trying to get out of him the contents of the letter, asks him if it was a letter that he himself might have written, the young hopeful answers, "Yes, you might have written it, but you were such a long time that I thought I'd hurry matters up." But the confabulation is interrupted by the sound of Lady Pilkington's hansom, and, the lady herself entering, she stands surprised—and it is evident that the surprise is a pleasant one—to see Sheringham, who, however, in a way, cuts short her welcome, begging five minutes' interview, during which the boy is dismissed to an adjoining room. But soon she makes it evident that his proposal has not only fluttered, but flattered her, and, coyly confessing that she has "only been playing with him," shows plainly that she accepts him; and he, who has never looked upon the young widow in any other light than that of a friend, suddenly finds her very desirable. But his satisfaction is short-lived, for Tom is knocking at his prison door, anxious to get his "apology" over, and, on being permitted to enter, announces, watch in hand, that it is "six minutes and a half." Tom, essaying to speak, is sharply enjoined to "hold his tongue" by the perturbed Sheringham, who would now naturally keep Tom's share in the business a secret. So he hurries to get away with the boy, but the lady makes them stay to tea, playfully telling the boy that she is to be his "new aunt." He, seeing the way events have turned, makes an avid attack on the comestibles, punctuating each mouthful with his ideas on wedding presents, which he says ought to go to the people who don't get married, mentioning his "own deserving case"—and an air-gun. He next falls to talking of his school life at Winchelsea, which sets the lady wondering where she has seen the name lately, and she suddenly remembers that the envelope containing Sheringham's offer of marriage bore the Winchelsea post-mark. This causes the most amusing complications, for Sheringham's "explanations" by no means fit in, and finally the boy Tom owns up to his delinquency, whereat the scene becomes tense—so tense that the lady, in her distress and humiliation, notwithstanding that Sheringham proposes in propria persona on the spot, bids him go, telling him that his proposal is, of course, no more and no less than he could do under the circumstances. Thus he goes, and the boy remains behind unperceived, when the chivalry of the little rogue peeps out pleasantly; for, nestling up to the inconsolable widow in his frank and engaging manner, he so prepossesses the lady and impresses her with her own lonelessness that she repents of her hastiness, and on the uncle stealing back into the room for his truant nephew, she capitulates gracefully—into Sheringham's arms. The comedy opens to the strains of "Tommy, make room for your uncle," and "Tommy" at this juncture does so, with the parting shot that he is "off to order an air-gun."

The "star" part is that of Tom, the nephew, played with an engaging frankness and a charm of manner that quite endeared Master Philip Tonge to the audience, despite his "tricks." Mr. Hubert Willis showed keenly and cleverly the embarrassment and perplexities of the middle-aged, but still smart, bachelor, Sheringham; Miss May Chevalier acted with true womanly charm and vivacity as the still young and beautiful widow, Lady Pilkington, while her pathos under her disillusionment and her happiness in her "capitulation" bespoke the practical actress; and Mr. Asheton Tonge was meritorious as the faithful servitor, Dean. The comedy was very cordially received, the curtain having to be raised several times in answer to the applause.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The concert given by the students of the Royal Academy of Music at Queen's Hall on Monday afternoon commenced with the Andante and Finale from Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor, neatly played by Miss Norah Cordwell, Mr. Stanelli de Groot, Miss Phyllis Mitchell, and Miss Audrey Whitaker. A Sonata, No. 2 (MS.), for violin and pianoforte, by Mr. Morton Stephenson, student, displayed promising intelligence on the part of its young composer, and did great credit to the training he has received at the Royal Academy, although the last movement, Allegro assai, was somewhat diffuse and uncertain. The Lento cleverly written and attractive, was warmly received by the audience. The Sonata was ably interpreted by Miss Elsie Owen and Miss Mary Burgess. Miss Irène le Brun and Miss Beatrix Cashman gave an excellent performance of the First Movement from Spohr's Duet in D minor, for two violins, and Mr. Sydney Rosenbloom was heard in a great and finished rendering of Liszt's Polonaise in E, for pianoforte. Miss May Horton sang "The Loreley" (Liszt) with considerable grace and expression. An interesting feature in the programme was the duet "Lift thine eyes," original version (Mendelssohn's "Elijah"), and the great composer's marked improvement in the terzetto, second version, "Lift thine eyes." The former example was admirably sung by Miss Nina Rose and Miss Laura Bick, and the latter by Miss Laura Bick, Miss Nina Rose, and Miss Lilian Rickard. Sullivan's song "Edward Gray" does not afford much scope for the vocalist, but Mr. Carlton Brough sang with expression and admirably clear enunciation, while Master Vivian Langrish, a very young performer, deserved praise for his piano solo of Chopin's "Ballade in A flat." Miss Dora Gascoigne was much applauded in her singing of "O don fatale" from Verdi's Don Carlos, and an able performance of the Adagio, Allegro, Andante con Variazioni from Spohr's Double Quartet in E minor, No. 3, for strings, was given by Mr. Henry O. Parsons, Miss Phyllis Mitchell, Miss Nellie Fulcher, Miss Beatrix Cashman, Miss Audrey Whitaker, Mr. Stanelli de Groot, Mr. Arthur Quaife, and Mr. Benno Pitt. Mr. C. Vincent Waddington was set down for Schubert's song "The Wanderer," and the programme concluded with Liszt's "Rhapsody No. 12" (pianoforte), played by Miss Dorothy A. Chilton Griffin.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Council meeting held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 2.30 p.m., and amongst those present were Mr. Cecil Raleigh (in the chair), Mr. W. H. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Langford Reed, Gilbert Esmond, Clive Currie, Jackson Wilcox, Cecil Brooking, Robson Paige, Misses Rose Mathews, Italia Conti, Agnes Imlay, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The secretary read the minutes of the Council meeting held on Feb. 2, and the meeting confirmed and the chairman signed the same.

The chairman read letters from Mr. Arlton, Miss Conti, Miss Imlay, Miss Haye, Mr. Morland, Mr. Cattley, Mr. Brooking, Mr. Wilcox, Miss Lind, and Mr. Applin expressing their willingness to take up their election and serve on the Council, and the secretary received instructions to write to those other members of the Council who had not answered to the effect that the Council would be glad to know whether they are willing to serve, and, owing to the difficulty of obtaining quorums, whether they are likely to be in London.

The secretary read a letter from Miss Ivy Rivers with regard to the conduct of a member of the S.A., and received instructions to write to Miss Rivers and ask her to call on Mr. Mote; also a letter from Mr. George, recommending Drs. Reed and Reed to be hon. medical officers in place of the late Dr. Fell, and received instructions to acknowledge the receipt of the letter and to write to the Drs. Reed asking them if they will be willing to serve on the hon. medical staff.

HON. SOLICITORS' REPORT.

"DEAR SIR,—We have advised a lady member, and have written two letters on her behalf. She does not wish her name mentioned. We have written to Mr. Lace in reply to a letter from him, advising him as to the question of copyrights. With regard to the matter, the secretary received instructions to write to Mr. George Blunt to the effect that the lady had again seen Mr. Mote, and that she is perfectly satisfied with the advice given.—Yours faithfully,

"J. H. MOTE AND SON."

CHEQUES.

Salaries, £11; housekeeper, £1 10s.; J. Bundock, £1; extra clerks, £1 3s.

NOMINATIONS.

Rule Pyott, proposed by Fred Permain, seconded by F. Le Clercq.

Helen Yvonne Child, proposed by Madge Flynn, seconded by David Denard.

J. Boyd Pearson, proposed by Robson Paige, seconded by F. Annerley.

Miss Elsie Goulding came up for nomination, but the secretary was instructed to write and ask her how long she had been playing professionally, and whether she was paid for the parts she played with amateur dramatic clubs. Miss Marjorie Carey came up for election, and the secretary received instructions to write to Miss Carey and ask her for fuller particulars of her professional career.

ELECTIONS OF NEW MEMBERS.

Ada Rainey, Dorothea Black, Ethel Griffies, Edwin Lever, Ethel Royale, Margaret Gill, Cecil Raleigh, C. F. Collings, Hilda Sims, Ida Phillips, F. J. Arlton, Clarence Derwent.

The Council discussed the question of electing "cheque signatories." Mr. Cecil Raleigh and Miss Rose Mathews consented to sign cheques in addition to Mr. Morland, Mr. C. F. Collings, Mr. Robson Pige, Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Mr. Arlton, and Mr. Casson, and the secretary received instructions to write to the manager of the bank informing him that these two councillors had been elected "cheque signatories," which was done, and Mr. Raleigh and Miss Mathews attached their signatures to the letter.

The following are elected to the Finance Committee:—Mr. Jackson Wilcox, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, and Miss Agnes Imlay. The question of electing a House Committee was discussed, and adjourned until next meeting, and the secretary received instructions to put this on the agenda for next Tuesday.

The Council discussed the question of drawing up a form of "standard contract," and Mr. Raleigh gave notice of his intention to move at the next meeting, "That the Council should sit to consider a form of standard at an early date, and on a day other than that of the usual Council meeting."

The Council discussed the question of lectures and socials, and Miss Mathews agreed to speak at the next social on her scheme for establishing a school in connection with the A.A., and she also undertook to obtain a chairman and fix a day for the meeting before next Tuesday.

The Council discussed the question of an entertainment for paying off the debentures, and the chairman read several letters from members with suggestions. The secretary received instructions to acknowledge the receipt of these letters, and to say that the Council are much obliged for the suggestions.

The secretary received instructions to insert in the Stage and the Era a full list of those members who have promised 5s. towards the Debenture Fund, and also a list of those who have paid to date. The Council hope that all members who are able will subscribe to the Debenture Fund. Mr. Raleigh and Miss Mathews were elected trustees of the fund, and the secretary was instructed to hand the money over to them.

Miss Mathews asked the Council for permission for the Actresses' Franchise League to address the lady members of the Association at the premises of the A.A. at a given and arranged date, and this was put to the vote and carried, with only one dissentient.

The following resolution, which was carried unanimously at the last meeting of the Play Actors, was handed to the chairman by Miss Rose Mathews:—"That the Play Actors delegate Miss Mathews to inform the Actors' Association Council, in answer to their courteous message, that the Play Actors' office and rehearsal-room expenses are at present so small as not to be worth the consideration of the A.A. in taking new premises."

DEBENTURE FUND.

The following members have promised 5s. each towards the above fund:—Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Miss Marion Lind, Mr. Stavely, Mr. A. Brydone, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Agnes Imlay, Mr. Cecil Brooking, Miss R. Mayne Young, Mr. E. Morgan, Mr. Fred Grove, Mr. Gilbert Esmond, Mr. Adnam Sprange, Miss Adeline Bourne, Mr. J. J. Partlett, Miss Eugenie Kemble, Miss Anton Laing, Mr. Arthur Curtis, Miss Margaret Murch, Mr. Edwin Barwick, Miss Ella Dixon, Miss Adah Barton, Mr. Cyril Cattley, Mr. Percy Crawford, Mr. Percy Gelden, Miss May Warley, Miss Sydney Keith, Miss Beatrice Mervyn, Miss Sydney Phelps, Miss Ina Rozant, Miss Bertha Franits, Mr. A. E. Edwards, Mr. Forrester Harvey, Miss D. Gelstone, Miss Joan Dilla, Mr. Clive Currie, Miss G. Scaife, Miss T. Osborne, Mr. Sydney Compton, Miss Ethel Russell, Miss Denbeigh Russell, Miss Lillian Tween, Mr. C. T. Chapman, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Vera Gerald, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Miss E. Gilbart, Mr. Edwin Walton, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Hampton Gordon, Mr. Dennis Cleugh, Mr. Murri Moncrieff, Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton, Miss Royale, Mr. Frederick Morland, Mr. W. Farren, and Miss Lucy Sibley.

The following members have already paid up to date:—Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Agnes Imlay, Miss Marion Lind, Mr. Stavely, Mr. A. Brydone, Miss Adeline Bourne, Mr. Edwin Barwick, Miss Adah Barton Miss Beatrice Mervyn, Mr. A. E. E. Edwards, Mr. C. T. Chapman, Miss Vera Gerald, Mr. F. J. Arlton, Mr. Lawrence Leyton, Mr. Frederick Morland, and Mr. W. Farren.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"TRAIN DE LUXE,"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 18.—M. Abel Hermant, in his many interviews in the Paris Press, has defended himself against the possible attacks of the critics on the dramatising of a novel. While acknowledging that Train de Luxe appeared two years ago in La Vie Parisienne, he asserts that very little of the original dialogue in the novel, and only ten of the characters, have been retained in the play, and that the dénouement has been entirely changed. This said, we have only to consider what the author has made of the exotic colony in Paris in the four-act play produced at the Théâtre Réjane. As a matter of fact there is little motive for a play at all. M. Abel Hermant's dialogue is always graceful and amusing in book form, but when the dramatis personæ sit in semi-circle and talk with a foreign accent of foreign things occurring in an imaginary country—as they do in the first act—it becomes a matter of wonder why the author did not leave it to the discretion of the readers to turn the pages. The intrigue is of the simplest order. The Infanta Elvire (Mme. Réjane) is of an amorous disposition. Living in three rooms in a boarding house in the centre of Paris, she delights in unconventional slang and the change from the exigencies of Court life in her own country. She pays a visit to the family Arequipa, and falls in love with Manuel, the son. Here, at Dona Arequipa's—the names show we are not in the Parisian milieu—all the exotic personages congregate: Princesse Mimi, Princesse Hedwige, the Archduke Conrad, Don Luiz Arequipa, and the Marquis de la Huerta Valencia. Princesse Hedwige is also in love with Manuel, and invites him to sup in her apartment. The Infanta, jealous of the girl, manages to enter Hedwige's rooms and to lock the outer door, thinking to prevent the young man's coming. But, in truth, she only prevents his escape. Manuel, obeying the commands of the Infanta, presents himself the next day at the boarding-house, and is announced by Ernesto, the servant, the most comical character in the play. The interview, however, is interrupted by a despatch from Court, and the Infanta carries the youth off in her train. He returns after six weeks and marries Hedwige, a match arranged by the volatile, spasmodic Infanta. The very sketchy plot gives Mme. Réjane some amusing opportunities, which she made the most of with her usual verve; Mme. Marie Magnier as Princesse Mimi was as exuberant as the part requires; and Mlle Yvonne de Bray was charming as the youthful Hedwige. The house was convulsed with laughter at M. Signoret's make-up as an exotic ex-President, with gold eye-glasses and gold stopping in his front teeth—small supposed South-Americanisms that were fully appreciated. M. Bosman as Ernesto raised roars of laughter each time he appeared. Neither he nor the author seems to have much respect for exotics.

"LA FURIE."

Tragedy, in five acts, in verse, by M. Jules Bois, produced at the Comédie-Française on Feb. 17.

Lykos .....M. ALBERT LAMBERT
Heracles .....M. PAUL MOUNET
Alcee .....M. DELAUNAY
L'Hierophante .....M. FENOUX
Theseus .....M. ALEXANDRE
Lyssa (La Furie) .....MME. SEGOND-WEBER
Theone .....MME. LOUISE SILVAIN
Megara .....MLLE. MADELEINE ROCH
Cinthia .....MLLE. BERGE
Hylas .....MLLE. ROBINNE

Influenced by Euripides' "Hercules Furens," M. Jules Bois has given us a curious work, wherein his hero, Heracles, attempts an enterprise more difficult than his fights with the prehistoric beasts—that of vanquishing Death. But his efforts have failed, and he returns from Hades, followed by the lovely Lyssa (the Fury), his evil genius. In the first act Heracles, after a long absence, returns unexpectedly to Thebes, and finds the city in the hands of Lykos, the usurper, who is on the point of putting to death Megara, Heracles's wife, and the three young Heraclidæ. Heracles kills Lykos, whilst the latter's followers are slain by Theseus. Heracles then shows himself in another light. He wants to inaugurate a new religion, a religion of peace and love, without either priests or dogma, whereupon the indignant head priest, with hypnotic power, orders Lyssa to lead the new prophet of Peace to destruction. Lyssa performs her task only too well. She poisons Heracles' mind against his wife, leading him to believe that she was unfaithful to him, and that his children resemble Lykos, whom he slew. Heracles falls a victim to Lyssa's charms. In a fit of rage he murders his wife and children and throws himself off the roof of his palace. He, at one time the pattern of virtue and piety, whose life has been spent for the benefit of mankind, has sunk lower and lower until madness drove him into crime. As regards the acting, praise can be bestowed only on Mme. Segond-Weber, admirable in the rôle of Lyssa, and on Mlle. Madeleine Roch, who impersonated the luckless Megara. M. Lambert overacted his part, and M. Paul Mounet was altogether out of it. The work was well staged, but the costumes came upon us like a surprise. Thus, we saw M. Paul Mounet in a kind of scarlet tunic, braided with gold, like an officer in the Guards. There were also symptoms of crinolines and Scottish kilts—altogether a puzzling exhibition. In fact, in the course of his studies, M. Jules Bois has discovered that 2,500 years before Christ the fair Athenians were quite familiar with many so-called "novelties" in the fashionable world of to-day, such as décolleté dresses, leg-of-mutton sleeves, wigs, curl-papers, complexion dyes, and button-hooks!

MM. PAUL GAVAULT AND MOUËZY-EON may be congratulated on the success they scored with their new vaudeville Monsieur Zéro, brought out at the Palais Royal. Lucien, the nephew of the Duc de Chateau-Bouillon, is engaged to Georgette, who divorced her first husband, M. Poisson. Everything is ready for the marriage, when the Duke has a conversation with his medical friend, a crank, who tells him that children of a second husband always have the mentality of their mother's first spouse. The old aristocrat trembles at the idea that his descendants may resemble the plebeian Poisson. He, therefore, stops the marriage so that he may go deeper into the question, whereupon Georgette and Lucien produce a pseudo-Poisson, whose mission is to convince the Duke that he (Poisson) left his wife after three years' marriage "like he found her." The Duke, who only half believes this story, takes the pseudo-Poisson with him into the country, where every kind of temptation is thrown into his way in order to see whether he is really the "Monsieur Zéro" he pretends to be. Things become pretty hot, and a terrible imbroglio ensues, culminating in the real Poisson coming upon the scene. Fortunately, he can prove that, despite his unlovely name, he is of noble descent, so that the blood of the Chateau-Bouillons will not be contaminated if Lucien marries Georgette. And everything ends happily. Capitally staged and brightly played, the new farce seems booked for a long run.

DEATH OF MRS. ISAAC COHEN.

The world of the theatre will hear with considerable regret of the death of Mrs. Isaac Cohen, who passed away at Margate on Monday last. She was the wife of the well-known stage-manager who in the years that are gone "placed" so many fine productions at the Pavilion, Whitechapel, where he came to be known as the Druriolanus of the East. The deceased lady, whom he married in 1857, was known in the profession as Miss Fanny Harrison, and was born in the City of Westminster in 1838. Miss Harrison (Harris) was introduced to her future husband whilst the latter held the position of stage-manager at the Victoria (then the Coburg) Theatre. While she was being educated at boarding schools at Richmond and Gravesend she developed an excellent contralto voice, and on leaving school studied singing under English and Italian masters. Miss Harrison was married at the age of nineteen, appearing soon afterwards in soubrette parts under her husband's stage-management. She toured in standard English operas with Charles Durand and in comic opera with Henry Leslie. She had a fine artistic reputation in the provinces in Offenbach's operas La Grande Duchesse and Geneviève de Brabant, and in Lecocq's La Fille de Madame Angot. In the first-mentioned work she played the title-rôle, and in the music-loving cities of the North scored a success as Drogan—a rôle memorably associated with the fame of Emily Soldene at the Philharmonic, Islington, during the long run of Geneviève de Brabant at that house. Her Lange, too, had considerable merit. Miss Harrison ran her own companies in opera and opéra-bouffe until the vogue for Gilbert and Sullivan became well established. She then became associated with what afterwards was famous as Savoy Opera in the provinces, and the principal contralto rôles in the chief D'Oyly Carte companies fell to her share—Lady Jane in Patience, Queen of the Fairies in Iolanthe, Lady Blanche in Princess Ida, Katisha in The Mikado, Dame Carruthers in The Yeomen of the Guard, &c. Miss Fanny Harrison retired from the stage about eighteen years ago. She was the mother of Mrs. Joe Lyons, the popular wife of the famous caterer, and Miss Katie Cohen, a ballad singer on the variety stage, who is married to Mr. Albert Christian, the favourite baritone.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union was held on Friday, the 12th inst., at 49, Bedford-street. The following members were present:—Messrs. Walter L. Rignold (chairman), Henry Bedford, James English, Langford Reed, Cecil G. Calvert, E. Howard Templeton, J. W. Braithwaite, Frank Gerald, Edwin J. Collins, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary).

Communications were received from Messrs. George P. Lester, Paul Lovett, J. Hastings Batson, Fred F. Loyd, Jerrold Heather, and Royce Milton.

Business in connection with the Club scheme occupied the time of the meeting for most of the afternoon.

Two members of the Union were advanced the sum of £1 to enable them to join their companies and for the purchase of properties.

Two new members were elected.

A manager having been reported as bogus, the secretary was instructed to inquire into the matter.

The secretary reported that five engagements had been settled through the Union Agency during the week.

Members of the Union who are on tour are asked to send their tour lists to the secretary in order that letters may be forwarded to them.

A SPECIAL service for members of the theatrical profession, in connection with the Birmingham Diocesan Mission, was held on Tuesday afternoon at St. Jude's Church, Hill-street, Birmingham. There was a fairly large attendance of those for whom the service was specially arranged. Bishop Gore, who was the preacher, referred to the Actors' Church Union as having arranged that service. The Union, he said, was intended to be a sort of bridge between the Church and the actors' profession. There ought to be no bridge needed, for the Church claimed to be Catholic and to include all sorts of persons. He could not see how anyone who knew the life of the actors' profession could fail to see that in many respects they were in very special difficulties, and that the Church should make special efforts to put the services of religion at their disposal.

THERE was a great deal which required to be otherwise in the profession, perhaps, but that could be said of business and of the ecclesiastical profession. He was not going to speak particularly of actors and actresses. He preferred to talk of human life and its temptations. As to one's particular temptations, he had no doubt they would make a rather bad guess if he asked them what were the particular temptations of a Bishop, and he suspected he should make a bad guess if he attempted to say what was the particular temptation of the dramatic profession.

Two little girls, named Marsell Kreutz and Hettie Kenyon, were on Tuesday granted licences by Mr. Denman, at Marlborough-street, to enact pages in The Prisoner of Zenda at the St. James's Theatre. No objection was made by Inspector Cooper on behalf of the police.

"THE DAWN OF A TO-MORROW."

Drama, in Three Acts, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, Produced at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, on Jan. 25.

Telepathy was dramatised a short while ago, and as the playrights are dabbling in the occult and the semi-occult just now a "Christian Science drama" is quite in the natural order of things, although it seems hardly correct to apply that description to the play under notice, notwithstanding that it has been characterised as such by the New York newspapers. There are no extreme ideas in this play, nor is there anything that accords with the popular idea of "Christian Science." Take a pound of old-fashioned Christianity and flavour it with a pinch of the so-called "new thought," and you have the formula of Mrs. Burnett's drama. If there is anything "new" in cheerfulness and optimism superinduced by a literal belief in the scriptural injunction "Ask and ye shall receive," then the writer never went to Sunday-school. However, this is a matter of minor importance in view of the fact that The Dawn of To-morrow is a drama of surprising strength and interest—surprising because one would hardly imagine a condition of mind to be a sufficiently substantial theme for a three-act play.

The opening scene occurs in the library of Sir Oliver Holt's residence in a fashionable part of London. Three physicians are holding a consultation, and their unanimous decision is that Sir Oliver's mind is hopelessly affected. His brilliant career is practically ended, and there is every indication that he will sink into hopeless idiocy. In the discussion that follows, Dr. Heath, a specialist, gives expression to certain ideas that have taken possession of him—ideas which the pompous Sir Bowling Burford is inclined to pooh-pooh and condemn as sacrilegious. The specialist, while he insists that he is just as much of a materialist as the others, finds it impossible to ignore the considerations that there may be something in the new faith-healing propaganda after all. Sir Oliver overhears the latter part of the discussion, and learns that his present condition is "the beginning of the end." The consultation over, Dr. Heath turns back to say a few words to the sick man. Recovery is possible, but he must first be lifted out of himself and divert his thoughts to the needs of others. Then the specialist lays a small black-covered book on the table, in reading which, he tells Sir Oliver, some of his patients have found new hope. It is the Bible. Sir Oliver abandons all hope, however, and comes to a quick decision. Attired in a suit of working clothes and armed with a pistol he will make his way to the East-end, and there shoot himself. Under such circumstances no one will recognise him. Sir Oliver Holt will simply disappear, and all the horror of the gradual dissolution of a great mind will be averted.

The scene shifts to Apple Blossom Court, a locality the character of which is sufficiently designated by its title. As the alluring descriptiveness of this style of nomenclature is peculiar to London, it takes a Cockney to appreciate the grim humour of it, but even New York has its "Cherry-hill," and—if the old song be true—its "Paradise Alley." It is highly creditable to Messrs. Gates and Morange, the scenic artists, and to Mr. Hugh Ford, who staged the play, that Apple Blossom-court, as disclosed in the second scene of the first act, is so correctly represented that it is not only bound to impress the untravelled American, but to satisfy those who know their London and recognise "the real thing" when they see it. The scene deserved all the applause it received. The yellow gaslight dimly illuminating the "pea-soup" fog; the rowdy voices, with concertina accompaniment, bawling Chevalier's coster songs; and, when the fog lifts, the appearance of the scene as a whole, transport the beholder in effect to the heart of Whitechapel. And here we reach the kernel of the play. "Glad," a child of the streets, springs up from a heap of rags and faces Sir Oliver when he wanders into the noisome slum.

Glad shows him things, and gives him a reason for living of which he has never dreamed. For the first time in his life Sir Oliver discovers the truth of the trite old saying about one half of the world not knowing how the other half lives, and he is so completely taken up with his discovery that he forgets the pistol.

A garret in Apple Blossom-court is the scene of the second act. A young fellow known as Dandy, with whom Glad has been very friendly, is wanted by the police on a charge of murder, and they come to the garret to search for him. Before they arrive Dandy makes his appearance, and a dramatic scene occurs when Glad repels him, accusing him of the murder. Dandy convinces her that he is innocent, however, and promises to "go straight" if he gets out of his present trouble. He was going with his pals, but something seemed to hold him back, and Glad tells him how she prayed for him. She finds a hiding-place for the fugitive, and when the police come he eludes them. In relating what occurred on the night of the murder, Dandy tells the girl there is one man that can save him. This is Mr. Oliver Holt, Sir Oliver's dissolute nephew, who has seen Glad and taken a fancy to her. Dandy met him in Regent-street just about the hour when the crime was committed, and Mr. Oliver spoke to him. In the last act Glad calls at his apartments in The Temple, and pleads with the wealthy rake to give the testimony that will clear Dandy. The nephew will only do so on one condition, however. Glad tells him she would rather set fire to her dress and destroy herself where she stands. While she keeps him at bay she wonders if the faith that has already accomplished so much will help her now. "I wonder if it works with locks the same as other things," is her way of putting it, for the libertine turned the key in the door when she entered. Just as the situation seems most hopeless, the telephone rings, and shows her a way of escape. Seizing the first opportunity she summons the police, and by giving him the alternative of facing an ugly scandal, compels Mr. Oliver to tell what he knows of Dandy's whereabouts on the night of the murder. Sir John arrives at the same moment to surprise the young profligate, who is waiting to celebrate his uncle's demise. The baronet has been regenerated, and Glad is happy, for her faith is confirmed.

Miss Eleanor Robson's Glad is one of the most delightful characterisations to be found in current theatricals. The light-hearted London street waif has quite superseded Merely Mary Ann and Salomy Jane in our affections. By her latest performance Miss Robson has made herself a greater favourite than ever. Sir Oliver Holt is admirably acted by Mr. Fuller Mellish, and the profligate nephew is well represented by Mr. Aubrey Boucicault. The three physicians, Sir Bowling Burford, Dr. Heath, and Dr. Satterley, are played by Messrs. Fred W. Sidney, George Farren, and Wallace Erskine respectively. Mr. Harry Stanford acquits himself well as Dandy; and others who deserve praise for their impersonations are Miss Ada Dwyer, Messrs. Alan Pollock, Roy Fairchild, Claude Brooke, and Arthur Barry.

"A COUNTRY GIRL IN LONDON" is proving the biggest success yet achieved by Messrs. A. Northway and W. V. Garrod. It is playing to capital business everywhere, and is booked with no exceptions into 1910. Are You the Man? by Frank Price, will be produced about Easter, with new and elaborate scenery by Egerton, Bradford.

CATULLE MENDÈS.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

Catulle Mendès, who met his death under the most distressing circumstances, his mutilated body having been discovered, on the morning of the 9th inst., in a tunnel a hundred yards or so from the Saint-Germain railway station, was born in Bordeaux on May 22, 1841. His father was a Jew, his mother a Catholic. Later on, his family having settled in Toulouse, young Catulle went to Paris, where, in 1862, he brought out his first verses, "Philomela." Next came his "Roman d'une Nuit," too "peppery" for the taste of the authorities, who had him hauled up before the police-court. Sentenced to a month's imprisonment and a fine of £20, Catulle Mendès emigrated to Heidelberg. After his return to France, in 1866, he married Mlle. Judith Gautier, daughter of Théophile Gautier, the novelist. During the siege of Paris, whilst he was Inspector of the Ambulances, he produced "Les Odelettes Guerrières," "La Colère d'un Franc-tireur," "Les Contes Epiques" (1872), and "Les 73 Jours de la Commune." His first theatrical ventures were La Part d'un Roi and Les Frères d'Armes, four acts in prose (Cluny, 1873). Then followed "Hesperus" and "Les Folies Amoureuses," after which he made his début at the Opéra-Comique with Le Capitaine Fracasse (1878), and scored a big triumph at the Ambigu with Les Mères Ennemies. In 1879 he published "La Vie et la Mort d'un Clown," and in 1881 "Le Roi Vierge," one of his best novels. "La Divine Aventure" and "Les Montres Parisiens" appeared at the same period.

An indefatigable and quick worker, Mendès published from 1882 to 1885, "Le Crime du Vieux Blas," "L'Amour qui Pleure et l'Amour qui Rit," "Les Boudoirs de Verre," "Jeunes Filles," "Jupe Courte," 'La Légende du Parnasse," "Pour Lire au Bain," "Tous les Baisers," "Le Rose et le Noir," "Les Contes du Rouet," "Le Fin du Fin, ou les Conseils à un Jeune Homme qui se destine à l'amour"; in 1886, "Toutes les Amoureuses," "Pour les Belles Personnes," "Zo'har," "Tendrement"; in 1887, "L'Homme Tout Nu" and "La Première Maîtresse"; in 1888, "Le Souper des Pleureuses," "L'Envers des Feuilles," &c. He returned to the theatre with La Femme de Tabarin (Théâtre Libre, 1887), Isoline, fairy play (Renaissance, 1888), and Fiammette, a six-act drama, transferred afterwards to the Opéra-Comique as La Reine Fiammette. Then, after "Gog," "Le Chercheur de Tares," "L'Arc-en-ciel," "Les Bêtes Roses," "Les Lieds de France," "La Grève des Vignes," and "Les Baisers du Cendrier," he gave Gwendoltne, Médée (1898), Le Cygne (1899), La Carmélite, music by Reynaldo Hahn (1902), Le Fils de l'Etoile, music by Erlanger (1904), Scarron (1905), Glatigny (1906), La Vierge d'Avila (1906), and Ariane, music by Massenet (1906). And at the present moment his Impératrice will soon be put into rehearsal at Réjane's; and his Bacchus is awaiting its turn at the Opéra.

A thorough appreciator of music, Mendès was the first to open a campaign in France in favour of Wagner's music; and, an experienced journalist, he held for the last twelve years the important post of dramatic critic of Le Journal.

In Catulle Mendès France loses one of her greatest poets.

A TRAVELLING COMPANY'S PLIGHT.

The members of Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's In Holy Russia company had a decidedly unpleasant experience on Sunday last. They left Ashton-under-Lyne, en route for Wolverhampton, by the 12.24 p.m. train, which, while standing at the platform in Stockport Station, was run into by another passenger train coming in the same direction from Manchester. The incoming train was travelling at a pretty good rate when the engine struck the rear part of the stationary train, the carriages of which were occupied by Mr. Cassidy's company. The force of the impact was very great, but luckily none of the carriages were derailed, and there is no doubt the accident would have been much more serious were it not for the fact that the brakes of the standing train were off at the time. All the members of the company, with the exception of two gentlemen, were in their respective compartments when the accident occurred, and the utmost confusion prevailed. Everybody sustained a severe shock, whilst some were badly injured by the glass, which flew in all directions, from the broken windows. Fortunately Dr. Christian was conducting an ambulance class in the station at the time, and he was quickly on the scene attending to the injured, his pupils having ample opportunity of giving a practical demonstration of first aid.

Mr. Henry Compton, brother of Mr. Edward Compton, sustained a severe cut over the left eye, necessitating four stitches. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's left leg was strained. Miss Madge Trevelyan received a severe cut over the left eye and another on the left cheek. The muscles of Mr. Rolfe Leslie's neck were strained, and he also sustained a slight cut in the centre of his forehead and on the bridge of his nose. Miss Violet Parker, a child actress, was struck by a falling bag, but fortunately without any serious result. Another extraordinary escape was that of a little baby, who was thrown to the floor of the carriage, but providentially escaped injury. After treatment the company were enabled to proceed to Wolverhampton, and fulfilled their engagement at the Theatre Royal on Monday.

In an interview Mr. Cassidy expressed not only his own gratitude, but also that of the members of his company for the extreme kindness that was shown to them by Dr. Christian.

THE Opera is in a bad way, financially, in Paris. The new managers, MM. Broussan and Messager, have been forced to appeal for new funds, and, at the present moment, they are engaged in trying to find a sum of £20,000. In eleven months £28,000 has been lost. The Opera House was closed for a month when the new directors took over control; it is true, also, that there was a heavy bill to pay for repairs; but, on the other side of the shield, receipts have never been heavier than during the past year. Whereas, under the "régime" of M. Gailhard, the average takings were £550, they have increased nearly a hundred pounds under the dual control of MM. Broussan and Messager.

"No person of real musical culture," says the Pall Mall correspondent, "can sit through a series of performances without realising that there is something lacking in the way in which operas are presented on this sumptuous stage. The artists are often inferior—obviously 'passés,' in some cases. According to certain critics, the 'mise-en-scène' leaves something to be desired, though here, I think, there is exaggeration of depreciation. As to the orchestra, it is excellent; but one is often reminded that superb soloists do not always make a perfect band, any more than a team of Internationals can always be relied upon to give the best exhibition of a game. Individual superiority must be subordinated to the interests of the whole.

"ANOTHER fault of the Opéra musicians is to play too loudly. Parisians remarked with astonishment their ability to hear the singers, when the entire company from the Opera of Milan gave a performance here the other day. Up to that moment the native enthusiast had blamed the acoustics of the Opera House. The receipts have increased—the popular receipts—but Paris society no longer takes its old interest in the Opéra."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

As might be expected, the theatrical and variety professions are joining heartily in the patriotic movement which has been started by the production of An Englishman's Home. On another page we give full particulars of a scheme which has been originated by Mr. Chas. C. Ommanney and others for the enrolment of actors and variety artists in the Territorial Forces. It is both imaginative and practical, and should be carefully studied.

SIR JOHN HARE, who has been suffering from a rather severe affection of the lungs, is, we are glad to hear, on the road to recovery.

MR. H. B. IRVING will revive Louis XI. at the Shaftesbury on Monday, with himself as the King, Miss Eily Malyon as the Dauphin, Mr. Eric Maxon as Nemours, Mr. Tom Reynolds as Coitier, Mr. Frank Tyars as Tristan L'Ermite, Mr. Charles Dodsworth as Marcel, and Miss Dorothea Baird as Marie de Comines. An extra matinée of Charles I. will be given on the 25th.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has been at Leicester this week, and has discovered that the local public are very much inclined to enjoy the attack. The roomy Royal Opera House has been crowded at every performance, and seats for this evening's representation of The Corsican Brothers and The Conspiracy are almost at a premium.

ON MONDAY Mr. Harvey, Miss de Silva, and the company reappear, after a considerable absence, in Bradford. At the first performance, with the object of signalising his return, Mr. Harvey intends to give away a handsome souvenir volume, composed of quarto size plates of the famous posters proper to his many successful productions. Bradford enthusiasts will not readily miss the opportunity of becoming possessed gratis of a book which makes a very attractive memento.

MR. HARVEY will have a split week commencing on March 1, appearing in Rochdale, for the first time, on the earlier evenings, and taking train after the performance of The Only Way on Wednesday night for Halifax, where four representations are to be given at the Theatre Royal.

No play in Mr. Martin Harvey's repertory is at present meeting with more success than The Last Heir, the adaptation of "The Bride of Lammermoor." Recently the script has been subjected to some reconsideration and condensation, and the result is a decided tightening up of the dramatic action and intensity of the piece. This at once has increased the appeal of the play, which at Hull and Cardiff was received with very genuine enthusiasm.

MISS KATE FLINN, whose success as a voice producer is so well known, has had many successful pupils. Amongst those who have profited by her teaching are Miss Hilda Trevelyan of Chinese Honeymoon fame; Miss Constance Drever, whose beautiful voice made such an impression at the Savoy; Miss Sarah Brooke, Miss Annie Hughes, the late Miss Gaynor Rowlands, Miss Mabel Hackman (Mrs. Laurence Grossmith), Miss Joan Penrose, Miss Ada Webster, Miss Gadwys Parry, and Mrs. Clement Scott, who says: "It is impossible to tell the enormous amount of good Kate Flinn has done for me, even in this short time, and I have no hesitation in saying I consider here to be the most wonderful professor of singing I have ever known, as it is so very rarely you find a teacher who can explain the 'placing' of the voice and yet teach her pupils to sing their songs with such inimitable grace and style. Her enthusiasm for her art is positively contagious, and she immediately infects you with it. She is simply electric."

MISS HENRIETTA WATSON has sustained a sad loss by the death of her husband, W. Thornton Radcliffe, who died in Bradford, of double pneumonia, on Tuesday, at the age of thirty-six.

THE revival of Hamlet at the Lyceum Theatre is due on Tuesday, March 9, and great preparations are being made in order to render this production a worthy successor to that of Romeo and Juliet, which scored such a remarkable success last year, and was the means of reviving an interest in Shakespeare which had, to a great extent, died out amongst the largest class of playgoers in London. The Prince of Denmark will be played by Mr. Matheson Lang, and Ophelia by Miss Hutin Britton. Most of the other parts will be in the hands of well-known members of the Lyceum company, and the whole will be under the direction of Mr. Ernest Carpenter, who has been devoting much thought and hard work thereto for months past.

THE scenery will be most elaborate, and is being painted by Mr. E. C. Nicholls, whose work has been so much admired at the Lyceum. The costumes have been designed by Mr. Karl, of Messrs. L. and H. Nathan, who is one of the greatest authorities we have on the armour and accoutrements of the Middle Ages. Special music has been composed by Mr. H. Sullivan Brooke, the Lyceum musical director, and we hear very fine accounts of the Prelude especially. As last spring, great attention has been paid to the orchestra, which will be specially strengthened for the Hamlet production.

THE greatest pains have been taken by Mr. Carpenter and Mr. Lang, who together have prepared the Lyceum acting version, to retain all the spirit and poetry of the author. Nothing will be omitted that is in any way necessary to the action of the play or to the development of the principal character; and no word will be spoken that was not written by Shakespeare.

MR. AND MRS. LAURENCE IRVING and their company sailed on Wednesday for New York on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II. It will be remembered that Mrs. Irving, then Miss Mabel Hackney, was in the original cast of The Prisoner of Zenda, Edward Rose's adaptation of Anthony Hope's story, which was revived by Mr. George Alexander on Thursday evening at the St. James's Theatre.

MR. LEWIS WALLER had an enthusiastic reception on Monday evening at the Lyric when he revived Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr. Waller was in his best form, and the company supporting him included Miss Grace Lane, Miss Madge Titheradge, and Messrs. A. E. George, Herbert Jarman, Shiel Barry, and Franklin Dyall.

MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH and Miss Marie Löhr will be the guests of the evening at the Ladies' Annual Dinner of the O.P. Club at the Criterion, on Sunday, March 21, when they will speak in response to the proposal of their healths.

MR. CHARLES HAWTREY, by arrangement with Mr. Tom B. Davis, will open his season at the Royalty Theatre on March 20 with a play by Mr. W. Somerset Maugham, entitled The Noble Spaniard, which is freely adapted from a French comedietta by M. Grenet Dancourt. Mr. Hawtrey will be the spaniard of the story, the period of which is early Victorian, the scene being laid in Boulogne.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN has been asked to become a vice-president of "The Pen and Palette" Club, Brighton. The vice-presidents include several distinguished names, but only one other actor, viz., Sir John Hare.

MISS EMMA HUTCHISON and Mr. Percy Hutchison's No. 1 Lady Frederick (London) company, with Miss Eleanor Delaporte, Mr. Robert Minster, and a strong cast, opened to a big house at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, on Monday, the Maugham play having an enthusiastic reception, and eliciting many calls at the fall of the curtain. The Hutchison management are scoring well with all their companies this spring.

THE staff of the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, met in a social gathering on the 11th inst. in the Ewing Galleries, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. With speeches, toasts, songs, and sentiment the time passed quickly, and dancing was kept up till the early hours of Saturday morning. Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson presided on the occasion owing to the unavoidable absence of Mr. Arthur Jefferson.

MISS ETHEL IRVING will make her first appearance in English comedy in Mr. Frederick Harrison's revival of She Stoops to Conquer, at the Haymarket Theatre to-night.

MISS FLORENCE WARDEN will give an "invitation performance" of a new four-act modern comedy, The Case for the Lady, at the Kingsway Theatre, on the 28th inst.

WHEN Mr. Henry Hamilton's adaptation of Dumas's famous novel "The Three Musketeers" is presented at the Lyric Theatre on March 3 the cast will include Mr. Gayer MacKay, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Vincent Clive, Mr. Bassett Roe, Mr. H. Jarman, Mr. Shiel Barry, Mr. Frederick Lloyd, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. S. J. Warmington, Mr. Alec F. Thompson, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, Miss Auriol Lee, Miss Madge Titheradge, Miss Gwendolin Floyd, Miss Dorothy Dix, and Miss May Chenery.

MISS MARIE DRESSLER will commence her season at the Aldwych Theatre next Saturday with Mr. Edgar Smith and Mr. Maurice Levi's operetta Philopœna, the cast of which will include Mme. Morichini, Mrs. Lesmoir Gordon, Miss Gipsy Dale, Miss Lucy Kipling, Miss May Romney, Miss D. Dolaro, Miss Julie Dolaro, Mr. Sydney Barraclough, Mr. Stanley Cooke, Mr. Ralph Nairn, Mr. Frank Bernard, Mr. Edward Kipling, Mr. Alfred Leslie, Mr. Roper Lane, Mr. Harry Bertram, Mr. Cyril Keene, Mr. John Bennett, Mr. Herbert North, Mr. Charles Francis, Mr. Reginald Thomas, Mr. Hubert Purser, Mr. E. J. Carlins, and Miss Marie Dressler. The scenes are laid in Switzerland and Paris. Another attraction will be The Collegettes, a skit upon the American play The College Widow, which was performed at the Adelphi last April.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN will produce at a matinée at the Duke of York's next month a play by Mr. John Galsworthy, the author of The Silver Box, which made such an impression at the Court in the Granville Barker season. His new piece, which is to be played at a series of matinées, is called Strife, and deals with the struggle between Capital and Labour.

MR. REGINALD KENNEDY-COX has disposed of the Australian rights of his play, The Setting of the Queen's Tune, to Miss E. Fitzroy, who proposes to produce it at the Theatre Royal, Melbourne, on Empire Day.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES DRAYCOTT, who will conclude this week the forty-second consecutive week of their present tour, are fully booked until next November. They have acquired the entire rights of A Modern Adventuress and The Heart of a Hero from Messrs. Carson and Kendall, and will include those plays in their repertory. As they made a great impression in these two dramas during the two years for which they were connected with them, they naturally expect great success with them now.

MISS ANNA BEAUMONT, who has just finished her second year as the ugly sister in Mr. Arthur Carlton's Cinderella company, has been engaged by Mr. Edward Lloyd for the rôle of Miss Dove in Man to Man.

"THE CINGALEE" company, under the direction of Haldane Crichton, is having an extraordinary success on tour. At Brixton Theatre on Saturday hundreds were turned away from every part, and the house was crowded every night after Monday.

"THE FOLLIES" will give their 100th performance of the present programme at the Apollo next week. On Friday an entire change of bill will be made, and a "potted" version of An Englishman's Home will be presented, with a revised edition of Everybody's Benefit, in which several novel items will be introduced.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON and Miss Gertrude Elliott will commence a spring tour at the King's, Hammersmith on March 1 with The Passing of the Third Floor Back and A Play in Little. Many important provincial towns will be visited, and the tour will end at the Marlborough, Holloway, on May 22. In the cast will be Miss Amy Brandon Thomas, who will take Miss Alice Crawford's place, and Mr. Percy Burton has been released by Sir John Hare to become general manager of the company.

MR. A. L. LEVERING, the managing director of the Electrical Shows Company, Ltd., will introduce at the Imperial Exhibition an electrical mechanical representation of the Messina earthquake on a very large scale, the spectator being supposed to be on the deck of a vessel in the harbour. To imitate the tidal wave real water will be used.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR will open his spring season at the Kennington Theatre on Monday next with Hall Caine's Pete, played by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's actual Lyceum company, including Mr. Matheson Lang as Pete and Miss Hutin Britton as Kate.

ON Thursday, the 11th inst., an interesting charity function took place in Glasgow. This was the annual Cinderella treat to the poor children, which for the last half-dozen years has been carried through by Mrs. Percy Humphrys, wife of the popular manager at the Theatre Royal. Through the kindness of Councillor Bostock, the treat was given in the Zoo and Hippodrome this year, over 500 of Mrs. Humphrys' little guests being regaled with tea and pastry in the central portion of the Zoo, with cages of animals and birds on every side; and then the youngsters were taken into the Hippodrome, and an excellent entertainment provided for them. On leaving, each of the children received presents consisting of apples, oranges, sweets, &c.

A NEW two-tier theatre is at present in course of erection at Wallsend. Situated in a prominent position, the theatre occupies an important point at the corner of High-street. The façade of the handsome structure is of Ruabon bricks with heavy freestone dressings, and is of noble proportions, the architectural features generally being bold and artistic. The theatre will have a seating capacity of close upon 2,000. The plans are those of Mr. C. D. James, the well-known architect, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Mr. Fleming Davidson, of Willington Quay. The proprietor, Mr. Duffy, of Wallsend, expects the building to be completed by May. The old Theatre Royal was completely destroyed by fire over two years ago, and the present building will supply a much-felt want.

MR. EDWARD TERRY, at the annual general Court of Governors of the Charing Cross Hospital, in the board-room on Thursday, under the chairmanship of the Earl of Kilmorey, K.P., seconded a motion for the re-election of the retiring members of the council, which had been proposed by Viscount Ridley. The motion was carried.

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS, speaking at the meeting at Spring Gardens on Tuesday to the question of a return of the additional duties and obligations cast upon the County Council since 1904, said he hoped that one of the first things to be reported would be, in view of the terrible catastrophe in Mexico, that full power had been conferred on the Council to control all cinematograph exhibitions in London, and also the buildings in which they were given.

MR. CHARLES THORBURN, who is expected to return from abroad about the end of February, per Port Kingston, has visited America and Jamaica during the past five months, on business combined with pleasure. A scheme, formulated by Mr. Thorburn, is now under consideration by a large American trading company, to build an up-to-date theatre in Kingston, Jamaica. Mr. Thorburn may probably renew his business relations with Mr. Seymour Hicks, for whom he so successfully pioneered Miss Zena Dare in The Gay Gordons.

MR. THORBURN writes:—"I have spent a most enjoyable three months on my sister's estate, 'Tryall,' 3,000 acres, filled with cocoanut trees, bananas, sugar canes, oranges, and lemons. There are two miles of sea front, and a river runs through the property. I passed all my spare time riding, driving, shooting, fishing, swimming, and boating in a canoe, or 'dug-out.' I had a trip round the island for ten days, calling at fifteen ports. At Black River I shot an alligator 3ft. 6in. long, for which I hold a certificate signed by the captain and officers of the ship 'Jamaica.' I obtained this in case my friends should be incredulous."

"THE MOTHER OF HIS CHILD," a drama of strong domestic interest, by Arthur Shirley, with a fine emotional part for Mrs. Frank Bateman, will be taken on tour at Christmas, under the management of Messrs. Bateman and Conquest.

MRS. CROWE'S granddaughter, Miss Leah Bateman-Hunter, is evidently destined to follow in the footsteps of her illustrious relative. At the Dolling Memorial Matinée, at the Playhouse, on the 9th inst., she played Miss Eleanor Calhoun's part of Janik in The Grandsire, in a way which proved the possession by the young artist of an amount of natural ability that is certain to eventually raise her to a high rank in her profession.

AT the Pavilion Theatre on Monday a season of Yiddish drama opened with a presentation of Goldfaden's operetta Bar Cochba. Mr. Sigmund Feinman, the Yiddish actor from New York, had a hearty reception.

MR. W. CLARKSON gained the first prize at the Covent Garden Ball on Friday evening for a lady's costume entitled "The Dawn of Spring."

MR. PERCY LAX, director of the orchestra at the Opera House, Middlesbrough, expired very suddenly on Saturday last at his residence in Willow-road, Linthorpe. The deceased, who was forty-four years of age, went home after the performance, and before he had time to take his hat and coat off, or say even one word, he died in the chair on which he had sat down.

MR. LAX has been conductor at the Opera House since its opening, a number of years ago, and before that he was connected with the Theatre Royal and theatres in various other towns. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause of death. Mr. Lax leaves a wife and family. The interment took place on Wednesday.

MR. J. M. BARRIE'S delightful comedy What Every Woman Knows was restored to the Duke of York's on Monday, and the fine performances of Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, Mr. Henry Vibart, Mr. J. Fisher White, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mrs. Tree, and Miss Lillah McCarthy were again heartily admired.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR has arranged with Mr. Chas. Bell, an American manager, to present in May at the Coronet, Mlle. Mealy, from Les Variétés, Paris, and his French opera bouffe company. Two years ago Mlle. Mealy created the leading part in Robert Planquette's comic opera, Le Paradis le Mahomet, which ran for over two hundred performances at Les Variétés. She will be supported at the Coronet by well-known Parisian artists, a chorus of forty, a ballet, and a full orchestra. The engagement at the Coronet begins on Monday, May 17, and is limited to three weeks. The répertoire will be selected from La Mascotte, Madame Angot, Boccaccio, Orpheus, and La Périchole.

THE first performance out of London of The Builder of Bridges, by Alfred Sutro, was given by Mr. George Alexander's South company last Monday at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, where the play was enthusiastically received by a large audience. Miss Dorothy Green played Dorothy Faringay and Mr. Leonard Pagden appeared as Mr. Thursfield.

WE regret to learn of the unexpected death of Mr. Walter Harding, of the Theatre Royal, Stratford, on Wednesday last. Mr. Harding suffered a severe bereavement in the death of his wife but a week ago, and he attended her funeral on Saturday last when undoubtedly in anything but a fit state of health. His death is ascribed to pneumonia. The deceased was associated in business with the Fredericks family (owners of the Stratford Theatres) for nearly forty years, and was well known to and popular with the touring dramatic companies which have visited the Theatre Royal. The interment is to take place to-day at West Ham Cemetery.

MR. E. GRAHAM FALCON, the lessee and manager of the Royal County Theatre, Bedford, and Mrs. Falcon were, on the evening of the 11th inst., the recipients of a handsome present from a few of their intimate friends. The gift took the form of a silver table ornament in the shape of a gondola, and a beautiful bouquet for Mrs. Falcon. Mr. R. M. Crompton, the president of the Imperial Society of Dance Teachers, and Vice-President of the International Union of Dance Teachers, said that during the temporary absence of Mr. Falcon a few of his intimate friends had arranged an extra turn for that night only—a transformation scene in which Dr. Waller had a speaking part. Dr. Waller said it was his privilege and pleasure to ask Mr. and Mrs. Graham Falcon's acceptance of a little gift, which was a mark of esteem from a few personal friends, who were prompted by a feeling of good-will and an appreciation of the good nature which distinguished both Mr. and Mrs. Falcon. He hoped that when they looked on the gift they would remember that it symbolised the earnest and heartfelt wishes of their friends that the boat of their lives might ever "sail freely both with wind and stream." Mr. Graham Falcon, in returning thanks, said he had a lot of acquaintances in Bedford, but till that moment scarcely knew how many he really did possess. He had been in the town over ten years, during which time he had done his best to entertain the public of Bedford. Mr. Falcon concluded by quoting Tennyson's words: "True hearts are more than coronets." Mrs. Falcon also thanked them, and hearty cheers were given for the recipients.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD has postponed the production at the Criterion of Mr. Robert Hichens's new play The Real Woman from Tuesday next to the following Thursday. Very shortly a one-act play entitled The Spare Room, by E. M. Bryant, in which Miss Alice Beet will sustain the principal part, will be put on as a first piece.

MESSRS. DOTTRIDGE AND LONGDEN'S pantomime production Dick Whittington was performed at Darlington last week, and on the Thursday evening, owing to illness, Miss Florrie Gallimore was unable to appear. At extremely short notice Miss Rose Tilley stepped into the breach and most creditably performed the part, continuing to do so at the performances on Friday and Saturday evenings, and at Saturday's matinée.

MR. LESTER COLLINGWOOD gave his sixth annual pantomime dinner at Birmingham last Sunday, when the company now playing in his Alexandra success, Little Red Riding Hood, were joined by Mr. Jack Knowles (of Barrett and Knowles), the Sisters Morgan, and Rita and Roma, from Mr. Collingwood's Elephant and Castle success, The Babes in the Wood. The party was held at Harold Wallis's, the Woolpack Hotel, and the guests, who numbered thirty-two, had a very enjoyable time. The toast of "The Guv'nor" elicited unanimous applause.

A NUMBER of well-known Suffragettes who are studying elocution under Miss Dorothy Milne were present on Monday evening at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, to witness that charming young actress's portrayal of Geraldine Lucas in Convict 99.

MR. W. H. CHIPPENDALE has been appointed responsible manager for the Theatre Royal and Opera House, Leigh. He was connected with the management of the Bolton Theatres for upwards of seven years, and for a considerable period was general secretary and London manager for Mr. Fred Karno's various enterprises.

MR. GEORGE NORMAN-BURT, who is staying in Cornwall, has just stage-managed three most successful performances of The Arabian Nights in aid of the Truro and Falmouth Hospitals. The first performance was given in the ballroom at "Goonvrea," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paull, and the other two at Truro and Falmouth. Each performance was crowded, people motoring and driving distances of twenty and thirty miles, and the audiences included Lady Margaret Boscawen, Sir E. and Lady Durning-Lawrence, Lady Smith, and Capt. the Hon. and Mrs. Hood.

MR. JOHN E. INCE, a veteran comedian, who was born at Wigan in Lancashire, and had played many important parts on the American stage, died in America on the 28th ult., at the age of sixty-eight. He fulfilled an engagement there in 1907, at Proctor's Fifty-eighth-street Theatre, when his wife, who was Mrs. Emma Stead, appeared with him. For the last ten years he had conducted a dramatic school. His wife and three sons survive him.

MISS BILLIE BURKE had the misfortune to scratch her hand so badly in New York a fortnight ago that she was threatened with blood-poisoning. She has had to postpone her Boston engagement and rest for a week or two.

THE members of Mr. Allan Wilkie's company presented him on the 9th inst. with a handsome silver cigarette case suitably inscribed, the occasion being the anniversary of his birthday. The presentation was made at the fall of the curtain by the entire company, and was feelingly responded to by Mr. Wilkie. The proceedings were wound up by everyone singing "For he's a jolly good fellow."

MR. JAMES WELCH will commence a provincial tour at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, on March 1, with When Knights Were Bold, in which he will be supported by the original cast from Wyndham's Theatre.

AT the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, March 7, the Dramatic Productions Club will give their fourth production—Nan Pilgrim, a play, in four acts, by Mabel Dearmer. The cast will include Mr. Holmes Gore, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. William Haviland, Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. E. H. Paterson, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Evelyn Weeden, Miss Ada Webster, Miss Agnes Thomas, Mis Alice Mansfield, Miss Marion McCarthy, Miss Elsie Chester, and Miss Esme Hubbard.

MR. TOM CRAVEN will recommence his tours in March with his highly-successful melodrama, When a Lass Loves. The play will be seen at no less than three London theatres between March and the end of April. Mr. Craven, ever with the times, will shortly copyright another new play, which he will call The Traitor Territorial. This drama will be distinctly different to any other work on the Territorial question. No military uniforms will be brought into requisition, and it will eulogise England.

MR. F. H. NEVILLE has engaged Miss Lily Lewis, A.C.V., to star as Josephine in his enormously successful play Napoleon's Divorce, and has also secured Mr. L. Grahame-Hamlyn for heavy lead. Miss Lewis was the original of the academy picture "A Woodland Symphony," painted by the well-known artist Mr. C. Perigini. The picture was hung on the line and greatly admired.

MR. ALFRED LESTER concludes to-night an eight weeks' most successful season at the Tivoli. He opens at the Hippodrome, Portsmouth, on Monday for a short provincial tour, returning to town at Easter for a lengthy West End engagement.

MR. CLAUDE KING sailed on Thursday via Marseilles for Australia, to fulfil a thirty-two weeks' engagements as leading man with Mr. Geo. Musgrove.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH has instructed Messrs. Grant, Taylor, and Atkinson to offer for sale by auction next month, should it not be sold privately in the meantime, the house No. 55, Russell-square, W.C., described as a delightful town residence, on the south side, overlooking the garden, close to tube stations and omnibus routes, and within easy access of the City and West End, containing four reception rooms, ten bed and dressing-rooms, fitted bathroom, and excellent domestic offices, electric light; held for a term of thirty years at the nominal ground rent of £50 per annum only. Possession may be had on completion of purchase.

"KITTY GREY" is playing to good houses at the New Amsterdam Theatre, and Mr. G. P. Huntley, in the comical rôle of the Earl of Dulston is responsible for great laughter. Mr. Huntley paid Holland a visit several years ago, when he played Lord Cheyne ("Daisy") in Three Little Maids, and his droll performance was well remembered by many members of the audience that welcomed him on his reappearance in Amsterdam. At the first sight of the popular comedian there was a hearty round of applause. Miss Julia Sanderson appeared in the title-rôle, and won the favour of the audience from the start. Miss Valli Valli, as Lady Binfield, played the part delightfully, and others who distinguished themselves in prominent rôles were Messrs. F. Pope Stamper, Charles Angelo, Percival Knight, and Frank Perfitt. The piece was beautifully staged, and the performance throughout was most enjoyable.

MR. ERNEST CARPENTER, the managing-director of the Lyceum, has made a statement to the effect that in his opinion there is no falling off in the provincial public's love for good drama. "On the contrary," he says, "I believe that there is a vastly increased public for real dramatic entertainment. People have been attracted to the variety houses simply because they have found there good companies, brightness, and cheap prices, and it is of no use to try to compete with them by offering poor companies, dulness, and high prices."

IN the revised version of The Dancing Girl at His Majesty's Theatre there are some striking contrasts of costume and some beautiful colour effects. Miss Alice Crawford, as the Drusilla Ives of the first act in her Quaker costume of pale grey, with snow-white cap and apron, is as different a creature as possible, in outward seeming, at all events, from the Diana Valrose as we see her in her house at Richmond, trailing her gorgeous draperies before the enchanted eyes of her sailor-lover. Miss Crawford's gown in the second act is of gold tissue veiled with dove-grey gauze, and caught closely round the figure, with a wide sash of soft satin, lined with palest blue. A wide stole of gold filet net, heavily jewelled, hangs in front of the gown, finished with glittering fringe.

For the great scene of the reception at Guisebury House in the third act, Miss Alice Crawford wears first a beautiful gown of peacock blue and green in glittering tissues, veiled with silken net and having a wide band of silver and diamond embroidery round the hem of the skirt. Draped over this, and held by a jewelled strap over one bare shoulder, there is a long tunic of wine-purple silk net, adorned with a giant Greek key-pattern worked in aluminium thread, and falling in soft folds over the peacock-blue and green underskirt. A huge diamond butterfly shines out among a mass of other jewels on the front of the bodice, and in her hair Miss Crawford wears a Greek bandeau in sapphires and emeralds, and an aigrette formed of peacock feathers.

Later in the act this gown gives place to the beautiful frock in which Miss Crawford gives her Eastern dance to a haunting melody chosen from Mr. Coleridge Taylor's incidental music to Nero. The dress, which is half-Oriental and half-classical in its inspiration, and yet wholly beautiful and becoming, is arranged with flowing draperies of pale rose-pink and ivory-white chiffon, caught at the waist in the coils of a diamond snake, and wreathed from one shoulder with a mass of roses. In her dark hair Miss Crawford wears a diamond tiara, with a trellis-work of diamonds, arranged in the form of a Greek fillet at the back, and when she first comes half-crouching down the stairs, she drapes her face and shoulders with a cloudy veil of soft black gauze which, however, she speedily throws aside.

Miss Marie Löhr, as the crippled girl, Sybil Crake, looks charming in each of her frocks, and prettiest of all perhaps in the gown of white crêpe de chine, which she wears at the Guisebury House reception with a simply draped skirt, and a full bodice, the round decolletage outlined with a net tucker through which a pale blue ribbon is threaded. In the second act she appears in a charming dress of pale blue cloth, and a large hat of cream straw, wreathed round the crown with a ruche of green leaves, and tied under the chin with pale blue satin ribbon.

A CAFE chantant in aid of the League of Mercy is to be given on Tuesday next, the 23rd inst., at the Georgian Rooms, Piccadilly Hotel, under the immediate patronage of H.R.H. Princess Alexander of Teck. Amongst others the following are kindly giving their services:—Miss Margaret Halstan, Miss Katherine Starling, the Hon. Mrs. Southwell Fitzgerald, Miss Bertha Scholefield, Miss Irene St. Clair, Miss Ruby Helder, Miss Iris Hawkins, Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr Akerman May, Mr. Maurice Farkoa, Signor Manrico Bacci, M. Jacques Pintel, Mr. Nelson Jackson, &c. A feature in the programme is the initial production of a new one-act comedy called Chips, and written by Lechmere Worrall. The title-part will be played by Miss Iris Hawkins and the other parts by Miss Gwendolen Logan and Mr. Charles Steuart. The little play is being rehearsed by Mr. Graham Browne.

MISS ELEONORE DRILLER, who has for some time given performances of German plays at the Cripplegate Theatre, is about to place the Deutsche Volksbühne on a firmer basis, by a series of six performances at the Court Theatre, commencing on Friday, the 26th inst., with the famous German play by Heinrich von Kleist called Das Kätchen von Heilbronn. Miss Driller asks for contributions to her funds from those interested in German art.

OVER 100 persons were burnt to death at the Flores Theatre at Acapulco on Sunday night. The theatre was a wooden structure, and contained a crowded audience. In the course of a cinematograph performance a film caught fire, and the flames spread with great rapidity to the bunting decorations. There were only three narrow exits, and to these the audience rushed in a panic. Many fell and were crushed to death, and the entrance became choked. Owing to the intense heat, it was impossible to render assistance.

ON Wednesday evening, the 17th inst., the students of the Queen's University, Belfast, attended in full force at the Grand Opera House, Belfast, arrayed in all kinds of fantastic costumes, such as Red Indians, cowboys, nurses, Irishmen, negroes, courtiers, ladies of fashion, &c. They took possession of the gallery and stalls, and during the evening provided a capital programme of songs, the programme being in charge of Mr. W. Millar, Chairman of Amusements Committee. The students thoroughly enjoyed the piece presented by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company, A White Man, especially the acting of Mr. Frank Tennant as Jim Carston, who was loudly cheered during the evening. At an interval a lovely bouquet of flowers, embellished by the College colours, was lowered from the gallery by wire, and presented to Miss Eleanor May, whose charming performance of Diana won all hearts. The entire proceedings were certainly most enthusiastic.

AT Hammersmith on Monday Mr. C. Luxmoore Drew concluded an inquest with reference to the death of Deborah Bernstein, aged sixty, of Nettlewood-road, Shepherd's Bush, a wardrobe mistress and costumier, who for many years was engaged with Mr. Wilson Barrett, and recently had been at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in a similar capacity. She was found by her adopted daughter, Miss Ellen Millard, on the morning of Jan. 18 in a dying condition, and it was stated that a few days previously she had received notice to terminate her engagement on account of failing sight. Dr. Freyberger said that he had found that the deceased had taken a quantity of morphia, which, although not large, was sufficient to destroy life. It must have been taken from eight to twelve hours before death, and was taken on a full stomach, which would have the effect of delaying the poison. Miss Millard said that she was not aware that the deceased was in the habit of taking drugs, but she knew that she took tabloids of some sort. A verdict of "Suicide whilst temporarily insane" was returned.

The history of the play of Charles I., which Mr. H. B. Irving revived at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Monday evening, is an interesting one. Mr. Freeman Wills tells us that Colonel Bateman, the manager of the Lyceum in 1872, was diffident of the success of such plays as Charles I. and Hamlet. Blank verse was still regarded as hazardous, and Mr. Irving's successes had previously been won in melodrama. Many a battle was fought at the Lyceum supper parties, but the actor, with great tenacity of purpose, urged a repetition of the experiment which had been so successful in the case of Medea. The play was written at express speed—partly at Wills's Studio, and partly at 37, Sydney-street—and it was produced on Sept. 28, 1872. By this drama the author established himself as an original dramatist of great power, and Mr. Irving, who had previously been spoken of as a "promising young artist," was at once raised to the first rank of his profession.

In this play Mr. Wills certainly gave proof of power, equalled by none of the poetic dramatists that intervened, and if he did not in subsequent work always reach this high level, it must be remembered that it was difficult to get him to apply his powers to dramatic work, and he often wrote against the grain. Consequently, though he wrote many plays, his true talents were sampled by but a few. The wealth of his imagination was only partly brought to the surface. One of his intimates remarks that, in private intercourse, "he was a man full of bright and sweet imaginings, and he would reveal perfect glimpses of a fairyland of a mind full of tender thoughts and delicate [illegible]."

But he was impatient of much of the dramatic work he was commissioned to do, and when this was the case, he did it badly, selling his name and not his talents. It was when writing for worthy interpreters that his genius awakened; and only by the plays written for them ought he to be judged hereafter.

Wills's painting was a hindrance to his playwriting. The curious perversity of his nature asserted itself again and again to his detriment. When there was a pressure or urgent dramatic work, he has been known more than once to jump out of bed and seize his palette and brushes; and to keep him at work with his pen he would have to be watched and goaded on. The critics were provoked by the falling off shown so markedly in some of his plays, and when he did rise to the height of his powers they not all of them forgave him, or did him full justice. Charles I., however, stands as an evidence of what he was capable of doing, and worthily takes its place in the catena of the great history-plays of England. A few words from Miss Ellen Terry, in a letter found after his death among some treasured papers, written when the end was not very far off, must have come like a ray of light in the gathering gloom.

Miss Terry wrote: "I'm just returned from our last rehearsal of Charles I.—and coming along in my carriage, have been reading the last act, and I can't help writing to thank you and bless you for having written those five last pages. Never, never has anything more beautiful been written in English—I know no other language.

"They are perfection—and I—often as I've acted with Henry Irving in the play, am all melted at reading it again. An immortality for you for this alone. God bless you.

"Yours, with intense appreciation, E. T."

Charles I. contains some of the best blank verse that W. G. Wills ever wrote. The passage in the second act, in which Charles denounces Cromwell, is famous; and the speech in which the King lashes the faithless Murray, is worth quoting for its excellence.

"I saw a picture once, by a great Master,
It was an old man's head.
Narrow and evil was its wrinkled front—
Eyes close and cunning: a dull vulpine smile.
'Twas called a Judas. Wide that painter erred;
Judas had eyes like thine, of candid blue,
His skin was smooth, his hair of youthful gold;
Upon his brow shone the white stamp of truth,
And lips, like thine, did give the traitor kiss.
The King, my father, loved thine—at his death
He gave me solemn charge to cherish thee,
And I have kept it to my injury.
It is a score of years since then, my lord—
Hast waited all this time to pay me thus?

The effect created by the original production at the Lyceum, was extraordinary. In the last scene, we are told, the sympathetic sobs of the audience mingled with those of the disconsolate wife. Women sobbed openly, and even men showed an emotion which comported ill with the habitual serenity of the stalls. There was scarcely a dry eye in the house during the parting of Charles and his Queen. But seldom has there been beheld such a scene of enthusiasm as followed the fall of the curtain.

The original cast contained Mr. Irving as Charles I., Mr. George Belmore as Oliver Cromwell, Mr. Addison as the Marquis of Huntly, Miss G. Pauncefort as Lady Eleanor, and Miss Isabel Bateman as Queen Henriette Maria. In the revival in 1878 Miss Ellen Terry played the Queen.

Mr. H. B. Irving has many personal resemblances to his illustrious father; but, in all his performances of the characters made famous by his sire, Mr. Irving takes an entirely original view, and only copies the traditional mechanical business of the part. His Charles I. is very picturesque, winning, and various, and the fire and energy which flash out at intervals make the contrasting pathos and melancholy the more effective. He is a handsome picture in his royal robes, and developes every phase of the interesting personage with striking skill and success. Miss Dorothea Baird's Queen Henrietta Maria is a very beautiful and romantic impersonation, sweetly refined and regal, and full of amorous tenderness and affectionate earnestness. Mr. Frank Tyars depicts Cromwell—according to the author's idea of the man—with a force and vigour which leave nothing to be desired; and Mr. Tom Reynolds is a sturdy, bold, and burly representative of the fine old Marquis of Huntley. Mr. Eric Maxon is clear, distinct, and acute as Lord Moray, and supplies a telling rendering of the unthankful rôle; and Mr. B. A. Pittars's Ireton is as stern and forbidding as could be demanded, and marked with excellent decision and emphasis. Miss Eily Malyon is a handsome and spirited Lady Eleanor; and Miss Florence Waudby and Miss Elsie Videau are very charmingly intelligent as the Prince and Princess. Mr. Stanley Howlett and Mr. H. C. Hewitt are quite praiseworthy as the Cavaliers; Mr. J. Patric Curwen is entirely efficient as the Attendant; and the Queen's Page has a graceful and gallant representative in Mr. Arthur Curtis. The dresses and scenery are pretty and pleasing, and the revival has been most enthusiastically received.

"THE DANCING GIRL."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones. Revived at His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday, Feb. 16.

Duke of Guisebury .....MR. TREE
Hon. Reginald Slingsby ..MR. A. VANE-TEMPEST
David Ives .....MR. LOUIS CALVERT
Mr. Crake .....MR. G. W. ANSON
Mr. Goldspink ....MR. CHARLES QUARTERMAINE
John Christison .....MR. BASIL GILL
Augustus Cheevers ..MR. WALTER R. CREIGHTON
Captain Leddra .....MR. PATRICK KIRWAN
Charles .....MR. NORMAN PAGE
Servant .....MR. HENRY MORRELL
Sybil Crake .....MISS MARIE LOHR
Lady Bawtry .....MISS ROSINA FILIPPI
Lady Brislington .....MISS JULIET HARDINGE
Faith Ives .....MISS VERA COBURN
Mrs. Christison .....MISS MURIEL ALEXANDER
Mrs. Leddra .....MRS. E. H. BROOKE
Sister Beatrice .....MISS VALENTINE
Drusilla Ives .....MISS ALICE CRAWFORD

The Dancing Girl was originally presented at the Haymarket Theatre on Jan. 15, 1891, with Mr. Tree at the Duke of Guisebury, Mr. F. Kerr as the Hon. Reginald Slingsby, Mr. Fernandez as David Ives, Mr. Fred Terry as John Christison, Mr. Allan as Mr. Crake, Mr. Robb Harwood as Mr. Goldspink, Miss Rose Leclercq as Lady Bawtry, Miss Norreys as Sybil Crake, Mrs. E. H. Brooke as Mrs. Leddra, and Miss Julia Neilson as Drusilla Ives. The success of the piece and its frequent performances in the provinces have made the story sufficiently familiar to our readers. As an inventor of stage "notions," Mr. Jones has been astonishingly fertile and remarkably successful. The Dancing Girl is, in the best sense of the word, theatrically effective. The spendthrift but amiable aristocrat has been a popular stage figure since the times of Charles Surface, and the heroine, Drusilla Ives, is a strikingly sensational figure. Dramatic sensation is, indeed, the keynote of the play, and, though the progress of public taste has made us exact a deeper analysis and a more logical and less arbitrary treatment of passion and motive, we have not become so over-refined as to be insensible to the elementary effectiveness of high-class melodrama. Like many other plays of action and incident, the author's inventiveness is exhausted before the conclusion; and the last act of The Dancing Girl has always been its weak point. The changes which have been made in this part of the play are not of any great importance; indeed, it is not easy to suggest any real way out of the difficulty. A more or less obvious and conventional method of "winding up" the play is still employed, and, if our memory is exact, the act has not been seriously or essentially altered. The great scene of attempted suicide at the end of the third act is as telling as ever, and the many excellences of the dialogue and the minor characterisation again obtain notice and approval.

Much interest attached on Tuesday to the appearance of Miss Alice Crawford in the part of Drusilla Ives. Miss Crawford, one of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett's "discoveries," has done excellent work since her first appearance in London at the Adelphi in 1902, and was the Iris, and afterwards the Miranda of the celebrated Tempest revival at His Majesty's in 1904. She returned to that theatre in 1906, to play Charmian in Mr. Tree's revival of Antony and Cleopatra, and also appeared as Paulina in The Winter's Tale, as Olivia in Twelfth Night, and as Calphurnia in Julius Cæsar. Her performance as Glory Quayle in The Christian at the Lyceum in 1907, may have partly prepared her for her latest achievement. Miss Crawford was well equipped to undertake the rôle of Drusilla Ives, and she made a marked success in it, her reading being admirable, both in conception and execution. The sensuous, heartless nature of the dancing girl was expressed with striking skill, and Miss Crawford's command of stage resource was as obvious as the intellectual ability with which she had approached her task. Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Duke of Guisebury was the same irresistibly winning and subtly-conceived piece of character-acting which charmed the audiences at the Haymarket eighteen years ago. It was the perfection of personal effect and emphasis, and, in his hands, a really artificial part took all the semblance of life and nature. It was a triumph of impersonation, and again evoked enthusiastic sympathy and hearty admiration. A deliciously sweet and simple rendering of the rôle of Sybil Crake was given by Miss Marie Löhr, whose embodiment was one of the most charming and pathetic that could be imagined; and Mr. Basil Gill supplied a very manly, spirited, and picturesque interpretation of John Christison. Mr. Louis Calvert gave a magnificent rendering of David Ives, his splendid delivery of the celebrated curse bringing down the house in a burst of well-deserved applause. His depiction of the rugged honesty and rustic grandeur of the old father was a most impressive and powerful one. The remaining rôles were filled with great care and cleverness. Mr. A. Vane-Tempest hit off, lightly and neatly, the characteristics of the Hon. Reginald Slingsby. Mr. G. W. Anson acted with excellent discretion and practised skill as Mr. Crake; Mr. Patrick Kirwan's Captain Leddra was firm, bold, and natural; and Mr. Charles Quartermaine and Mr. Walter R. Creighton were entirely efficient as Mr. Goldspink and Augustus Cheevers. Miss Rosina Filippi's Lady Bawtry was a brilliant performance, and was worthy of the reputation of that experienced and accomplished artist. Miss Juliet Hardinge supplied a bright and intelligent embodiment of Lady Brislington; and Miss Vere Coburn won real sympathy as Faith Ives; Miss Muriel Alexander being capable and characteristic as Mrs. Christison, and that always excellent artist, Mrs. E. H. Brooke, giving a good example of her ripe ability as Mrs. Leddra. Miss Valentine's Sister Beatrice was as tender, refined, and gentle as the rôle required. The scenery was broadly effective; and, at the conclusion, in response to a tumult of applause, Mr. Tree appeared, and promised to telegraph to the author the result of the revival.

The Dancing Girl was preceded by Mr. George Paston's clever little piece 'Tilda's New Hat, recently produced at the Afternoon Theatre, in which Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Florence Lloyd, Mr. Norman Page, and Miss Sydney Fairbrother again appeared to advantage.

AN amusing unrehearsed incident happened at the second performance of The Dashing Little Duke at the Hicks Theatre. In the scene where the catchy trio "The Bold Dragoon" is sung Miss Ellaline Terriss, in the title-rôle, takes an active part and makes vigorous use of her sword. Smiting the floor with her weapon, it bent nearly double, to the unrestrained merriment of the audience Miss Terriss herself could not refrain from laughing heartily at the accident, and did her best to straighten her badly damaged weapon of defence.

MISS PHYLLIS CECIL, of the Actors' Association, won a prize of £5 in the Morning Leader competition for inventing a name by which the Leader pictures—now being shown on the Bioscope at several of the London music halls—should be called.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE will next week complete his first ten years on the stage.

THE TERRITORIAL QUESTION.

A PROFESSIONAL BATTALION.

We printed last week a letter addressed by Mr. Charles C. Ommanney to the Secretary of State for War respecting a scheme originated between Mr. Ommanney and Mr. E. G. Bale of the Cumberland Troupe of Cyclists, and Mr. George Carney and Mr. Frank Armstrong (of Carney and Armstrong), with regard to the formation of a military organisation purely for theatrical and music hall performers. The scheme has already developed most encouragingly, and the prospects are very bright indeed. First as to Mr. Ommanney himself, whose enthusiasm in the cause is very keen. He comes of a military and naval family. His ancestor, the late Sir Erasmus Ommanney, was a midshipman at the battle of Navarino, and headed the expedition in search of Sir John Franklin; and another relative, Sir Montague Ommanney, lately Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, is a Captain in the Royal Engineers. Mr. Ommanney, when the South African war broke out, held a lucrative position as secretary to a limited liability company in London. He threw up this position to go out to South Africa as Second Lieutenant of the Cheshire Imperial Yeomanry. He was severely kicked by a horse, and was invalided home; but he went out again with the 27th Battalion of the Imperial Yeomanry, being signalling officer of his regiment, which was quartered in Cape Colony, then under command of General French.

So the movement starts with a leader whose heart is entirely in it, and who has had all the necessary practical experience.

THE PRACTICAL WORKING.

The plan which it is now settled is to be adopted, is to form companies entirely composed of theatrical or variety artists in connection with the London Irish, whose headquarters are at 2, Duke-street, Adelphi. Colonel Pakenham, who is in command, is one of the smartest officers in the service, and, by his advice, enlisting will be carried on until sufficient numbers have been enrolled to justify an appeal to the War Office for the formation of a special battalion. There is little doubt of such permission being granted.

ATTRACTIONS AND ADVANTAGES.

The attractions of the Territorial Service should appeal strongly to actors and variety artists, and they ought to make excellent soldiers. They are alert, active, resourceful, and accustomed to discipline; and their profession implies a certain amount of "smartness." The actor and the variety artist have a good deal of leisure, forced and unforced. The training would supply a congenial occupation for some of the idle hours which are at present often spent in a less admirable way; and there is a special attraction to the actor and variety artist in the fact that the time for camp, in July, comes at a season of the year when many, out of engagements, would hail with delight a holiday in fresh air, amidst beautiful scenery, and with the stirring interest of military manœuvres, not only without expense, but with positive profit; for all ranks, while in camp, receive pay. The advantages of drill in "setting a man up," and making him neat and quick in movement and manly in bearing are so obvious that we need not enlarge on them. And the high spirit of the profession should respond to the impulse that makes every young man wish to be able, in case of need, to assist in the defence of his native land.

HOW DRILLS WILL BE DONE.

It may seem difficult to understand how the necessary number of drills are to be done, with so many members away in the provinces; but it has been arranged that, by a system of affiliation, artists on tour will be able to do their drills with the local regiment in any town where they may be acting. Each man will be provided with a book of voucher-forms to be signed by the officer in the town where the recruit does a drill; so that efficiency may be obtained without constant residence in London.

THE MORAL BENEFIT.

One of the great benefits that will be conferred by Mr. Ommanney's scheme will be an increase of camaraderie amongst the members of the profession. There is no bond like that of the service, and a week or two in camp brings men together in a way that nothing else can. Offers of enlistment are coming in rapidly, and the success of the movement seems to be already assured.

HOW TO ENLIST.

Members of the theatrical and variety professions wishing to join should fill up a form similar to the following:—

INTENDING RECRUITS WILL KINDLY FILL IN FOLLOWING PARTICULARS.

(See Example below.)

Christian and Surname in Full	Name of Act or Professional Name	Age	Permanent Address	Special Qualifications and Remarks
EXAMPLE.
Arthur Jones	Jones Family	28	5, Dupres St., London	Signaller; served Boer War; Queen's Medal, 5 Clasps; Rank, Sergeant.

These forms may be obtained at The Era Office, 5, Tavistock-street, and should be forwarded, when filled up, to Mr. Chas. C. Ommanney, 55, Talgarth-road, West Kensington.

Mr. Ernest Mansell, lessee of the Royal Palace Theatre, Ramsgate, is probably the first theatrical manager to come to Mr. Haldane's assistance in attracting Territorial recruits to the ranks. Mr. Mansell has just placed at the disposal of the officers of the various branches of the service in the Isle of Thanet, his beautiful redecorated theatre for a grand Territorial night in the near future. The programme will open with a grand tableaux on the stage, representing all local units, and supported by ambulance and nursing sections, lifeboat service, policemen soldiers, postmen soldiers, &c. The officers will be invited to make speeches, massed bands will play patriotic music, and national songs will be sung, such as "Teddy's boys," "Land of hope and glory," &c. A grand military and Territorial picture show will be given, and the proceeds will be devoted to the local general hospital. Captain H. Inskip, harbour master, has promised his support, and local mayors, boy scouts, Church Lads' Brigade, &c., are invited to assist. All old soldiers and sailors from Thanet presenting their parchment discharge at the doors will be admitted free, as also will all Territorials in uniform. The building will be decorated, and it is proposed to place recruiting parties at the exits.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I, through the medium of your excellent paper, address a few lines to the men of the profession generally? I think Mr. Chas. Ommanney and his co-partners are to be congratulated upon their patriotism, as shown by the inauguration of the scheme outlined in your issue of the 13th inst. It rests with the men of our profession to show whether it can be fulfilled or not. We have the right men for the work, and plenty of them. When things are made so convenient that we can "put in" our drills without interfering in any way with our business, and find pleasure in so doing, and also attend camp at a time when most of us are "resting," surely the least we can do is to join.

What the men of London have done and are doing we can do. Don't let us be behind them in showing our love for our country. Theatre and music hall proprietors and a good many of the artists possess property which occupies no infinitesimal part of Old England. Let us learn to defend it. None of us would like to stand idly by and see others defending our property while we could do nothing, unless, like Mr. Brown, we took up arms and suffered for it. Don't let the curtain ring up and find us unprepared; there are no "stage waits" in warfare. For the honour of our profession, rally round the Flag, and let us form a battalion from our own to protect our own. Thanking you in anticipation for the insertion of this letter.—Yours faithfully,

EDMUND VYSON.

Thynne-street, Bolton, Feb. 16.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—My conscience has in the past twenty years always been giving me a gentle pricking with regard to my duty of serving as a volunteer, but I have always been able to soothe my conscience by saying to myself, How can I join any regiment when I am always travelling about? But unfortunately for me—perhaps it may have been after reading of poor Mr. Brown being shot on his own lawn in An Englishman's Home—an idea came into my head: Why should not I and members of my profession have a regiment, and yet not a regiment? That is to say, we could have our own particular uniform, and headquarters of some sort in London, but when on tour we could drill with the regiment in any particular town we happened to be at. I would also suggest that we take a name like the motto of the Artillery, but instead of using theirs of "Ubique," should call our Territorial "Ubiques." There must be some thousands of professional men who could easily devote an afternoon to drill; indeed, with musical comedies, comic operas, and plays running regularly throughout a long tour, and with few or no rehearsals, I should think they would be rather glad to have something to do in the way of drill, target practice, &c.

I hope you won't consider this idea of mine the result of terrible enthusiasm at the moment, for it is not so. I do not want to be too conceited about my profession, but I think the country could do worse than have, in case of emergency and theatrical performances stopped, a good regiment of Harry Lauders, Hicks, John Coates, and Bensons to—shall I say scout? If they got into a tight corner I think we could pretty well rely on them not being the worst type of Englishmen to get out of it again. Of course, this is only in the rough, and could be gone into more minutely if necessary.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES MANNERS.

Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh.

M. OCTAVE MIRBEAU and M. Natonson's play Le Foyer is meeting with a hostile reception in several French provincial towns. During its run at the Comédie Française the piece gave rise to stormy scenes which had their sequel in the police-court. At Angers, where it has been played this week, similar incidents have occurred. Le Foyer contains allusions which do not encourage respect for priests. The result is that champions of the cloth have taken a violent dislike to the play. In order to defy the authorities, the manager of the Angers Theatre shut himself up in the booking office for two days. He ate and slept there. On the day before the piece was played the office was kept shut. The theatre was guarded by police, and those people who appeared to buy tickets received them through the window.

THE Mayor had forbidden the performance, and the police, on seeing the tickets sold through the window, rushed to their headquarters for further instructions. When they returned they cleared the crowd from the window. But those people who wanted tickets wrapped their money in paper bearing their addresses, and threw it at the manager. Next morning the Mayor's edict was set aside by the Prefect. In the evening a squadron of dragoons, a battalion of infantry, besides mounted gendarmes, were on duty near the theatre. Only sufficient room was allowed for those who had bought tickets to enter the theatre.

WHEN the performance was about to commence the Mayor cut off the gas, and forbade the women attendants and the stage hands to work. The manager had recourse to motor-lamps for lighting the wings and oil lamps for the auditorium. Choristers and ballet-girls acted as attendants and stage hands. When the curtain rose the manager appeared, and in a speech declared that he had promised to produce Le Foyer, and would produce it. Actors and actresses helped in the scene-shifting. It was one o'clock before the performance came to an end.

Mr. Edward Rose's adaptation of Mr. Anthony Hope's story was produced at the St. James's Theatre on Jan 7, 1896, with Mr. George Alexander as Prince Rudolf, Mr. Herbert Waring as Duke Wolfgang, Mr. Charles Glenney as Gilbert, Earl of Rassendyll, Mr. W. H. Vernon as Col. Sapt, Mr. Laurence Cautley as Captain Hentzau, Mr. Allan Aynesworth as Bertram Bertrand, Mr. Henry Loraine as Marshal Strakencz, Mr. George P. Hawtrey as Franz Teppich, Mr. George Bancroft as Lord Topham, Miss Evelyn Millard as Princess Flavia, Miss Lily Hanbury as Antoinette de Mauban, and Miss Olga Brandon as Frau Teppich. The play is so well known, both by the popularity of the novel and by the success of the piece at the St. James's and elsewhere, that no description of its excellences is needed now. It is sufficient to say that time has not staled the adventurous incidents and exciting situations of the drama, and that, with Mr. Alexander in his original rôles, and a capital company supporting him, the piece goes as well as ever. Mr. Alexander is specially adapted for the ebodiment of the handsome, self-contained, resolute Englishman, and the touch of chivalry which he gives to his performance makes it especially attractive. The important character of Colonel Sapt has an excellent representative in Mr. Alfred Brydone; and that strong and sound actor, Mr. Frank Cooper, gives a capital reading of the rôle of Michael, Duke of Strelsau. Mr. Vernon Steel does justice to the dashing devilry of Captain Hentzau, and Mr. Vivian Reynolds's Lord Topham is a neat and refined bit of comedy acting. A striking success is created by Miss Stella Patrick Campbell, who plays Princess Flavia. Besides being remarkably beautiful and possessing a strange sweetness of style and a fascination of manner difficult to define, Miss Campbell shows great ability as an actress, and depicts the delicate emotions of the Princess with most intelligent skill. She promises, in time, to become one of the most popular actresses on the stage. Miss Frances Dillon puts plenty of spirit and vigour into her performance as Antoinette de Mauban; and Miss Beatrix de Burgh is good as Frau Teppich. A special word of praise is due to Mr. Reginald Owen's Fritz von Tarlenheim, a bright and effective impersonation; and Mr. Henderson Bland is characteristic as Detchard; Mr. Ben Webster being, of course, easily efficient as Bertram Bertrand. The minor rôles all had excellent interpreters, and the revival was up to the St. James's standard of liberality and completeness. Mr. W. Hann and Mr. W. Raphael's stage pictures are feasts for the eye.

"THE roller-skating boom," says the Express, "has penetrated the innermost circles of society. The grill-room at Olympia is crowded with society folk, and 'Olympian parties' are the rage on Tuesdays and Thursdays. While society disports itself in the mornings in comparative seclusion, it mixes, just as it does at bazaars and restaurants, with the ladies who adorn the musical comedy stage in the afternoons. The twenty-four men instructors who pilot timid dowagers round the rink are reaping a golden harvest in tips."

AMONG the patrons of Olympia have been the Duchess of Bedford, Lady Evelyn Guinness, Lady Claud Hamilton, Mr. Robert and Lady Juliet Duff, Lord and Lady Crichton, Lord Arthur Hay, Lady Donegall and her little boy, the present Marquis, Lady Wharncliffe, Lady Westmorland, the Marquis de Soveral, Miss Alexandra Bertie, Mrs. Ridgely Carter, of the United States Embassy, and Mrs. Alfred Yorke.

THE most persistent skater is the Hon. Mrs. Lyndhurst Bruce (Miss Camille Clifford), who has missed few "sessions." All the fashionable jockeys may be seen there, and among the theatrical skaters who are regular habitués are Miss Lily Elsie, Miss Gertie Millar, Miss Zena Dare, Miss Maudi Darrell, Miss Denise Orme, Mr. George Graves, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and Mr. Huntley Wright.

"PERHAPS realism and the drama," says the English Review, "have at most periods of the world's history been entirely at variance. It is certain that neither Mr. Barrie nor Mr. Shaw comes with any frequency at all near to the life we live to-day. Regarded philosophically each of Mr. Shaw's plays resolves itself into a variety entertainment in which character after character does his brilliant verbal 'turn' and then retires into the background. It would be too extreme to say that this is the sole characteristic of Mr. Barrie, for his chief, his distinguishing note is the tenderness, the justness, of his sentimentality.

"AND sentimentalism is as legitimate a medium as are realism, pessimism, or cynicism. The first business of the author is to interest; his instrument wherewith he interests us is his exaggeration. If that be true to himself, if he be an artist of sufficient attraction, it will convince us of the reality of the story that he tells. Subtlety of speech is impossible upon the stage, for you cannot turn back the leaf to read the speech before the last, and whilst you are reflecting upon the hidden meaning of one speech you will miss the significance of three more. For subtlety Mr. Barrie substitutes quaintness and appeals to the emotions. For subtlety Mr. Shaw substitutes half-truths in startling aspects. How Mr. Shaw would come off if it were considered bad taste to laugh in theatres, so that speech after speech was uttered without the break and the pause for the inevitable Shavian laughter, we hardly dare to speculate, but whereas Mr. Barrie for the time being convinces us, Mr. Shaw hardly ever does this. His speakers overspeak, his actors overact, and we are delighted. But a touch of realism will disturb our delight.

"WHAT'S CHARLES WORTH?
OR, THE MAID AND THE MOTOR-CAR."

Burlesque Drama, by Cayley Calvert, Music by W. Snell Robinson, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, Feb. 15.

Charles Friendly .....Mr. Clifford Pembroke
Rudolph Bluffem .....Mr. Edmund Gurney
Wattshisname .....Mr. Alfred Donohoe
Coppall .....Mr. Geo. Edwards
Carburetta .....Mr. Horace Corbyn
Verbena Fluffemall .....Miss Alice Drummond
The Four Rapid Merchants
The Bureau Quartette
Daisy Fluffemall .....Miss Sylvia Cavalho

The title quite prepares one for the nature of the plot of this amusing satirical sketch, and the escapades of the young lady whose disappearence created some sensation recently are very drolly burlesqued by Mr. Cayley Calvert, some of the situations and lines being most mirth-provoking. The first scene represents the exterior of Petrol Lodge, one of the seats of Miss Daisy Fluffemall, an alluring damsel with a passion for motoring. The water-rate collector and a provision merchant call for the settlement of their accounts, but Daisy's chauffeur makes a very wily gatekeeper, and they are unsuccessful in their application for money and admittance. Carburetta, a smart representative of the Miranda Motor Company, and Coppall, a Jewish stockbroker, also interview the lady—who, attired in a red motor-coat, has now come on the scene—and angrily request that their accounts shall be attended to, but Daisy, who is to come into a legacy of seventy-five million pounds on the 33rd of the month, persuades them to step inside the house, a hint at liquid refreshment on the drawing-room table working wonders. Charles Friendly, a motoring acquaintance of Daisy's, then makes her an offer of marriage. "What's Charles worth?" she wonders. He is evidently as impecunious as she is, but as he is sincere, and a very decent fellow, she accepts him as a lover, and he it is that hits on the idea of eluding her creditors by a motor ride, and the subsequent "accident." In the next scene, "The Hole in the Wall," we see the quartette—Daisy and Charles are accompanied by the chauffeur and her sister Verbena—in a powerful motor, and the "terrible accident" is shown. The car receives a few gentle taps with a hammer, a small piece of rock is dislodged, Daisy's cap is thrown over the cliffs, and she and Charles take their departure, after instructing the chauffeur to describe the incident and declare that his "poor mistress has been thrown over the cliffs and drowned in two inches of water!" The last scene represents a room in the Hotel Mac Bawbee. Miss Fluffemall—who has been pestered by interviewers and photographers—is too ill to leave her room, but on the arrival of her sister and Charles she puts in an appearance in full Highland costume. Coppall and Carburetta are unwelcome visitors, but the arrival of the "four rapid merchants," a quartette of enterprising music-hall agents, who vocally make her lucrative offers, cheers her up somewhat. They are, however, completely put in the background when Rudolf Bluffem, a variety manager, comes on the scene. The public don't want talent, he says. What they require is sensation, and "Madame is absolutely the limit!" She can't sing or act, but she shall have £1,000 a week, top the bill, have a motor to take her about, and be supported by a company of talented actors. All she will have to do is to appear and take the money. Miss Fluffemall is delighted. She arranges that Coppall and Carburetta shall have a claim on her salary, and as there will still be a bit left for her and Charles to live on, all ends merrily. The amusing trifle was played in exactly the right spirit by the clever company responsible for its representation, Miss Sylvia Cavalho making a handsome and fascinating Daisy, her performance throughout being most praiseworthy. Charles Friendly had a convincing and manly representative in Mr. Clifford Pembroke; Mr. Alfred Donohoe was exceedingly droll as the chauffeur; Mr. George Edwards was funny as the stockbroker Coppall; Mr. Horace Corbyn made an excellent Carburetta; and Mr. Edmund Gurney as the imposing music-hall entrepreneur, Bluffem, was responsible for a clever caricature that was not over-coloured, and was evidently keenly enjoyed by the audience. Miss Alice Drummond and the Bureau Quartette also contributed to the success of the playlet, which created much merriment throughout.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow's programme contains many other items that make for enjoyment, some of the loudest applause heard during the evening being accorded Hayes and Merritt, the world's champion bounding trampolinists. All their feats are clever, but particularly difficult is the twisting double somersault of Jack Merritt, the successful accomplishment of which delighted the audience on the night to which we are alluding. Martinett and Wallace are a couple of entertaining and smart darkey musicians, and employ some novel instruments, from which they extract real harmony; Mr. Herbert Bates, tenor vocalist, pleases greatly with his illustrated songs, which include such old favourites as "I dreamed a dream," "Ever of thee," and "She wore a wreath of roses"; and Mr. Harry Clifford was accorded a flattering reception for his admirable rendering of "Oh, Johnny, there's a locket in your pocket" and another telling number. The Austral Trio have an enjoyable item in "A Musical Evening," the representative of the page being a particularly smart dancer and a droll comedian; Selby and Myers are funny patter comedians and expert dancers; and Master Cliff Diamond, a clever juvenile comedian and dancer, sang with much point an amusing ditty, "Oh, those seaside girls," and another entertaining number, the accompanying walk-round and dance adding considerably to the attractiveness of the turn, which was loudly acclaimed. The Gentrys, Miss Harriett Rose, and Jeapes' Animated Graphic also provide entertainment.

"THE STEAM HAMMER."

A Dramatic Sketch, in Two Scenes, by W. H. Benson, with music by Richard E. Lawson, Produced at Sadler's Wells on Monday, Feb. 15.

Mad George .....Mr. Wilfred H. Benson
Dan Myton .....Mr. Stanley Grosvenor
Inspector Watson .....Mr. E. Hill Cramer
Brooks .....Mr. Dan C. William
Dick .....Miss Kitty Seymour
Mrs. Hugh Drayton .....Miss Mabel Wynn

Mrs. Hugh Drayton is a dare-devil sort of woman, who hesitates at nothing in order to achieve her ends. She has already committed one murder, and is prepared to be responsible for another. She is set down as the owner of some works which really belong to Dick, a foundling, who has been taken care of by a workman, who bears simply the sobriquet of Mad George, who, ten years previous to the opening of the piece, lost his memory, partly owing to a trick played upon him by Mrs. Drayton. The discovery of an old coat, worn by George before he became mentally afflicted, affords a clue to his identity, and he recovers his retentive faculties. Then it is made clear that the boy Dick is entitled to the Drayton property. While the boy is asleep in the works Mrs. Drayton chloroforms him, and places him under a steam hammer, which is set in motion. Dick is, however, rescued, and Mrs. Drayton is placed under arrest. The sketch is suitably enacted, Mr. Wilfred Benson furnishing a pathetic study of Mad George, Miss Mabel Wynn successfully portraying the villainies of Mrs. Drayton, Miss Kitty Seymour winning sympathy for her presentation of Dick, and Mr. Stanley Grosvenor coming in for a fair share of applause in the rôle of a drunken workman, Dan Myton.

MISS MAUD ALLAN'S RETURN.

There was a strong feeling of sympathetic expectation at the Palace Theatre on Friday afternoon, the 12th, which was only allayed by the beautiful rendering of the third movement of Beethoven's well-known "Leonora" Symphony, by the full band of the London Symphony Orchestra, under the masterly direction of Mr. Landon Ronald, and when the curtain rose on the familiar semi-circle of velvet draping and a girlish figure slipped through and began an Arabian dance, to the music of Tschaikowsky's melody from the Casse-Noisette Suite, the applause was unanimous and prolonged. Clad in an almost transparent white garb, suggestive of the East, with head and hips girt with bright colours, Miss Allan was the alma of the poet's fancy to the life. The wonderful arm movements and a suspicion of movement in the hips gave the requisite illusion of the Arabian dancing girl, where the feet and legs do not play so prominent a part in the performance as the upper part of the body, and this quite new dance will assuredly form part of Miss Allan's permanent répertoire. In the "Passe-pied" from Délibes' Le Roi s'amuse Miss Allan wore a filmy dress of clinging grey material, and the frequent recalls at the termination of the dance showed the appreciation of the interested spectators—a crowd in which the world of art was conspicuous. Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," one of her most inspired and sprightly creations, was included at the request of many patrons, and, as ever, it was the embodiment of some joyous being finding herself in the meadows, where each bud, each breath, each butterfly calls forth surprised delight and spontaneous gaiety. The orchestra then played "Le Rouet d'Omphale," by Saint-Saëns, with its haunting refrain for the muted strings, strongly suggesting agitated rotary movement, and followed this by a masterly rendering of Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyrie," which was listened to breathlessly and applauded to the echo. Miss Allan's next suite of dances was a quartette illustrative of Edvard Grieg's "Peer Gynt" Suite, beginning with the beautifully cumulative air "Morning," in which she wore a parti-coloured garment. "Ase's Death," the second movement, was a moving interpretation of severe grief. "Anitra's Dance," which Grieg wrote as an Eastern piece, was conceived in a spirit of graceful abandon. The weird "Dance of the Gnomes" gave Miss Allan an opportunity for the display of an almost elfish humour. As the measure quickened she seemed to be dancing with the hundreds of the little people, stooping over them, encouraging them to wilder and faster dancing, finally collapsing as the music ended with its often-repeated almost eldritch chords and banging cymbals.

The Tannhäuser Overture has seldom been better played, and the hundred performers of the Symphony Orchestra were welded into one idea and accord by the skilled bâton of their conductor. Another new dance to Rubinstein's "Melody in F" followed, and very sweet and characteristic it proved to be. The established favourite, Rubinstein's "Valse Caprice," was the last item, and this proved as clever and as successful as ever. As the music dies down so does the dancer sink to the ground, almost exhausted with her wild efforts, but when the orchestra again bursts forth the once tired nomad rouses herself once again, and finishes in a whirlwind of movement and grace.

There was no vacant seat in the house, and as many of Miss Allan's old friends and admirers as were in town seemed to be there to assist at her re-entrée, amongst them being the Marquis de Soveral and party, the Earl and Countess of Kinnoul, Viscount Esher, Sir Edward Ward and party, Lady Bective and party, Lady Brassey, Lady Sassoon, Mrs. Ralli, and Mr. Herbert Beerbohm Tree.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Parson Gray, V.C., a semi-military sketch, in seven scenes, is the chief attraction in an excellent programme this week. Mr. George Gray and company present the piece, which is particularly appropriate at the present moment by reason of the interest aroused in the Territorials and home defence, the allusions to which elicit spontaneous recognition. The story of the young clergyman Thomas Gray, who, believing dishonour attaches to his birth, leaves home and England to fight for his country in South Africa, and who there, by almost reckless deeds of valour, wins the much-coveted V.C., is dramatically and tactfully unwoven, and the hero's return to his home sees a blissful ending to a story which proves exactly to the liking of the audience. Chief interest naturally centres round Mr. George Gray's performance in the name-part, which fits this sound actor like the proverbial glove. Mr. Gray has earned such renown as "the fighting parson" that obviously a display of fisticuffs is essential, and this is introduced in the Boer farm scene, where, though wounded, the parson floors a whole squad of the "foreign legion"; as also is the parson's fondness for the youngsters in frequent evidence. The sketch is mounted with much realism, and the strong support Mr. Gray receives from his company is entitled to a special word.

The Dandies, presented by Henry J. Corner, provide a light and pleasant interlude, which is in much favour. Their songs and dances go remarkably well, and the applause they receive is eloquent testimony to the popularity of this class of entertainment with vaudeville audiences. Mr. Willie Zimmerman, in his impersonations of noted musicians, is both clever and amusing, and his turn is a decided acquisition to the programme. Miss May Edouin provides some merry moments in her scena wherein she is left in charge of a theatrical costumier's shop. Suiting the action to the occasion, she quickly dons first the dress of a Spanish prima donna, then that of a Chinese maiden, concluding with "trying on" the evening dress of a ballad vocalist, in each costume giving a characteristic performance, and her versatile display is rewarded by very hearty applause, which necessitates her re-appearance before the curtain. Mr. Jack Lane's drily humorous style in portraying a Yorkshire rustic is provocative of much laughter, and in accompanying himself on the piano he also shines.

Miss Bertha Stuart is very cordially received, which is a sign that local audiences have not forgotten her former appearances here. Her fine contralto voice is heard to great advantage when she appears as a comely fisher maiden and renders with much expression "Caller herrin," for which she has a very appropriate stage setting. Her other item, "The star of Robbie Burns," is also in huge favour. Mr. Walter Curtis creates much laughter with his discourse on "Work," by One Who Won't, and he is the recipient of hearty applause. Mr. Bert Woodward performs many daring and clever cycling feats, and his performance is watched with much interest. The Three Sisters Jerome in a novelty entitled Aunty's Maid are well received, and their turn adds to the evening's enjoyment. The American Bioscope is always a popular feature by reason of the clearness of the pictures shown, and this week's series, including The Legend on the Forget-Me-Not, readily find favour. Early comers are regaled by the overture "Merry Wives of Windsor," spiritedly rendered by the orchestra under the bâton of Mr. Albert Whipp, Mus.Bac.; while nothing is left undone to conduce to the comfort of those in front by the courteous acting-manager, Mr. E. J. Macdermott.

FRED MILLIS'S BENEFIT CONCERT

The Sunday concert at the Empire, Camberwell, held on St. Valentine's Day, was, we are pleased to record, a great success. There was an excellent house, especially in the better-priced seats, and a long and varied programme was submitted to a most appreciative audience. The stage managers, Messrs. Dyball, Neiman, and Nutt, started promptly at 7.30, and the entertainment lasted until after 10.30. The following artists appeared:—Maud Lloyd, Fred Temple, Florrie Robina, Ernest D'Almaine, Lena Pinaud, Florence Winston, Bert and Brand, Jennie Hilton, Gilbert Girard, Maud Marshall, Edwin Barwick, Gertie Gitana, John Le Hay, Freda Sharlotte, Bosanquet, Mrs. Albert Bradshaw, the Stavordale Quintette, Ruth Wallace, Mollie Seymour, Gus Harris, Harry Pleon, and Charles Coborn.

The private boxes were occupied by representatives of the different music hall societies, and there was a large number of the profession to be seen in the dress circle and stalls. The directors of the Empire having most kindly given the theatre entirely free of charge, there will be a substantial sum to be added to the testimonial fund. The committee desire to thank the directors, the artists who appeared and those who came but were unable to perform owing to time, the stage managers mentioned above, and Messrs. Leon Bassett, W. S. Bassett, and F. Hurst, the conductors of the grand orchestra, who gave such a musical treat by playing the overtures to Tannhäuser and William Tell.

During the evening the committee appeared on the stage, and Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the chairman of the executive committee, expressed to the audience, orchestra, and artists his thanks in a neat little speech. Mr. Fred W. Millis also in a few feeling words thanked everyone for their kindness to him.

The thanks of the committee are tendered to the ladies of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild who so kindly sold programmes on behalf of the fund, and by their exertions realised some £11 by the sale of dainty perfumed souvenirs. They were quite irresistible, and wore handsome floral sprays, the gift of Mr. Watson, the well-known florist of Catherine-street. Miss Melinda May, the energetic secretary of the Guild, deserves warm thanks for her hard work in selling tickets and supervising the programme arrangements. Mrs. Fred Ginnett, the president of the Guild, was also most helpful in assisting the good cause.

Mr. Fred Millis asks us to express his heartfelt thanks to the artists who appeared at the concert, to the directors of the Empire, Camberwell, to the committee, and everyone else who has helped to make the testimonial the success it has been. Mr. Millis, although nearly blind, is still able to perform his ventriloquial act as well as ever he did, and is open to accept engagements for his new and novel act.

FRAUD ON THE V.A.F.

James Cameron, a middle-aged man, described as a music hall artist, was taken before Mr. Marsham, at Bow-street, on a charge of fraud.

Mr. Doughty, barrister, prosecuted on behalf of the Variety Artists' Federation. He explained that, in consequence of a dispute between variety artists and agents, the Federation forbade its members to transact any business with certain agents, and a fund was raised for the purpose of making payments to those who lost engagements as a result of the restriction. The prisoner was charged with obtaining, by means of a bogus telegram, two sums of £6 from that fund. He and a lady who performed with him were known as "The Camerons." At the beginning of December, whilst they were performing at the Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury, the accused got a friend in London to send him a telegram purporting to come from one of the barred agents offering £24 for a two weeks' engagement. He then sent in an application for assistance to the committee of the fund, forwarding the telegram, and also a copy of a letter which he represented he had written to the agent in question, saying, "We are members of the Variety Artists' Federation, and cannot accept any work through your agency." He was awarded a sum of £6, and he afterwards made a further application on the ground that he had been unable to obtain any other engagement for the second week, upon which another £6 was forwarded. Subsequently certain information came to the knowledge of the Federation, and a warrant was obtained for Cameron's arrest. It was now understood that he was anxious to plead guilty, in which case there was no desire to press the charge.

Detective-Sergeant Collins gave evidence as to arresting the accused in Manchester. Whilst being brought to London he said:

"I will be honest, and speak the truth. I knew the telegram was bogus. I wrote it out myself, and sent it to London to a friend to send me for a certain purpose. At that time I had no intention of obtaining money from the Federation at all. I was very much pressed for money, and in consequence I sent it to the Federation. I am very sorry for what I have done. This is the first time I have been in any trouble of this sort."

Mr. John Edward Barry, an official of the Variety Artists' Federation, said he believed Cameron had had a "very rough time" lately.

The magistrate passed sentence of two months' imprisonment in the second division.

LONDON PAVILION, LIMITED.

The meeting of the London Pavilion, Ltd., was held last week under the presidency of Mr. Hugh Astley. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said the directors were sorry to meet the shareholders with an account which was far from satisfactory. The year had been one of anxiety to all concerned in the management. They had been keenly on the alert throughout the year for any novelties that might come into the market, but at the same time they had to bear in mind that it would be injudicious to put on turns or other productions which might have considerably swelled the number of visitors, but the salaries for which would have been so large that they would have left them on the wrong side. There was ever-increasing and exceptional competition in their neighbourhood, where beautiful and up-to-date variety theatres had been built and opened, some of which had succeeded while others had not. The latter had been reopened with what he might call extraordinary prices, so that it was almost impossible for a place of the size of the Pavilion to compete with them.

The times being bad, their class of patron had undoubtedly in many instances availed themselves of places elsewhere, where they might secure their seats by advanced bookings. In a place like the Pavilion it was quite impossible to enable the public to book in advance in the cheaper parts of the house. He might mention that the White City and the grand weather they had had throughout the summer did them no good. As a result of the enormous increases in artists' salaries, and the difficulty of securing the leading ones, who were barred against them right and left, they had arrived at an agreement with the Tivoli, Oxford, and Associated Theatres. They were considering the question of strengthening the board. The gross receipts had amounted to £46,885, and the outgoings to £40,493, leaving a profit of £6,392. They had decided that a portion of the reserve should be used for the purpose of levelling up the dividend.

Replying to some criticisms, the chairman said he could name a dozen artists who were receiving between £5,000 and £10,000 a year.

The report was adopted.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITIONS.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee last week submitted the following report with reference to cinematograph exhibitions:

On March 17, 1908, we reported that in accordance with the resolution of Feb. 4, 1908, a deputation consisting of members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee had waited upon the Secretary of State for the Home Department on Feb. 28, 1908, and urged the necessity for immediate legislation to make it illegal for cinematograph exhibitions to be given in premises not licensed for the purpose. In our report we stated that the Right Hon. Herbert Gladstone had informed the deputation that he was well aware of the importance of the matter, and would consider whether it would be possible to deal with it by a short Bill in the then current session of Parliament. Since the deputation was received by the Home Secretary there has been a continuous increase in the number of places which have been used for cinematograph exhibitions without any supervision or control being exercised over them, and the Council's view that this undesirable state of things should be terminated is now shared by many other authorities. Letters having been received from the Theatres Alliance urging the Council to take steps to obtain the requisite powers of control, and from the Middlesex County Council stating that they understood it was the intention of the Council to send another deputation to the Home Secretary, and that they would like, if possible, to be represented on such a deputation, the clerk of the Council made inquiry at the Home Office whether any action was contemplated by the Home Secretary in the coming session of Parliament. As a result, Mr. Gladstone's secretary has informed the clerk of the Council by letter, dated Jan. 26, 1909, that it is Mr. Gladstone's intention to introduce in the coming session a short Bill dealing with cinematographs. Since the receipt of this intimation communications have been received from the Hackney and Stepney Metropolitan Borough Councils urging the Council to obtain powers to control cinematograph halls and other unlicensed places of public entertainment, and the Hackney Metropolitan Borough Council state that they are communicating with the other metropolitan borough councils on the subject. We think it well that the Home Secretary should be made acquainted with the extent of the demand for legislation on the question of cinematograph exhibitions, and we have therefore caused to be forwarded to him copies of the letters received from the Theatres Alliance, the Middlesex County Council, and the Hackney and Stepney Metropolitan Borough Councils on the subject. We have also caused those authorities to be informed of the action contemplated by the Home Secretary.

The report was received without discussion.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Approval was given to a drawing submitted by Messrs. Wilson and Long, showing a cinematograph chamber proposed to be constructed at the rear of the gallery seating at the Euston Theatre of Varieties; also of drawings submitted by Mr. O. Barrett, showing a movable screen proposed to be constructed to shut off a portion of the dress circle seating at the Hicks Theatre.

PRESENTATIONS TO MR. WILL SMITHSON.

Mr. Will Smithson reached his fiftieth year on Tuesday (Feb. 16), and he was the recipient of many costly and beautiful presents. In honour of the occasion Mr. Smithson gave a dinner at the principal hotel in the town, viz., the Queen's Hotel, to his co-directors and friends of the town and those connected with the music-hall world. Amongst those present were Mr. Poole, Mr. J. Poole, and Mr. Tom Pacey. After an excellent repast Mr. England (director of the Barnsley Empire), on behalf of the directors, in a few well chosen words presented Mr. Smithson with a solid leather travelling case fitted with every requisite in solid silver. Mr. J. J. Tennant, assistant-manager, on behalf of the staff, presented a marble clock with bronze figures. He said it was a spontaneous effort on the part of the staff to give practical expression to their appreciation of their manager, who showed consideration for them at all times. Mr. Walter Hast, on behalf of the "boys and girls" on the bill this week, then asked Mr. Smithson's acceptance of a beautiful case of pipes. Other presents sent by friends were a travelling rug, a leather wallet, and a silver cigarette case.

Mr. Smithson, in reply, said that he felt almost overwhelmed at the kindness shown to him. He had only realised that day what a number of friends he had in Barnsley. He practically came amongst them a stranger two years ago (although he had played in the town years ago), and in reply to his appeal on his forming a limited company to build the Empire Palace, he met with such ready response that the success of the Empire was assured before the foundation stone was laid. He said, as an old performer, having played many parts in his time, he should always feel (although now a manager) that he was one of the "boys." In conclusion, he thanked one and all for their many kindnesses that day.

The toast list was marked by its brevity. The Chairman (Mr. Smithson) proposed "The King."

Mr. Poole proposed the toast of the evening, viz., "Our Host (Mr. Smithson)." He said this honour was deputed to him owing to the fact that he had known Mr. Smithson the longest, they having been close friends for twenty-five years. He spoke very highly of the business abilities of his friend, and said that whatever he undertook he invariably carried through with success.

Thanks to the enterprise of that most go-ahead firm of amusement caterers, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son, Preston can now boast one of the finest skating rinks in the North of England. The Empress Rink, which was opened to the public on the 11th inst., has a skating surface of 205ft. by 75ft. The energy which has been displayed is characteristic of the Broadheads, and within the space of three weeks the rink has been prepared and opened. Some idea may be gained of the magnitude of the work performed when it is mentioned that to prepare the floor alone nearly 3,000 loads of earth were removed. The floor is pronounced to be perfect by the skaters patronising the rink. There are three sessions daily—morning, afternoon, and evening—and a most efficient military band discourses musical selections at each of them. Expert skaters are in attendance to act as instructors, and demonstrations are given by Miss Atkinson, of Boston, U.S.A. A stock of 1,000 pairs of skates has been provided, and every provision made for the comfort of skaters, spectators, and the learners, the last-named being provided with a special space known as "Mugs' Alley," where under skilled tuition they soon become proficient. The place is splendidly lit by electricity, which is operated from a Crossley gas engine and producer plant installed on the premises. Altogether nothing has been spared that money and ingenuity can do to make it a success, and judging from the way it has caught on, the Empress Rink should add one more to the long list of successful ventures now running under the ownership and control of Messrs. Broadhead and Son.

MUSIC HALL CONTRACT.

There was a reference on Thursday to a music hall dispute in an appeal by Mr. John Amery Parkes, plaintiff in the action, Cochran and Amery Parkes v. the London Pavilion (Limited), from a judgment of Mr. Justice Ridley and a special jury. Mr. Rawlinson, K.C., and Mr. Tindale Davis were for the appellant; and Mr. Horridge, K.C., and Mr. Greer for the respondents.

In the original action one of the points raised was whether a contract was made with Mrs. Cochran, the plaintiff, or her husband. The jury found that it was made with the husband, and judgment was given for the defendants.

Mr. Rawlinson said the appeal was intended to raise a question as to the power of an undischarged bankrupt to assign the benefit of a contract which had been entered into with him. In June, 1907, Mr. Cochran, an undischarged bankrupt, entered into a contract with the London Pavilion Company whereby they agreed to pay him £150 a week, and he agreed to produce a certain number of wrestlers at the London Pavilion Music Hall, including Zbysco. Within a few days of that time Mrs. Cochran entered into a contract with Zbysco for his appearance wherever she chose. That contract was renewed, and Zbysco appeared at the London Pavilion. On Oct. 5 a question arose as to whether or not the husband was acting as agent of the wife, and a deed was entered into between them whereby it was recited that he had acted as her agent in this transaction, and assigned the benefit of the contract to her. Matters went on satisfactorily until January, 1908, the wrestling business having become a success. But the Cochrans were in need of money, and they owed a certain sum to their solicitor, Mr. Parkes. On Jan. 3 Mr. and Mrs. Cochran entered into a charge of certain matters, and all the benefits under the contract to which he had referred, to Mr. Parkes. It was upon this charge, counsel explained, that the question turned. Mr. Parkes paid the Cochrans £115; but he did not forthwith give notice of the charge as he ought to have done. On the night of Jan. 3 there was a special wrestling performance at the London Pavilion between Zbysco and Suliman. Upon that occasion a disturbance occurred in the hall. The audience became annoyed, and certain things were broken. The London Pavilion Company declined to permit the contract to continue, and refused to allow Zbysco to go on. The result was that there were about four weeks to run, and the damage sustained was stated by the judge to be £170. The London Pavilion Company informed the official trustee in bankruptcy of Cochran that a claim was likely to be made for damage against them, and, accordingly, on Jan. 9, a notice was put in by the Official Receiver that he was entitled to any money due to the Cochrans under the contract. An action was brought in the name of Mrs. Cochran, suing for the amount of the damages which had been caused by the breach of contract. The matter came before Mr. Justice Ridley, and the defendants contended that Mrs. Cochran was not really the contracting party, and that Mr. Cochran was the principal in the matter. Counsel added that the point was that, despite that there was no notice of the assignment, the trustee in bankruptcy had no right to claim upon Jan. 9.

In the course of argument it was stated that the amount of the mortgage had been paid off.

Lord Justice Moulton said, that being so, it ended the question.

Mr. Rawlinson added that although the £115 had been paid there were certain costs.

The Master of the Rolls said the appeal was hopeless, and without counsel for the respondents being called upon, it was dismissed with costs.

A SUCCESFUL concert was given last Sunday evening in Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, kindly lent by Mr. Robert Arthur, to raise funds for relief of distress through unemployment. Amongst other artists who contributed to a very excellent programme was Miss Jessie Broughton, of the Havana company, who appeared by kind permission of Mr. George Edwardes. Mr. Louis Karpe, the hard-working manager of Her Majesty's, in addition to filling the duties of honorary manager, gave two recitations in his best style, Reid's stirring story "The Last Shot" being recited with intense dramatic feeling.

THE MYSTERY OF MY "DOUBLE," by H. B. Irving. Illustrated by Photograph and Autograph. See The Era Annual, 1909

MISS SABLE FERN has just produced a new song of logic, entitled "Don't hang your trouble on me." The words and music are by Frank Leo, and, according to reports, it will be one of the biggest songs of the year.

MR. TREFELYN DAVID and Miss Marriott are presenting next week at the Hammersmith Palace, for the first time in England, a musical scena entitled Advice to the Newly-Married, by Graham Balmore. This sketch made an enormous success last summer in South Africa.

MR. DAN ASHTON has a special number, "The Durham Collier's Lament," which gives in an interesting and pathetic manner some phases of the hazardous life of the pitman. Mr. Ashton is a most popular delineator of the man who, hidden away from daylight, literally carries his life in his hands.

MASTER CLIFF DIAMOND, the eleven-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. Harry Clifford, is rapidly rising after filling engagements at Hackney, Tottenham, and South London. He has this week added to his triumphs the Empire, Camberwell, and will next week visit the Empire, Portsmouth, returning on March 1 to the Canterbury and Paragon. "Spot" Oliver is very proud of his protégé.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual, 1909. Is. 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. This well-known almanac and annual contains, as usual, much information, including lists and particulars of new plays of interest to members of the dramatic profession. The symposium of stories by well-known people includes some interesting experiences and anecdotes by some of the best known actors and actresses of the day.—The Financial Times, Jan. 18, 1909.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

"The Era" Almanack and Annual for 1909 is just published It contains a useful list of new plays and important revivals produced in the London theatres last year, and similar lists of productions in Paris and Berlin. The leading feature is a number of short stories by well-known people. Mr. George Alexander records a cabby's retort, which is worth repeating. Mr. Alexander, while looking for a taxi-cab, was solicited by an old cabman to enter his hansom, but declined. "So, Mr. G. A.," commented the cabby, "you've no use for 'osses, but you'll 'ave to 'ave one to take you on the day you're buried! '—Morning Advertiser, Jan. 14, 1909

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1909.

I have received a copy of "The Era" year book, which probably contains more "meaty" guidance to the square ounce than any other publication of its kind. Data of all theatrical and music hall subjects are to be found within its covers, as well as a collection of interesting yarns by prominent entertainers. It is cheap at a shilling.—Sunday Chronicle, Manchester, Jan. 24, 1909.

THE DYNAMIC DRAMA.

Mr. WILLIAM ARCHER delivered last week, at the Royal Institution, the second of two lectures on the New Drama. "The drama," he said, "had been, in the main, strong and vital when it had been a weapon and not a mere plaything or an indifferent mirror of human life. It was pre-eminently, by its very nature, a dynamic art, and when it forgot this it fell short of its fullest development and sacrified the best part of its birthright. It was precisely in drama that the keen, vivid interest in life which had owing to various causes developed within the past thirty or forty years tended to express itself. Let life be conceived as moving rapidly, and the very fact of change or the desire for change conceived as present to every man, and the leisurely methods of narration were seen to be abandoned as the artist seized the sword of the drama. The greatness of the change which had taken place since 1889 might be realised if we imagined, say, DICKENS or THACKERAY seated at a performance of Man and Superman or Getting Married. They would wonder to what new and mad planet they had been transported. The new movement made itself unmistakably felt in 1891 with the advent of Mr. SHAW, who had learned from IBSEN the possibilities of the drama as an instrument of intellectual warfare, and whose every play was an explosive missile hurled into the camp of convention and conservatism. Other men followed Mr. SHAW, and, though plays of entertainment continued the staple fare of the unthinking crowd, the younger generation of thinking artists was more and more attracted to the dramatic form, and made stronger and stronger efforts to break down the barriers of a bad theatrical system."

It is quite true that DICKENS and THACKERAY, in the circumstances described, would probably draw the conclusions suggested; though we may add that they would have been even more bewildered on reading certain critiques on the plays above-mentioned—in one of them, if we remember rightly, the second part of Man and Superman was suggested as suited to be the basis of a new religion. Such criticism would be even more astonishing to DICKENS and THACKERAY than such plays. We expect occasional aberrations from creative genius; but we demand logical sanity from the non-inspired expert analyist. At the present time, with so many idle people wanting to be amused, and so many impressionable people ready, as Mr. SHAW puts it, to be "hypnotised—he has boasted in one of his prefaces of the way in which he has advertised himself and hypnotised the critics—a certain amount of success (success of cash as well as success of notoriety) may easily be obtained by impudent eccentricity coupled with rare ability. Now, Mr. SHAW is undoubtedly a very clever man. He is a highly-gifted humorist and an acute observer. He understands the Cockney dialect thoroughly, and he has a keen and correct eye for character. His little rent-collector in Widowers' Houses, his Cockney wastrel in Captain Brassbound's Conversion, his chauffeur in Man and Superman, his doctors in The Doctor's Dilemma—all his dramatic work that can be done by direct vision is admirable. Why his plays, with the exception of Captain Brassbound's Conversion, Arms and the Man, and The Devil's Disciple, which are all on commonsense lines, have failed is exactly on account of the "dynamite," that is to say, the "advanced" ideas, with which they are charged. They contain cleverness enough to have made them national favourites; but they only appeal in England to a small minority. The mistake is to take this minority—this noisy, talkative, self-conscious, self-important, but utterly impotent, minority—for the people of England. It is an error into which self-concentrated, over-intellectual, and somewhat solitary persons are only too likely to fall. That Mr. SHAW has not made this mistake is shown by his sense of the necessity of vigorous and active self-advertisement if his work is to obtain even a modicum of popularity. His recent efforts have certainly broken the record—two columns of self-praise in a daily paper as a prelude to a jeu d'esprit playing two hours may be called an achievement. It is well known that the recent VEDRENNE-BARKER season was virtually a SHAW season, and that the moderate success it has attained was due to Mr. SHAW's wit and humour, and to the notoriety which he has so industriously cultivated. There is certainly something to be said in favour of extravagance, so long as it will pass the Censorship. There are a great many people who will go and see a morbid, an unclean, or a "revolutionary" drama simply for the sake of experiencing a new sensation.

Anyone, however, who desires to inform himself of how little real impression these "dynamic" explosions make on the average audience should haunt an auditorium between the acts of one of Mr. SHAW's plays, and listen to the conversation in the stalls. The statement "No one takes SHAW seriously" appears to be an axiom in London society. Mr. ARCHER is determined to take Mr. SHAW very seriously indeed; to which the playgoing public, who do not attend Royal Institution lectures, will ungratefully respond by not taking Mr. ARCHER seriously at all. The success of An Englishman's Home is an illustration of our arguments. The piece has not one-quarter of the cleverness of one of Mr. SHAW's plays; it succeeds because of its sanity, and because it appeals to the elementary instincts of humanity, against which Mr. SHAW's "explosions" are as the little "poppers" with which mischievous boys are wont to frighten nervous persons in the streets. The "bad," or sane, theatrical system is, it appears, in no immediate danger.

THE dresses worn in The Prisoner of Zenda at the St. James's Theatre are very picturesque. Miss Stella Patrick Campbell as the Princess Flavia looks extremely beautiful. Her Coronation gown is made of white lace and net, sparkling with crystals and silver sequins, generously and elegantly bestowed in a butterfly pattern. The Court train, which is long and narrow, is a forecast of the latest mandates of the dressmakers, to be made apparent next week at Buckingham Palace. It, too, scintillates with crystals and silver, and is softly ruffled at the edge with rouleaux and rosettes of chiffon. In her flame-bright hair Princess Flavia wears a silver diadem and white Court plumes.

MISS FRANCES DILLON as Antoinette de Mauban wears a series of elegant toilettes; first of all an apricot cloth gown lavishly ornamented with passementerie lace to match upon the corsage, into which a little green velvet is deftly introduced, and with bands of passementerie extended down the back of the dress.

WITH the gown is worn a most elegant cloak of white cloth, with a broad border of dull gold gauze overlaid with sprays of jet, spirals of which upon the pure background of the white material look exceedingly effective. The coat is lined with emerald green satin, and the cuffs are draped with the same material, while here and there tassels of jet and gold beads are posed to give a final effect of smartness to the whole. A hat of grey straw with a crown of draped grey metallicised net bordered with a wreath of cherries and cherry leaves has a green lining to the brim.

IN the third act, which takes place in the Castle of Tarlenheim, Miss Stella Patrick Campbell looks ethereally graceful in her gown of white cashmere de soie with gold net and passementerie upon the corsage and semi-transparent sleeves of net. Her hat is made of gold tissue plumed with white, and she wears a cloak of white cloth elaborately buttoned and looped at the back and about the draped armholes with gold. Through the sides, which are slashed, one is able to perceive a lacing of tomato-red velvet upon the corsage bolero beneath. Another very pretty item of the same sartorial scheme, is the beading of diamonds that finishes the guimpe, matched by the diamond ornament that is worn upon the corsage.

IN the same act Miss Dillon wears a gown of flamingo drap de soie, most gracefully fitted to the figure, and yet a noticeable exponent of the new delight in draperies taken by the dressmakers of to-day. The fulness of the skirt is drawn down in front beneath an ornament made of cords, and a dalmatic is added to the back of the costume outlined with heavy cord embellishments, all the exact colour of the dress. A white guimpe and sleeves of tucked net, a silver turban with soft ostrich plumage of the palest smoke shade, and an Eastern ornament of diamonds, pearls, and emeralds complete a remarkably smart costume.

AT the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, the General Purposes Committee reported that they had had under consideration the provisions of the Children Act, 1908. The Act, which comes into operation on April 1 next, to a large extent consolidates the existing law, besides making fresh provisions with regard to the protection of children and young persons. Section 121 provides for the safety of children at entertainments, and it will be the duty of the Council to take proceedings thereunder in any case where the building in which the entertainment is given is licensed by the Lord Chamberlain or by the Council. The Committee think the Council should delegate to the Theatres Committee its authority under this section, and submit a recommendation accordingly. Summarised shortly, the section provides that where an entertainment is given which is attended by more than 100 children and access to any part of the building in which the children are is by stairs, the person providing the entertainment is to station a sufficient number of adult attendants to prevent more people being admitted than the building can properly accommodate and generally to control the movements of the audience when entering and leaving. The section confers on a constable a right of entry to a building with a view to seeing whether the provisions of the section are being complied with, though, curiously enough, a similar right of entry is not given to any officer of the Council. After some discussion it was agreed that this part of the report should be referred back to the committee.

THE following football announcements have been forwarded to us:—Fulham v. Chelsea, Saturday, Feb. 20, kick-off 3.30, at Chelsea. Fulham team: Skene, Lindsay, Sharp, Collins, Parsonage, Suart, Lee, Dalrymple, Harrison, Brown, Lipsham. The Fulham grand stand ticket holders will be admitted free to the match at Chelsea on presenting their season tickets at the special entrance. South-Eastern League: Fulham Reserves v. Luton Reserves, at Luton.

THE AFTERNOON THEATRE.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson's programme at His Majesty's on Thursday afternoon contained an interesting and extremely well-written three-act comedy by Mr. Henry James, entitled

"THE HIGH BID."

Captain Clement Yule ..MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON
Mr. Prodmore .....MR. EDWARD SASS
Chivers .....MR. IAN ROBERTSON
The Young Man .....MR. ALEX. CASSEY
Mrs. Gracedew .....MISS GERTRUDE ELLIOTT
Cora Prodmore .....MISS ESME HUBBARD

The only complaint one can advance against Mr. Henry James's dramatic effort is that the dialogue in the piece is a little too discursive, particularly in the first act, for stage purposes, although it might read exceedingly well in a novel. The theme and plot of the play are not exactly new; but, for the matter of that, we are frequently told that nothing is new under the sun; and if Mr. James has decided to exploit an old idea, at least it can be said to his credit that his treatment of it is somewhat original, and that, moreover, the treatment is such as one would expect from a literary man of Mr. James's eminence. All the scenes are laid in the central hall of an old English country house, the ancestral seat of Captain Clement Yule. The property, by virtue of mortgages and other encumbrances, really belongs to the wealthy Mr. Prodmore, whose desire it is to hand it back, without price or payment, to Captain Yule. But, as in most transactions, not only in business but in love, there is the question of a quid pro quo, and in Mr. Prodmore's case the stipulation is that the Captain shall bestow upon his daughter the name and dignity of an old family. The girl, Cora, is already in love with a youthful nincompoop, and in the first act she is carefully tutored by her father as to the style of manner and behaviour she shall adopt in the presence of the prospective husband who has been chosen for her. "Be charming!" says old Prodmore, and the dutiful daughter undertakes to observe the injunction. When Captain Yule arrives, with, of course, preconceived notions as to what is expected from him, Mr. Prodmore, with business-like acumen and alacrity, speedily plunges into the question of the marriage proposition that has been, of course, previously laid before the gallant Captain. An introduction to Cora follows, and Yule indicates his feelings towards that lady in what may be termed a negative fashion; that is, he pays her the least possible attention that a gentleman could pay to the daughter of his host. Another of Mr. Prodmore's guests is a young and fascinating American widow, Mrs. Gracedew, and as soon as she and Yule meet there is a mutual falling in love. Mrs. Gracedew goes into raptures over everything in the quaint, historic old family seat, and as, during the exchanging of confidences, she learns that the house is about to pass from the Yule family, she urges him to accept Mr. Prodmore's terms, even to rejecting his political beliefs and becoming a Conservative member of Parliament—as suggested by Mr. Prodmore—so as to save to himself and his possible posterity the ancient home of his ancestors. Down in her part of the world, she tells him, men hesitated at nothing that brought them material wealth and happiness. He promises her that he will act upon her advice, and goes off in search of Mr. Prodmore. Meanwhile, Cora comes to Mrs. Gracedew, and frankly and somewhat tearfully admits to that lady that she really has not any affection for Captain Yule—there is someone she likes infinitely better, and she would welcome an opening out of the entanglement her father has woven for her. Mrs. Gracedew is delighted to hear all this, and she extracts an undertaking from Cora that if Captain Yule proposes to her she will refuse him. And Cora runs away to join The Young Man upon whom her heart is truly set. When Mr. Prodmore re-enters the hall, Mrs. Gracedew informs him that his daughter has run away with The Young Man. After Mr. Prodmore's anger has subsided a little, Mrs. Gracedew offers him £50,000 for the manor house. He reminds her of the exalted value she put upon the place and its contents while describing them to a party of tourists, and he will not accept a less sum than £70,000. Mrs. Gracedew agrees to pay this amount, and she makes a present of the property to Captain Yule, and, of course, another wedding is arranged.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson was earnest, gentlemanly, and lover-like as Captain Yule, and he acted throughout with a quiet dignity that was as convincing as it was unassuming. Miss Gertrude Elliott brought all the charms of her engaging personality to bear with excellent results upon her portraiture of Mrs. Gracedew; and Mr. Edward Sass presented a really capital study of the business-like Mr. Prodmore. Mr. Ian Robertson submitted a clever characterisation of an old servant; and Miss Esme Hubbard as Cora and Mr. Alex. Cassey as The Young Man, suitably enacted their individual rôles.

The second and concluding piece was

"A SOUL'S FIGHT."

The Play, in one act, by Louis Tircelin, done into English by Louis N. Parker.

Jacques Bernez .....MR. FORBES-ROBERTSON
Chapire .....MR. IAN ROBERTSON
The Count of Kervern .....MR. BEN WEBSTER
Jean Guillou .....MR. ERNEST HENDRIE
Jeffik Guillou .....MISS GERTRUDE ELLIOTT

This piece originally bore the title The Sacrament of Judas, and the poignant tragedy it contained formed a powerful contrast to Mr. James's quiet comedy. The part of the man (Jacques Bernez) who renounces his priestly vows, then gives absolution to his rival in love, and finally makes a sacrifice of his own life in order that his aristocratic enemy may get safely away from the Republican soldiers, was enacted with all the dramatic vigour and intensity of feeling of which we know Mr. Forbes-Robertson to be capable. Miss Gertrude Elliott as Jeffik Guillou struck a deep note of pathos in the scene where Bernez threatens to betray the Count to the Representative of the people, and won much sympathy. Mr. Ben Webster as the Count of Kervern presented a courtly appearance, and furnished an appropriate realisation of the character; while Mr. Ian Robertson as Chapire and Mr. Ernest Hendrie as Jean Guillou submitted admirable interpretations of these rôles.

AT the Court Theatre on March 3 a performance will be given in aid of the Victoria Hospital for Children, when the three winning plays in the A.P.A. one-act play competition held last July will be produced. In one of these, The End of the Story, by "Neilson Morris" (Mrs. A. Oldrid Clarke), the authoress will appear. On March 10 and 11 at the Rehearsal Theatre, Maiden-lane, the Curtain Raisers, a society devoted exclusively to the production of original one-act plays, will produce My Lady's Glove, a romantic comedy by the same lady. They have also secured another play by her, The Love that Passes, which they will produce together with a comedy by Mr. Morley Roberts, at their second series of performances in the spring.

THE Fire Brigade Ball at the City Hall, Glasgow, last week, was attended by most of the local pantomime celebrities. Among those present were Miss Queenie Finnis, who has made so great a success as Cinderella at the Grand Theatre, and Miss Olive Tempest. Management was represented by Mr. Christie Grant, Mr. Gordon E. Craig, and Mr. Wentworth Croke. Amongst others to be seen were Mr. Frank Cohen, Mr. William Waddell, the Fire Master of the Glasgow Fire Brigade, Dr. Halliday, Mr. E. Hymans, Baillie Gardiner, Baillie Paxton, Baillie Hunter, Councillor Stewart, and Mr. and Mrs. George Robey.

"THE DASHING LITTLE DUKE."

A Musical Play, in Three Acts, by Seymour Hicks, music by Frank E. Tours, lyrics by Adrian Ross, produced at the Hicks Theatre on Wednesday, Feb. 18.

Mlle. Hélène de Laundal MISS GWENDOLINE D'ARCY
Mlle. Thérèse de Bellair..MISS EILEEN CHISHOLM
Duc de Richelieu .....MISS ELLALINE TERRISS

The musical play produced at the Hicks Theatre on Wednesday evening deserves to be one of the successes of the season, if only by reason of the fact that it has a really interesting and coherent plot, differing in this respect from a vast number of pieces of a similar kind. Mr. Seymour Hicks, the producer of the play, has not trusted to his own invention for a plot, but has founded his story with a musical setting, upon the adaptation by Messrs. Osmond Shillingford and Aubrey Boucicault of the French play Les Premières Armes de Richelieu, by Bayard and Dumanoir. The comedy in its English form was produced at the Court Theatre ten years ago, Mr. Seymour Hicks himself taking part in it.

The Duc de Richelieu is the youthful hero of the story. Still in his teens, he has become the husband of the proud but beautiful Diane de Noailles. There is, however, a clause in the marriage contract according to which the Duke is not to be permitted to see his charming wife for one year, except in the presence of her mother, the Duchesse de Noailles. The Duke naturally rebels at this unreasonable restriction, and makes it pretty plain that he has not the least intention of complying with it. But the relative of the great Cardinal is a dashing but not by any means a discreet young man, and this is evidenced by the fact that he openly boasts of the favour shown him by the Duchesse de Burgoyne, the result being that the offended lady makes him an object of ridicule to the whole of the Court by treating him as a saucy boy, and publicly presenting him with a box of sugar-plums. The Chevalier de Matignon is in love with the Duc's wife, and as she has shown disdain for her husband, the Chevalier suggests that he should have his revenge by flirting with other young women. But by means of a letter addressed by the amorous Chevalier to Diane the Duke learns of his treachery, and resolves to fight him. When the Duchesse, who really loves her husband, hears of his intention she falls to the ground in a dead swoon. The duel takes place in the last act, and of course the Chevalier, expert swordsman though he be, is defeated. And in spite of the objectionable "clause five" in the marriage contract, the Duke and Duchesse resolve that their honeymoon shall no longer be delayed, and this brings the story to a happy ending.

Playgoers are well accustomed to the charm of Miss Ellaline Terriss's acting and singing in musical pieces; but to many it will come as a surprise that she is quite able to touch the deeper feelings, and to put real pathos into her performance. As the "dashing little Duke" she is as bright and charming as she always is in musical plays, but there is another side to the character. When the Ducehsse de Burgoyne punishes the Duc for his youthful indiscretion, Miss Terriss admirably expresses his distress at being held up to the ridicule of the ladies and gentlemen of the Court; but even more dramatic and effective is the farewell scene with his kind old tutor before he fights the duel with the redoubtable Chevalier. Moreover, Miss Terris scores as a vocalist, sharing the honours in a duet with Mr. Hayden Coffin in the first act. In the last scene she wins an encore by her expressive rendering of "Nobody cares for me." Altogether the success of The Dashing Little Duke is largely dependent upon Miss Ellaline Terriss, who, it should be added, looks extremely well in the picturesque dress of the period of the "Grand Monarque." Excellent in every respect is the Chevalier de Matignon, Mr. Hayden Coffin bearing himself gallantly, as became the gay courtier who "lives for love." Of course, Mr. Coffin takes a large share in the singing, and quite sustains his deservedly high reputation as a vocalist. In the first act he is successful with a solo entitled "Women"; he also takes part in duets with Miss Elizabeth Firth and Mr. Courtice Pounds; and in the last act he is heard to advantage in the song "I'd die for love." Miss Elizabeth Firth plays the part of Diane with dramatic force, and her singing is exceptionally good, particularly distinguishing herself in a song in the first act. Mr. Courtice Pounds gives a capital portrayal of the Abbé de la Touche, Richelieu's tutor, who has been a soldier in his youth, and has to put a curb on his naturally militant spirit. His song "Lizette," well rendered, is received with much applause. Mr. Frank Wilson is a soldierly Lieut. Armand de Solieveau, and is prominent in a very catchy trio. "The Bold Dragoon," sung in the second act with marked success. Mr. Sam Walsh is a quaintly humorous Baron de Bellechasse, whose vulgar wife, the Baronne, is comically portrayed by Miss Florence Wood. Miss Coralie Blythe is a pretty and pleasing maid of honour, Cesarine de Noce; and Miss Louie Pounds is a stately and exceedingly handsome Duchesse de Burgoyne. Miss Maud Milton lends able assistance as the tyrannical mother-in-law of the little Duke. M. Protti as Lepas, a dancing master, is greatly applauded for the clever dance he introduces in the second act; and Mr. Charles Le Galley as Fleury, a florist; Mr. Hughes Croise as Moulinet, a hairdresser; and Mr. Roland Chester as Caniffe, a manicurist, acquit themselves capably in minor rôles; while Messrs. Lawrence Caird and Frederick Vigay ably embody the Duke's valets.

The music by Mr. Frank Tours is bright and exhilarating, and most of the numbers quite deserved the favourable reception they met with at the first performance. The lyrics by Mr. Adrian Ross are written with characteristic neatness and point. The new piece is sumptuously mounted and dressed; and the stage pictures presented have surely never been excelled for beauty and artistic taste displayed in every detail. Mr. Percy Anderson is responsible for the dress designs, and they do him the utmost credit. Mr. Guy Laking has taken in hand the furniture and elaborate decorations of the Palace scene with the happiest results. The duel and fencing have been carefully arranged by that expert in this department, M. Felix Bertrand. The orchestra is under the able and experienced direction of the composer of the music; and the dances and choral effects are by Mr. Fred Farren.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Miss Marie Lloyd will make her reappearance on Monday at the Tivoli, and will sing two new songs. On this occasion over fifty members of the Eccentric Club have taken the first rows of stalls, and will be present to give her a hearty welcome. Miss Decima Moore's engagement at the Tivoli has been extended.

Miss Vesta Victoria, who popularised with Americans the domestic comedy song, a thing of which they knew nothing, is on her way back to England, and will appear at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Monday next.

The Federation executive expresses its sincere thanks to Mr. George Ranken Askwith, K.C., the learned Arbitrator, who, after patiently listening to and weighing up the detailed evidence given by both sides, "has produced an Award which seems to satisfy all parties, and is one on which may rest with safety the future prosperity of the music-hall industry."

Carney and Armstrong have taken up very patriotically the Territorial question, and are greatly interesting themselves in the formation of a corps of music hall artists with the necessary qualifications of physique that will do credit to the profession. They campaigned in South Africa, and they are certain that there are many in the ranks of artists who would be glad to enlist themselves among "England's Home" defenders. Further particulars may be found in another part of the paper.

The training with the Territorials would supply a congenial occupation for some of the idle hours which are at present often spent in a less admirable way; and there is a special attraction to the variety artist in the fact that the time for camp, in July, comes at a season of the year when many out of engagements, would hail with delight a holiday in fresh air, amidst beautiful scenery, and with the stirring interest of military manœuvres.

Mr. Ommanney attended the meeting of the V.A.F. on Friday, and put his scheme before the members. The proposal was heartily received, and Messrs. Bartram and Clemart spoke very warmly on the subject, stating they considered it was every man's duty to make himself an efficient defender of his country. Several members gave their names to Mr. Ommanney for membership, and several others promised to induce their friends to join.

Mr. Frank Parker's birthday on Wednesday was marked by the presentation to that popular stage-manager of several gifts from the Hippodrome staff and his immediate friends, who selected Mr. Otho Twigg, the veteran ring-master, to do the honours. The gifts were a ruby and diamond pin, from the stage, ring, electrical staff, and friends; a set of gold cuff-links from Mr. and Mrs. Twigg; a tray and tea-set from Mme. Alluto and wardrobe staff; and a silver cigar-case from Mr. and Mrs. Percival.

In a felicitous speech Mr. Twigg said, amongst other things:—"Mr. Parker has, since the opening of the Hippodrome, nine years ago, fulfilled the two important positions of stage-manager and equestrian-director, and in their fulfilment he has not been found wanting. Throughout many scenes of stress, excitement, and difficulty, courtesy and dignity were never once absent. He has ever aided the management's aim to bring rational, moral, and instructive entertainment within the reach of the masses." In conclusion, Mr. Twigg expressed sincerest wishes for a continuance of Mr. Parker's good health and strength, so that he may still discharge aright his onerous duties.

Mr. Louis Calvert, the well-known actor, is the latest recruit to the variety stage. Mr. Alfred Butt has acquired his services for the Palace, where he makes his appearance on Monday, March 1. The piece chosen for the event is a one-act play, entitled The Magic Word, written by Mr. Arthur Layard and L. Pam. The principal character is a certain Ezra Solomon, a rich Jew, fired with the noble ambition to obtain "toleration" for his countrymen. The scene is laid at St. Petersburg.

Miss Kitter Rayburn has this week scored an enormous success at the Palace, Hammersmith. Undoubtedly her excellent performance in pantomime at the Lyric has made her a great local favourite. On Thursday evening Miss Rayburn was agreeably surprised by receiving a beautiful bouquet at the end of her turn presented by the Lyric manager, Mr. Fred S. Jennings.

"Little Thomas," the septuagenarian Mohawk minstrel, is to commemorate his golden wedding by a concert held at the Stanley Hall, Junction-road, N., on March 16. The occasion will mark a reunion of many of the surviving Mohawk minstrels, of whom the most celebrated is Mr. Johnnie Danvers, now at Drury Lane.

It was only to be expected that the patriotic fervour generated by The Englishman's Home should spread to the varieties. It will find scope for expression at the East Ham Palace on Monday, when a new sketch entitled Our Home Defenders, by Cayley Calvert, will be produced on an elaborate scale with Messrs. Horace Hunter, Cecil du Gue, Alfred Bennett, Arthur Estcourt, and Misses Olive Palmer and Dennis Dunn in the cast. We understand the recruiting officers of the district and the Territorial officers are already giving support to the scheme and expert advice and assistance in the production.

The performance of Pagliacci at the Coliseum next Monday marks another step in the invasion of variety theatres by the "legitimate" stage. Pagliacci will suffer nothing by condensation, because the pruning has been slight. The entire story will be given as in the original, with Mr. Lempriere Pringle as Tonio, Mr. Philip Cunningham as Canio, and Miss Margaret Ormerod as Nedda. Mr. H. Lyell-Taylor will conduct. The story, it will be remembered, was presented in a dramatic form at the same house in 1905, with Mr. Gilbert Hare and Mrs. Brown-Potter in the chief parts.

Mr. Hymack, "the Chameleon comedian," is meeting with great success upon his return engagements in America with his new act, Blenkinsop's Bet. He has already played a series of engagements in New York, and returns there during the month of March. At Boston he was held over a second week, and Mr. Keith has arranged to play him for two weeks in Philadelphia, instead of one, as arranged. Mr. Hymack has extended his engagement, breaking into his promised holiday.

"For Love and My Country" is the new title chosen by the author of the military episode written for Mr. and Mrs. John D. Saunders (Miss Dora de Winton), the former title having been previously claimed. To save any misunderstanding, and without disclosing any portion of the plot, we can safely say that For Love and My Country, though highly patriotic, is not in any sense intended to possess the elements or atmosphere of invasion.

With the greatest regret Miss Helen Trix, acting on doctor's orders, was compelled to cancel her engagement at the London Hippodrome last Monday. On Tuesday Miss Trix underwent an operation for an affection of the throat. She will spend a week at Brighton, after which another operation will be necessary.

The new Hippodrome, Ellesmere Port, near Chester, opens on Monday next.

Mr. C. Young, late assistant-manager of the New Cross Empire, has been appointed manager of the King's Theatre, Dundee. The vacancy has been filled by the promotion of Mr. Parry, late electrician at the New Cross Empire.

Mr. Jack Bostock, son of Mr. E. H. Bostock, the proprietor of the Hamilton (N.B.) Hippodrome, has taken over the acting-management, vice Mr. Nimse, who has been appointed acting-manager of the Wishaw Pavilion. Mr. Rene Clayton assumes the general-management of Mr. Bostock's three halls in the district.

If anything was wanted to bear testimony to the popularity of Mr. E. Harrison, the genial manager of the Palace Theatre, Bradford, it was forthcoming in the bumper house he had for his benefit on Friday week, and the way in which the artists in Bradford, Leeds, and Halifax rallied round him and gave their services. We are sorry Mr. Harrison's health has not lately been of the best.

Mr. Walter Norman has been appointed general-manager of the Hippodrome, Hastings, where he has made himself very popular as acting-manager under the late Mr. Vivian Fisher. For some years Mr. Norman was at the Royal Standard, Pimlico, and is a very staunch Terrier. Messrs. Boyd and Fred Higham are now the managing-directors of this successful house.

Newcastle sportsmen have been much interested in the pigeon shooting match between Carlton, conjurer, of the Tyne Theatre pantomime company, and Harry Tate, motorist and comedian, of the Theatre Royal company, which attracted a goodly number of well-known members of the theatrical profession and sportsmen to the enclosure of the Hotspur Gun Club at Fenham, on Monday afternoon.

The match was the best of thirteen birds, from three traps, Carlton shooting from a 23 yards' mark and Tate from 21 yards. Each failed at the first shot, and then Carlton gained a useful lead with three kills in succession before Mr. Tate scored. The Theatre Royal comedian met with only another success against three other kills by Carlton, who thus won by six to two.

The Liverpool Theatrical Football Gala was revived on Tuesday last, and proved a big success. Inaugurated about twenty years ago, this annual was unfortunately allowed to lapse for a period, but now that it has been restarted hopes are entertained that it will repeat its drawing powers on behalf of local and theatrical charities. Since its inception the movement has been the means of distributing £15,000 among worthy objects.

The weather on Tuesday was delightful, with the result that immense crowds were present at the Liverpool Football Grounds to witness one of the merriest, maddest, and most attractive shows imaginable. As usual, all the pantomime and other artists engaged in and near the city attended willingly, and everything proved exceedingly enjoyable, among the prominent citizens being the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, and the Mayor of Birkenhead.

Regarding the competitions, a team from Broadhead's Pavilion carried off the tug of war challenge shield, and the Olympia tableau gained the first prize, the second and third being the Lyric Theatre and the Empire. It is expected that the monetary result of this year's effort will establish a record. Members of the profession who assisted may rest assured that their kind services were appreciated. But for them there would have been no gala.

As a tribute of esteem from the Mayor of Gateshead, Mr. Sidney Bacon, the present lessee of the Victoria Hall, York; the Oxford, Middlesbrough; the Public Hall, Carlisle; and the St. James's Hall, Kingston-on-Thames, received, on Wednesday last, an exquisitely-designed silver cigarette case, bearing the inscription: "A tribute of esteem and high regard to Sidney Bacon, Esq., from Alderman A. Gillies, Mayor of Gateshead."

Mr. Bacon has not alone been identified with theatrical enterprises in the North of England for a number of years, but, as a councillor of Gateshead, has, for some considerable time, taken an active part in the municipal affairs of the town in which his chief business interests have, until quite recently, been centred. No more fitting tribute to the integrity and popularity of Mr. Bacon can be accorded than that embraced in the message of regard he has just received from the Chief Magistrate of Gateshead.

The annual meeting of Moss' Empires, Ltd., was held at Edinburgh on Friday, Feb. 12. Sir Edward Moss presided, and in moving the adoption of the report said that the profit for the year showed a decline, the decrease being attributable to bad trade and to the exceptionally fine weather of last summer. The profits, however, compared favourably with those of any previous year, except 1907. The financial position of the company was never better, having improved by the issues of debentures.

Professionals who visit Yarmouth during the summer will hear with considerable regret of the death of Mr. Frederick Riley, who during a period of twenty years was manager of Chappell's Beach Concerts. The deceased gentleman, who was fifty-six years of age, earned the respect and esteem of visitors, and was popular with the artists. He is to be buried to-day, the hearse leaving the premises of Mr. Theophilus Dunkley, at 88, Westminster Bridge-road, at 11.30 for Fulham Cemetery, where the interment is fixed for 12.45.

Two music hall artists touring in the provinces state that a fortnight ago they travelled with Mr. Melford from Liverpool to Holyhead, and in conversation he said that he was going to America, but that he did not wish his movements to be known. He was travelling to join a ship at Queenstown. Mr. Melford was carrying a rug and an American trunk, and parted from them at Holyhead.

Charcot has created tremendous excitement this week in the North of London, where thousands congregated outside the Islington Empire on Wednesday to see his great blindfold drive. Amidst breathless excitement he made a start, when the police at once seized the horses' heads and threatened Charcot with instant arrest if he proceeded any further. Great sympathy was expressed with Charcot from the vast concourse of people, and he finally drove through the principal thoroughfares, and was cheered by the assembled thousands.

The staff of the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, and their friends on Wednesday night held their annual supper and dance in the Ewing Galleries, Renfrew-street. A company numbering over seventy sat down to supper, Mr. Gordon Jefferson, the popular manager of the house, occupying the chair. In the course of a short address, Mr. Jefferson referred to the happy conditions which existed between the staff and the management. At an interval during the evening, Mr. M. O'Brien was presented with a silver tea-service, the first prize in connection with the Metropole staff billiard tournament, of which he was the winner. Mr. Gordon Jefferson made the presentation. Mr. J. M. Bell acted as M.C. There was an excellent musical programme.

Mr. J. W. Cragg desires through our columns to thank his numerous friends, professional and otherwise, for their kind inquiries and sympathy.

Mr. Alfred Lester concludes to-night an eight weeks' most successful season at the Tivoli. He opens at the Hippodrome, Portsmouth, on Monday for a short provincial tour, returning to town at Easter for a lengthy West End engagement.

Mr. Harry Bancroft, who writes from Madeira "Up to now splendid voyage," desires through our columns to thank numerous friends who sent to him and his wife wires and letters wishing them bon voyage. These travellers to Africa are on board the Armadale Castle.

Mr. W. H. Atlas and Mr. J. Miller Northern were the only two members present on Wednesday, and therefore no meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A was held. A proposal to hold the meetings of the M.H.A.R.A. and the V.A.B.F. Executives on the same day is now being considered.

Miss Sylvia Cavalho's diverting sketch What's Charles Worth?, with Mr. Edmund Gurney's travesty on a well-known manager and the "Four Rapids" in the Agents' Chorus, has caught on well. Record business has resulted at the Empire, Camberwell.

Mr. Ted E. Box, the well-known whistling comedian, has been ordered a week's rest by his doctor, as his system has completely run down through the continuous strain of work without a break for two years. Mr. Box, however, will be in harness again next week at the Empire, South Shields, where he will sing his two big successes, by Phil Mervyn and Ted E. Box, "Flopping about" and "Whistling mad."

The committee of the Fred Millis Testimonial Fund desire to express their regret that several artists who kindly came to the Empire, Camberwell, last Sunday night were unable to appear through lack of time. Especially is this so with regard to the scene from Hamlet by Misses Nita Ashby and Rita Spenti and Mr. Eric Snowden, Miss Bertha Barnes, and the March from Le Prophète, which was to have been conducted by Mr. Edmund Bosanquet.

We regret to hear of the accident to Mr. John Read, the veteran song-writer, who earned the respect and esteem of the profession while he occupied the chair at Collins's, when the little hall facing the green at Islington was under the rule of the late Herebert Sprake. On Tuesday, while on his way back from Messrs. Charles Sheard, the publishers, Mr. Read was knocked down by a brougham, which went over his foot, his face also being cut. The sufferer is over seventy years of age, and his straitened resources prevent him having the attention he needs. Friends may communicate with him at 442, West Green-road, Wood Green, N. It is a curious coincidence that the song submitted by Mr. Read for his publishers' approval is entitled "You never know your luck."

PONY MOORE—NOT OUT 89!

A BIRTHDAY CARD.

(Feb. 22, 1909.)

Othello lives for ever, yet—
When all is said and done—
The Moor of Venice never scored
The Moore of London's "run."

To give the record would indeed
Old Father Time give "fits"—
To turn up old Moore's almanack
Of dates, and "turns," and "hits."

Tho' burnt cork may have had its day
(That "black art" free from sin),
The Centenarian Stakes, you bet,
Our "Pony" runs to win!

W. E. Imeson.

The celebrated comedian, Mr. John L. Shine, met with a most serious accident on Monday night at the Holloway Empire. Upon making his first breezy entrance in his successful sketch An Actor's Art, his right foot caught in an old 3in. batten in the centre opening, which being covered by a rug concealed the danger of the obstruction. Mr. Shine was violently hurled on to his left elbow, but, immediately rising to his feet, endeavoured to get on with the performance. His left arm hung helplessly at his side, and after speaking a few lines of his part, he had to apologise to the audience for his inability to continue. He asked for a doctor and the curtain was lowered.

Mr. Shine was taken to the Great Northern Hospital, where he was examined, but the nature of the accident was not disclosed. After being carefully bandaged for the time being by the house surgeon and Dr. Hair he returned to the theatre, and in the second house pluckily recited Byron Webber's poem "A Letter from England." The house paid a tribute to the courage of the artist by bestowing on him unbounded enthusiasm.

On Tuesday Mr. Shine underwent the X rays at the hospital, when it was discovered that he had torn the greater tuberosity of the humerus from the bone, and would not have the full and proper use of his arm for at least three months. This meant idleness for Mr. Shine and his company, as in his crippled state he could not possibly effect his quick changes in An Actor's Art; but he was equal to the occasion. He commissioned his brother Wilfred to put his well-known sketch Hogmanay into rehearsal. This was done at once. Mr. Shine was then strapped up by the doctors, and at night appeared at both performances in his favourite part of Sanders Campbell.

The obsequies on Monday of Mrs. Cragg, wife of the popular doyen of acrobatic performers, J. W. Cragg, prompted many demonstrations of respect in the immediate neighbourhood of the residence of the deceased lady and along the route from Kennington-road to the Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting. The funeral cortège, under the direction of Mr. Theophilus Dunkley, who carried out the arrangements with his customary good taste, left the residence, 68, Kennington-road, at 10.45, and arrived at the place of interment at 12 o'clock. The car containing the casket, almost hidden by flowers, was drawn by four horses, and immediately following came five carriages. In the first were seated Mr. Cragg, Mr. and Mrs. Edward, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cragg; the second was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Cobbin, Mr. and Mrs. Jim and Cremorne Cragg; and the third by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cragg, Emma, Rosie, and Victoria; and the fourth by Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Cheeseman, and Master Arthur. Mr. Douglas Stuart and Mr. Atlas, representing the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, came in the fifth.

Wreaths were sent by the bereaved husband, artists engaged at the Oxford, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Formby, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Rousby, the Water Rats, the Variety Artists' Federation, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martinetti, Mr. and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elvin, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stuart, Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, Mr. and Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, management and staff of Theatre Royal, Leigh (Lancs.), Alfred and Florrie, Mabel and Lily, Jim and Lily, Lala and John, Francis, Alfred, and Johnny, Lizzie, Rosie, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Emily and Edward, Emma and Alex.

All interested in the Music Hall Ladies' Guild will be pleased to know that Mrs. Fred Ginnett has been re-elected president for 1909.

Miss Maud Allan, at the Criterion, on Sunday evening, will deliver a lecture on "Classical Dancing" to the O.P. Club, with Mr. T. McDonald Rendle in the chair.

Miss Emmie Glover's most successful musical scena, The Wishing Well, which was produced at the Middlesex on Jan. 16, has been secured by Mr. J. L. Graydon for March 1. The company engaged in its representation are versatile enough to provide an entire variety bill. The sketch is full of melodious songs and catchy numbers.

Mr. Leonard Terl, the Dame Hubbard of the Kennington pantomime, will open at the Euston in his character skit, The Suffering Dame, on Monday next.

A football match was last week arranged by Mr. E. Bridgen between Karno's XI. and Deptford Invicta XI., played at Deptford. The result was a £10 profit from the gate, which amount was handed over to the Mayor of Greenwich's fund for boots for bootless children. The scores were: Karno, 3 goals; Deptford, 2 goals.

On Friday, the 12th inst., the Mayor and Mayoress of Holborn visited the Holborn Empire. The Mayor, who was introduced by Mr. E. Leslie Conroy (the manager), addressed the audience on behalf of the Territorial forces, and was accorded a great reception by a packed house. At the conclusion the Mayor warmly congratulated Mr. Walter Gibbons, and thanked him for the kindness and courtesy he had received.

Mr. Benj. Woodger, secretary of the Music Hall Home, desires to thank Mr. Fred W. Warden, Theatre Royal, Belfast, for box collection of £1 8s. 7d., the proprietors of The Encore for cheque for 10s. 6d., and Mr. Harry Wright for present of an overcoat. Many thanks are due to Mr. Ted E. Box for his good work on behalf of the Home Fund. The next committee meeting will be held at the Empire, Camberwell, on Thursday, March 4, at 12 noon.

The exclusive right of presenting to London audiences Messrs. Charles Urban and Albert Smith's newly-invented life-motion pictures in the actual hues of Nature has, for the present, been secured, with characteristic enterprise, by Mr. Alfred Butt, and an exhibition of the first results of this delightful system will become a feature of the programme at the Palace Theatre on and after the evening of Monday, March 1.

In simple words, the new art, which is the outcome of seven years of unremitting study and experiment, and has been entitled "Kinemacolor," consists in bioscoping moving objects in natural tints by means of colour filters fitted to the camera, and subsequently reproducing them on the screen by a projector similarly equipped, the actual films (or celluloid ribbons which bear the pictures, each no larger than a postage-stamp) being as devoid of any chromatic tone as the morning newspapers.

The present subjects include scenes of great rustic beauty on an English farm; of marine freshness on the South Coast, showing the ever-changing moods of the sea, from blue to green and green to grey; bright military spectacles of the 16th Lancers and 7th Hussars on church parade; the band of the Gordon Highlanders streaming on to Brighton Pier; French soldiers route-marching at Dieppe; yachting and motor-boat racing, and a variety of other subjects, concluding with a veritable masterpiece, taken only on Sunday last, of the Carnival at Nice in all its prismatic animation.

Mr. Alfred Butt, on Friday next at three o'clock, will give a special invitation matinée for the convenience of the Press, and the many leading lights of Art and Science who are keenly interested in the new invention, and after these have been accommodated, he will allot free to such of the public as apply by letter the whole of the remaining seats. As, however, the number of applications is sure to exceed the holding capacity of the theatre, Mr. Butt would ask those whose letters are received too late to accept his silence as a not discourteous indication of his inability to comply with all requests.

After a successful run in town of over six months, John Lawson will visit the Regent's, Salford, next week with Pigs in Clover and the revised Humanity. In the former sketch will be shown the great avalanche scene, and in the latter episode the new fire effects will be at work. The London cast accompanies Mr. Lawson. March 1 will see them at the Metropolitan and Tottenham Palace.

Mr. Joe Elvin, the vice-chairman of the committee, was unable to be present at the Millis benefit through an attack of muscular rheumatism, and was much missed. Mr. Albert Christian and Miss Katie Cohen were prevented from appearing by reason of a sad domestic bereavement. A number of telegrams were received, including those from Mr. Harry Blake (hon. treasurer), Vasco, Bert Williams, and Horace Livermore. Mr. Walter Norman came up expressly from Hastings to be present, and among the audience we noticed several other managers and proprietors.

Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, at the Lincoln Theatre, New York, on Tuesday night was pelted with bouquets of flowers like a prima donna, and to his dressing-room went committees and representatives of various clubs with speeches and substantial gifts. The Knights of Columbus presented a silver loving-cup, the Scottish Gaelic League an emblem of the intertwined American and Scottish flags, and finally Mr. Lauder's American managers handed him a silver coffee service worth £100. He left on Wednesday on board the Lusitania, and opens at the Tivoli on March 8.

Lieut. Travis, the well-known ventriloquist, has fully recovered from his serious illness, and is once again in harness. The Lieutenant is bringing out an entirely new sketch, quite an original idea in ventriloquism. He will be assisted by Miss Marjorie Dean, a soubrette and extraordinary danseuse. The sketch has been licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, and the title has also been registered, so that it is protected in every shape and form.

On behalf of the Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) begs to thank most gratefully Mrs. Smith, 23, Wellington-street, for her gift of a handsome cushion. Mrs. Eugene Stratton possessed the number 308, and everyone concerned will be pleased to know it fetched £5 7s. 6d. Other helpers thanked are Mrs. Fred Ginnett, collecting 10s.; Sisters Macarte, collecting £1 10s.; Mrs. Courtney, collecting 4s.; Equestrian Bar, collecting 6d. (through Mrs. Ginnett); Mrs. Keen, collecting 3s.; Miss Eileen Guilburt, collecting 2s. 6d.; Miss Ray Heyden, collecting 2s. 6d.; Mrs. Lewis Levey, 5s. (through Miss Lottie Albert); Mr. Harry Wentworth, manager Grand Palace, Clapham, 10s. (through Mrs. Herbert Shelley); Mme. Haydee, collecting 5s.; Miss Maggie Bowman, collecting 2s. 6d.; Miss Flora Fox, Teignmouth, for box of clothing; Mrs. Ernest Collins, for clothing; Mrs. Eugene Stratton, for useful parcel of clothing; Mrs. Steve Cooke, giving and collecting 7s. for Miss Lington and family; and Mr. Percy Maye 2s. 6d. for the same purpose.

Entertainments on the sands are invited by the Urban District of Mablethorpe, on the Lincolnshire coast. Applications to be sent to Mr. F. C. Chard, Council House, Louth, Lincolnshire.

The County Borough, Brighton, invite tenders for the hire of a stand on the beach opposite Cannon-place, also for the hire of the Madeira-road bandstand and the Western Esplanade bandstand and one of the lawns adjoining. Applications to Mr. Hugh Talbot, Town Clerk.

The Victoria Park, an attraction of the Three Towns—Plymouth, Stonehouse, and Devonport—has a bandstand on which entertainments are given in the summer. Tenders are invited by the boroughs and urban district council, and are to be sent to Mr. J. E. Ellis, Town Clerk, Plymouth.

The following donations have been received this week for the Primrose Fund:—My Fancy (donation), £1 1s.; Collected by My Fancy, £1 19s. 6d.; Arthur Aldridge, £1; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lorimer, £1.

Miss Kate Walbran sustained a severe shock while working at the Grand, Glasgow, pantomime, by the receipt on Monday night of a wire announcing the death by drowning of her father, Mr. F. M. Walbran, of Leeds, the celebrated authority on angling.

It appears that, accompanied by a friend, he had gone to Tanfield, on the Ure, for the week-end's fishing, and, despite warnings, he waded in and was caught by the current, and swept to his doom. Strangely enough, in the Fishing Gazette the previous week, Mr. Walbran warned anglers to be particularly careful of the "freshets" which occur at this time of the year, never thinking that that of which he wrote would be the manner of his own end.

We sympathise with both the daughters who are left to mourn his loss, and pay tribute to a valued Pressman, for his articles upon angling have been a feature of the Yorkshire Post, the Fishing Gazette, and other papers for years. Only this month a fine article on "Grayling," from his pen, appeared in Fry's Magazine.

Miss Decima Moore, whose brilliant reappearance at the Tivoli on Monday has been so favourably commented on in the Press, has written a book concerning her recent flying trip through Ashanti in her husband's company. It is appropriately called "We Two in West Africa," and will be published very shortly by Messrs. Heinemann. Not since the initial days of the Coliseum has Miss Moore been seen as a variety artist in London, and those who remember her in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy and Mrs. Dot will have delightful memories revived on paying a visit to the Tivoli.

Mr. Joseph Menchen, of the Joseph Menchen Electric Light Company, is on his way to St. Petersburg to instal in that city that successful spectacle "The Johnstown Flood," which will be well remembered at the Franco-British Exhibition, where it drew 800,000 people in three months. The Joseph Menchen branch office and factory has been established at 341, Walworth-road, S.E.

Mr. J. G. Johnson, the veteran actor and sketch producer, who was with Joe Cave at the Elephant and Castle, is lying seriously ill at 6, Oxford-gardens, Wellesley-road, Gunnersbury, W. The doctors say he has such a complication of diseases that he will never be able to appear before the public again. Mr. Johnson produced in the halls the sketch called Blind, a tabloid version of The Two Orphans.

Mr. John Hayman, of the head office of the Moss-Stoll-Thornton and Allen combine, on the occasion of his leaving London for Paris as the European representative of the firm, was yesterday (Friday) presented with an 18ct. gold Albert and locket, containing monogram and inscription as follows:—"To Mr. John Hayman, from head office staff, Moss' Empires, Limited, Feb. 20, 1909."; also from the Executive Committee Cranbourn Amateur Athletic Association a solid silver whisky flask, bearing the inscription:—"Cranbourn Amateur Athletic Association.—To Mr. John Hayman, from the Executive Committee, by way of appreciation, Feb. 20, 1909."

Mrs. Hayman also received a cut-glass silver-mounted scent bottle from the staff and Executive Committee of the Cranbourn Amateur Athletic Association. Mr. Hayman was also presented with an 18ct. gold pencil-case, the gift of the district managers of the company. Mr. Frank Allen, the popular assistant-director and chief of staff, made the presentations in a neat and effective speech.

Mr. Joe Elvin will be pleased to hear from artists willing to give their services for the matinée to be held at the Surrey Theatre on Thursday next, Feb. 25, in aid of the Two Primroses. Offers of help should be sent to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the Era; or to Mr. Elvin, at 63, Effra-road, Brixton, S.W. Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Henry Tozer, Mr. Henri Gros, and Mr. Walter Gibbons have given permission for artists under engagement to them to appear at this matinée.

The following artists have promised Mr. Joe Elvin to appear:—Eugene Stratton, Victoria Monks, Russell Wallett, The Maples, Sinclair and Parr, T. E. Dunville, Morny Cash, My Fancy, Arthur Woodville, Harry Blake, Fred Russell, The Boy Scouts, Will Godwin, Camilla Feo, Percy Dalton, Violet Lawson, George Formby, Eric Williams, Garden Troupe, Florrie Robina, Lena Pinaud, Florence Worth, one of the Two Primroses, Tray and Rich, Tom E. Conover, Dancing Gilberts, Jimmie Lawrence's juvenile boxing sketch, Fred Rickard's and Co. A Gaiety Miss, Gladys Godwynne, Dolly Joyce, F. W. Millis, Stavordale Quintette, Fanny Robina, Florrie Cooper, Jack and Evelyn, Charles Mildare, Dusty Rhodes, Kelly and Agnes, Howard and Sinclair, James Stuart, Frank Cass, Biff Hall, Arthur Dunville, Nellie Dallwood, Harry Galvin, G. H. Chirgwin, Joe Elvin.

Mr. Alfred Moul will present at the Alhambra on Monday an original divertissement, On the Square, a romp in one scene. The music, mostly from American sources, has been selected and arranged by Mr. G. W. Byng, the whole being produced by Miss Elise Clerc, under the personal direction of Mr. Alfred Moul. The principal characters in the frolic will be impersonated by Mlle. Britta, who plays a young English girl on a flying visit to New York; Miss Julia Seale, a rich American youth; and Miss Elise Clerc, in a variety of parts drawn from the Bowery. Mr. Frank Lawton will also illustrate Broadway types; Mr. Percy Clifton a self-made man; and Signor G. Rosi will be a Frenchman.

An object lesson in the various capacities demanded of actors and actresses in a modern play is being given at the London Hippodrome, where the coming sensational production The Motor Chase is being vigorously rehearsed. In the way of sensation the new play, which will be produced in a few days, bids fair to outrival any of Mr. Parker's former productions in "thrills." Be that as it may, Mr. C. W. Somerset as the villain and Mr. Philip Cunningham at the hero, and other members of the company are rapidly becoming expert motorists. Extremely expert they have to be, for the exigencies of the play, and their own personal safety require it, while Miss Maud Cressall, the heroine, and the other ladies need to be daring horsewomen.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS

AMONG the numerous songs and pieces recently accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day are: "I do make a hit with the ladies!" (sung by Miss Hetty King), by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford; "Kissing time," by T. F. Robson and H. E. Pether; "The bachelor coon's lament" (Gordon Stretton), by Tom Mellor and Harry Gifford; "Tom took tickets for two" (Miss Florrie Forde), by Sax Rohmer; "Rosie's young man" and "The musical comedy girl" (Miss Eileen Douglas), by F. W. Leigh and H. E. Pether; "Under my big umbrella" (Miss Ray Maskell), by Phil Mervin and Ted E. Box; "I've been looking for you for years and years and years!" by Miss Rosie Noel, Sax Rohmer, and T. W. Thurban; "John Willie, come on," written, composed, and sung by George Formby; "Put your trust in me, little girl" (Miss Sable Fern), by Frank Leo; "Take me on the sands, Joe," by Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford; "I'm looking for Mr. Wright," by R. P. Weston, C. W. Murphy, and H. E. Darewski; "Barney, are you leaving Killarney?" by Paul Pelham, Herbert Rule, and Harry Castling; "There's life in the old dog yet" (C. R. Whittle), by Charles Ridgwell; "Ups and downs; or, the farther you have to fall" (Tom Yorke), by Harry Castling and Charles Collins; "I've got rings on my fingers and bells on my toes," by R. P. Weston, F. J. Barnes, and Maurice Scott; "Money don't make happiness" (Miss Carlotta Levey), by T. W. Connor; "Put a bit of salt on his tail" (Miss Florrie Forde), by T. W. Connor; "It must be me!" (Bert Graham and Will Bentley), by F. Wood; "Where did I put my hat?" (Bernard Russell), by Fred Hastings; "Tommy Dodds; or, laying the odds," by Fred Hastings; "Just where you are" (J. Edward Fraser), by David James; "I'm going back to gay Bohemia," by Percy Edgar, Fred Warwick, and H. E. Darewski; "In the language of your eyes," by Percy Edgar and H. E. Darewski; "A restless night" (two-step), by Cecil Johnson; "She gets more like the white gals every day" (G. H. Elliott), by A. J. Lawrance; "Joe, I do want to go to the football match with you" (Arthur Woodville), by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton; "My Lucy Anna from Alabama" (T. E. Finglas), by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule; "For evermore," by W. A. Loughrey and Walter E. Stevens; "Will you sing this little duet with me?" by F. W. Leigh and H. E. Pether; "The first boat in the morning," by Herbert Rule, Harry Castling, and James McGee; "Never let your braces dangle" (Harry Champion), by R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes; "Oh, leave me with the ladies!" (Ambrose Thorne), by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton; and "When we want a change in the Government" (Ambrose Thorne), by George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy.

MISS VESTA TILLEY sang a rousing number to a fine marching air for the Territorials at the Palace Theatre on Monday night. "Are you one of England's soldiers?" ran the first line. "It's up to every man to do his share! It's your duty, nothing more," is a refrain that should appeal to patriotic young Britishers.

MR. WALTER TILBURY, too, has a song on the Territorial question, and "Wake up, ye Britishers," as sung by him at the Middlesex this week has roused Mr. Graydon's audiences to loud expressions of enthusiasm for a stirring song.

THE sale of Mr. Harry Lauder's songs throughout the United States has been very great, and is likely to remain so for a long time, judging by the orders mailed in shoals daily to T. B. Harms and Francis, Day, and Hunter at their establishment "on Broadway."

MISS VESTA TILLEY has just had accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day another song by Maurice Scott, the composer of her now popular "That's the time a fellow wants his ma," the title of the newer one being "Out in the open air," the words by Edgar Bateman. The firm have also in the press a song of which Miss Tilley holds the sole rights for England and America, and of which she said, "It is the song I have been looking for for years." It was written by Jas. Godden and Owen Way. The music is by H. E. Pether.

YET another song of Miss Tilley's, about to be issued by the same firm, is "I simply made them roar at our bazaar," by Fred Murray, Charles Hilbury, and Kenneth Lyle, who were responsible for the artist's fine number, "Sidney's holidays are in September," also a Francis and Day item.

MR. FRANK LAMBERT, so well and worthily known for his graceful waltzes and melodious ballads, has published with Mr. David Day's firm a number called "Cogy O Gay," the words of which are from "Irish Cradle Songs," a morceau which will yet further enhance his already high reputation

MR. JACK LORIMER, who sailed for New York a day or two since, published just prior to his departure, with Messrs. Francis and Day, a characteristic song, by Worton David and Kenneth Lyle, called "My Highland laddie, oh!"

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, the chocolate-coloured coon, whose song "Sue, Sue, Sue," has been the rage of so many pantomimes, has secured another from the same pens—to wit, those of Lester Barrett and Hermann E. Darewski—the title of which is "I used to sigh for the silvery moon." It will be published immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS WINIFRED HARE—who is most fastidious and hard to please in the matter of songs, only the very best standing a chance of being selected by the popular artist, who is a musician to the tips of her fingers—will shortly be heard in "Lindy Loo," by Charles Wilmott and Hermann E. Darewski. The song has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT, who has during the week been helping to nightly throng the New Hippodrome at Exeter, has published with Messrs. Francis and Day her new song, by Edgar Bateman and Henry F. Greenfield, "Just because ma went to see the great invasion play."

MESSRS. HARRY MARLOW AND ANDREW N. ALLEN have just disposed of the sole singing rights of their latest creation, "I've got a pal in Palestine," to Mr. Will Godwin, who has purchased same for his daughter, Miss Gladys Godwyne, who intends making it her strong card for London and provincial audiences. Both writers and singer have strong expectations.

CARL AND CARR, in their comedy act, A Drawing-Room Interlude, are making their return to town on Monday to the Empire, Stratford, after their pantomime success.

MISS MABEL MIGNON, the rising star, is being rapidly booked for three years ahead by her exclusive agent, Mr. David Hart, and goes next week to the Empire, Liverpool.

LORD LEIGHTON'S original model, Venus, in her new act, Egypt; or, the Daughter of Herodias, written by Mr. L. Austin Millais, appears in costly Salome robes and Egyptian pearls valued at £200, and is assisted by three principals, Court dancers, &c. This week record business is being done at the Hippodrome, Hull, where the act is most gorgeously mounted by Mr. Alfred Graham, who has studied every detail.

VARIETY ARTISTS AND AGENTS.

MR. ASKWITH'S AWARD.

Certain disputes having arisen between variety artists and variety agents, and the Board of Trade having been requested to appoint an arbitrator to decide the disputes, I, the undersigned, George Ranken Askwith, one of His Majesty's Counsel, the duly appointed arbitrator, Award, and declare upon the matters in dispute:—

(a) That the maximum amount of commission an agent shall be entitled to charge an artist for engagements made is 10 per cent.

(b) That agents' commission notes may contain a provision that the artist authorises the proprietor or manager to deduct the agent's commission from their salary weekly, and pay it to the agent.

(c) That clauses in future agency contracts granting to the agent a commission on salaries on re-engagements are abolished except in the following cases: (1) Where the agent procures engagements for artists from abroad; (2) where an artist has received through an agent a first engagement with a management lasting not more than eight weeks, and the artist receives a re-engagement from the same management within a period of three months from the end of such first engagement. In these cases an agent may insert a clause and claim commission on the re-engagement.

(d) I make no rule preventing an artist acting as an agent or an agent as an artist.

This award to continue in force till Jan. 1, 1912, and thereafter subject to six months' notice on either side.

Signed and published this 15th day of February, 1909. (Signed) G. R. ASKWITH.

WOODHOUSE AND WELLS return to town after twenty-one weeks' provincial tour, opening at the Holborn Empire, with the Gibbons' tour to follow.

BY an inadvertency our critic at the Foresters' last week omitted to mention the entertainment of Miss Amy Savile, a dainty comedienne, who is this week continuing her success at the Bow Palace.

MLLE. OLGA TREMELLI, the world-renowned prima donna, won an immense triumph at the Empire Theatre on Monday last, when she appeared in a scene from Gounod's opera of Sapho, which was superbly staged. Mlle. Tremelli's handsome stage presence, effective acting, and fine voice created the greatest enthusiasm.

MR. HERBERT DICKESON, who is paying return visits to all the Syndicate Halls with his musical comedy act, A Fair Exchange, shortly starts on the Moss and Stoll tour, prior to commencing his concert season in Devonshire. At its conclusion Mr. Dickeson is booked for two tours with Mr. Stoll, opening at the Coliseum in October.

MR. WILL OLIVER.

Were we to begin this article by introducing Will Oliver to our readers, we should certainly be guilty of an indiscretion, if not an impertinence, for in music hall land no one is better known or more popular. He is regarded by his legion of friends as "one of the boys," and in spite of his fifty and seven years, he plays the part to admiration. Tuesday next is his birthday, and we should have some difficulty in hazarding a guess at the number of congratulatory messages that will be sent to Spot Lodge, where, with his amiable spouse and help-meet, he dispenses a genial hospitality. Will has pride in many events of his career. He was one of the earliest members of the Water Rats, now a grand order, and a fraternity of artists whose brains have done so much to establish unity and to form the Variety Artists' Federation. In this connection we may quote as an instance of Will's popularity with his brother Rats that though as an agent he was in direct opposition to most of them in the recent dispute Artists v. Agents, there was no rancour or bitterness on either side, and, now that Mr. Askwith's award is published, it will be a source of great satisfaction to Will Oliver that he was one of the four chosen representatives of the agents. It is many years since we saw him on the variety stage; but in the eighties he used to foot it neatly as a burlesque ballet girl, and raised many a laugh at the South London, and afterwards at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, in pantomime, under the régime of the most successful lady actress-proprietress of the nineteenth century—Mrs. Sara Lane, a staunch friend of his. This was Willie's last appearance in pantomime, and Miss Marie Lloyd's first. Britannia pantomimes have been brightened by some of the most gifted of our variety comediennes, among them Ada Reeve. He is a Mason, and a Past Master of the Pimlico Lodge, whose banquets have been cheered by his remarkable song "My father's face."

One of Mr. Oliver's home treasures at Spot Lodge is an illuminated address, signed by 125 prominent music hall managers and artists. This was given to him on his retirement from the stage at the age of thirty-nine. Another is a time-worn portrait of himself in a red jacket, blue trousers, and old-fashioned broad silk hat, which was taken when he was appearing, at the age of fifteen, at Wilton's, Wellclose-square, a hall that has long since passed away.

Of course, Mr. Oliver has his hobbies, and his culture of a large plot of garden ground at the rear of Spot Lodge proves that he would have done well had he "gone back to the land" instead of becoming a lover of Cockneydom in its most picturesque, most alluring, and most Bohemian phases.

MISS MAUDIE FRANCIS, who made a hit as Tommy Tucker in the Marlborough pantomime, was presented by Mr. Fred Karno with a solid silver dressing set, and by Mr. and Mrs. Woolley with a luncheon basket.

JACK BINNS, the hero of the Republic, who is in Nottingham at present, attended the second performance at the Empire on Tuesday, accompanied by a party of friends. Mr. Binns has sent a letter of thanks to Mr. Albert C. Duncan, manager of the Empire, thanking him for, at last, a quiet and thoroughly enjoyable evening's entertainment.

A GROOM named Henry Rulsbosh, no fixed abode, was charged at the Plymouth Police-court last week with stealing an overcoat, containing a cigarette case and pocket handkerchief, and also a chain and silver matchbox, valued £2 10s., the property of Carlo Cestria, from a room at the Palace Theatre. A sentence of ten days' hard labour was passed.

MISS MAUDE MAY MURRAY concludes her engagement at the Opera House, Middlesbrough, to-night. So great has been Miss Murray's success in the pantomime Aladdin that she was engaged by Mr. Rembges to appear at the Empire, Middlesbrough for the week commencing March 8, and on Monday next she opens in Scotland.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

Though Miss Decima Moore made her début in what our American cousins call vaudeville at the Coliseum in 1905 in an Irish scena, her engagement at the Tivoli, which commenced on Monday, marks her first appearance on the London variety stage as a single turn. She is daintiness personified in her closely-fitting robe of satin sheen. Her first song is scarcely robust enough for the Tivolians, though she gives to it most tender expression. She finds greater appreciation in the poem "Riding through the broom," recited to the accompaniment of the orchestra with admirable emphasis. Her final item is a song, of which the refrain is most beautifully whistled. We have heard nothing so good at the hall since Mrs. Shaw made her appearance there as a simeuse. Whistling is a musical accomplishment when undertaken by so thoroughly equipped an artist as Decima Moore. During the course of her engagement it is to be hoped that she will give some character impersonations, and show her gifts as a charming comedy actress.

Early in Mr. Joseph Wilson's scheme of amusement we discover a farcical sketch A Very Bad Boy, which is surprisingly funny. In its clever representation the strong contrasts between the characters are brought out with the utmost drollery by Hal Godfrey and company, the interpretation of the meek tutor being one of the most whimsical things we have seen on the variety stage for some time. If we mistake not, the credit of this bit of character should go to Mr. Hal Godfrey himself, though the programme gives no information to guide us. The two other members of the company are also excellent. Then we have that side-splitting interlude A Restaurant Episode, presented by one of London's most popular comedians, Mr. Alfred Lester, who as the melancholy waiter is responsible for a most finished and clever piece of comedy work. He is well supported by Miss Gwen Howard, a handsome girl who is most attractively gowned.

Immobility of feature is the strong card of Mr. Sam Mayo, whose songs are cleverly written to suit his method. Mr. George Formby, a newer Tivoli favourite, has a capital number in "John Willie, come on!" Mr. Frank Harwood, well endowed vocally, sings a tuneful and effective sailor song, with occasional interpolations of very ancient gags; and Miss Gladys Huxley's capital "Madeira" song is just the sort to have a vogue. Gladys, in her desire to be distinct, is given to over-accentuation, and makes one-syllable words into two. Miss Beatrice Lindley at the piano sings "Bridget" with much archness; Mr. Bert Errol pleasantly asserts his claims to consideration as a male soprano; Chirgwin entertains with his customary success; the Stellings (Bella and George) present a novel entertainment in Hats; and Mr. Frank Leon, with a display of champion belts, won in contests, dances in clogs as he only can.

The Dumond Trio long since established a high reputation in London for their musical mélange Parisian Street Singers. The vocal endowment, as well as the instrumental ability, of each make their turn specially grateful to music lovers, and their entertainment at the Tivoli is very popular. Other turns in the bill include Mr. Will E. Stopit, comedian; Mr. Ambrose Thorne, comedian; Mlle. Liane D'Eve, Parisian chanteuse; the Three Braggs, novelty acrobats, in "The Living Bridge," a sensation which was so cleverly utilised by Mr. Sutton Vane in his drama, The Span of Life; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

THE OXFORD.

Mr. Blyth Pratt, ever responsive to the eager demand for novelty, has secured for the Oxford Mr. Percy Honri's new musical fantasy Concordia. Mr. Honri, the inventor and producer, is young and very naturally ambitious, and his desire for extending a knowledge of his versatility in a production of considerable taste and ingenuity does him infinite credit. The scenery of Concordia is really beautiful, and the rapid change from the realities of a street in Hoxton to the Demon Wood is a revelation. Mr. Honri, as far as we could gather from a somewhat incoherent opening scene—an incoherence that might readily be remedied—impersonates a gentleman who is seeking the suffrages of parliamentary electors in a country constituency. After an unimportant conversation with his wife, Percy takes to dreaming. It must be during a period of sub-consciousnees that he plays with much musicianly feeling on his beloved concertina, "O star of eve," from Wagner's Tannhäuser. The dream continuing, he puts on the cap and bells, as well as an "antick" disposition in Frivolity Hall, where songs and dances from footmen and others add to the liveliness of the production. Unfortunately, the characters have nothing worth saying. A street in Hoxton forms the natural environment for a coster revel, in which Percy in the "pearlies" gives a coster impersonation, again accompanied by himself on the concertina. This is a decidedly creditable bit of character acting, and will be even better with less self-consciousness. The prosaic surroundings dissolve into the more poetic Demon Wood, where music revels and fairydom reign, but the triumph of the whole production is reached in "The man in the moon" scene. Here scene-painter and costumier are in complete harmony, and the effect, aided by judicious lighting, is excellent. There is a pretty number in this scene, too, to which complete justice is done by artistically dressed ladies, who dance excellently. An important musical selection on the concertina is helped by wood wind instruments, and eventually Percy gets back from the land of dreams to the world of reality. The dialogue might be strengthened with advantage, that in the opening scene especially. Compression here and there would also be an improvement. Concordia should enjoy a large measure of favour; for in all important particulars it is both interesting and beautiful.

At the art of dancing on the variety stage no one can hurl the reproach of neglect while we are able to witness the efforts of such a perfect artist as My Fancy, whose step-dancing—we use the phrase in its most comprehensive significance—completely fascinates. It is in a series of scenes delightfully illustrating Winter, Spring, and Summer that My Fancy teaches us something of the intricacy of the art that she practises to such perfection. In a snow-capped mountain scene, becomingly dressed in fur and velvet, the captivating dancer steps it bravely and rhythmically in ice skates; in a scene displaying the flora of Spring she adds to the attraction of her dancing by tearing out a pretty pattern in tissue paper; and finally by the seaside, in an attractive bathing costume, she dances to a crescendo of admiration.

Pantomime has now released Mr. Ernest Rees, who returns to renew his former triumphs by his patter concerning "Stacy." Mr. George Formby has firmly established himself as the Lancashire comedian by his amusing rendering of "One of the boys" and "John Willie, come on." Mr. Dusty Rhodes, who starts by singing quite seriously "Because," is ordered by someone at the wings to be comic, and is so in a cleverly-written song, which we may call "Bacon and eggs," a breakfast relish as enduring as the British constitution. Of course, Mr. Elvin is exceedingly popular in Obedient Billy, a sketch specially favoured by Oxfordians; and Mooney and Holbein in wildly practical fun have their meed of applause. Miss Louise Zetland sings artistically; the Glenroy Troupe dance prettily; the Courtiers are popular as society entertainers; and the Carina Sisters in a musical mélange; Sinclair and Parr, comedians and vocalists; James Stewart, the tramp at the piano; and Ritter and Foster entertain early in the evening. Miss May Moore Duprez, the jolly Dutch girl, and Hackenschmidt are later turns, and Ruffell's Bioscope completes the attractions of a very full and judiciously varied bill.

THE BEDFORD.

There is a capital bill for the current week at this popular resort, where Mr. B. Pearce Lucas always seems to have the happy knack of providing an entertainment which appeals to all comers. Mr. Arnold Bell and company hold the premier position in the programme, and are presenting a very fine sketch, An Actress's Honour. It is a story which is reminiscent of David Garrick, and tells of Nance Lambert, engaged to Jack Merfield, who, having gambled, has lost a fortune to a scoundrel, Captain Draughan, once a friend of Nance's. Lady Merfield strongly objects to her son's proposed marriage, and entreats Nance to give him up, and behave in such a manner as to thoroughly disgust Jack. This she undertakes to do as a proof of her devotion to Jack, who, she is led to believe, will ruin his life by marrying against his mother's wishes. Nance carries out her promise, but Jack sees through it all, and when Lady Merfield learns that Nance has paid Jack's gambling debts to save him from disgrace, she relents, and the lovers are united. The sketch, which is founded on Nance Oldfield, is capitally acted, Mr. Arnold Bell giving a forcible portrayal of Captain Draughan. Miss Frances Campbell acts her part splendidly, the drunken scene being especially fine. Mr. Frank Byars is good as Jack; while Miss Amy Parker makes a dignified Lady Merfield. The comic element is provided by Mr. Frank Lilliput as a dude, and is extremely comical. The sketch made a big success, which was well merited.

Mamie Fredericks, a fetching comedienne, is remarkably clever, and her two songs are given with the utmost abandon. Miss Fredericks finishes off with a capital dance, which earned terrific applause. The Georgio Trio are very clever vocalists, and also comedians of no mean talent, and they score heavily with their very melodious turn, which is most pleasing and highly entertaining. Mlle. Pollo, a lady gymnast, gives a very artistic display, and performs many clever feats with wonderful agility. Beale and Broadway are a duo of clever dancers, who soon dance themselves into favour. On Monday evening Cyrus Dare appeared as a deputy, and gave his ever-delightful sketch of children. His imitation of a small girl singing at the piano is very clever, and his turn was highly appreciated. Raglus, the juggling comedian, is presenting his very diverting turn, which causes shrieks of laughter; his spoof game of pyramids is extremely comical. Edie Gray is a very charming vocalist, who sings very sweetly, and she is accompanied by two young people, who are good dancers.

Damerell and Rutland appear in a laughable sketch, House Full, in which two babies are the cause of most of the trouble. It is a farce of the most hilarious description, and is played at a furious pace, and keeps its audience in one long and loud laugh. The company engaged all play capitally, and extract all the fun possible. An extra turn was given by a diverting comedian, who caused endless amusement with his song, "Let's sing the chorus." Cole and Wood, comedy sketch duo, also appear early in the evening; and the Bioscope concludes with interesting films. A word is also due for the orchestra, whose efforts are worthy of notice, for they add most materially to the evening's entertainment. Business at this house continues to be as big as usual, and Mr. B. Pearce Lucas and his able manager, Mr. Donald Brown, may well be pleased with the result of their efforts to cater for Camden Town.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

A programme of exceptional brilliancy is submitted this week for the delectation of crowded audiences. The Burnells were billed to appear; but owing to an accident to one of the team they were unable to perform their comedy sketch Playmates, but an excellent deputy was found in Harry Pleon, who by his inimitable burlesque of John Lawson in Humanity and a skit on a divorce case, in which the counsel and witnesses were supposed to be played by Martin Harvey, Joe Elvin, and other popular artists, kept the audience in continual merriment the time he occupied the stage.

Belle Davis and her Pick-Chick actors gave a fine performance, the wrestling bout between the two blacks causing considerable amusement. Fyne and Hurley, a very popular duo, introduced their well-known act, The Coster and Dude, which obtained for them a rousing reception. A comedy act is submitted by Avon and Crest, the male partner presenting some very clever legmania work. The Ringling Trio are to be congratulated on their smart acrobatic comedy on stilts, in which some good tricks are performed. Cash and Clair are remarkably fine vocalists, and deserve great praise for their exhibition of simultaneous dancing. Miss Margaret Radcliffe scores a success for her charming rendering of the two illustrated songs, "Sing me to sleep" and "A tiny seed of love." Miss Amy Lloyd is successful in her singing of "Rosie." Johnny Cecil, a light comedian, and Miss Gertie Yolande, comedienne, add considerably to the success of the evening. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux throws two splendid pictures on the screen, A Criminal Guardian being an extra good specimen. The orchestra, under Mr. J. E. Turner, do yeoman service during the evening.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

A large and well pleased audience assembled here on Monday to do full justice to the liberal fare provided for their delectation. There was much enthusiasm bestowed on the graceful performance of La Milo, whose artistic poses always call forth loud applause. Miss Mary Mayfren and company appear with great success in the highly dramatic sketch, entitled The Yellow Fang. The parts were all well acted, the cast being Sun-Kee (Mr. George Pickett), Jim Nares (Mr. Francis Annesley), a drunken sport (Mr. Cecil Kingsley), Policeman (Mr. Aubrey Stuart), Judith Beck (Miss Mary Mayfren). The scenery, dressing, and lighting were all capital. Miss Nellie Le Breton made a hit with her illustrated song, "Just for love of me." Adams and Ward contributed an excellent acrobatic and patter turn. Those established favourites Spry and Monti had a warm reception for their really smart doings. Orpheus gave a remarkable musical entertainment, well deserving his title of a master of music, his performance on various instruments, including the oboe, being most enjoyable. Miss Dot Stephens sang delightfully "As much as I love you," and her imitations of Miss Stella Gastelle as La Poupeé, and Miss Edna May as the Belle of New York, were charming. Mike Nono sang capitally "A corner in your heart" and "Maggie Malone." Other good turns were Frank Hartley, the clever boy juggler; and Miss Eily Beadnell, a charming ballad vocalist, who appeared after Wednesday in place of Miss Edna Morgan, who is indisposed. Miss Beadnell makes a decided success. The performance concluded with pictures on the American Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the genial and popular acting-manager, is now assisted by Mr. Parry, who has received well deserved promotion.

Owing to the indisposition of Miss Daisy Morell, on Wednesday of last week, whilst at the Lyceum, Govan, Miss Topsy Johnson (Felina) undertook her part as principal boy (Colin), in Mr. J. H. Savile's Puss in Boots, which is having such a successful run. Miss Topsy Johnson, who has a fine stage presence, made an excellent boy, and soon proved herself a warm favourite. She is shortly to appear on the halls. She is the young lady who last year accomplished the feat of swimming across the bay at Aberdeen, and is also a holder of many other long-distance records.

MR. MAURICE DE FRECE.

FIFTY YEARS AN AGENT.

Several mutual friends, well-wishers, and members of the profession, have suggested that a testimonial should be given to Mr. Maurice de Frece, who will shortly enter upon his fiftieth year of the variety agency business. For half of this period Mr. de Frece has been connected with the firm of Richard Warner and Co., with whom he is no longer associated. Mr. de Frece's friends deem this a most fitting opportunity of expressing their esteem and appreciation of his sterling good qualities in business, his straightforward conduct and extreme courtesy to one and all with whom he has come in contact during his career as the oldest established variety agent in the world. An influential committee is being formed, particulars of which will be duly announced. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, has kindly consented to act as hon. treasurer, and subscriptions may be forwarded to him at this office.

During the course of a conversation the other day Mr. de Frece furnished many interesting recollections of his professional career. "The first engagement," he said, "that I secured was in 1861 for the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, with Mr. Harry Webb, twin brother to Charles Webb, known as the Dromios. After this I established the Dramatic and Music-hall Agency in Liverpool, booking for the old Star Music Hall. Amongst my clientele were most of the principal performers of the day: Harry Clifton, Harry Sidney, J. G. Forde, Billy Randall, Fred Laroche, Saphrini, Albert Steele, Leybourne (the lion comique), A. G. Vance, Frank Hall, Ted Saunders (brother to Miss Charlotte Saunders, the one-time favourite comedienne of the Strand Theatre), Sir Wm. Don, Ned Hammond, Billy Critchfield, Edward Marshall, George Buckstone, Fox Ray, Jimmy Taylor (the champion comic), Tom Maclagan, Tom Fancourt, J. W. Jester (the man with the talking hand), Bill and Harry Jee, Faust and Hector, Bill and George Leopold, the Flying Farinis (afterwards Lulu), John Lauri Troupe, James Ellis, Harvey and Frenca, the Nerves, Hickin Family, Annie Adams, Georgina Smithson, Lizzie Ramsden, Nelly Power, Mr. and Mrs. George Ware, Sisters Gilbee Gifford, Cobb and Chapman (my first nigger clients; afterwards Cobb and East), Hildebrand and Ormond, Dejean and Pasta, Harry Liston (who first appeared in London working three halls nightly with his tin-pot band), and is still in the land of the living and giving. his mimetic entertainments on tour with his wife Miss Lumley; Jenny Hill (who also made her first appearance in London at three halls nightly), George Fredericks, Carrie Julian, Fred Coyne, Mrs. F. R. Phillips, Harry McCarthy (the comedian who had to escape from America during the war, having a price put on his head through singing secession songs in the Southern Army Camps), the originator of the song "The bonnie blue flag," Jean Bond (one of the finest benders before the public), Chas. Godfrey, Leno Family, John Blanchard (the comic singer who sang against James Taylor for the championship), Bros Chirgwin, the de Castro Family, Finette Raymur Troupe, Jack Hotine (the champion strong man), Sam Bagnall, Tom Bournley (the Lancashire comedian), Julia Wade, Kate Garstone ("Away down Holborn Hill" fame), Mr. and Mrs. Mark Johnson, Paul Devlin, the Lupino Family, Fred Levantine, Vennimore and Doyle, the Vokes Family, W. B. Fair, Herbert Campbell, Hernandez Green Pantomime Troupe, Herr Schalkenbach, Alberto Bremier, Sisters Gunniss (famous English dancers), Bros. Forbes (Scotch comedians and pipers), Sisters Tibbets, Sisters Bilton, Kate Chatters, Fred Wallingford, Billy West, George Washington, Orville Pitcher, Persivani, Carl Brenner, Sisters Bonehill, Will Oliver, young Tom Sayers, Gonza and Romah, Marvelle, Harry Vaughan, Onra (the great flying trapeze performer), Esther Austin, Madame Colonna Can-can Troupe, Florence Wrighitt (the lady tenor who created a perfect furore in London on her first appearing at three halls nightly with her song, "'Tis but a little faded flower"), Hyram Travers (the pearly king), Madine, and Bros. Frantz (famous gymnasts), and Jimmy Milburn. In 1867, in conjunction with my brothers, we had the old Theatre Royal, Manchester-street, Liverpool, renamed the Alhambra, and the Theatre Royal Opera House, Williamson-square; also the Adelphi Theatre, Christian-street; in 1869, the Alhambra Concert Hall, Worcester; also the Theatre Royal in that town, which I partly altered and rebuilt. In London we had the Charing Cross Theatre, afterwards occupied by Alexander Henderson, husband of Lydia Thompson, wherein Willie Edouin, in his impersonation of the Heathen Chinee, became famous. The theatre was then taken over by and called Toole's Theatre, and now is part of the Charing Cross Hospital. In 1879 I established an office in New York, being the first agent to introduce the European or English style of vaudeville agency. Later I travelled for three years in South Africa, and introduced an entertainment with Boz. I visited one town—Tarkastad—and inquired for a hall, but there were not any in the town; the only place, if it could be obtained, was the police-court. I saw the presiding magistrate, Mr. Gee, a most charming gentleman. He was on the bench dispensing the law upon a Kaffir in the dock, and invited me up to the Bench, requesting the prisoner to stand down while he spoke to me. I then told him my requirements, and he offered me the court-house in which to give the show. I was not long in having the place put in order. The prisoners were remanded for that day, and at night a packed house resulted. Next day we were preparing to take down our fit-up in order that the court could resume its sitting when Mr. Gee entered and said he was so delighted that he would like us to give another night. Of course I consented, and the prisoners were again remanded for another day. So we did not take down our fit-up, and the following day Mr. Gee requested a stay for the following day, again remanding the prisoners. On the fourth day Mr. Gee desired us to give an entertainment solely for the benefit of the ladies of the town, and after a little moral suasion we, of course, consented. Prisoners again remanded.

"In Colesburg our entertainment caused a perfect riot. We had obtained the auctioneers' rooms in the market square, and the audience, which was very rough, did not approve of the show. When the trouble and hubbub commenced I dismissed the entire audience, and when they had got outside the rooms I and my confrère were positively made prisoners by the mob, who threatened to shoot us through the windows. We were compelled to remain inside until past three o'clock a.m., when we made our escape by climbing over the walls of houses in the rear of the building. It was a most terrible ordeal. After scaling the wall of the first house we were met by a ferocious bulldog, chained up, and the noise of that dog when he saw us on top of the wall baffles description, unpleasant obstacles, too, presented themselves before scaling the last wall, which led into the street at the rear. We had to wait in the yard of the house for some time, as we could hear the voices of the turbulent Afrikander boys. However, after a while we arrived at the hotel. The landlord, Mr. Jones, a grand specimen of a Welsh miner, had not heard of the riot, and insisted upon taking his rifle to protect us the next night, but we were told not to open, as it would be positively murderous work to do so. However, he said, 'Don't be afraid, I shall be there to silence them.' During the day I visited the square and saw several knots of people round about all discussing the events of the past night, and I overheard some of their conversation, which hinted at what they were going to do that night. Well, we opened the rooms, Mr. Jones being there, stationed with his rifle. For over half an hour not a soul sought admission, so we closed up, and next day quitted Colesburg. Our experience at Burghersdorp was very similar, and at Craddock, where we only intended staying one night, we were compelled to put in three days, our oxen having strayed, and we could not travel. I had many more experiences of a similar nature, and things going so bad I made up my mind to get home. I arrived in London and intended returning to my New York office, when I met Mr. Warner, and went into his office, which was one of my old offices in York-road, Lambeth. He afterwards married my niece, and I continued with him—up to within the past few weeks—for twenty-five years."

"THE QUEEN OF THE FAIRIES.'

A new "Play of Fairies and Others," in Two Scenes, by Sydney Blow, lyrics by Douglas Hoare, music by Edward Jones, produced at the Coliseum, on Monday, Feb. 15.

The Queen of the Fairies .... Miss Elise Craven

Fresh from the triumphs at His Majesty's in Pinkie and the Fairies, that very youthful star Miss Elise Craven came on Monday to the Coliseum to win all hearts by her impersonation of the "Queen of the Fairies," in the playlet of that name written specially for her by Mr. Sidney Blow, with lyrics by Douglas Hoare, and illustrated with music from the accomplished pen of Mr. Edward Jones. Little Elise queens it in a wood, and, like another Titania, is interested in a couple of mortals whose course of true love has been interrupted by a lovers' quarrel. Reginald Wane has a passion for gambling on the Stock Exchange, and notwithstanding Lady Violet Cardew's protestations, he still yields to the fascination of investment in speculative stocks. Both lovers have guardian fairies, and the tiff between them is soon smothed over, the queen departing with them in a motor-car, though she makes her entrance on the back of a huge dragon fly, beautifully "sheened" with the incandescence of electric light. Twenty years elapse, and Reginald is beggared, but he again obtains the forgiveness of Lady Violet by the intervention of the fairies, whose revels foretell the true happiness of an Arcadian "ever after." Little Elise's dancing is as delightful as it can be, and her acting is marked by a pretty imperiousness as she holds her court seated on the summit of a large mushroom. The music is tuneful, and the scene of the wood a proper trysting-place for the fairies, who are daintily and prettily represented by Misses Lilian Birtles, Mamie Peto, Esme Lee, Eileen Howard, Gertrude Parke, May Hallom, M. Lawrance, and E. Lawrance. Master James Hallom is clever as the rabbit Archibald.

That Brute Simmons, a shortened version of Mr. Arthur Morrison and Mr. H. C. Sergeant's play, is being played by Mr. F. W. Purcell's company, whose names are not given on the programme. La Tortajada is continuing her success in The Début of Dolores, an operetta in three acts, the words and music being by Señor Ramon Tortajada. The whole of the characters are played by the beautiful Señorita, who is assisted by the cinematograph. Mr. Fred Lindsay, the whip wonder, has some special scenery to illustrate his unique act; Luis Alvarez, the tenor from the Opera House, Madrid, repeats his success in Clay's beautiful song, "I'll sing thee songs of Araby"; Carney and Armstrong are amusing in the patter; Mavis Clare is a wonderful child vocalist; and other turns in the fine bill are Ike and Will Scott, comedians and dancers; Elsie Roby, the slavey at the piano; Falco and Eida in a ju-jitsu dancing act; Corradini's zebras, elephants, horse, and dogs; Alice Pierce, with impressions of famous stars, English and Continental; the Lukushimas, and the Bioscope.

"THE MANDARIN."

A Musical Comedy Chinese sketch, in Three Scenes, written and composed by Herbert Darnley, and produced at the Empire, Nottingham, on Monday, Feb. 15.

For upwards of ten years Mr. Darnley has paid periodical visits to Nottingham as author and producer, and his reputation for conscientious work is enhanced by his latest production The Mandarin, which has eclipsed all previous efforts. The staging and dressing are excellent, and the musical numbers light and melodious. The plot is slight. Lady Saville-Cary, wife of an English admiral, whose ship is cruising in Chinese waters, is sight-seeing in a town, escorted by a middy and sailor. They inadvertently trespass in the grounds of a Mandarin, who orders the sailors to be put to death, and the lady to be kept a prisoner. How they escape forms the story of the sketch.

Scene I. shows the Mandarin's palace, a fine setting in Eastern colouring, in which the large entrance pillars, of solid construction, give an imposing and realistic effect. Scene II. is a picturesque corridor in the palace. Scene III. forms the interior and exterior of a tea house, and in the background is seen the English man-of-war, in connection with which some clever stage business is worked. The Mandarin's wife helps the lady and sailors to escape to the quay in safety. The middy signals the ship, and an answering response comes in the shape of a tiny electric light at the mast-head. The little steam pinnace is seen approaching, growing larger as it nears the quay, and the rescue is effected.

Lady Cary is delightfully played by Mrs. Herbert Darnley, who brings a graceful personality and winning method to bear on the part. Her acting is easy and natural, and her enunciation clear. Mr. Charles H. Bell is the life and soul of the play. As nimble as a monkey and with many clever antics, he keeps the fun going, and helps largely to secure success. The Mandarin is an imposing figure in the person of Mr. Cecil Morton York, and all his business is in keeping with the rôle. Mr. B. Snowden makes an amusing sailor, and ably seconds the efforts of Mr. Bell. Messrs. Leslie, Sheridan, and Stanley work well, their struggle with the sailors in the last scene being a fine piece of acrobatic tumbling. Miss Belle Cloce is a dainty impersonator of the Mandarin's wife, and the lady dancers prove admirable exponents of the Terpsichorean art.

SHILLING COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

2,082½ SHILLINGS.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

SHOWMEN'S MEETINGS AT LYNN MART.

For the past eighteen years the trade societies of Showland have taken full advantage of the pilgrimage of showmen to Lynn Mart to hold important meetings of both a public and a private character. Matters of the greatest moment to the show business are discussed in committee at Lynn, and the annual public meeting in the Town Hall voices the interests of the trade and business of the fairground, so far as they touch public opinion and appeal for popular support.

The Mayor of Lynn on Show Life.

The Mayor of King's Lynn (Alderman Green), in presiding over the public meeting, made some extremely useful observations. He made it quite clear that, as far as he was concerned, he gladly followed the good example of previous Mayors in taking the chair at a showmen's meeting. Whilst he could not pretend to great intimacy with, and exact knowledge of, show life, like their old friend, Alderman Dunn, yet he had had great pleasure in the past half-hour of getting into touch with the official heads of the Guild executive, the Guild solicitor, the chaplain, and the hon. secretary. He had been impressed by these gentlemen, and he was glad with knowledge to welcome them to the fair of Lynn Mart, and to express a hope that good business might reward their efforts. He warmly congratulated the showmen on the splendid concerns at the fair, and only spoke for the town when he said how pleased he was to be present, and to have the opportunity, and for the town (through him), to wish them all success in their endeavorrs to cater for the people's amusements, and to maintain their righis and liberties as showmen.

Resolution against the Movable Dwellings Bill.

Mr. T. Watson Wright, Parliamentary solicitor to the Guild, proposed, and the Rev. T. Horne seconded, the following resolution:—"That this public meeting protests against the Movable Dwellings Bill, introduced into the House of Lords by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh. Showmen claim as lawful traders to be under and obedient to the ordinary laws of the realm. They deny that special inquisitorial and liberty-destroying legislation is needed for their trade and mode of life. If the promoters of the measure want to deal with and to penalise gipsy life, let them make their object clear in their Bill by exempting showmen and fairground traders from its proposed penalties and restrictions." He pressed home the fact that the Guild was their only protection against such liberty-destroying proposals as those embodied in the Bill of the late George Smith, and now fathered by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh. Such proposals he insisted were ultra vires, and subversive of the fundamental principles of the Constitution. He (himself) did not intend to deal with details, or to give chapter and verse, or to quote the exact terms of the new Movable Dwellings Bill. The Guild chaplain, who had had the whole of the negotiations with the promoters of the Bill in hand, would doubtless deal fully with that side of the question. His intention was to show that meeting how the Bill proposed to destroy for showmen the rights and liberties secured to all classes in the community by Magna Charta, by the Act of Habeas Corpus and the "Petition of Rights," the very bed-rock of our hard-won liberty.

Sapping the Foundations of Liberty.

Magna Charta gave to every man the right to carry on a lawful trade without "let or hindrance" throughout the length and breadth of the land. The Habeas Corpus Act secured to subjects of the crown a fair trial by their peers whenever charged with wrong-doing. The Petition of Rights was the right of the individual to plead his own cause in any court of justice, and to claim the protection of the law for life, liberty, and home. This Bill gave the police power to treat showpeople differently to all other classes in the community. It gave a policeman power to take action on mere suspicion, and without a warrant of the magistrates, to invade the movable homes of showpeople, and to subject show vans to an invasion that would not be tolerated in the most wretched slums of our towns.

Showmen will Fight the Bill.

He was confident that the work of the Guild would succeed, and that the Bill would either be thrown out, or so amended as to remove the chief objections they had against it. The ordinary health and sanitary laws applied to show vans and to show booths. The full force of local government (whether by statute or by local bye-laws) also applied to show vans and to show life. In this respect they were under just the same laws as other people, and no special legislation was needed. Parliament had already recognised the "exemption clause" that Lord Clifford had refused in the Middlesex County Council Bill. The Council embodied at the request of the Guild that the additional powers they sought against gipsy and other squatters on common or private land should not apply to "any showman, roudabout proprietor, or stallholder." Why (he asked) did Lord Clifford refuse to embody a similar clause in his Bill? There was no answer, except and only that behind the Bill there was a fixed desire to penalise and injure the show business. He concluded a most able and eloquent speech by moving the resolution.

The Rev. T. Horne on the Bill.

He had had, he said, the whole of the correspondence and the interviews with the promoters of the measure left in his hands. Of course, behind him, he reminded them, stood the whole force of the allied trades and industries of the fairground. What did the Bill propose to do? Briefly stated, it was a Bill to make every county and every county borough a registration and a licensing authority, with power to inspect and to license, and fully regulate van life. But that was not the real grievance. The real grievance was that it delivered over the showman and his home to the control of the police. Bound hand and foot for ever more, the showman must be masked and shackled, and bound by the police.

"Invincible Ignorance."

His friend, the Vicar of Lynn, whom they all welcomed at their Guild meeting that day, would remember with him that the schoolmen and the casuists of olden times used a phrase to indicate the lowest depth of wilful mental perversity. This they termed "invincible ignorance." He had thundered forth the truth from a thousand platforms, yet there remained men who refused to open their ears to the truth, men of whom it was impossible to speak without recourse to some such casuistical phrase as being victims of "invincible ignorance." First of all, these men refused to recognise any difference between the ramshackle covered cart on two wheels or a gipsy tent and the hygienically perfect, Pullman car-like caravans of the showmen now at Lynn Mart; who would treat Lord George Sanger in his beautiful living-carriage even as the veriest gipsy or travelling tinker. Another sad phase of "invincible ignorance" was the practical refusal to admit that the health and sanitary laws of the realm applied with all their vigour and rigour to movable dwellings as to houses of brick and stone.

Showmen not Outlaws.

The honourable and ancient craft of Showland is not outcast. It is a lawful trade and business. It is under the sanction and protection of the ordinary law. No more, no less.

With regard to the alleged menace to public health, it had always been an extraordinary thing to him that it should be persistently ignored that showpeople were the most observed and the most regular and orderly class of workers in the kingdom. Take any round or circuit of fairs you might choose (and they are numerous and clearly defined, these circuits of pleasure fairs). There are the London and Home Counties Circuit, the Great Midland Circuit, the Yorkshire Circuit, the Lancashire and Cheshire Circuit, the Durham and Northumberland Circuit, the Welsh Circuit, the West of England Circuit, the East Anglian Circuit, the Scotch and Borderland Circuit, and the Irish Circuit. We find that practically the same people provide the popular amusements of the fairground year after year on any given circuit; the changes are so few as to be a negligible quantity.

The Value of the Circuit System.

It means this—that the same entertainers (they may and must vary their shows and change their programmes) year by year follow the same round of fairs. Different shows and novelties, but the same people, living in the same way, in the same caravans, attend the same fairs year by year until their name and fame become household words, so dear is the showman and the show to the hearts of the people. What excuse can there be for people who wish to legislate for a class of workers whose lives are so regular and so open to the world as showfolk without getting to know the most elemental facts of the economic and social life of the class they want to make new and invidious laws for?

Every week, from Easter to Christmas, these people pass under the Argus-eyed surveillance of sanitary officials, and, what is even of more importance, as a class live their life in the eye of the general public. They are bound to be most careful and circumspect to avoid even the appearance of evil lest they should lose or forfeit the public confidence. A moment's consideration of the real conditions of showlife would demonstrate how utterly groundless are the fears of the critics of the fairgrounds, without regard to the entirely imaginary danger to public health of the itinerant life and movable dwellings of the showfolk.

The Main Objects of the Guild.

Their Guild existed for two great primary objects. The first was to vindicate (whenever and wherever attacked) the life and work of the travelling showman. The second object was the defence and the betterment of the open-air amusements and local holidays of the people. They were there (at Lynn) for the eighteenth year in unbroken succession to advocate the claim of an ancient and honourable craft and industry to full recognition of its true place in the national life—to demand that they should have the same legal sanction and the same protection as any lawful trade or calling in the kingdom. Their claim was just, and he was quite confident that neither Parliament nor the public opinion of Great Britain would allow invidious and liberty-destroying legislation such as endeavoured from time to time to express itself in such crude suggestion as the vexatious and unreasonable attack upon an industry as good as any other in the commonwealth.

In the case of Acton the Guild had obtained their costs against the local authority, and the present instance of Oldham would, he trusted, share the same fate. He maintained that the industry of the fairground was a legitimate and necessary trade, that the same liberty to uphold and extend it was their right, as workers, as that enjoyed by other workers. He felt sure that the Corporation had been ill-advised in their persistence, and one extremely valuable issue must ensue from their pacific efforts to arrange the matter with the corporation, that is that the Parliamenary Committee dealing with the measure will know that it is not the organised showmen who are wasting the valuable time and labour of the House, but the Corporation of Oldham. It will immensely strengthen our claim for costs when we state (as state we shall) that all pacific overtures made by us were rejected. The resolution was unanimously carried.

Letters and Apologies Read by the Secretary.

Mr. Hurst read the following apology from the president, explaining his absence from the gathering, and, following that, the excellent letter from Mr. Caddick:—

"Gondola Works, Walsall,
"Feb. 16, 1909.

"Dear Sir,—Mr. Patrick Collins desires me to write you that he is unavoidably detained here, and will not be able to reach King's Lynn till about one o'clock to-morrow. He desires that all due apologies may be made for his compulsory absence.

"I take this opportunity to enclose my contribution to the funds of wour Association.—Yours faithfully, "Cecil Quennett.

"Rev. T. Horne, c/o the Town Clerk,
"King's Lynn."

"Olympia.

"Dear Mr. Horne—I thank you very much for the book safely to hand, also for your friendly remarks in the Era. I would like to supplement my letter in the Era by urging our president and yourself to impress upon the travellers at the meeting, with all the force and eloquence you can possibly bring to bear upon them, of their present perilous position, surrounded as they are by attacks from all quarters and in all directions, imperilling not only the sanctity of our homes, but sapping the foundations of our very existence. Oldham to wit, a town once considered almost a traveller's freehold: Now what is the case? That town, above all others, to endeavour to so narrow the privileges of travellers that would render it necessary to give Oldham a wide berth in future, leaving the authorities to run the wakes on their own. The present Movable Dwellings Bill promises also to find sufficient work for the executive to tackle without the worry and anxiety entailed by fighting wealthy corporations.

"I would like to call your attention to a recent prosecution of a van-dweller in Wrexham by the local sanitary authorities. This case in itself should be sufficient to convince the most sceptical advocate of Lord Clifford's obnoxious Bill that ample powers exist to bring the van-dweller into line with his more respectable (?) contemporary, the house-dweller.

"I am sorry to admit there is so much apathy amongst the travellers towards the trend of present legislation, and to trust too much to the watchfulness and intelligence of a limited few in our ranks, but they may rest assured should this Bill become law, and they once feel the pinch of its provisions, they will not only regret their short-sightedness in allowing judgment to go by default, but I feel sure, instead of shillings, they would be only too glad to give pounds to regain their forfeited liberties.

"Tell all the friendly roundabout proprietors and lessees to use all the influence (and pressure, if necessary) to bring the laggards into line with their more up-to-date fellows. Wishing you a good, bumping meeting, a good roll-call, and, as a result, increased membership. Remember me kindly to all old friends, yourself first and foremost.—Yours faithfully,

"Joe Caddick."

The Vicar of Lynn on the Work of the Guild.

The Rev. R. Gordon Roe, hon. local chaplain, in moving a vote of thanks to the chairman and the speakers, paid a tribute of admiration to the Mayor for his unfailing kindness in helping forward by his presence and able advocacy that day the splendid work of the Guild; to Mr. Watson Wright, their legal champion, whose mastery of the subject-matter before the meeting was so obvious; to the clear business ability of the hon. secretary, and to the Guild chaplain.

Every year, he declared, he felt more and more impressed by the eloquent appeals of the organising chaplain, whether listening to him preaching from the pulpit of the Parish Church or at the Guild service in a show on the fairground. He ventured to congratulate the Showmen's Guild on its chief executive officials. To the Mayor, to Mr. Watson Wright, to Mr. Hurst, and to his dear colleague, the Guild chaplain, he asked them to accord a most hearty vote of thanks. He wished, at the same time, as Vicar, to welcome again the showpeople to Lynn, and to place himself and his church at their disposal. He was looking forward to hearing Mr. Horne at St. Margaret's next Sunday and again taking part with him in the showmen's service at the Mart. He wished them, in their daily life and work every blessing and God speed.

Alderman Dunn, the Showmen's Friend.

Despite the strict orders of his doctor to avoid for a time public work, the genial chairman of the Markets and Fairs Committee, Alderman E. Dunn, at the Guild chaplain's urgent request, attended the greater part of the meeting, and received an ovation when he rose to second the Vicar's vote of thanks. He reminded them of the extremely pleasant and friendly relations between the Markets and Fairs Committee and the showmen. He had ever tried to foster and to increase that good feeling. He drew from a rich fund of anecdote and illustration apt proofs of the need for mutual help and forbearance, and trusted that the Guild officials and their Mayor would be all the better for coming together to further the good work of the Guild. He seconded the vote of thanks with all his heart.

The Vicar submitted the vote to the meeting, and it was carried, amidst great applause.

The Guild chaplain suitably acknowledged the vote, and the meeting terminated.

The Enrolment of Members.

The following subscriptions for 1909 were then received:—H. Thurston and Sons, £5; John Wilmot, £5; G. T. Tuby, £2; Lady Dorothy Neville, £1 1s.; Wm. Affleck, £1 1s.; W. Kemp (L. and N.W.R.), £1 1s.; S. W. Redfearn, £1 1s.; C. Quennell, £1 1s.; W. Wilmot, £1; H. Wilmot, £1; S. Bolesworth, 10s. 6d.; M. Sconce, 10s. 6d.; B. Howden, 10s. 6d.; B. Howden, jun., 5s.; R. Suett, 5s.; and J. Brown, 5s.

The Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union.

Mr. P. Collins presided at an important committee meeting of this Union held at the Green Dragon Hotel on Wednesday afternoon. The only business of public importance was a resolution thanking the Guild chaplain for his arduous work as conciliator in the Penzance dispute, and pledging the Union to co-operate with the Guild to maintain the concordat of peace with the corporation.

The Guild chaplain, in thanking the Union members for their recognition of his labours, explained the present position of affairs.

Mr. Joseph Brewer, one of the showmen concerned, fully explained that he was in perfect accord with the good work of the chaplain, and that he had not gone back on the agreement. Neither had he instructed his solicitor to repudiate the concordat. He was, he added, that day withdrawing his retainer from his solicitor, and that he personally was grateful to the chaplain for his good offices in the matter.

Mr. Horne read letters from Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock and from Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, the other showmen defendants, heartily agreeing with the settlement, and regretting the unfortunate hitch that had since occurred, to which they were not consenting parties.

The Opposition to the Oldham Bill.

An important committee of the Guild met the Parliamentary solicitor on Thursday morning, and fully discussed the procedure to be taken to oppose the Bill. It was resolved to bring the question of Parliamentary defence work more urgently before the trade and the allied industries.

OPENING OF LYNN MART BY THE MAYOR AND CORPORATION, FEB. 15, 1909.

Movable Dwellings Bill. He heartily seconded the resolution.

The Mayor then read the resolution, and submitted it to the meeting. It was passed unanimously, amidst cheers.

The Guild and the Oldham Corporation Bill.

Mr. T. Hurst, Guild secretary, submitted the following resolution:—"That this meeting objects to the Oldham Corporation Bill so far as it is injures and restricts the legitimate business of the fairground."

He told the meeting how the president (Mr. Collins), the organising chaplain (the Rev. T. Horne), and himself had been the Guild deputation on Feb. 4 to the Corporation of Oldham. How they had striven to arrive at a compromise and an agreement that would have obviated costly opposition on their part to the Oldham Bill. They had done their best to obtain a peaceful settlement, but their answer had been that the Corporation refused to grant their reasonable wishes, and they were now obliged to fight the Corporation and to use all legitimate means to defeat the reactionary proposals affecting their business in the proposed measure He declared that the Guild stood for two important principles—(1) free trade in fairs; no monopoly of fair rights; and (2) (growing of necessity out of that principle) the right and liberty to adopt and to extend their business as changing conditions of national life and trade made necessary. Both these vital principles of their industrial life and progress were threatened by the Oldham Bill.

Mr. Hurst then read in full the text of the Guild petition against the Bill, as given in our issue of Feb. 13. He concluded by asking the meeting to vote solid for the resolution.

The Guild Solicitor on the Bill.

Mr. T. Watson Wright, in seconding the motion, adverted to the long line of triumphs that the Guild had won in the Parliamentary arena, how obnoxious clauses and most restrictive proposals had been, by the work of the Guild, thrown out of numerous Bills promoted by public bodies, notably Mansfield, Eccles, Hyde, Halifax, Acton, and a score of other Corporation measures, either after a straight fight in Parliament or by direct negotiation with the local authorities. Halifax and Rotherham both had bills with similar clauses to the Oldham proposals. Halifax, after three arguments by eminent counsel on both sides, lost their case, and the Guild obtained the decision of far reaching consequence, that in private Bill legislation free trade in fairs was the admitted principle to govern future legislation. The significance of that decision was seen in the readiness with which (on our representation) the Borough of Rotherham two sessions later withdrew the objectionable clause.

He felt duty-bound, in their interests, as their Parliamentary solicitor to warn the Corporation of Oldham that if the Bill in its present shape was persevered with the Guild would oppose it at every stage in both Houses of Parliament, and would ask for costs against the Corporation for

Lynn Mart.

The ancient charter fair of King's Lynn (and, bear in mind, it is really King's Lynn, for the King's home is close by at Sandringham) is a great event—a fully rubricated festival in the common life of the people of the good old town and port of Lynn.

The proclamation of the mart and fair is a time-honoured civic ceremony, quaint, and significant of all that is best in the story of Lynn.

Where the Old Cross Stood.

As near to the historic spot as tradition can fix it, where the ancient town emblem of the Faith stood before religious fanaticism cast it down, there the Charter of the Fair Rights and Privileges is read by the Town Crier, and the mart is declared open by the Mayor for the time being.

In a former article, one of the series "Britain's Historic Fairs," we have dealt fully with this interesting civic survival of a great past.

It is enough for the mart of this year of grace to say that it well maintained all its picturesqueness and all its civic ceremonial glory.

The Mayor, the Town Clerk, the Aldermen and Councillors, the other officials and notabilities of Lynn were in attendance as usual.

The Mayor gave his Mayoral blessing and expressed his good wishes; the Town Crier cried the proclamation (and he did it excellently well); the Sword and Mace Bearers (they have a galaxy of them at Lynn) gave dramatic point to the majesty of the law.

All the Fun of the Fair.

As soon as the proclaiming was over the music pealed forth from the orchestrophone of Barker and Thurston's beautifully decorated motor-car switchback, the civic crowd melted into a fun-seeking crowd of eager patrons of the fair, motors ran, gondola cars sailed majestically in Venetian canal-like fashion down silver stream courses, horses galloped, cockerels crowed and raced, "pigs did fly," balloons set out on aerial journeys, and all the wild flights of mechanical ingenuity and weird imagination found delighted merry patrons, and "all the jolly fun" began.

The Shows.

The chief cinematograph shows are the gorgeous palaces of light and illustration of Messrs. Farran, Tyler, and Tuby and Sons. To speak with any sense of discrimination between them is impossible. Where all are so perfect why seek to specialise? We certainly will not. It is such shows as these that are swiftly revolutionising the fairs of our land.

"Houp-la" the King.

The star attraction—the veritable king of the fair—is the new game of Houp-la. Nothing more clearly proves the ready wit and adaptability of the showman than the rapid increase of really beautiful Houp-la concerns. Amongst these Lynn had the distinction of Prince Samuda's charming, unique, and most delightful Houp-la gardens—you cannot call it anything less. It is a delight and a joy. We congratulate the enterprising Prince on his latest novel venture.

The other Houp-la-ists were Messrs. C. Bibby, with two concerns, J. Holmes, with two, and Mrs. Bond, with one concern. The shooting and throwing concerns were those of Messrs. H. and W. Westrop, Gray Bros., Cheeseman, Sheriff, Parkins, Hast, Holmes, Robinson, Pladick, and G. Holmes. The stalls were those of R. Snett, Mrs. Bond, and others.

The Westwood Family.

Master Wilford and Miss Ruby Westwood still remain the giant children of the fair par excellence. This exhibition is a special of Lynn mart, as of all towns they visit.

The big machines are those of Messrs. Barker and Thurston, motor-cars and rollicking pigs; H. R. Hibbert's new set, the motor track; Swale Bolesworth's new machine, the Bicycle Circus (two-abreast cycles); Ben Howden and Sons' Venetian Gondolas; T. Brannan's horses and birds; G. T. Tuby and Sons' motors; and G. Holmes' miniature roundabout.

The Guild Chaplain, assisted by the Vicar, clergy, and choir from the Parish Church, will conduct a Guild service in Tuby and Sons' Coliseum, on the fairground next Sunday (to-morrow), in the afternoon, and the Chaplain preaches at St. Margaret's in the evening.

The next meeting of the British Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union is to be at Bury March fair.

SAVAGE BROS. (Ltd.) ANNUAL DINNER AT KING'S LYNN.

One of the rapidly increasing number of social gatherings in the great world of shows takes place every year at Lynn. It usually finishes up a most busy day for the leading men of Showland, the day of the public meeting of the Guild and the committees of both that society and the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union. The dinner is given by the world-famed firm of roundabout makers, Savage Bros., Ltd., whose works are at Lynn.

The chairman was Mr. Wm. Affleck, the manager of the showman branch of the firm's enterprise. The guests at the high table included the Mayor of Lynn, the Rev. T. Horne, Alderman Dunn, Councillor L. Skinner, Councillor G. T. Tuby (Doncaster), the Town Clerk, the Chief Constable, Mr. T. Watson Wright (Guild Solicitor), Mr. P. Collins (President of the Guild), Mr. T. Hurst (Secretary of both societies, in whose honour the banquet was given), Mr. B. W. Langley, Mr. Redfearn, Mr. Webb, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. H. Barrett, Mr. Payne, and Mr. A. R. King

The showmen guests included Messrs. Henry Studt, John Studt, Jacob Studt, Jacob Studt, jun., G. Studt, B. Howden, Wm. Murphy, John Murphy, W. H. Marshall, Goldthorpe Marshall, W. H. Marshall, jun., Wm. Holmes, H. J. Wallis, Wm. Mitchell, John Green, H. R. Hibbert, Wm. Pedley, H. Wilmot, G. Wilmot, G. T. Tuby, jun., E. Farran, A. C. Tyler, J. Manders, S. Bolesworth, H. Beach, T. Brannan, G. A. Howden, W. Wilson, E. Danter, W. Davies, jun., S. Fields, J. H. Savage, R. D. Snelling, Charles Thurston, and other gentlemen

The dinner was provided by C. Winlove Smith, caterer to H.M. the King, and it was set out in the beautiful Banqueting Chamber of the Lynn Town Hall. The band of the 5th Battalion Norfolk Regiment played during dinner, by permission of Captain Beloe. Songs and instrumental solos enlivened the proceedings at suitable intervals, and everything was a pronounced success.

The Loyal Toasts having been duly honoured, the toast of the Mayor and Corporation, proposed by Mr. Wilkinson in a capital speech, afforded the Mayor an opportunity of saying some extremely nice things about Lynn, its Fair, and the showmen who gathered at it.

Mr. Wm. Affleck proposed the toast of the evening, "Success to the Societies of Showland, the Showmen's Guild and the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union." In asking them to honour the toast he expressed his satisfaction at knowing that both societies worked together for the general good of the fairground industry. He coupled with the toast the names of the honoured leaders of both societies, the Rev. T. Horne (Chaplain), Patrick Collins (President), T. Watson Wright (Solicitor), and Thomas Hurst (Secretary). With such leaders the work must needs prosper. The firm he represented identified itself fully with the interests conserved by both organisations. As in the past, so in the future he hoped that prosperity and ever-increasing usefulness would be theirs.

The Response of the Guild Executive Officers.

On rising to respond, the Guild Chaplain met with a great reception. In the course of a characteristic speech he touched upon the great revolution in the status of showmen as the direct result of their work as organised amusement caterers and fairground traders. For several centuries in the bad old days of national amusements the showman was hounded from pillar to post, as outcast, as being a rogue and a vagabond, and even now there are intellectual Pharisees who smile upon them and label them as Bohemians. The Guild had rapidly educated public opinion to a truer and better conception of show life. The speech was punctuated with cheering. The Chaplain was succeeded by the President of the Guild (Mr. P. Collins), who, taking his cue from the Chaplain, gave examples from his own eventful career of the ingrained prejudice against show life by certain puritanical and narrow-minded sections of society. The showman (he declared amidst great cheering) had won his way to social and national recognition by integrity of life, honesty, capacity, and perseverance. A showman of to-day had no need to fear comparison with any other class in the community. He was proud of the honour his fellow showmen had conferred upon him. It was part of the work he had undertaken to promote—peace and good fellowship in showland. He thanked them earnestly and truly for the honour of coupling his name with the toast. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. Watson Wright, in a capital brief speech, reviewed the work of the Guild and the allied societies, and showed how important it was to keep their trade and home life interests protected. Showmen as Englishmen had a right—a precious and inalienable right—to the sanction and liberty of the law of the realm. Like his reverend friend and colleague, the Chaplain, he had given some of the best work of his life to the defence of their interests. He was proud to be still closely identified with them—(cheers)—and thanked them for the honour of associating his name with the toast.

That silent witness and ever active worker, "the power behind the throne," Thomas Hurst, in his response, jumped out of the necessity for speechifying with ready wit. "I thank you," he said. "I begin my speech where the Vicar of Lynn (the Rev. Gordon Roe) left off this morning at our meeting. The Vicar said—and I say—united we stand, divided we fall. (Great cheering.) I shall ever work with this single purpose, to keep the societies in unity of aim and work. I thank you again, gentlemen.

The toast list included "The Markets and Fairs Committee," proposed by Councillor G. T. Tuby and responded to by Councillor L. Skinner; "The Chief Constable and the Staff of the Borough Police," responded to by the Chief Constable; "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces," responded to by Sergeant-Major Langley; "The Chairman," proposed by Mr. T. Hurst; and the evening terminated with the National Anthem.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

CARTOUCHE, THE KING OF THE THIEVES.—In this Messrs. Pathé give us an interesting little drama. Cartouche is a brigand chief. Disguised as beggars, blind men, or cripples, the members of his new association have established a real "school for theft." There is no mercy for the traitors, anyone betraying his brethren being sentenced to capital punishment. Cartouche, whose newly-acquired fortune allows him to live sumptuously, invites his noble neighbours to the inauguration of his new hotel, the furniture of which has been stolen from the house of the new Lieutenant of the Nightwatchmen by Cartouche and his gang. The Lieutenant arrives in the drawing-room, and his surprise is great in finding there even his family portraits. He imparts his suspicions to the other guests, whose feelings change from surprise to terror when Cartouche unmasks himself, and requests them to hand over to him all their jewels and valuables. Cartouche was also one of Cupid's favourites, and his frequent raids upon other people's property often ended in love affairs for him. One day, having been surprised by the gendarmes, he escaped on to the roof and laughed at his pursuers. After the above-mentioned daring robbery Cartouche is surrounded by soldiers and taken prisoner, but he escapes for the twenty-fifth time, which proves to be the last. Cartouche, on trying to free some men of his gang who are being transferred to the prison under escort, is vanquished after a fight with the police, and sentenced to death.

MR. FEARY DOES NOT LIKE POLICEMEN.—Here we get a clever trick film. Mr. Feary has just taken one glass too many when he leaves the café, and, in order to rest a little, he stretches himself on a bench in the street. A policeman requests him to "move on," and he does so grumblingly. He knocks up against a woman, and for this a claim is put in against him. Mr. Feary always thinks afterwards that a crowd of policemen are after him. His excited brain discovers them in women's attire or in the garments which hang along the wall. Suddenly he himself is changed into one of his tormentors. In order to flee from his nightmare he climbs on to the roof of his house and makes a plunge down, which lands him on a live policeman, who marches him off.

THE FAIRY'S PRESENTS.—Three brothers and their sister are gathered round the death-bed of their father. After the latter has departed, the brothers send their sister Gsell away from home, for they do not like her because of her sweet disposition, which contrasts so much with their selfishness. Poor Gsell goes away with a piece of bread in her hand, which she keeps for her dinner. She is roving aimlessly in the country, when suddenly she comes upon an old woman who asks her for alms. Gsell has nothing in the world that she can call her own but her bread, which she gives to the beggar woman. Yet the fairy, for such she is, gives her a wand, which the girl examines with surprise. Of what use can this be to her? In her helplessness she drops it, and lo! there comes a well-appointed table, which affords the ravenous girl a good meal. Suddenly she thinks of her brothers, who may be destitute, and she runs to their house. On hearing the good news, they take possession of the wand and send their sister away again. Luckily the good fairy is watching over her, and she gives her a new talisman. This time it is a horn, which yields any amount of gold as soon as Gsell blows it. Gsell is not spiteful, and she goes home again in order to share her gold with her brothers, who tear the horn from her as soon as they know its value; but they can only blow flames from it. Gsell calls the fairy, who appears immediately, and changes the hard hearted boys into vicious pigs, whilst Gsell's home becomes a magnificent palace, and Gsell herself is changed into a princess, with one of the fairy's friends for her husband.

HUNTING THE BROWN BEAR IN AMERICA.—In this picture we are shown the trappers at breakfast after having pitched their tents among the bare trees. They start their day's work. After a long time they at last find a track, which they follow to a picturesque site where winter and snow reign supreme. The brown form of a bear is moving on the whiteness of the earth, and one of the hunters having fired, the beast falls down in a heap. The man approaches it cautiously for, in spite of its being severely wounded, it is still very dangerous on account of its cunning and strength. On seeing the man coming, the bear rolls down the slope like a ball. A second bullet kills it, and the trappers then take its fur, which is always in great demand.

BOBBY SPORTSMAN.—Bobby dreams of becoming a chauffeur, but he has no motor-car. This fact does not trouble him much though, for the bath will serve his purpose. To this he adds the wheels from baby's pram, a coffee-grinder for a starter, a thrashing machine for a steering-wheel a pair of bellows full of powder for the steam, a horn, and let go! Bobby starts full speed, and runs over one of the servants. This is part of the business however, and Bobby consoles himself by thinking that such things will happen at times. Two more accidents take place, of which he does not take much notice. One is hurting two drunken men, the other is smashing a cab to pieces. His victims chase him, and a policeman arrests him for having no number. Bobby writes in capitals B-609, and starts afresh. An accident to his machine obliges poor Bobby to have same conveyed to the garage, where he is overtaken by his enemies, who give him a sound thrashing.

A CONVICT'S REVENGE.—Just outside the penitentiary is the house of the overseer, whose children kiss him good-bye every morning before he takes up his duties. As the overseer sees two convicts whispering together he parts them, and on noticing their menacing gestures he points his revolver at them. One of the prisoners outwits him, and escapes. The overseer gives the alarm, and a hot chase takes place. On the shore the convict hesitates a moment, then throws himself into the sea. The incoming tide submerges him, and his pursuers abandon him to his fate. The rascal however, having succeeded in hiding in a crevice, climbs up a cliff, and, profiting by the darkness he comes at nightfall to the house of his enemy and kidnaps his youngest child, who is playing on the sand. The child is missed, and the father guessing that the convict is working out his revenge upon him, runs after the man, who, being driven to the edge of the precipice, screens himself with the feeble body of the baby, thanks to which he escapes the bullets. The mother is so distracted at the sight of the danger into which her child is being taken that she entreats the convict to be human, and he, touched at last by the poor woman's pleadings, restores her treasure to her. Moreover, seeing that he is on the verge of being taken, he prefers to die, and throws himself into the ravine.

A ROMANCE OF OLD MADRID.—The land of Castile has ever breathed of love and romance, of music, song, and dance; of gay and dashing bull-fights, and dreamy-eyed fair senoritas. Our story takes us to the province of Old Madrid, around which has sighed many a tender tale of love. Paquita, the beautiful daughter of poor peasants, much sought after by adoring village swains and the admiration of strolling painters, makes her first visit to the city of her dreams on a great festival day. She attends the bull-fight, and, in a very romantic manner, she meets Carlos, the famous bull-fighter, who pays her undivided attention, and presses his suit with all the warmth and ardour of a Spaniard. Being afraid of the opposition of her brother to her lover, a cloud hangs over her happiness, but, as the Governor is to give a grand ball, she agrees to elope with Carlos. Carlos therefore selects a friend to make arrangements for the success of the elopement. The festival days draw to a close, and the time arrives for the ball. Paquita is acknowledged belle everywhere, and in mask and domino the friends attend the ball. Everyone is happy and the function is at its height when the friend tells Carlos and Paquita that everything is ready. The lovers, upon hearing this, slip away and are married, and, when the obliging friend calls later to congratulate the happy pair, his astonishment is only equalled by his delight at the result of the ruse.

A MODEST YOUNG MAN.—A guileless young man, over modest, determines to start a crusade against all sights that offend his shrinking nature. An admiring friend sends an innocent picture postcard of a pretty chorus girl. This so gets on his nerves that he has a fit right away. We next see him beating a blushing retreat from a window where ladies' corsets are exhibited. His excitability is next roused at the sight of a theatrical poster. Going through the park he sees an undraped statue on a fountain. A near-by policeman is so amazed at the behaviour of our hero—who drapes his coat around the statue—that he promptly runs him in. At the opera he creates a sensation. Seeing a lady in a low-necked dress he goes off into a dead faint. When he visits some friends and sees the baby in its bath he stands not upon the order of going, but goes very abruptly.

Gaumont Company.

THE BURNS-JOHNSON FIGHT.—We are informed that the Gaumont Company has arranged with Mr. Sydney H. Carter, of the New Century Picture Company, to show films of the Burns-Johnson fight in Liverpool, Leeds, Bristol, Bradford, Bolton, Blackburn, Stockport, and Halifax.

THE ANONYMOUS LETTER.—Two old schoolfellows, one a high official, the other an officer in the army, meet, and the former introduces his wife. A short while after the official has cause to reprimand his secretary for carelessness, and he, after seeing his master's wife and the officer together, thinks of an idea by which he can be revenged. He writes an anonymous letter, which his master receives. The latter, being a jealous man, watches events. Meeting at a social function, he refuses to let his wife speak to his old friend, and heated words follow on both sides. The climax is reached by one challenging the other to a duel. The officer asks his General's permission to fight, and the latter decides, if possible, to prevent it. He calls on the jealous man, and, after being shown the letter, happens to notice the same writing on a blotting-pad. The secretary is questioned, and at first denies knowing anything of the letter, but admits the blotter is his. After being shown that the two writings agree, he confesses, and is turned out. Reconciliation between the two friends follows.

GLORIES OF SUNSET.—The scene depicted is of Cape Martin, and as the sun sets the toning gradually becomes deeper, giving a most beautiful effect. The various scenes shown represent the sun just before it disappears, entitled "Last Rays," the sun having set, entitled "First Shadows," and concludes with a striking view of the bay by moonlight with a ship in full sail passing across the silver reflection on the water.

THE MAGIC EGGS.—The chef goes to take some eggs out of the basket, and finds it moves from the table to the mantelshelf. He follows it, and again it moves to a chair, and finally disappears altogether. He is so astonished that he falls over, and a fairy appears. He bemoans his loss, when the basket suddenly turns up. By means of the fairy's wand the eggs perform various tricks, meanwhile changing colours. The film is a fine example of coloured trick work.

A MYTHICAL GRAVITATION RAILWAY.

To those in search of a novel "sensation" in amusement—and in the present age to many it is an engrossing occupation—may confidently be commended the awesome novel recreation railway journey, for the invention of which Mr. Joseph Thewlis, of Queen's-square, Leeds, has secured Letters Patent, numbered 28704 of 1907. The accompanying illustration depicts the structure, which is intended for use at exhibitions, feasts, and fair-grounds. The invention consists in forming, covering, and decorating the framework of the railway in imitation of a dragon or other mythical animal, the jaws of which are opened to admit the passenger on the vehicle used for travelling on the railway, and closed immediately the passenger and vehicle have entered the mouth, whilst the body and tail into which the body merges are formed in a series of twists or sinuous and reversed folds—for example of the shape in plan of the figure 8, and a partial repetition of the same—the overlapping parts having slight rises, so as to give a switchback effect, the passenger and vehicle emerging at the tail, which may have a suitable rise to bring the vehicle to a standstill. The head and upper part of the body are supported at the requisite height on a framework within which are steps or a staircase, the framework being covered to represent a castle or dungeon-gateway, or entrance to a cave. The vehicle runs on wheels, and may be articuled to permit of it passing round curves of relatively small radius, whilst the hammock or seat of the vehicle is well below the tops of the rails, so as to render the upsetting of the vehicle or passenger an impossibility, and to ensure the safe passage of the passenger or passengers and vehicle through the body of the animal. The interior of the body or tunnel is provided with lights, or openings, or windows made to admit light, and to enable the passenger to see objects made to represent men or animals, natural or mythical, placed about the railway. The lower jaw is hinged, and has a pair of slot holes through it, so that the commencing ends of the rails may be so placed that the vehicle appears resting on the tongue of the animal. The passage of the vehicle behind the hinge of the jaw into the throat of the animal tilts the lower jaw up, the ends of the rails remaining in position and the slot holes passing over them. The weight of the jaw is sufficient to bring it back to the horizontal position. The animal thus appears to gobble up or swallow the passengers as they commence the journey. The lower jaw or the back arms or tilting levers may be connected to the eyes, to move or roll them, and the movement may be arranged to operate switches of electric lights placed behind the eyes or in the nostrils, and to operate a smoke bellows, producing a blast of smoke from the nostrils. The termination of the railway is brought back to the foot of the framework supporting the head, and a hoist or elevator is provided to lift the vehicle to the level of the mouth; or, if the rise is sufficient, the vehicles may be pushed or drawn up a covered incline by hand or by motor-actuated mechanism. It is here a motor is provided in connection with the apparatus. It may be arranged to actuate intermittently a syren or sound-producing apparatus, imitating a roar, bellow, scream, or other desired sound. We understand that the cost of erecting the structure, which would be about 35ft. in height and in area 50 by 60ft., would amount to £800, and that Mr. Thewlis seeks an enterprising showman to co-operate with him that his invention may be the means of considerably enriching them both during the coming season.

TO THE TRADE.

Gentlemen,--We have pleasure to announce that we have secured the Johnson-Burns Fight film at an immense sacrifice after lively competition.

The main object of our determination to secure this picture at any cost was our desire to assist the Picture Business generally, and ensure that no combination of circumstances should bar it from reaching our most valued customers--The Picture Exhibitors--who are struggling to uphold the future of the business.

The negative has not yet arrived in England, and no prints can therefore be issued for some days. In the meanwhile we announce that there is no intention of selling prints or copies of this film outright, but they will be leased, with certain restrictions, to certain districts, and that we are prepared to receive offers and tenders from all quarters for the exclusive rights to exhibit this film, for the first one or two weeks, in any town or district.

Yours always obediently and at the service of the trade,

THE GAUMONT CO., Ltd.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

FATHER MILON.
Code word, "GAULOIS."

By Guy de Maupassant. Acted by Mr. Gémier, Manager of the Antoine Theatre, and his troupe.
This happened during the Franco-German War, in 1870. The Prussians were occupying the country. They had taken by storm old Milon's farmhouse, after killing his father and his younger son. The old peasant kept hidden, under the appearance of the most abject submission, a feeling of hatred against the invaders, which he vented on them by killing every stray soldier he met in his night wanderings. When found out, he did not flinch, and when asked by the Colonel commanding in the village, "Do you know that you must die?" his answer was, "I have asked you no favour." And, straightening himself up, the old man folded his arms and waited for the volley which was to end his life before the very eyes of his son and of his step-daughter. He did not mind going in his turn, for he had put matters straight. He had killed eight soldiers to avenge his dead father, and eight more for his dead son.

HUNTING THE BROWN BEAR IN AMERICA.
Code Word, "GARANTIE."

The trappers have pitched their tents among the bare trees, and they are now having breakfast before beginning their day's work. After a long time they at last find a track. The brown form of a bear is moving on the snow, and one of the hunters, having fired, the beast falls down in a heap. The man approaches cautiously, for in spite of its being severely wounded, a bear is always dangerous on account of its cunning and strength. A second bullet kills it, and the trapper then takes its fur, which is always in great demand.

MR. FEARY DOES NOT LIKE POLICEMEN.
Code Word, "GALLOIS."

Mr. Feary has just taken one glass too many, and when he leaves the café he stretches himself on a bench in the street. After a few minutes, a policeman orders him to "move on"; he does so grudgingly, and in doing so knocks up against a woman; this causes a claim to be put in against him. Afterwards the shambling man thinks that a crowd of policemen are after him; he discovers them in women's attire, or in garments hanging along the wall. He himself is changed into one of his tormentors, and in order to run away from this nightmare, he climbs on to the roof of his house, and makes a plunge down, which lands him on a live policeman. Poor Mr. Feary!

A MOTHER-IN-LAW'S REVENGE.
Code Word, "FUSTIGER."

Bob is very naughty, and his father is giving him a good talking to, when Granny joins in and spoils everything, of course. The boy's father does not like her to interfere in this way, and in order to make her mind her own business, he upsets the soup tureen on her head, and leaves the room. She pursues him, shouting with all her might, "Stop him, he is mad!" Policeman invite the poor son-in-law to follow them to the lunatic asylum, where he is given a specially cold douche.

198ft. The Subject, £3 6s. 0d.

BOBBY, SPORTSMAN.
Code Word, "GALLINACE."

Bobby would like to be a chauffeur, but he has no motor car. This does not trouble him much, though, for the bath will serve his purpose. To this he adds the wheels from Baby's pram, a coffee grinder for a starter, a pair of bellows full of powder for the steam, &c., and lets go! Bobby starts full speed, and runs over one of the servants. Bobby consoles himself by thinking that such things will happen at times. Two more accidents take place, of which he takes no notice. One is hurting two drunken men, the other is smashing a cab to pieces. His victims chase him, and a policeman stops him for having no number. Bobby writes in capitals B-609, and starts afresh. An accident to his machine obliges him to go to the garage, where he is overtaken by his enemies.

A WEEK'S WINTER SPORTS IN SAVOY.
Code Word, "GRISOU."

In the snow and on the ice, the sportsmen compete for the skating, lugeing, ski-ing, and bob-sleighing prizes. On their gliding machines, they whir and slide, negotiating the descents at top speed, enjoying themselves to the utmost, and inhaling the pure mountain air.

NEW

IMPROVED SAFETY SHUTTER

(Patent Applied for).

SPECIAL and EXCLUSIVE FEATURES.

1. RELEASE CONTROLLED BY THE FILM.
The defect of all automatic shutters at present in use is the fact that the machine must be brought to a standstill before the so-called "Safety" shutter drops. In the improved Empire type, the shutter is immediately brought into action upon a break occurring, whether the operator stops his machine or not.

2. FILM BREAKS—SHUTTER DROPS.
It often happens that a period elapses, especially in motor driven projectors, before the operator stops his machine upon a break occurring. This delay is extremely dangerous, and if high amperage is being used a fire in the gate is the inevitable result. This is entirely prevented by the new Empire Shutter.

3. INDEPENDENT OF STOPPING MACHINE.
Owing to the many duties calling for the operator's attention, it is highly necessary that the action of the Safety Shutter should be absolutely independent. With this improved type the shutter drops immediately the film becomes stationary in the gate.

4. SIMPLE AND ABSOLUTELY EFFICIENT.
Its action though extremely ingenious, is very simple. No additional rollers are necessary, and the improvement in no way impedes the quick threading of the machine.

5. A REAL FIRE PREVENTIVE.
The Shutter was demonstrated at the recent exhibition at the London Hippodrome with great success. It is positively impossible to fire the film in the gate if this shutter is adopted.

NOW READY FITTED TO OUR No. 2 EMPIRE.

Catalogue and Particulars upon application.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, FEB. 17.—Miss Fannie Ward and Mr. Charles Cartwright are chiefly responsible for the success of The New Lady Bantock at Wallach's Theatre. This is the play that was known as Fanny and the Servant Problem in England, and the change of title does not appear to have proved detrimental to its success in America, although one would think that the original title would have proved sufficiently attractive considering the perennial perplexity of the "servant problem" in this country. As England is the habitat of the faithful retainer who remains with one family for a lifetime, such a posture of circumstances as is disclosed in the play under notice would rarely be found on this side of the ocean. But for all that the struggle between Lady Bantock and her butler could hardly be uninteresting in this land of autocratic underlings. Martin Bennett, the arrogant and domineering butler, is played to perfection by Mr. Cartwright, and Miss Ward as the music hall artist who marries a title is so natural and unaffected that her performance leaves a most agreeable impression. Mr. John W. Dean as Lord Bantock, Miss Leila Repton and Miss Margaret Grey as the spinster sisters, Mr. T. J. McGrane as Dr. Fremantle, and Mr. Robert McWade, jun., as Newte were excellent in their respective rôles, the other characters being well represented.

"HAVANA," a musical comedy, in three acts, by George Grossmith, jun., and Graham Hill, with music by Leslie Stuart, made an instantaneous hit at the Casino on the 12th inst., and is likely to be a fixture at that house for some months to come. Mr. James T. Powers, a comedian who is really funny and a great favourite in this city, made his reappearance after a prolonged absence from the local stage in the rôle of Samuel Nix, bos'un of the Wasp, and received an enthusiastic welcome. His topical song, "How did the bird know that?" provoked much laughter, and his expansive smile and unfailing good humour proved as mirth-provoking as ever. Mr. Ernest Lambart, who was very amusing as Don Adolfo, attended the bevy of "newspaper beauties," whose rendering of "Hello, people" made the hit of the performance. This tuneful number threatens to be quite as popular as the same composer's "Tell me pretty maiden." "Cupid's telephone," also sung by the aforesaid bevy, was another "fetching" number, Miss Edith Kelly's dancing being warmly applauded. As Anita Miss Clara Palmer sang and danced delightfully. Others who contributed to the success of this exceedingly attractive offering were Messrs. William Pruette, Percy Ames, Joseph and William Phillips, Harold Vizard, and Miss Eva Davenport. The piece is beautifully mounted, and is a most satisfying feast for the eye and the ear. Havana will easily uphold the popularity of the Casino as a place of entertainment.

LONDON AND COUNTY CONCERT.

The large King's Hall at the Holborn Restaurant was well filled on Monday night, when the printers of The Era, the London and County Printing Works and Bazaar Staff Association gave their annual concert in aid of the pension which is being founded in connection with the Printers' Pension Corporation. Mr. E. Mynott (works manager), an admirable chairman, presided, and among those present were Mr. L. Upcott Gill, Mrs. Upcott Gill, Mr. Bernard Gill, Mr. Edward Gill, Messrs. Pedgrift (The Era) C. Lowry and J. Burton (Shoe and Leather Record), W. Grierson (T.P.'s Weekly), and a large number of ladies and gentlemen connected with the London world of "print" and letters.

Miss May Neville opened with a well-executed pianoforte solo; Mr. E. L. Hargrave had the unenviable task of "first turn." Mr. G. J. Blower amused with "I want you to see my girl"; and Mr. W. J. Baker showed promise as a violinist. Mr. Bernard Russell's efforts created great merriment, and then came Mr. Leonard Holmes's vigorous rendering of "Chorus, gentlemen," evidently to the taste of the audience. Mr. Harry Hall increased the diversion by his contributions to the humorous side of the programme; Miss Dorothy Picking delighted with "A Woodland Madrigal"; and the fine tenor of Mr. Chas. Pattle was heard to great advantage in this two items, which were warmly applauded. Mr. Finlay Dunn was (as usual) a success with humorous songs at the piano; and succeeding him came Mr. Leo Crosse, who, accompanied by his brother, showed that great things may be expected of him as a 'cellist. He played with good tone and expression Dunkler's "Rêverie," and was encored.

Two of the best items of the evening were the duets contributed by Miss Emilie Hayes and Mr. Fred Gregory, who were followed in their first item by Miss Lily Nice, whose rendering of "Il Bacio" was very pleasing, and who later sang Ed. German's Waltz Song from Tom Jones in finished style. A capital recitation by Mr. Reginald Higgins was followed by Mr. Walter Montague, in exceptionally good humorous musical sketches. Miss Elsie Lisle, in excellent voice, sang well; and Mr. Bishop Gill did full justice to "A Sergeant of the Line." Miss Elsie Steadman's two numbers caused much laughter; and further contributions to the mirth-making came from Messrs. Albert Mackelvin (Scotch comedian) and Mr. Chas. Gerard Tate. From the realms of variety came Gilbert Girard, with his clever imitations of animals, &c.; Jules Charmettes, with renderings in French of popular English songs; Claude Gardner, light comedian; Little Victoria, L. B. Athol, Lulu Evans, Dorothy Vine, and Elsie Bernard, who materially contributed to the success.

Mr. C. E. Johnson made a most efficient chief accompanist, and received valuable assistance from Miss May Neville, Mrs. W. A. Perkins, Miss Cooper, and others. Mr. Mynott was responsible (in conjunction with the energetic hon. sec., Mr. J. A. Lawrence) for procuring the fine array of talent and in making the arrangements for the gathering, and Mr. W. A. Perkins acted as musical director.

Bram Stoker on American Acting.

"IF the number of theatres is any indication of the wishes of a people in that direction," writes Mr. Bram Stoker in a pithy article in The Fortnightly on "Americans as Actors," "the United States stands very well for histrionic effort. Mr. Julius Cahn gives in his compendious Theatrical Guide the names of more than 2,600 theatres of varying importance in the United States, which would allow of one theatre for every 24,000 inhabitants. This compares favourably with our British average, for by the lists given in The Era Almanack the British theatres and music halls total about 800, which would give an average of just about twice as many persons to each theatre. Were our examination as to the popularity of the theatre the incidence would be altogether on the American side; but as it is relating to the native capacity for acting, it rather tends the opposite way. For even with such an evident demand for actors the indigenous supply is insufficient; there is a ready market in the United States for the services of competent players—provided, of course, that they can speak the language.

THE Readers' Pensions Committee (an organisation which exists for the purpose of securing pensions for infirm and aged correctors of the press and their widows) has secured the Lord Mayor (Sir G. Wyatt Truscott) as chairman of the annual dinner on behalf of its funds. The gathering will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on March 20.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company are having a most successful week. On Monday Aida was presented. Mme. De Vere Sapio in the title-part and Mr. Philip Brozel as Radames roused the house to a high pitch of enthusiasm by their magnificent efforts; Miss Toni Seiter sang and acted with the utmost sympathy as Amneris; Mr. Manners was exceedingly impressive as Ramphis, the High Priest of Isis; Mr. Lewys James threw a striking degree of fervour into his presentation of Amonasro; and Mr. Charles Magrath made a splendid appearance as the King of Egypt. Signor Romnaldo Sapio admirably conducted. Lohengrin was staged on Tuesday with Miss Fanny Moody as Elsa; and the repertory for the week includes Faust, The Meistersingers, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, Tannhäuser, and Carmen.

PALACE THEATRE.—The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls give a delightful entertainment, and Mr. Charles Baldwin's company appeared with the utmost success in a highly humorous sketch, The Bank Clerks. Mr. Dan Fraser, the celebrated Scots comedian, had a most enthusiastic reception, and there seems to be little doubt that he will speedily take a place in the very front rank of his profession; the Rickards Trio were heartily applauded in their Giddy Golfers sketch; Mr. Albert Letine is a good female impersonator; Mlle. Sylvestro goes through a series of marvellous contortions; the Musical Keiths are skilled instrumentalists; and Mr. Bert Terrell contributed an attractive turn as a Dutch comedian and vocalist.

ALHAMBRA AND EMPIRE MUSIC HALLS.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—The company at both houses this week includes Lindsay and Harte, a couple of highly resourceful entertainers; Miss Marguerite Lowe, a fine soprano; Mr. Billy McShane, a quaint comedian; Miss Bella Hardy, a graceful dancer; and the ever-popular members of the Empire company—Miss Marie Rose, Mr. Archie Murray, and Mr. Jack Marson. Miss Marie Rose took her benefit at the Empire last week. The house was crowded to overflowing.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The popular and powerful drama The Thief was presented at this established theatre by Mr. Ernest Bodkin's company for three nights anly. Mr. Frank Darch distinguished himself by his dramatic handling of Richard Chelford; Raymond Leyton was played forcibly by Mr. Ernest Bodkin; and Harry Leyton was in the capable hands of Mr. C. W. Lindsay. Miss Kathryn Stocks made a realistic Marise Chelford; Isabel Leyton was naturally delineated by Miss Mary Forrester.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Leo Merode performs here his most daring feat of looping the loop on cycle with his usual success; Ada Fawn creates a favourable impression; Mrs. Hugh de Beera and company present a pleasant sketch, The Lady of the Roses; the Athlones show strength and agility in their successful pot-pourri act; Arthur Holland is a successful character singer; Aylloe Ottino, lady conjurer, mystifies her audience; Kenrick and Laure are good vocal and dancing entertainers; and interesting films are shown.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in A Fight for a Throne, is the attraction here this week. Mr. John Millward plays Captain Jack Fortescue satisfactorily; Mr. Jerrold Reed is well placed as Nicholai I.; Prince Otto is capably portrayed by Mr. Charles Lincoln; Mr. Patrick Evans supplies an effective rendering of Lieut. Fitzmaurice; Mr. Walter Graham is seen to advantage in the rôle of Paul Rodna; and Mr. Chas. H. Hughes is quite at home as the detective. Miss Madge Clayton is an artistic Sister Agatha; Lady Pat is admirably portrayed by Miss Emmeline B. Lewis; and Miss Margaretta Tueskie fills the rôle of Countess Lorenski with credit. Princess Esmee is in the capable hands of Miss Dora Hammersley.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Berzac's comedy animal act is proving a strong feature here this week. Mlle. Renee presents a delightful musical turn; Milner and Story, comedy duo, are popular; and Nat Watkins is a mirth-provoking comedian. Stewart and Morgan are vociferously applauded; Les Rallis, in a comedy performance, are entertaining; Montague Biggs, female impersonator, is clever; the Sisters Brookland are pleasing duettists; and the Bioscope adds interest to the performance.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—The star turn is undoubtedly the Ten Dixie Girls, in their vocal and dancing speciality, The Silver Coon, in which ten dainty little maids give solos and dances and several lively numbers; May Carter sings "In the Land of the Kangaroo" with effect; and Miss Lena Leslie is heard to advantage in two songs; Charles Ashdowne's clever patter, songs, and dances prove him a versatile comedian; the Missouris give a lively acrobatic display and knockabout turn, which is highly appreciated; Franco's Midgets are clever illusionists, their bird cage act being a great hit; Souplessi twists his body into all conceivable shapes, and finishes up with a cartwheel movement hanging from the rings. The Bioscope shows several amusing pictures.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The drama, full of startling incident, entitled Sexton Blake, Detective, is being played here. Mr. Jack Fortescue sustains the part of Sexton Blake with power. Mr. Fortescue gives vivid interpretation to a complex character. Mr. Henry Nelson is good as Farmer Blackburn; Mr. Russell Barry finds sufficient in Roger Blackburn to test his skill in delineation; Mr. Stanley Crump is capital as the Tinker; Mr. A. Syms makes a characteristic clergyman; and good character studies are given by Messrs. Stephen Nicholls, R. H. Grey, W. Stephens, H. Ravenscroft, Robert King, E. Boddy, J. C. Lowther, and J. Leslie. Miss Pauline E. Straus is ladylike as Marjorie Lovell; Miss Ruth Woodhouse makes a good Mrs. Clifton; Misses Mary Vincent, Alice Jamieson, and Lilla Norden are useful exponents of female character, and Miss Cecile E. Anson is remarkably effective in the character of Philadelphia Kate.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—The leading artist this week is Houdini, the original handcuff king. The other artists are Farrell and Dunn, the Caledonian Duo, in song and dance; Mary Kay, juvenile comedienne; the twin sisters Tiny and Mite, the wonderful child vocalists and dancers; Jack Crawley in his pretty novel act, Lights Out. The Five Musical Tritons are really musical marvels, vocal and instrumental. They introduce a most gorgeous spectacular musical scena by electric coloured lights. A. H. Drinkwater is good as the swell comedian; and Wild, Willie, and West are most amusing as well as clever experts as the Bounding Navvies. The Bioscope shows a Tale of the Revolution.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wilson.—The animated picture show here for the week is remarkably good in the comic section. One or two new films are of thrilling interest, viz., Scene of the French Revolution, The Mohawk's Ring, &c. The vaudeville artists are the Armiens, who give a clever musical scena, Entertainments in Camp; the Rose Trio as acrobatic waiters are most skilful, and very amusing. The Durham Disaster has been added to the pictures.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Marks.—The pictures here are a source of great attraction, and good business is being done with two performances each evening. Musical and humorous sketches are given by vaudeville artists, and a young lady vocalist warbles very prettily.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The enterprising management of this popular house have secured a big leading turn this week in the engagement of Lockhart's Elephants, under the direction of Captain Taylor, who has complete control over his unwieldy pets, and puts them through an entertaining and interesting performance. The Bohemians (Will and Madge) provide a pleasing entertainment as instrumentalists, and introduce plenty of comedy into their turn; Mr. Percy Maye is a clever and successful female impersonator; a hearty reception is accorded to Dewar and Dunville, vocalists and expert dancers; Mr. E. C. Clayton has an amusing series of pictures, including The Runaway Kids. Others in the programme are Miss Ruby Emmerson, vocalist; Mr. J. H. Carney, quick-change comedian; Karischi, juggler and equilibrist; and Henry Hawtrey, boy basso.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is here on a six nights' visit. As the Babes, Cissie Williams and La Belle Sylvia are winsome; Misses Winnie and Ethel Hypathia as Allan-a-Dale and Doris respectively sing well and dance delightfully; the Robin Hood of Miss Pattie McCarthy is bold and brave; and Nina Carlton makes a charming Maid Marian. Mr. Digby Worsley is well supported in his humour by Mr. Lovell Rowlands as Wearie Willie and Mr. Herbert Walton as Tired Tim; Mr. Ross Warren as Blinker and Mr. Gus Walker as Pansy Blossom, too, are provocative of diversion. Among the immortals, Mr. Frank Halpin as Will o' the Wisp, with his fine bass voice, is a power. Miss Norah Prendergast as Queen of Good Intent also does well.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Charles Carey's company is here this week with the musical comedy entitled The Madeira Maid. Miss Madge Lacey gives a delightful embodiment of Maidie, her songs being well rendered and her dancing clever and graceful; Miss Marie Ault's humorous embodiment of Mary Ann Chovey keeps the house convulsed, and her eccentric dancing is particularly good; as "No One in Particular" Mr. Charles Carey acquits himself ably. Other parts are in capable keeping. The music is bright, and the costumes and scenery attractive.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. H. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Rice Cassidy is here with In Holy Russia. A capital performance is given.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The company here includes the Sleepwalker, the New York Comedy Four, the Leonards, Ferris and May, Delafiori, the Sisters Pine, Haidee, with Theatre of Art, Maud Marmon, and Palacescope.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow is here. In the title-rôle Miss Mysie Devine is very enchanting; and Mr. Frank Greene plays with much polish as Prince Danilo. Mr. Ed. D'Arcy is a humorous Baron Popoli; and amusing representations are given by Mr. Fred Fowler, (Nisch) and Mr. Adrian Beaumont (Waiter at Maxim's). Miss Katie May as Frou-Frou dances well; Miss Ada Thomas is quite a success as Natalie; and Mr. Ripley Evans sings artistically and acts capitally as Vicomte Camille de Jolidon.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh with Leah Kleschna are here. In the part of Leah Miss Bessie Rignold gives a very distinguished and interesting performance; and Mr. William Clayton is a very realistic and convincing Kleschna. Mr. Charles Barrett gives a polished representation of Paul Sylvaine; and Mr. Arthur Leigh is a good Raoul Berton. Mr. William Heilbronn does well as Schram; and Mr. Algernon J. Hicks doubles the parts of General Bertram and Valentine Favre with skill.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Wee Mona, the juvenile comedienne, is in the premier position here this week. She is a very accomplished young artist. The Alberto troupe are clever equilibrists; Dene and Danson are exceedingly funny in a good sketch; George Hall gives a good whistling turn; Athlan gives an expert balancing act; and Vernon's Bioscope exhibits some capital pictures.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. Julian Malvern presented I Defy the World to a well-filled house on Monday. As Blanche Marville, Miss Florence Delmar proved herself versatile; Mr. Max Coutts portrayed with telling effect the part of Count de Beaulieu; as Leon Darville Mr. F. B. Woulfe worked hard; and Miss Dorothy Love made a delightful Fanchette.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. Murray King and company are here in Toddles, and this merry farcical comedy is being much enjoyed

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The bill for this week comprises Mysticus, the human chameleon; Mack Ollive, assisted by Miss Daisy Baldry, in his well-known whistling scena; Mollie and Winnie Brooke, vocalists and dancers; the Leotard Brothers, of acrobatic and hat throwing fame; Gladys Wilton, a young contralto vocalist; Rose Wold, in a comedy wire act; the Cromwells, in their juggling act; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The Gentleman Jockey is here this week, the company being that of Mr. Edward Marris, the author of the piece. Miss Ethel Ward is charming as Poppy Grayson; Miss Vera Grafton plays Kitty Granmere exceedingly well; Mr. H. Nelson Hancock is successful in the title-rôle; Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone cleverly portrays Frank Snakeworth; Mr. Leonard Dalrymple's performance as Archie Fitzherbert is decidedly praiseworthy; Mr. Helier Le Maistre is a capital David Grayson; and Mr. George Brentwood as P.-C. Blodgers is responsible for a great deal of the fun.

BELFAST. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. S. Salmond.—Mr. Augustine Knight's company opened here on Monday in the romantic military drama The Assassin. Mr. Knight himself appears as Prince Demetri with great success; Miss Elsa Vane shares the honours by her clever impersonation of Countess Wanda; Mr. John Worth furnishes a skilful impersonation of Ivan Ipanoff; and Mr. Henry C. Ward is all that can be desired as Duke Carl. Miss Rosa Webster is a charming Connie; and Miss Maude Steeple a sympathetic Nita. Mr. Wilson Summers appears to advantage as General Nicol; and Mr. Edwin Jenner is a satisfactory Captain O'Neil. The humour of the piece is in the hands of Miss Kate Lever as Katrina and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Peter.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading feature here is Mr. B. A. Rolfe's production of "Ye Colonial Septette," a capital musical act, in which the various performers play a number of musical instruments cleverly, and also add to their success by their delightful vocal items; the Lavalls execute some extraordinary feats, for which they have been enthusiastically greeted; and the Mezzettis return with their gymnastic act, which is certainly very smart. Ted Curtis introduces with great effect his clever troupe of Piccaninnies; Blanche and Powell, society entertainers, are an acquisition to the company; and praise is due to the Scotch act entitled "Yae Hogmany Nicht," submitted by Miss Florence Lambeth and Mr. Robert Robertson. Also here are Miss Queenie May, comedienne; Mephisto, the mysterious, assisted by Miss Winifred Allendire; and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The Four Holloways top the bill, and have created quite a sensation with their marvellous acrobatic and trick cycling on the tight wire; Oakdene is one of the smartest ventriloquists before the public; and De Canty's Water Grotto, introducing Mlle. De Silva, is aptly described as a beautiful spectacle. Carlton is here, and has been most successful with his conjuring; and a very pleasing performance at the piano is submitted by Miss Ethel Walker. Mr. Frank Sylvo returns with his comedy juggling, which never fails to amuse; and Mr. Fred Land, comedian, and the Bioscope, complete a good bill.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Under the direction of Mr. Gerald Tweedie, the following films have been exhibited:—A Modern Grace Darling, Mr. Giddy, Sherlock Holmes, Electric Safe, Ragpicker's Daughter, &c. In addition, Lola and May, clever gymnasts, appear; also Mr. R. C. Note, a comedian with a capital style, whose songs have afforded much pleasure.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Notwithstanding many counter attractions, good houses are the rule here. Some beautiful pictures have been exhibited, under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett, including Richard III., Playmates, Master of Mystery, Lady or the Lions, Gnomes, &c. Miss Daisy Davenport, a charming comedienne with good songs, appears with success; also Mr. Jack Foster, vocalist and impersonator.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. O. E. Laumann.—Skating continues to be all the rage. The Barnyard Carnival on Thursday last was an immense success, the rink being thronged with skaters in all kinds of costumes suitable to the occasion, such as milkmaids, farm labourers, and farmers. Mr. Jan Petersen furnished a fine exhibition of fancy skating, his feats being really remarkable. The entire arrangements reflected the utmost credit on the popular manager, Mr. O. E Laumann. It should be added that the members of The White Man company, from the Grand Opera House, visited the carnival in their stage costumes, and were enthusiastically welcomed

BILSTON. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin. — A hearty reception was awarded on Monday to Mr. C. Watson Mill and his company, including Miss Rosalind Tate, in the romantic drama For Love and the King. Mr. Villiers Stanley is successful as Prince Uros; and Miss Joan Ellis makes a winning Natila. Mr. C. Watson Mill is forceful as Jarval; Miss Rosalind Tate as Princess Athene appears to advantage; Miss Lily Wynter is amusing as Grazia; and Mr. J. K. Woods clever as Carl Coppenheim.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—One of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime companies commenced a week's engagement here on Monday in Puss in Boots, a downright rollicking production brimful of humour and jollity, staged with a wealth of scenery and costumes. Miss Ethel Ra Leslie is a winsome and vivacious Colin and, with the assistance of fine vocal abilities, speedily establishes herself in favour. Miss Gladys Christoe is a charming Princess Ivy; Miss Bessie Herbert is thoroughly successful as Prince Rudolph; Miss Gladys Hicks is well suited as Phyllis; Miss Zona Joy is a capital Gretchen; and Miss Issa Steel an admirable Fairy Queen. The company is strong in comedians, and it will be readily understood that the fun is fast and furious as furnished by Harry Rogerson, Fred Lincoln, Harry Edlin, Augustin Symonds, and Ben Corday. Mr. Hal Bert is a splendid exponent of the feline race. Specialities are given by the Three Lorimers, trumpeters; Zelina, in a juggling act; and the Albion Quartet of male voices; and the Alexandra Quartet of ladies execute some pretty dances. The chorus is numerous and efficient, and the orchestral arrangements are under the direction of Mr. George Esa.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Lew Lake and his capable company in the comedy drama My Pal Jerry are the leading turn here, and are cordially received. The Cavallottis give an entertaining musical show; Miss Kitty Colyer, comedienne, is a universal favourite; and Mr. Walter King, the doleful comedian, is on a welcome return visit. Other prominent appearances include the Martineks, versatile artists; Miss Violet Nunn, an accomplished comedienne; the Waltons, comedians; Mr. Archie Glen, comedian; Mr. Ryder Slone, in a good selection of songs; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A liberal and comprehensive programme is supported by Marie Rako and partner in an imposing acrobatic performance; Elmo and Rego, speciality artists; Locardo Bros., acrobats; Mozetto, juggler; Will English, coloured comedian; Jim Cheetham, whistler; the Sisters Varley, duettists; Miss Dolly Ross, comedienne; Mr. Chas. Rothwell, comedian; Miss Ena Crompton, comedienne; Mr. J. F. Franklyn, comedian; and the Hippodrome pictures

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dick Whittington continues in favour, scenery, dresses, artists, songs, and dances combining to make this one of the most successful pantomimes ever produced here. The company comprises the Misses Sybil Arundale, Ethel Negretti, Clara Reid, Aimee Grey, Ada Whittaker, Violet Baynton, the Marigny Girls, and Messrs. Tom Foy, Eric Campbell, Fred Whittaker, Arthur Reynold, Harry C. Lupino, Drew and Alders, Wee Wallace Lupino, and Lupino Lane. Mr. Philip Redway's benefit takes place next Monday, Mr. Tom Foy will be similarly honoured next Friday, and on Monday week the pantomime makes way for An Englishman's Home—its first time out of London.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue is still drawing crowded houses, with Miss Hetty (in the title-rôle), Miss Gladys Ivery, Miss Rita Everard, Miss Connie Emerald, the Eight Stella Girls, and Messrs. Tom Murray, Horace Mills, G. H. Elliott, Jay Laurier, and the Lyric Quartette, &c.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is now in the hey-day of its success, with the Misses Ellaline Thorne, Dollie Denton, Ivey Roze, Joyce Stevens, Daisie Clements, Maudie Olmar, Winifred Norman, that clever farceur and musician, Mr. George Penn, and Messrs. Stephens and Rennoir, Albert Schafer, Frank Bolger, Frank Blythe, the Three Tivoli Girls, the Molasso Troupe, and the Musical Schafers in favour.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—A Country Girl in London is meeting with much success here, with Mr. W. V. Garrod and his company. Miss Bertha Kingston plays with clever expression and feeling as Marjorie (the title-rôle); Mr. Garrod as Frank Gordon gives a portrayal full of telling points; Mr. Stewart Quartermayne shows a fine conception of the adventurer's rôle, Godfrey Clinton; and the ne'er-do-well, Joe Smithers, is well played by Mr. Clifford Marle. Mr. John S. Sheridan lends himself thoroughly to the part of John Hamilton; Miss Josephine Caltona gives a particularly clever portrayal of Gwendoline Gordon; and some excruciatingly funny parts are contributed by Messrs. John Belton, Seymour Perry, and Miss Ethel Whiteley.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Harry Starr is once more gratifying his admirers here as Otto the Outcast in the play of that name. Mr. Starr's portrayal retains all its salient features, and calls forth loud applause; Mr. Will Hee is decidedly adept in his performance as the French Jonathan Wild, Roderique D'Estalier; Miss Katie Norris enacts the rôle of the flower girl, Lara, with much charm; Mr. A. Sawyer is successful as Daddy Bruneau; Mr. H. Arnold Allen provokes the audience to hearty laughter with his comic acting as Auguste Carotte; and Miss Effie Macintosh and Miss Madge Blundell are good in their parts. Carl the Clockmaker is also being performed.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—The Prodigal Son elicits a warm reception here, with Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Miss Valerie Crespin enacts the patient and gentle Thora with an infinity of charm and pathos, afterwards appearing as the daughter, Elin, with equal success; Mr. Hugh Montgomery acts with all the fine sincerity and rugged sympathy necessary in his rôle of the noble-hearted Magnus; Mr. Gordon Macintosh figures brilliantly as Oscar; Miss Mildred Cottell gives irresistible fascination to the rôle of the temptress, Helga; and the others show considerable ability, especially Mr. Bellenden Clarke as Stephen, Miss Barbara Gott as Anna, Mr. Philip Renouf as the Factor, and Miss Marie Harcourt as Margaret.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—The Christian is very successful here, with Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. Henry Renouf as the pure-souled hero, John Storm, commands the reverence of all with his dignified, yet dramatic, portrayal; Mr. Oswald Marshall is successful in his efforts to make the rôle of Horatio Drake effective; Mr. George R. Montford gives a true sketch of the polished, unscrupulous man about town as Lord Robert Ure; Miss Doris Gilham, illumines the character of Glory Quayle with many vivid flashes, and gains admiration all round; and Mr. Edwin Ling, Mr. C. T. Turpin, Miss Linna St. Clair, Miss Margaret Brodie, Miss Katherine Maude, and the others are deserving of every praise.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—That talented American actress Alice Pierce is attracting large audiences here with her impersonations, all of which are loudly applauded; the Achmid Ibrahim Troupe of acrobats are certainly experts; an entertainment of an attractive nature is that of Roma and Romani, who are musicians of a high order. Their selection on various instruments are repeatedly encored. Margaret Parker and company have a good dramatic sketch, Sunshine; Annette Hayward, Lilly Palmer, Billy Hobbs, Frank Street, and the Great Wieland, in his juggling act, complete an excellent programme.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Sylvia Cavalho and company in the up-to-date burlesque What's Charles Worth? or, The Maid and the Motor-car. The sketch is bright and well-written. Hunting Morn, a musical rollicking bit of fun, is presented by Fred Ginnett and company; the Delevines, in their latest act Flipp and Flopp, are well received; Virto and Venita have a refined musical entertainment, which is highly appreciated; the Three Welsh Girls, Maud and Sydney Wood, Ross and Lewis, Little Pain, and Paul Barnes (of New York), in his droll American monologues, add to the mirth of the evening.

HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Emerson and Baldwin, comedians, Hayman and Franklin, Hebrew impersonators, are both smart and entertaining, and are applauded. The Eight 'Varsity Girls dance themselves into favour; Dorothy Gould is a charming comedienne; Dave Carter is encored for his Irish ballads. Other popular turns are those of the Werds, Mark Leslie, and Bostock's troupe of baboons.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Daisy Jerome's clever songs have been well received here; The Broken Medal, a smart little sketch, is artistically played by Misses Jessie and Dora Lyons; and Mr. Clinton Baddeley and Henry Herne and company have a good dramatic sketch, Blackmail. The Carpos Bros., Violet Stockelle, Barry Lewis, Morander and Darius, and Phern and Phern do good turns.

ASTON HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Middleton.—The House of Terror, a one-act playlet, is the star item here. The sketch, presented by Miss Beaumont Collins and company, is well written and well played. The Aeolians are loudly applauded for their songs and dances. Thomas and Taylor are clever quick-change artists, their sketch, Fun on the Midland, gives them plenty of scope; John Grun Marx displayed many feats of strength; W. H. Downes and Don and Mabel Kerr in a Scottish scena, Sandy's Return, are much appreciated.

KING'S HALL.—A large number of new and amusing pictures are presented to King's Hall audiences. They include A Zulu's Heart, a film showing the love of a black man for a white child, which proved popular; others include The Deserter and The Demon Card Shuffler. Variety is presented by Leoville, aerial gymnast; Aeolia, wire walker; and Mr. Walter Lee, vocalist, who are much appreciated.

CURZON HALL.—The programme presented by Mr. Walter Jeffs is proving very popular. The pictures are thoroughly up to date and include a Trip Through Ireland, which is profusely illustrated. A very interesting film is one entitled Rip's Inheritance, being the illustrated story of the sagacity and faithfulness of a dog. Afraid to Go Home in the Dark is the title of a novelty in the way of pictures. The figures in the picture supply the necessary action, an instrument called the cinephone the song. In addition, Miss Ducie Saunderson contributes some illustrated songs, and The Players, a talented troupe of comedy artists, complete the show.

QUEEN'S HALL.—The most interesting item in the programme submitted here is a film illustrating the work accomplished by Major Richardson's famous bloodhounds. Vaudeville turns are given by Mr. George Ino and Miss Vera Blanchard, soubrette.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's Little Red Riding Hood company opened to a good house on Monday. Mr. V. Wakeman is funny as Dame Trot; and Mr. Billy Melia is a remarkably clever Sunny Jim. As Baron Hardup Mr. J. J. Mannie is very good; and Messrs. Denby and Dent (Doleful Dan and Whimsical William) are almost perfect. Little Iris Vivienne is charming in the title-rôle; and as Boy Blue Miss Fanny Adamson is excellent. Miss May Gibson is an ideal exponent of Miss Muffit, as is also Miss Daisy Clifford of Marjorie Daw. Miss Trixie Wyatt is delightful as Silvia. The Sisters Dacier dance well, and several good specialities are introduced. The chorus is strong.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's company is courting public favour here this week with Moths. Mr. Harold Raynor contributes a finished impersonation of Lord Jura, and Mr. Cecil Wynne plays the part of Prince Zouroff with care and ability; the Duchess de Sonnaz is in the hands of Miss Cecilia Dare, who fully justifies her selection; whilst Fuchsia Leach finds a capable exponent in Miss Henrietta Schrier. Captain Swift is in the programme for Friday night.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Arthur Farren's company is presenting a version of Cinderella here twice nightly. The title-rôle is pleasingly played by Miss Gladys May, and Miss Eva Travis is an ideal Prince; Messrs. Norman and Anderson as the two pages supply endless merriment; Mr. William Pimm makes an excellent Baron, and Mr. James Mackenzie is good as Peps; Messrs. Maccabe and Stokes as the Ugly Sisters add materially to the success of the production. The Sisters Johnson are clever tambourine dancers.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Carney and Armstrong are comedians and patterers of the very first order; Les Rubens produce a novel scena entitled A Gipsy Encampment; the Lutinas contribute a clever trapeze act; Kathleen Cogan sings and dances well; Pat Lynch is an expert wooden shoe dancer; the Faludy Troupe of Hungarian acrobats give the utmost satisfaction; Larola is a master in the art of juggling; Rose Cabini is a charming comedienne; and Harry Freeman, as usual, delights everyone.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Pantomime continues to be an attraction. This week we have had Mr. Charles Elderton's company with Robinson Crusoe, which has met with a hearty reception. In the title-rôle Miss Rose Revell gave a charming performance, and was supported by an able company. In the specialities Carson Hicks, the Sisters Rynehardt, the Boultons, Miss Bartinelli, Marblesque Trio, Miss Olive Sara, Stuart and Worth, Rowe and Holden, and the Three Eltons have been most successful.

NEW EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Topping the bill here we have had Stanley, the Scottish singing collier. Maude Clifton, a charming vocalist; Goodhall and Knox, acrobatic comedians; Phil Goldie, Tyrolean vocalist; and a fine display of animated pictures.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—A White Man, presented by Mr. Herbert Sleath's company is meeting with a good reception here this week. To Mr. Frank Tennant is entrusted the part of Capt. James Wynnegate, V.C., his acting being of a very high order; Mr. Harold T. Richardson does excellent work in the part of the Earl of Kerhill; Mr. R. A. Brandon as Big Bill creates a profound impression; and Mr. Cecil Yapp as the impetuous Shorty is very amusing, Mr. Eric Hudson's interpretation of the Indian chief, Tab-y-wana, is a piece of good character acting, and Mr. Gerald Earle deserves praise for his rendering of Cash Hawkins. Much credit is due to Miss Margaret Fairleigh for her excellent portrayal of Nat-u-rich, and Miss Leila Russell is graceful and sympathetic as the Countess. The piece is admirably mounted.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The chief turn on a good programme is Jan Rudenyi in a musical romance entitled The Power of Music, assisted by Mr. J. D. Saunders and Miss Dora de Winton. The Neros, in their refined comedy act; the Crown Trio, speciality vocalists; Arthur Croxon, mimetic comedian; Wilton Heriot and company in the protean comedy sketch An Anglo-American Alliance; Thompson Carruthers with the sensational card novelty The Master Card, including in the cast Dunningarto, Fred H. Constable, Miss Ethel Gray, Miss May Everton, and Miss Ivy Chandos; E. W. Eustace and Dorothy Eyre in an original ventriloquial absurdity entitled Thompkins, jun.; Bert Bowden, quaint comedian; Johnson and Bert in a novel act, A Queer Customer; the renowned Athos Troupe of original ball manipulators and novelty acrobats; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope are other attractions.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Bolton Hippodrome Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece.—The programme submitted here comprises the following good turns:—Horace Wheatley, Irish comedian; Miss Gladys Cooper, serio and ballad vocalist; Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian and dancer; Hewitt and May, in a graceful exhibition of club swinging, &c.; Little Dot Moss, "toy comedienne," banjoist and dancer; the Aribos in a sensational equilibristic act; Forrest and King, acrobatic dancers; Jules Kiaro, equilibrist; the Bensons (Frank and Marguerite) in their musical comedy act The Page and the Maid; and the Hippodrome Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The bill is headed this week by Miss Nina Vaughton and Mr. Stanley Gordon's company in a dramatic sketch entitled The Man from Paris, which is well received. Another strong item on the bill is the Birkenhead Family, who are vocalists of great merit; an old favourite appears in the person of T. W. Barrett, comedian. Lestree, a juggler, the Rinders, song illustrators, and the Deane Tribune company in character studies, complete an excellent programme.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROMES, LTD.—Joint-Managing Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—The Johnstown Flood, the high-water mark of stage illusions, is keenly watched by an interested audience; the Seven Xentrix, a troupe of clever singers and dancers, receive deserved applause for their Continental speciality The Garden of Terpsichore; Brown and

Mr. Lewis Fielder is to be congratulated upon his excellent rendering of Arnold Faringay; and Mrs. Kemmis was delightful as Mrs. Debney. Able support was given by Mr. Arthur Vezin, Mr. Alfred Harris, Mr. Percy D. Owen, and the Misses Beatrice Smith and Ella Collins.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A notice of the last performance of Jack and Jill, which was withdrawn on Saturday evening last, appears elsewhere. Mr. Martin Harvey, who is supported by Miss N. de Silva, and a very fine company, opened the regular dramatic season on Monday night with The Only Way, appearing in his original part of Sydney Carton. Mr. Harvey had a very cordial welcome, and with his usual striking skill he held the audience enthralled throughout the performance; Miss Maud Rivers was particularly effective in her acting as Lucie Manette; with artistic skill Miss N. de Silva impersonated Mimi; there was the required spice of gallantry in Mr. Leonard Craske's impersonation of the part of Charles Darnay; Mr. Charles Glenney's Ernest Defarge, and Miss Mary Rorke's impersonation of The Vengeance were both very effective; and Mr. A. E. Raynor as the Marquis de St. Evremonde, Mr. E. Comberbach as the Vicomte, Mr. F. Wright, sen., as Dr. Manette, and Mr. A. Mansfield as Jean Defarge, were notable presentments in the play, which was very finely staged. On Wednesday evening The Corsican Brothers was presented, with Mr. Harvey in the dual rôle of Fabian dei Franchi and Louis dei Franchi; and Mr. Mansfield as M. de Chateau Renaud. The Conspiracy, with Mr. Harvey as King Konrad, preceded the drama, when a large audience again assembled, and great applause greeted the performance. The Breed of the Treshams is billed for representation during Mr. Harvey's brief engagement.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—King Pantomime still reigns supreme here, and loud laughter and applause continue to greet Red Riding Hood. The season promises a record in the way of attendance, and certainly none of Mr. Laidler's Christmas productions has been more popular.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco contribute an entertainment which is remarkable and unique; mystery is the prevailing element, and some wonderful illusions are presented by the trio, who are also humorists of no mean order. Terry and Lambert, on a return visit with their sketch, English Types through American Eyes, are again cordially received; E. J. Sheldon whistles well in his "black and white" turn; a very entertaining turn by Harry Leybourn, "The nervous lady," elicits laughter; the New Macs are a smart and very amusing couple of comedians, who keep the audience in a merry mood; in a sketch Ananias II Stratton Mills and company are diverting; the Sisters Dorrell are capable duettists and dancers; in a novel turn, "The Dolly Girl," Ida Kathrena impersonates a mechanical doll very well; hearty laughter greets the antics of Maud Rochez's cleverly-trained monkeys in the variety theatre caricature they present; and there are some very fine pictures of the King's Recent Berlin Visit and the Football Cup Tie between Sunderland and Bradford City clubs, shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Charles E. Whittle, the popular and diverting Bradford comedian, in his unique style, is entertaining the audiences here this week. In their farcical sketch The Boatbuilder Johnny Holland and company are very successful; T. C. Jaques, the comedian, displays versatility; and Frank Vallance, the magician, is clever. In a striking performance Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde illustrate the art of shadowgraphy; a very capable turn by Tina Frank comedienne and dancer, and good vocalism by Ted Gill, both find favour. In a military scena Lights Out Leslie's Comedy Cadets provide a fund of amusement; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are a feature of the evening's entertainment.

BRIGHOUSE. — ALBERT THEATRE — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Beanland.—Miss Annie Bell and company are here with The Idol of Paris. As Flare-Flare Miss Annie Bell is not to be surpassed, her dramatic intensity making an histrionic study that stands alone; Mr. Gordon Roby makes a strong Prince Sergius; and Mr. Wilson Howard a very good Phillipe D'Esterre. Mr. Syd Arnold is striking as Victor Cashelle; Miss Frances Bruce as Mlle. Sancterre scores quite a little triumph on her own; Miss Annie Megson makes a piquant Ann; Mr. C. St. John Medley is very good as Gustave Langloise; and Frank H. Dale is a satisfactory Tatare.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Messrs. Henry Chattell and Jack Denton's company opened here on Monday with Through the Divorce Court. The drama was finely staged and mounted, the Divorce Court scene being very realistic. Mr. Cecil A. Collins gave a masterly enactment of Lord Robert Penarth; Miss Katherine Carew made a charming Lady Dolores Penarth; Miss Genna Lyndon was winsome and bright as Lady Sybil; Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews acted forcibly as the scheming Mendoza; Mr. Malcolm Strachen was effective as Leon Di Valdiz; Miss Edith Cruikshanks gave a praiseworthy impersonation of Lady Hilda Fitzmaurice; Mr. Jack Denton was entertaining as Algy Fitzmaurice; and much amusement was afforded by Miss Nellie Sheffield as Dinah and Mr. Harry Colbeck as Patsy Rafferty. Others meriting praise include Miss Pattie Groves (Rachel Dobbins), Mr. Horace Hammond (the Judge), Mr. W. Wilson Blake (Sir Edward Sharp, K.C.), and Mr. Edward Belcher (Sir Peter Pettigrew, K.C.).

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—An attractive programme is sustained here this week. Victor Widdicombe and company are very amusing in the comedy episode, Her Devonshire Dad; the Brasques are very successful in the domestic playlet, My Lancashire Wife; Venie Clements submits a clever and artistic turn, in which her imitations of children are especially noteworthy; Zasma (assisted by Delonie) gives a smart gymnastic display; Ethel Dove is a charming comedienne; D. W. Watson's cornet and coach-horn solos are warmly appreciated; the Lombards are novel and skilful equilibrists; Florence Carlow is a dainty vocalist and dancer; George Campbell is diverting with songs and patter; Clare and Pastor are well received in a turn comprising song and dance and xylophone selections; and the Alhambrascope Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—There is a capital company here this week. Julius Walther (late of the Royal Carl Rose Opera Company) evokes great enthusiasm with his artistic vocalisation; the Cragga' company make a great hit in their acrobatic comedy sketch Billy; Vasco, "the mad musician," is as popular as ever; Fred Curran, who sings quaint songs and parodies, wins hearty applause; Renroff's dancing horse provides an interesting turn; Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast are distinctly successful in the poetic fantasy, The Sea Nymph; the Marbas are pleasing humorists and clever acrobatic dancers; Jack Hayworth, Scotch comedian, is well received; Alexandra and Bertie are successful in their trapeze novelty After the Ball; and the Three Croisits submit a good sporting scena, From the Time of the Crusaders.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Mr. Ernest B. Norris and company entered upon the fourth and last week of their engagement here on Monday with Brother Officers. Mr. Ernest E. Norris gave an earnest and convincing impersonation of Lieut. John Hinds, V.C.; Miss Kathleen Russell made a charming and sympathetic Baroness Roydon; Mr. Fred Castleman was well suited as the peppery Colonel Stapylton; Mr. Herbert Garthorne acquitted himself admirably as Lieut. Lancelot Pleydell; Mr. Frank Sutherland's Robert Hutton was a capital character-study; Miss Caroline Fenton achieved much success as Lady Margaret Pleydell; and able support was given by Mr. Edmund Sydney (Earl of Hunstanton), Mr. Bert Morley (Dean of Orchester), and Miss Nona Hoffe (Kate Johnson).

PALACE PIER.—King's Bioscope pictures still prove attractive here. A Journey through Fair Andalusia is a fine film, a fire scene is vividly portrayed, and prominent among the comics is one depicting the adventures of an eccentric Bill Poster.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—An excellent series of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The Mohawk's Ring is very realistic; The Fiancé, The Villagers' Quarrel, and The Chauffeur and the Cabman are entertaining, and much laughter is evoked by Women are Flirts, The Man Monkey, and The Curate's Courtship. The Barrasford Sable Operatic Minstrels are very amusing in the farce The Lady Balmy. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits warm praise for his descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to pictures.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—This is the last week but one of the very successful pantomime Aladdin. There is no sign of any decline in popularity, for on several nights this week money has had to be refused for want of room. Miss Ouida Macdermott, by her clever and dramatic acting, stately deportment, graceful movements, and charming singing, has become very popular with all parts of the house in the title-rôle; Miss Deborah Volar is pleasing as the Princess, her vocal efforts being much appreciated; Miss Topsy Sinden acts prettily as Yu-Bu-Tee, her graceful dances always being sure of rapturous applause; and Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood is sufficiently vivacious as Mary Ann (from London). The comedians all work hard. Mr. Bransby Williams is quaint and mysterious as Abanazar, his impersonations and imitations meeting with approval; Mr. W. H. Powell is always amusing as Widow Twankey, keeping his patter well up to date, and Mr. Alfred Clark makes a good comedy part of the Emperor. The scenery is universally admired, the dresses are really magnificent, and, indeed, the staging generally is all that could be wished. It is, in its entirety, a very fine show, reflecting much credit upon all concerned, and in particular upon Mr. Henry Turner, the resident stage-manager, who produced the pantomime.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—The Little Red Riding Hood pantomime closes its successful run on March 20. The house is filled at each performance, and the show is as popular as ever. All the members of the company have become established favourites; they work hard and work well, including Miss Ethel Hall (Boy Blue), Miss Marie Free (Margery Daw), Miss Violet Gillis (Jack Horner), Miss Gertie Hall (Miss Muffit), and Miss Daisy Dennis, the very pleasing exponent of the title-rôle. The comedians—Mr. K. Scott Barrie, Mr. Frank Hemming, and Messrs. Crosby and Walker—are all popular in their respective parts, and Mr. Frank Victor (the wolf) is an excellent vocalist. The pantomime is staged in an exceptionally effective style. The scenery is pretty and appropriate, and the dresses are rich and attractive.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Dolly Elsworthy and company are successfully appearing here in the dramatic sketch The Orange Girl, the playlet being well staged and capitally acted. Hersleb Brothers entertain as eccentric acrobats and speciality artists; the Melbournes are a smart comedy duo; Rich. Taylor is a clever whistling ventriloquist; Frances Letty, chorus comedian, presents a pleasing turn; Lapham and Wallem score with song, cross-talk, and dance; and the programme concludes with animated pictures. On Wednesday evening the sixteenth anniversary of the opening of the Palace was celebrated. There were extra attractions provided, and the house was packed in all parts.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—May Moore Duprez, "the jolly Dutch girl," heads the programme with a pleasing and attractive turn; Ben Tully introduces a boxing kangaroo with success, the act being most amusing; Flo Inman does a good turn as a descriptive vocalist and dancer; Charles Lilburn, comedian, is appreciated; the Caudles introduce some smart dialogue into their speciality; Madge May sings pretty songs in good style; Clarke and Hayden entertain with their musical comedy duologue An Appointment; Little Ganty, comedian, obtains applause; Brothers Ford excel as simultaneous dancers, and interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens's pantomime Jack the Giant Killer, written by Stanley Rogers, furnishes endless amusement, and a good house on Monday gave frequent evidences of enjoyment of some good singing, dancing, and comic business. Miss Madge O'Neill was a sprightly Mephisto, and rendered nicely "I want you to see my girl" and other catchy songs; Mlle. Telka as the Spirit of Love also sang well; Miss Madge Allen was a dashing Jack; and Margery Daw was daintily played by Miss Lillian Errol. Mr. Harry Farry made an excellent Dame Gabble; Mr. Johnny McElroy kept the house in roars as Simple Simon; Mr. Charles V. Sanford was a comical King Fad; Mr. Fred Fulton and Mr. Bob Anderson as the Giant's Cooks furnished capital performances; Mr. Stanley Lupino as the Cow and the Dog, Miss Evelyn Robson as Queen Caressa, Miss Lily Holland as Daisy, Mr. W. S. Stevenson as the Giant, Mr. Bert Hildersley as Sammy, and Master Charlie Carr as Suckthumb, also gave good support. Several specialities were much appreciated, especially those of Miss Madge Brownie, Mr. Will Letters, and the Duquesne Trio of acrobatic dancers. The scenery and dresses were very pretty.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Crimes of Paris, presented here by Mrs. Frank Bateman and Geo. Conquest's company, is accorded a hearty reception. Mr. Herbert J. Walton as Pierre Pelport gives a clever rendering, and Mr. Geo. Conquest creates endless amusement as Joshua Johnson; the Demon is capitally represented by Mr. Mayor Cooke; the clever detective Pepin is well maintained by Mr. Clavering Craig; and Mr. Kindrew Milsom is good as Jules; Miss Marie Barrett is a pleasing Angele; Miss Flora Hastings makes an imposing La Belle Helene, Miss Christine Bickerstaffe is an excellent Lizette, and Charlotte is well performed by Miss Carrie Jones.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—This house is well patronised this week. Miss Lily Burnand, at the top of the bill, is warmly received for her swinging songs, and the Donaldson Brothers in Sports in a Jungle introduce a number of clever animal representations and cause much merriment; Zano Brothers perform some clever and amusing tricks on triple bars, and Dot Hardy makes a hit with "When father gets his old age pension"; the Two Anartos, comedians, have some amusing patter and Blair and Allen please with smart dancing. Sam Redfern maintains the laughter with stump speeches, whilst Head Dresses in Brittany are illustrated by the Empire Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Badcoe.—A remarkable instance of juvenile ability is furnished here this week in Master George Wood, who heads the bill, and his performance, including clever impersonations of variety celebrities, is met with warm applause. Ted Waite, the spasmodic comedian, is very successful, and Morton and Elliot are expert paper manipulators; excellent juggling and acrobatics are provided by Hanvarr and Lee; the Seven Wulfrunas in Fun in a Café are very good; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor in a dancing sketch illustrate the poetry of motion, and Feldman's Beau Ideal Troupe of juveniles are heartily applauded. Special interest is attached to the picture by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, which depicts the cup tie between Burnley and Tottenham Hotspur.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company, with The Builder of Bridges, is drawing good houses here. With dramatic intensity, intermingled with delicate touches of pathos and humour, Mr. Stephen T. Ewart delineates the sterling character of Edward Thursfield; as the erring brother, Mr. Henry Ludlow gives an earnest and telling performance; Mr Brisco Owen is eminently successful in the rôle of the discarded lover; the shrewd, cynical Sir Henry Killick is faithfully portrayed by Mr. W. R. Staveley; Peter Holland has a creditable representative in Mr. Eric R. Ward; Miss Rosalind Ivan plays with natural ease and grace; and Miss Claire Paunceforte is an ideal Chaperon. The staging of the play is admirable.

BURY (LANCS.). — ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Mr. Walter Melville's combination, headed by Miss Hilda Beverley, is here in A Girl's Cross Roads. The stirring incidents are keenly followed by large audiences, and the work of Miss Beverley as Barbara Wade is clever. Others prominent in the cast are Mr. Harry Cane as John Meadows; Mr. Norman B. Cannon, Jack Livingstone; Mr. Fred Hodson, Toby Turvy; Mr. W. J. Butler, Cuthbert Lumley; Mr. Fred Withers, Luke Ramsden; and Mr. Edward Valentine as Doctor Weston; Miss Nita Langton is also to be commended for her portrayal of the part of Nellie Meadows, Miss Jeannie Thomas is a sprightly Tilly Vane, and Miss Muriel Dean is a dainty Constance Connell.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Poter.—Mr. John Leopold's company, including the original Leopolds, fill the bill this week, and their absurdity Frivolity is as entertaining as ever. The Houseboat is also an amusing sketch given by this clever combination. The Ottograph Pictures are amusing and instructive.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen. —Captain Duncan and His Airship is a comic scena presented by Walter Ellis, and is responsible for great amusement. The scenic effects, too, are decidedly above the average. Walter Foster and company's dramatic item affords pleasing variety; Flake White is a smart cartoonist; Frewin and Gorman are successful in song and dance; Seener and Fridkins' Troupe of Russian dancers are popular; and the Rangers perform some clever tricks on cycles. George Lawrence, vocal entertainer; Conan Dewson, mimic; Barney Ives, conjurer; and Ken Jones, comedian, make up the bill.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Morton Powell's company played When It Was Dark here for the first three nights. Mr. Wilfred Lyndon as the Rev. Basil Gortre was well received; the rôles of Constantine Schwabe and Sir Robert Llewelyn were depicted with sinister force by Mr. Cecil Mannering and Mr. Wm. Burgess; Mr. Wm. Burton (Rev. Mr. Byars) and Mr. Alfred Collingham (Harold Spence) both give meritorious performances; and Mr. Frank Venn was amusing as Charlie Gadfly. Gertrude Hunt was strikingly played by Miss Alice O'Dea; Miss Florrie Lyndon made a pretty Gracie Goldeye; and Miss Valerie Russell appeared as Helena Byars.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A Waltz Dream has been presented at the New Theatre this week by Messrs. George Edwardes and Charles Frohman's company, and the visit has caused no little excitement. Mr. Robert Evett captures the house by his ideal representation of Lieutenant Niki; Miss May de Sousa is the Franzi Steingraber, and a most bewitching and animated rendition is given by this talented lady; Miss Ethel Cadman as Princess Hélène enacts the part with the charm and grace always associated with her portrayals, while her singing is delightful; Miss Amy Augarde's impersonation of Friedrike is a piquant and captivating performance, her rich voice adding much to the value of her rendition; Mr. Eric Thorne occupies the premier position in funmaking, his portrayal of Joachim XIII. being irresistibly humorous; Mr. Leslie Holland adds to his former triumphs here by his talented exposition of Count Lothar; Mr. Willie Warde, jun., is droll as the waiter, Max Bauer; Miss May Morton, Miss Kathleen Hayes, and Miss Peggy Lorraine as three members of the ladies' band prove excellent in their respective parts; Mr. John Hamilton does well as Lieut. Montschi; and other parts are in the capable hands of Miss Mary Hamilton, Mr. Langford Kirby, and Mr. Albert Kavanagh. The excellent chorus and augmented orchestra are under the able direction of Mr. Hamish MacCunn, while the play is produced by Mr. J. A. E. Malone.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—At the head of a strong programme we have a return visit of the popular actor-musician Auguste Van Biene, who presented his new playlet The Master Musician, on Monday night, to a crowded house. Miss Mary Mannering proves a capable assistant in the sketch. Gertie Gitana, a young vivacious artist, sings and dances in her own special style, and is a great favourite; a delightful item is provided by La Pia, who, described as "The Enchantress," presents a series of art dances, her latest creation, "Spirit of the Waves," being distinctly novel; Chas. Fisher's Pocket Opera Company sing an excerpt from Il Trovatore, the singing, especially that of Mlle. Zella Lusano, as Leonora, being of a high order; Miss Ida Kessanley introduces a really clever animal turn; Watson's Royal Fox Terriers display proof of long and careful training; the Three Dixons (Nellie, Lily, and May) are a clever trio of banjo soloists and dancers; and Frank Lynne, described as the funny mantograph, is decidedly humorous. The original Jackley Trio, comedy artists; Allan Hanbury, comedian; and the American Bioscope complete the bill.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Lowenwirth and Cohen, Hebrew comedians, are great favourites; a very "taking" turn is that of Brull and Hemsley, the dainty damsel and dancing dude, in Fun in the Music Shop; much applause is accorded Gordon Stretton, a coloured vocalist with a capital voice; Rose Pink is an extremely pleasing little maiden in song and dance; the Three Transfields are expert lady instrumentalists; Poole and Maguire (Dora and Fred) are a clever vocal comedy duo. George Acre, comedian; Bernard and Weston, smart comedians; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are also included in the bill. On Wednesday night, Mr. Arthur Burton, the popular manager, was accorded a benefit by permission of Mr. Macnaghten, and the enthusiastic gathering that assembled showed how great a favourite the beneficiaire has become.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Little Breadwinner is the attraction this week. Chief interest centres in a miniature, but distinctly clever, actress, Little Irene, who as Meg held the sympathies of her audience and acted, sang, and danced throughout with wonderful freedom and skill. Miss Lena Young also scored as Bobby Trott, her friend. As the hero, Mr. Reginald Brown played with distinction and ability; and Mr. J. Monkhouse contributed a quiet and refined sketch of the old Quaker. The heavy part was in the safe hands of Mr. Alfred Maurice, who made the very most of his opportunities; Miss Josephine Richards as the heroine filled the part most satisfactorily; and good work was done by Miss Clara Hunt, Miss Millie Ford, and Mr. Sidney Lynn.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Herbert Clifton and Arthur Lennard, both on return visits, top and bottom the bill this week, the former with a burlesque on The Merry Widow and other new business is as popular as ever, while the latter has some excellent new songs, though his "Old Guard" is still the favourite, his dramatic rendering of this never failing to bring down the house. Edgar Budden does some wonderful things on roller skates, and Major Arnold's conjuring is clever and entertaining. Miss Lizzie Fletcher, an excellent comedienne, sings her way into favour; and Millie Denham, a clever vocalist, is no less successful. One of the most popular turns is contributed by Archie Roger, whose act is described as "bumps, thumps, and jumps," and for eccentric and humorous knockabout business and clever acrobatic work he is very hard to beat. Some fine pictures by the Pepiscope complete.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Miss Harriet Greet's capable company occupied the boards here on Tuesday with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Leonard Yorke excellently impersonated the rôle of Marcus; Miss Hazle Dent was an unqualified success as Mercia; Miss Florence Maber capitally impersonated Berenice; Miss Minnie Walsh portrayed Dacia with power and feeling; Miss Effie Dane realistically played the part of Stephanus; Miss Lilian Ward was very good as Poppœa; the parts of Favius, Titus, and Melos were admirably taken by Mr. C. Edwardes, Mr. W. Parkyn, and Mr. Stephen Weyburn respectively; Nero found a capable exponent in Mr. E. Clowes; Tigellinus and Licinius were impersonated with great effect and power by Mr. G. Osmond Tearle and Mr. Rupert Carlton; Glabrio was a thorough success in the hands of Mr. Donald McAdam; Servillius and Strabro were capitally represented by Messrs. Frank J. Fox and Theodore Leslie; and the same may be said of Mr. Francis Leslie as Viturius. The remaining parts were in good hands. The play was well staged, and the dresses are excellent. Mr. G. W. Bowes acts as general-manager.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is paying another visit with The Midnight Wedding. Miss Yvonne Orchardson makes the part of Princess Astrea conspicuous by the excellence of her acting; Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes in the trying part of Paul Valmar makes a fine study of the character, and his efforts are successful; the Crown Prince is portrayed with judgment and earnestness by Mr. John Nesbitt; Mr. Forbes Harrison gives a well-sustained delineation of Lieut. Eugene; Mr. Conway Booth faithfully depicts the utter and unprincipled villainy of Capt. Rudolph; the three comrades in war but rivals in love, Messrs. James E. Page, Vernon H. Payne, and Algie Spalding, are full of humour and create roars of laughter; and Miss Gladys Faunce plays up to them vivaciously as Kathie; Miss Nesta Sandford does convincing work as Satanella, and Mr. Francis Hawley acts consistently as Father Gerard.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—A good programme is invariably presented here. The place of honour in the bill is allotted to the Three Hodginis, who are skilful and accomplished aerial acrobats of exceptional quality; Texas Hattie gets a big reception for a smart and clever act on the tight rope; Stidder and Dunbar in musical comedy is quite a novel turn; Chas. Rowen is a quaint singer; the Tiger Lily has a smart style as an acrobatic dancer; Nellie Walton as a singing mill girl makes a hit; Stuart and Evans sing amusing songs; Kail Stern sings coon ditties well; and amusing and instructive pictures are shown by the Loyal Dominion Company.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is here this week in Tom Jones. In the leading rôle of Sophia Miss Florence Smithson's undoubted vocal ability is recognised most enthusiastically; Miss Joan Ritz makes an excellent impression as Honour; as Lady Bellaston Miss Alice Oppitz adds to her many admirers; Mr. Harry Welchman makes a talented Tom Jones, his acting and singing being thoroughly appreciated; Mr. Ambrose Manning appears in his original part of Squire Western; Mr. J. T. Macmillan proves a very able Gregory; Mr. Deane Percival makes the most of his opportunities as Blifil; Mr. George Elton gives a quaint and clever impersonation of Benjamin Partridge; and all the other parts are in excellent hands. The staging of the opera is thorough.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have F. S. Howard in Funniosities of London Life, which is well liked. Esta Stella makes quite a hit as the Military Maid; Oliver Conroy's songs and patter just suit Barnard's patrons; the Sisters Geretti are dexterous trapeze artists; the Georgia Trio are very popular both in harmony and comedy; Lacey's Erascope contributes its usual up-to-date pictures; the Sarony Sisters are a couple of nimble dancers; Gicardo, the boy juggler, is paying a welcome return visit; and others appearing are Rich and Radford, comedians, and Herbert Dale, light comedian.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. G. Humphries.—The Kurios are scoring heavily with their concoction of comicalities; George Ridgwell, vocalist, cornet soloist, and conductor, is a prime favourite; The Volcanic Chimney and Mother-in-law's Picnic are films which create great merriment; Ada Martine pleases with song and dance; Olga and Elgar are correctly billed as "a musical treat"; Ghita Corri is renewing her acquaintance with Gaiety audiences; and the Morning Leader Pictures, Wilman, instrumentalist, and Mitchell and Mace, comedians, complete the bill.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The variety season still continues to draw good houses twice a night. W. Fullbrook and company top the bill with a screaming sketch, entitled Astronomy; their business is smart and their acting capable. Rose Gower has a good voice and charming personality; and as versatile speciality comedians Fame and Fortune deserve praise for their acting, tumbling, and patter. Prince Schaboo is a young Hindoo basso of promise; and Nellie Nora, a dainty and clever instrumentalist. The Sisters Brenton sing and dance smartly; and the Edmonds give a most artistic and clever exhibition of living statuary. Excellent pictures by the Premier Imperial Biograph complete the bill.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Fred Granville's Productions, Ltd., are presenting this week The Better Land. The play is capitally mounted, and is under the capable management of Mr. Stanley Radcliffe. Mr. Leonard Aardale undertakes Philip Radcliffe, and gives a particularly fine exposition; Hubert Radcliffe is rendered by Mr. Stanley Radcliffe in competent style; Mr. Herbert Fuller wins full approbation with a humorous portrayal of Tom Tadpole; and Mr. L. Marshall is good as George Grant. An admirable and charming rendering of Doris, Philip's wife, is given by Miss Nina Blake Adams; Miss Agnes Collier embodies Mercedes with conspicuous effect; Miss Bella Moody well sustains the character of Polly Perkins; and Miss Violet Vevian is decidedly good as Aunt Jemima. Tessa and Harry are carefully undertaken by Miss Emilie Entwistle and Miss G. Moody respectively.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—This house was closed until Thursday, upon which evening When Knights Were Bold was presented.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Co.; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Dinah Morris and company are at the top of this week's bill with A Village in Dahomey. Amandus, cosmopolitan facial mimic, is a clever and painstaking artist; Fred Ellis shines as a raconteur; Mlle. Rosina gives a pleasing and refined instrumental entertainment; Kenneth and Kane receive much applause as a comedy duo; Amy Lloyd scores as a comedienne, and pictures of an up-to-date nature complete.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The Gay Goddess is being presented here by Mr. Julian Graham's company. Mr. Arthur Staples in the rôle of Timothy Twinkle gives a fascinating impersonation; Miss Leah Howard is a charming Priscilla; as Samuel Strong Mr. Fred Hammond is very good; Mr. Richard Teasdale capably fills the part of Sherlock Black; Mr. George Watson is an amusing Anthony; Miss Louie Gray is reponsible for fine dancing; Miss Kate Graham-Beck is an attractive Juno; and Mr. John Yates and Mr. Sam Baylis keep the house in roars.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell. —The pantomime Robinson Crusoe is in its second week here.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—There is an interesting and varied programme presented here. Campbell and Barber are clever comedy trick cyclists; the Four Netty Janowskys, Continental gymnasts, present a novel and high-class turn; Celest gives an extremely smart performance on a slack wire; the Four Sydney Girls sing and dance in acceptable fashion; Frank Eldred's company in a military absurdity, I'm the General, causes endless mirth; Miss Blanche Leslie gives much pleasure in her illustrated songs; Jack Hylton, eccentric comedian, is highly successful; and the Palascope is a popular feature of the entertainment.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Another successful week is assured by a visit of Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons. Mr. Frank Lincoln makes a dashing young private in the Gordons, Angus Graeme; Miss Dorothy Giles as the millionaire's daughter, Peggy Quainton, gives an impressive impersonation, and is responsible for some charming musical numbers. The host of characters are all in well-chosen hands, and a word of praise is due to the excellent scenery.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wright.—Tom Edwards, the "huntsman ventriloquist," is top turn this week, and causes a lot of fun. Tom Edwards's company give an amusing sketch, entitled Harmony Hall; the Villion troupe of trick and comedy cyclists do amazing feats; Sandford and Lyons, simultaneous dancers, are a talented pair; Mike Gray is a clever juggler, and with his dog "Dooley" causes plenty of fun; Kurkamp, the singing conductor, has a fine voice, and was vociferously encored; and other artists are Stella Dell.

a comedienne and J. P. Caroll, the "soldier tambournist." A series of amusing pictures is shown on the Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The Karno troupe appear in Mumming Birds, and a knockabout pantomime absurdity, entitled Hilarity, is given by Fred Karno's troupe; the Forsyths are a clever turn, one of the ladies making a success as a "living doll" Dalvere and Gordon are entertaining comedians; George Bendon is cordially received as the "white coon"; Sybil Montague gives some well-rendered solos; Marie Neilson is a capable comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope pictures conclude a successful programme.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company are playing The Power of a Wicked Woman here. Mr. M. Beaudyn sustains the part of Philip in a masterly manner; Miss Irene Munro as the Woman has much to do, and does it well; Miss Winifred Rutland as Denise shows ability; Mr. Arthur T. Cresswell as Guy Oliphant is the life and soul of the play; Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin as Bransby is a capital comedian; Mr. Rupert Talbot's Lord Dumley is a careful study; Mr. Chas. D. Pitt as Horace Winter pleases all; Miss Phyllis Ray as Marie deserves special mention; and Miss C. Crawford as Nelly Montague has a part which suits her admirably.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. George Dance's company is winning approval here in The Girls of Gottenberg. Mr. Bertie Wright is very droll as Max Moddelkoph; Mr. Tom Shelford is excellent as Otto; Mr. Hugh Henson scores as Albrech; Mr. Charles Berkeley does well as Britti Bottl; Mr. Frank Delane has a commanding appearance as the General; and useful services are rendered by Messrs. David Miller, Morgan Rickards, Edwin Stanley, and Tom Squire. Miss May Marshall is a vivacious Clementine; Miss Masie North is charming as Elsa; Miss Simeta Marsden is full of life and spirit as Mitzi; and minor rôles are in capable hands. The dresses, scenery, and chorus are admirable.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Anthony.—The America Bioscope Company are giving a capital series of animated pictures and illustrated songs here. Mr. Ernest Tilbury, tenor; Miss Beatrice Vere, contralto; and Mr. Bert Williams, reciter, are well received.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The Three Royal Dreadnoughts (Miss Lilian, Mme. Vera, and Charles) give a smart shooting act; Haines, Borthwick, and company cause much amusement in sketch Half a Dollar; Jack Marks is a clever youngster; George Gilbey, comedian, is quaint; Freda Murray is a taking comedienne; Herbert Shelley, protean artist, is very good; the Boisset Troupe in The Bricklayers keep the house in roars of laughter; Ida Clare is a fascinating comedienne; and the appearance of Violet Charlesworth creates excitement, her adventures being shown on the Bioscope.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' company is here in The Gay Gordons. Miss Marie West, a delightful Peggy Quainton, is most capably supported by Mr Charles Childerstone as Angus Graeme; Mr. Edward Carlton, a comedian in every sense of the word, as Nervy Nat; Aubrey Stowell as Edmund Siddons; and Louie Emery as Charlotte Siddons.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—There is another capital programme this week, and the star turn is Tom Rose, with his troupe of wrestlers; Goggin and Davis contribute a clever acrobatic turn; Webb and Branston are talented operatic duettists; a pleasing turn is Datas, the marvellous man of memory; and Rosie Archer, mimic at the piano, Bros. Esdaile, comedians and dancers, Reszki and Raszki, tumblers, and pleasing Pepiscope pictures complete a strong bill.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Sunday is drawing crowded houses. Miss Janet Lind, as Sunday, plays with a charm which commands great admiration. She is ably supported by "the Boys," as played by Mr. Richard F. Symons (Towzer), Mr. A. Cottam Holmes (Davy), Mr. Geo. Marriott, jun. (Jacky), and Mr. James Hussey (Lively), the latter especially presenting a capital character study. Mr. William Giffard is an excellent Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. Richard Trieve makes the most of Tom Oxley; and as Arthur Brinthorpe Mr. Boyce Wellams is successful. Miss H. Graham Edwins as Mrs. Naresby and Miss Jessie Stone as the Nun both do well.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson.—Besides some capital living and talking pictures, Lydden, Hayward and Will Elsie present their farcical tragedy A Quiet Rehearsal, which receives applause; and Sam Shipley, comedian, gains favour.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime company is putting in a week here with Cinderella. Miss Maude Mortimer makes a dashing Prince Florizel; in the name-part Miss Connie Leon plays, sings, and dances with grace and charm. A feature of the performance is the Buttons of Mr. W. T. Thompson, and he is to be congratulated upon a clean and clever impersonation. Another excellent comedian is Mr. Stanley Vandyke, who plays Baron Harduppe with general acceptation. Messrs. Victor and Lewis are amusing as Ferdy Fagin and All-of-a-Twist, and the other male parts are in good hands. The two ugly sisters, Ripples and Dimples, are well played by Miss Edith Barwell and Miss Annie Cohen respectively; Miss Minnie Miriam appears to distinct advantage as Dandini, and the Sisters Edwards, wonderfully skilful dancers, also deserve special mention as Colin and Rose. Mr. Geo. Belrose as Father Time, and Mlle. de Velin as Fairy Progress are experienced operatic vocalists, and their duets are faultless. The specialities comprise Mr. J. Collins's Six Monte Carlo Girls, whose exposition of the saltatory art is exceedingly smart and attractive; and the Harvard Sextette of male voices, whose contribution, a pierrot turn, is not the least pleasing feature of an altogether highly-creditable pantomime. In conclusion, a word of praise should be said for the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Basil Horsfall, and also of Mr. Fred Mulvey, under whose personal supervision the pantomime is produced, he also acting as stage-manager.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The premier turn on the programme here this week is Tarro Miyake, described as the champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world; Herbert Rule is a favourite comedian; the Three Bordellas submit a highly-creditable gymnastic act; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard cause much amusement in their comedy sketch Coming Home; Marie Stroud is a pleasing vocalist; Cling and Clancy have some smart patter and clever dancing; and Clarke and Glenney create laughter in their absurdity. The Bioscope is also an attraction.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Face at the Window is making a welcome return visit. As Paul Gouffet Mr. Scott Leighton gives an admirable character study of a great criminal investigator; Mr. E. Hoggan Armadale as the murderer and hunted Lucio Delgardo is no less successful. The other characters are ably portrayed, and the play exceedingly well staged.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Chris Richards heads the bill, and is the cause of roars of laughter; Luis Hardt, the "mighty atom," continues to arrest popular attention by his herculean feats; Graham's Juveniles act and sing in most approved fashion; Julian Mack supplies some highly-amusing patter; and the Sisters Desmond are heard to great advantage in two very acceptable duets. Rose and Calvert present an amusing dramatic parody; Alec B. Thorne, Scotch comedian, is in fine fettle; and Rhoda Paul complete an entertaining programme.

DONCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A delightfully pleasant evening was spent on Monday, when Messrs. E. C. Jazon and Richard Nightingale presented the pantomime, Dick Whittington. The title-rôle was charmingly presented by Miss Maude Beaumont, the Cat being represented with ideal felineness by Mr. Willie Vauda. Miss Vera Snowdon gave an interesting representation of Alice; and Mr. William Miller did well as Fitzwarren. Mr. Fred Ward as the Idle Apprentice won great appreciation; Miss Ada Pearce as Susan gave valuable help; Miss Olive Audrey was chic as Fairy Bountiful. A number of specialities were presented, including the Vaudas, on globe and slack wire; the Willoughbys, acrobatic eccentrics; Pearce and Ward, comedy act; Salida and Vone, Creole performers; and Perry and Snowdon, duettists.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident Manager, Mr. E. W. Holford.—On Monday a most enthusiastic welcome awaited Miss Ida Barr, who looked more beautiful and was more charmingly gowned than ever. Her songs included "Carlo Talliarno," "What is to be will be," and "A beautiful balloon," the choruses of which were heartily taken up by the house. One of the cleverest dancers ever seen in Dover is the male partner of Ellis and Ellis, a French acrobatic waltz, a Russian dance, and an elaborate stepped hornpipe being given with equal skill, the lady introducing each dance by a tuneful song. Will Walton is a comedian with original methods, his Suffragette's stump speech being highly amusing; a humorous skit on a motor honeymoon is contributed by Hemsley and Ambrose; the Connolly Bros. are good in their patter and dancing; Julia Gilbert sings "My nightingale" and "For old times sake" fairly well; and Byon adds to the fun of the evening by his comedy clay-modelling. A word of praise should be given to the highly-interesting film illustrative of H.M. the King's Visit to Berlin, showing the arrival and the inspection of the guard.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—After a most successful run the pantomime of Jack and Jill entered on its final week here on Monday, when the large audience present were loud in their expressions of popular approval, and repeatedly encored all the principal artists appearing. During the week two benefits are announced to take place, Mr. George Lashwood's on Thursday and Miss Dorothy Ward's on Friday evenings, when bumper houses are expected.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing - Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks's company is appearing here to good houses in the farcical comedy The New Housemaid. Mr. Howard L. Tracy as the Hon. Bertie Rashleigh gives an exceedingly clever and humorous representation, and Miss Babs Stuart acts her part of Dulcie in a most effective and vivacious manner; Miss Lucy Evelyn submits a very good portrayal of Aunt Caroline; and Mr. Brember Wills presents a capital study of Peter Pinkerton. Mr. Herbert Colley displays considerable ability as the butler Roseberry; and Mr. P. Ramsey Forman acts splendidly as Detective Brown. As the Rev. Stephen Stingles Mr. Archie Selwyn is most amusing; Miss Ruby Wyndham as Lettice, Miss Josephine Middleton as Nellie Haddock, Miss Renée de L'Estrade as Lucy Merton, and Mr. Reginald Hargreaves as Frank Pinkerton enact their respective parts most capably. A comedy, Brokers Ahead, precedes the play, and is well received.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The big attraction here this week is the La Scala Opera Company in a selection from Cavalleria Rusticana, which is received with enthusiasm. A welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. Walter Munroe, whose songs and dances win loud applause. Tee and Tee, in their musical eccentric act, are both clever and amusing; and Sybil St. Elmo contributes some taking ballads in capital style. The St. Clair Brothers, knockabout cyclists, introducing a football match on bicycles, create much excitement; and Miss Josie Mooney, comedienne, meets with a good reception. The musical selections of the Sisters Aindow are highly appreciated; and Neville Delmar is a comedian of more than ordinary merit. Little Ruby, the talented child cornetist and vocalist, who remains from last week, is still scoring, and the Empire pictures are, as usual, entertaining.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Eight College Girls, in a delightful singing and dancing act, head the bill here, and receive a flattering reception. The Mars Trio, speciality gymnasts, give a clever performance; and Donal MacDougal, Scottish comedian, submits a humorous turn. Lestre and Moure are highly amusing in their comedy and dancing act; and Marie Francis, comedienne, sings in good style. Maxwell Brothers, acrobats, and their well trained dogs contribute a capital item; and the vocal numbers of Wills and Mackenzie are well received. Cedar and Elgar in Ye Dayes of Olde find great favour; and Joe Dale, an excellent light comedian, and the Bioscope complete the programme.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—A capital company is again appearing here, including the Blydons, duettists and dancers; Edna Ray, ballad and coon vocalist; Dan Leslie, vocalist and dancer; Annie Bamford, comedienne; Torie and Torie, sketch artists; Harry Delmar, musical comedian, and the cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. E. H. Knight presents The Lighthouse Robbery this week. Mr. Fred Garratt as Tom Manly proves himself manly in name and character; Mr. W. Annesley combines stage management with the elderly part of Squire Hammond; Mr. Percy Berresford ably fills the part of James Hammond; David Morris is soundly played by Mr. Charles Liddon; Mr. Jesse Boxer is much in evidence as Sam Kidder; Mrs. Lelia Drummond displays earnestness as Mrs. Manly; Miss Lillian Bales is thoroughly jolly as Ruth Manly; and Miss Hilda Baynton plays the pleasing part of Rose Prescott in a pretty manner.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. W. Waters.—Yettmah, Japanese wonder worker, heads the bill this week with a mystifying turn; Harley and Melton are real laughter-makers; Hughes and Elliott sing well and dance better; the Yokels give an amusing musical turn on all kinds of "instruments"; Georgie Mansell is a good male impersonator; Marie Reeve is a comedienne of no mean merit; Edna Latone, at the foot of the bill, meets with a cordial reception.

DUNDALK.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, Dundalk Urban Council.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company in Uncle Tom's Cabin was accorded a hearty reception from a full house. As Uncle Tom Mr. J. Carr portrays the part powerfully; Miss Doris Brereton as Little Eva sustains her rôle in a manner that arouses the general sympathy of the audience; Mr. Charles Harrington as Phineas Fletcher gives a capital study of the Quaker; the character of Legree is exceptionally well played by Mr. G. Lubinoff; Topsy in the hands of Miss Annie Watson gives evidence of a careful study; as Marks Mr. W. Langford is highly amusing; while Miss Hero Hathway as Eliza Harris is also very good. Mr. John Gibson, Mr. G. R. Thorne, and Mr. Alfred Lafolle in their respective rôles maintain the high standard of the company.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. William Mollison is appearing here with his own company. Julius Cæsar, uncommonly well staged, was presented on Monday, Mr. Mollison's Mark Antony being a really splendid conception, the great speech in the Forum scene being worth going a long way to hear itself. Mr. William Calvert gave a powerful and telling performance as Brutus; Mr. Harold Neville as Cassius played with great force and passion; Mr. Henry Deas was an excellent Julius Cæsar; Mr. Eric Dane made a handsome and forceful Octavius; and amongst others who gave able support were Messrs. Whitford Kane, W. A. Mackersy, Dermot Fitzgibbon, H. Owen Taylor, and William Kelk. Miss Evelyn McNay played Portia with grace, charm, and power of dramatic expression; Miss Elsa Anderson was a handsome and effective Calphurnia; and Miss Elsie Vron Neville acted cleverly and gracefully as Lucius. Not the least appreciative amongst the audience was a large contingent of school children, who took a very intelligent interest in the play. The Merchant of Venice, Othello, and The Bonnie Brier Bush have also been presented during the week.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Doody and Wright, the Australian comiques, are in great demand; the twin Sisters Anderson submit a decided novelty in their dancing on the rope; Carl Lynn, the clever animal mimic, is greeted with rounds of applause; Harry J. Crane and company are seen to advantage in the pathetic musical episode entitled Truth in Absence; Kennedy's Kiddies are very entertaining in a fine vocal terpsichorean and athletic scena; Shrillo, operatic whistler, is accorded a warm welcome; Henry Hilton is a clever magician; Edith Chantler, a fine juvenile soprano, has a flattering reception; Marie Rose scores in several bright and catchy ditties; Edie Coolville sings and dances daintily; Johnny Beveridge, a blind local comedian, in song and story goes well, and the Palascope completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Robeyisms from the inimitable George form the outstanding feature of this week's bill, and Mr. Robey has reason to feel proud of the reception given him. The Ten Loonies present their hysterically hilarious sketch Dotty with huge success; Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munro, in a quick-change novelty, introducing no less than seven characters, forms an attractive item; the Tossing Austens amuse and amaze the audience with their remarkably clever juggling; Parker and Parr, in a well-worked vocal and comedy act, Taffy and the Toff, are vastly amusing; and Gladys and Alber in a delightful potpourri act prove themselves artists of ability.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Ross.—Pictures form the greater portion of the programme here this week. In addition Kennedy, the musical clown and eccentric conductor, and a Cake-walk competition prove attractive.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—The programme at Mr. Fred Newman's interesting place of amusement includes a number of capital films. Variety is supplied by Cavali, a clever ventriloquist possessed of a good fund of humour, and a very laughable contest at "Riding the Horse."

ROLLER SKATING RINK. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins; Manager, Mr. Bert Crump.—Rinking is quite the fashion here at present, and at all sessions large crowds may be seen disporting themselves on the "ice." This magnificent rink is proving decidedly popular with professionals visiting Dundee.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company (North) on its annual visit here received a good send-off on Monday night, when it commenced a week's engagement with The Taming of the Shrew. Mr. James Berry gave a good rendering of Baptista; Mr. Charles Sparrow was well placed as Vincentio; Mr. Robert Atkins made a very good lover as Lucentio; and Mr. Henry Herbert proved himself a most effective Petruchio. The comedy characters of Gremio and Hortensio obtained full justice from Mr. Victor Wiltshire and Mr. Cyril Sworder; Miss G. Vanderzee made an ideal Katherine; Miss Violet Farebrother did ample justice to the part of Bianca; and all the other characters were well placed. The répertoire for the week includes Othello, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Richard the Third, School for Scandal, Hamlet, and Julius Cæsar.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Charles Frohman's excellent company is appearing here in The Hypocrites. Mr. Lawrence Leyton gives an earnest and restrained performance as the Rev. Mr. Linnell; Mr. Charles Harley is conspicuously successful as Mr. Viveash; Mr. F. Morland gives point and character to Mr. Wilmore; Mr. S. Dennys handles the difficult part of Lennard Wilmore with discretion and success; Mr. F. C. Thurstans is a richly humorous Rev. Daubeny; Mr. Charles Tyrel plays with refinement and distinction as Sir John Plugenet; Mr. Fred Lake is a satisfactory Dr. Blaney; and Mr. Douglas Jeffries an excellent Butler. Miss Grace Murielle displays power in the part of Mrs. Wilmore, her efforts in the last act being particularly noteworthy; Miss Muriel Mason is a girlish and attractive Helen Plugenet; Miss Millie L. Emden an amusing Mrs. Blaney; Miss Madge Severne a very capable Mrs. Linnell; and Miss Violet Harley does all her work well as Rachel Neve; and Miss Eva Turnour lends efficient aid as Patty.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. G. Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Mr. Tom Jones heads the bill here this week, and as a Welsh comedian is highly amusing and well received; Rezene and Rezene have a funny comedy act, Shall I? Yes, and this provides much laughter; Barlee and Smith have one of the smartest and brightest turns in the bill; Miss Ena Lorrimer is a Scotch comedienne and dancer of much cleverness; Miss Ray St. Clair sings well and interestingly; Agar and Agar are expert tumblers; Mr. Phil Peters succeeds well as a coon ragtime boy; and new pictures complete the bill.

THE PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and company are appearing here in Angela. Miss Glossop-Harris, who does much capable and talented work, is an attractive and graceful Angela; Miss Gertrude Gilbert a bright and animated Mary Pembridge; Miss Gertrude Tate, possessed of a sweet, sympathetic voice, makes much of her small part of Clare; Miss May Goulden gets many laughs as Elizabeth; and several other ladies cleverly assist in the minor characters. A restrained, but delightfully clever and effective performance is given by Mr. Frank Cellier as Richard Evesham; Mr. Arthur D. Layland contributes quite a little masterpiece of work as Mr. Bobwych; Mr. Eugene Wellesley is a smart Alphonse; Mr. Francis Roberts a capital James Lesson; Mr. Arthur Keane works capably and well as Mr. Keswick and Smith-Newcombe; and smaller parts are well filled. The balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet is very cleverly given by Miss Gertrude Tate and Mr. Eugene Wellesley.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr Sidney Cooper's pantomime Cinderella is the attraction here this week, and crowded houses are the result. Miss Madge Daly capably undertakes the part of Prince Charming; Miss Jessica Brooke is a dainty Cinderella; Miss May Maddison makes a fair Dandini; Miss Ida Scott depicts the Fairy Godmother charmingly; Newham and Latimar as Cordella and Camellia, the Ugly Sisters, create much fun; Messrs. Eric Farr, Wm. Doust, and Erne Chester in the respective characters of Baron Doonaught, Grabem, and Ceesam are a tower of strength. The pantomime is well staged and dressed, and the chorus is ably trained. Diamond and Beatrice, harpist and soprano saxophonist, are repeatedly encored.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Edward Compton and company began an engagement of six nights here on Monday last. The occasion was a memorable one, for it marked the 1,500th performance by the popular actor of the title-rôle in Muskerry's play Davy Garrick. The talented comedian was in rare form, and acted with a vigour, buoyancy, and force which he has never excelled on any previous representation of the part in this city. The audience repeatedly recalled the actor with enthusiasm. He was compelled to bow his acknowledgments after his dramatic exit in the second act, and, at the close of the act, the applause was so hearty and spontaneous that Mr. Compton gave expression to his thanks in a graceful speech. Mr. Henry Crocker acted with excellent point and effect as Alderman Gresham; and Mr. Henry Worrall was good as Tallyhaut, although the impersonation would have been improved by a little more swagger. Miss Kathleen Leigh was a sweet, unaffected Violet, and acted with power in the second act; while the dinner guests in the hands of Mr. Philip Gordon, Mr. W. Johnston, Mr. Ivan Leslie, Miss Marie Hassell, and Miss Constance Merton were acted with the requisite dash of farcical humour. The play was preceded by a pleasant comedietta, Proteus in Petticoats, in which Miss Viola Compton played with charm as a versatile French actress, Mlle. Diane de Dio. As a souvenir of the occasion the ladies of the audience who occupied dress circle and stall seats were presented with copies of the Compton Birthday Book. Mr. Compton appeared with his customary success as Bob Acres in The Rivals on Tuesday; and the following was the programme for the remainder of the week:—Wednesday, A Reformed Rake; Thursday, She Stoops to Conquer; Friday, The Scarlet Coat; Saturday (matinée), The School for Scandal, and in the evening Davy Garrick will be repeated.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The Bondman is presented here this week for the first time in Edinburgh by Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company. In the rôle of Michael Sunlocks Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is seen to great advantage; while Mr. R. Scrope Quentin gives a powerful and convincing representation of Jason. Mr. W. H. Rotheram, who undertakes the parts of Father Ferrati and Grandfather, is very successful, the study of the reformed priest being especially good. Miss Georgina Wynter makes a charming and sufficiently strong Greeba; two capital character studies are those of Mr. Oswald Lingard and Miss Madge Lanerton as Adam Fairbrother and Mrs. Fairbrother respectively. All the other parts in a large cast are capably done.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The programme here leans to the side of the playlet. Mr. Dennis Drew and company give a dramatic representation of the military scena Back to the Barracks, and Mr. Ernest Cadles's uproarious farce Casey's Court finds many admirers. A novel sketch, entitled Rain Dears, is presented by Mr. Joseph Hart. In this entertaining piece special rain and electrical effects are introduced, and are loudly applauded. Mr. R. Bertram produces an amusing farce, The Chaperon, which produces an abundance of hearty laughter; Miss Lionette Roberty and her company of whirlwind dancers supply an exhilarating turn; Mr. W. F. Frame is as droll as usual in his grotesque studies of Scottish character; Mr. Bert Williams provides an excellent ventriloquial turn; Mr. Walter Aubrey is a capital buck dancer; and Master Jimmy Curwell, until lately a newsboy, displayed real ability in his rendering of several difficult selections on the pianoforte.

KING'S THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The echoes of one popular opera company have hardly died away when Edinburgh is favoured with a visit from another admirable combination, the Carl Rosa Opera Company, which opened here on Monday. The engagement, which is to last for twelve nights, commenced with a really admirable performance of Lohengrin, in the presence of a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Miss Beatrice Miranda, a singer with a voice of great sweetness, played Elsa with simplicity and charm, and rendered the numbers of her part with much expression. She was heard to special advantage in Elsa's dream in Act I., and the beautiful air in the following act. Mr. Walter Wheatley, a tenor vocalist who knows how to use his voice with effect, was an admirable Knight of the Holy Grail; and Mr. Arthur Winckworth as Henry sang with power the solo leading into the finale for sextette and chorus in the opening act. Mr. Dillon Shallard, who played Telramund, is not only an actor of versatility, but a singer of merit. His Telramund was a finished piece of acting, and his singing contributed greatly to the success of the production. The duet with Ortrud—notably well acted by Mme. Marie Alexander—was rendered with dramatic expression, and was loudly applauded. Mr. Frederick Clendon made the most of the small part of the Herald. Mr. Eugene Goosens conducted with his customary energy and ability, and the work of the chorus was exceedingly good, the rendering of the fine chorus "Hail Elsa," in Act III., being particularly effective. Don Giovanni was given on Tuesday, Carmen on Wednesday, The Merry Wives of Windsor on Thursday, and Rigoletto on Friday.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—This week Mr. Ernest Dare presents the farcical comedy In the Soup.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—A great attraction here is Miss Ivy Close, the winner of the Daily Mirror International Beauty Competition, and her rendering of the three songs caught on immensely. An exceptionally good turn was that of the Eight Welsh Miners, who, with special scenery and effects, were most effective. The Sisters McCarte and F. V. St. Clair are also very attractive features. St. Clair's songs delight the house. Miss Arabella Allen is exceedingly clever in her impersonations. Biff Hall, the American Hebrew dialect comedian, and Captain Kettle are appreciated.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—After a long spell of delightful musical comedy, the theatre this week has a return to melodrama, Fred Melville's Married to the Wrong Man entirely filling the bill. It is built on the sensational lines associated with the stories of this prolific author, and it loses nothing in the telling. The part of Jock Gladwin is excellently taken by Mr. Oswald Cray, whose acting in the Trial Scene (as counsel for the defence) pronounces him an elocutionist of marked ability. The tragic side of the picture is realistically presented by Miss Gertrude Boswell, who takes the part of Ruth, the dumb girl. This is a very strong character, and is acted with both power and pathos by Miss Boswell. Mr. H. Lane Bayliff as Captain Deering puts plenty of "devil" into his part, which he fills very effectively; Mr. Arthur T. Lennard as Sergeant Manners also does well; as Dr. Brandon and Dr. Bird, Mr. Henry Eustace and Mr. Paige Lawrence are capable exponents; and Nurse Manners finds a fitting representative is Miss Rosalie Notrelle; while the Rose O'Connor of Miss Dorothy Haigh is prettily taken. The low comedy element is well supplied by Miss May Davis and Mr. Syd Claydon. The abandoned innkeeper is carefully represented by Mr. Charles Vivian.

TOWN HALL.—Town Council.—Hamilton's Excursions are on at the Town Hall this week. This form of entertainment always proves popular, and the audiences are large. In addition to the now well-established Diorama, there is an engaging programme of variety and cinematograph. A very good turn is that by Mr. J. A. Wilson, the well-known entertainer, assisted by his wonderful dog, "Private Towser"; Miss Maude May Munray electrifies the audience with her charming dancing; then there are Ostar and Vestor, in their speciality act; and Jack Henri, Scottish comedian. Mr. Claude Howell, as usual, proves a delightful guide and elocutionist.

FOLKESTONE. — PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Roland.—Mr. Wm. Greet's chief company in The Sign of the Cross is proving a great attraction, and full houses are testifying to the worth of the performance. The Marcus Superbus of Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee is, if anything, better than ever, praticularly in Act III., when he rouses the audience to enthusiasm; as Nero Mr. C. Yorke gives a good character sketch, his performance being consistent throughout; Tigellinus and Licinius are played in good style by Mr. Charles Aldred and Mr. J. Weatherell; Mr. Frank Wood as the wine-loving Glabrio proves himself a comedian of the first order, playing his drunken scenes with humour, but without extravagance; Mr. Walter Fleet and Mr. G. Blunden play the leading Christians with great sincerity. Of the ladies, Miss Lily Ward as Berenice gives a talented rendering; as Dacia Miss Cissy Carlton plays brightly and with much humour; and Miss Beryl Hamilton as Poppæa is quite good; Mercia is charmingly rendered by Miss Constance Little; and Stephanus is cleverly portrayed by Miss Alys Hall, who has played the part in place of Miss Edith Drayson, indisposed; the minor parts being all in safe hands.

TOWN HALL.—Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama, with a capable company of entertainers, is providing a big attraction, and crowded houses nightly assemble.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—This week an excellent variety company includes the Denaro Brothers in a clever exposition of juvenile acrobatics; the Days, smart thought-readers and card-manipulators; Sid Stanto in a novel musical turn; Wills and Warlock Chart, slab dancers; Kitty Cameron, comedienne and dancer; Joe Atkin, quaint vocal comedian; Little Muriel; and pictures.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Harry Tate's company in Fishing has caused amusement here; Josh Dixon, comedian, has raised many laughs; Spry and Austin, peculiar duettists, are entertaining all; Matthews and Brown, coloured comedians and dancers, show much cleverness; Chas. Woodward, light comedian, finds much favour; and the Sisters Herbert are dainty duettists and dancers. Fred Vallance, ventriloquist; May B. Brilliant, comedienne; and the Kingscope are other attractive items.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. Wm. MacLaren is presenting Claudian here this week with conspicuous success. Mr. MacLaren plays Claudian with great power, and is well supported by Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida. Other parts are in the safe keeping of experienced actors, and the production is one of great merit.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. M. Russell Rosse's company devote the second week of their engagement here to an interesting revival of Jim the Penman. The character of the forger, James Ralston, is depicted most effectively by Mr. Edward Sorley; and as the disillusioned wife, Mrs. Bennett comes away splendidly in the last act. Mr. Charles Boult gives a frank and manly portrayal of Louis Percival; the Baron Hartfeld of Mr. Arthur Dennis is characteristic; and the suavity of Captain Redwood is duly emphasised by Mr. Maurice Denham. Smart and good-looking young men are seen in the Lord Drelincourt of Mr. Fred Lester and the George Ralston of Mr. Ben Barnett; Miss Gertrude Le Sage gives weight and importance to the rôle of Lady Dunscombe; as Agnes Ralston Miss Betty Fairfax is winsome; the Netherby of Mr. Harry Morpeth and the Pettywise of Mr. Clarence Pelham are careful studies; and as the Maid, Miss Bertha Guest is good.

ROYALTY, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—The fortnight's visit of Miss Horniman's company has considerably enhanced the reputation here of this clever band of players, and of the new plays introduced this season, The Silver Box has made a decided impression. On Monday Cupid and the Styx was given, and Mr. J. Sackville Martin's new comedy was heartily received. As the young medicos, Mr. Lewis Casson as Dr. Hope and Mr. Basil Dean as Dr. Garside acted with convincing naturalness and excellent effect; and a first-rate portrayal of the dignified physician, Sir Peregrine Prendergast, was contributed by Mr. Charles Bibby. Miss Sybil Thorndike as the worldly Nurse Price was specially good; Mr. B. Iden Payne gave another clever performance as the discontented Philip Barton; and his wife was most sympathetically played by Miss Hilda Bruce Potter. A clever bit of character was the Porter of Mr. Leonard Mudie. The Dear Departed was given in front, and in this Misses Ada King and Louise Holbrook were specially noteworthy. Mr. St. John Hankin's comedy, The Charity that Began at Home, was given on Tuesday, and repetitions of Widower's Houses and The Silver Box later in the week.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The forthcoming visit of the Carl Rosa Opera Company has compelled the management here to announce the last twelve nights of Cinderella, which has had a most successful career, and enhanced the popularity here of several clever artists, notably Messrs. Whit Cunliffe, George French, Tom W. Conway, and Barry Lupino; while of the ladies, Misses Queenie Finnis as Cinderella, Nellie Wigley as the Duke of Whistbridge, Kate Walbran and Nellie Cozens as the Ugly Sisters; and Violet Tempest as the Fairy, have been specially worthy of the favours bestowed on them.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Much has already been written about Diccory Dok, and the panto. still he gets through is complimentary to his abilities; Mr. Cliff Lake as Squills has practically the making of his own part, and comes through it creditably; as Sparkle, Mr. Walter Dale is amusing; Mr. Harry Gribben as the Squire and Mr. Ainslie Burton as Mrs. Tibbs are conjointly responsible for much fun; as Sweetbriar and Discord Miss Ivy Proudfoot and Miss May Beatrice sing well. The stage-management is perfect, and the chorus and ballet all that could be desired.

METROPOLE, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here this week playing The Love of the Princess, in which Miss Maisie Hanbury gives a fine impersonation of Princess Idalia; while Prince Conrad is ably enacted by Mr. Wilson Coleman. An exquisite performance of the Lady Irene is given by Miss Olive Lloyd; and a quietly dignified portrayal of Sister Constantia is rendered by Miss Nellie Grahame. The villainy is well expressed by Mr. E. Imeson as Count Nicholas and Mr. E. H. Dobell as the King of Ilarnia; while a spice of comedy and rascality is a combination in the character of Duke Scarfe as rendered by Mr. Francis Serle. Mr. Beckett Bould makes a natural Lieut. Orians; and other well-filled parts are the Prince Regent by Mr. Graham Winsford, Boris by Mr. Edgar Morgan, Stephen by Mr. Eric Wilde, and Carlos by Mr. James Austin. The drama is well staged, and is drawing crowded houses.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Frederick Melville's play, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, is here on a second visit. The title-rôle, by Miss Beatrice Homer, is portrayed with studied minuteness, her distinct utterance and artistic diction being outstanding features in a fine performance; no less effective is Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merryman; in the hands of Mr. Leyton Cancellor, the scheming and criminal propensities of Hubert Gould gets full justice; while Mr. Harry Leyton as Raggles submits a clever impersonation of the unpolished London hooligan. Miss Violet Macaree is a decided success as Marita, an Italian girl; Miss Gertrude Harrison as Rose Courtenay displays much ability. Although sombre and tragic at times, the play is profusely interspersed with humorous situations and bright passages, for which Mr. Freddie Bentley as Tubby Herrick and Miss Nelly Jackson as Aggie Brown are jointly responsible.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners. — Roars of laughter greet Mr. Fred Karno's new sketch, The G.P.O., from the moment of Mr. Fred Kitchen's appearance as Perkins. The popular comedian is in great form, and the fun goes fast and furious. Lydia and Amelys give a novel dancing turn, in which they introduce the Parisian Apache dance; a most enjoyable item is the comedy business at the piano of Percival, who is heartily recalled; Ethel Newman's acting in the monologue, "Her Wedding Day," is exceedingly good, and her reception is most cordial; Dorothy and Alexander are a clever young pair of instrumentalists; good turns are also given by the Lyric Mummers, Beattie Kent and Tom Collins; while some new and interesting films are shown on the Bioscope.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—Harry Dent and Fanny Harris appear in their mystic musical comedietta, The Indian Bottle, the act being clever and amusing; Harry Vardon, the modern ventriloquist, submits a capital item, "On the 'Phone," and the audience thoroughly appreciate the sketch, Not a Crook, presented by Phil Rees's Stable Lads. Gus Garrick, comedian, with his famous music-hall tit-bits, also scores well. The other artists contributing to an excellent entertainment include Irve Hayman and company, in a pathetic burgling episode, Christmas Eve; Ivey Aberdare, comedienne and dancer; Dave O'Toole, eccentric comedian; Palles and Cussick, knockabout comedians; the Primrose Quartette, in a vocal scena; and a display on the Bioscope of interesting pictures.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Vesta Victoria is again starring here, and the popular comedienne comes with a budget of new songs, every one of which goes far to enhance her popularity. The Dayton Family give a smart and daring acrobatic and Risley act, cleverly carried through; Bromley and Fontein take well in their comedy turn, The Man Behind the Music Stand; Lee and Kingston are another clever duo, whose eccentric business is much enjoyed; Ethel Erskine, principal girl at the Royal, Edinburgh, pantomime, gives an enjoyable turn, a group of catchy songs at the piano; Edie Veno as a vocalist and dancer goes strong, and has some clever patter; the Three Caibas give a novel acrobatic show, which is worthy of the hearty applause it receives; and Albert St. Clair is well received for his double-voiced vocalisation.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Marie Kendal comes with a splendid budget of catchy songs; Frank L. Gregory's Troupe display wonderful skill in their hoop manipulating; Starr and Leslie combine an amusing speciality act with clever club-juggling; the mimicry performance of the Two Lawsons is highly appreciated; Nan Farren, a dancer of exceptional merit, the Maningos, clever equilibrists, Steve McCarthy, comedian, and the Fitzroys, in their trapeze and rope act, are worthy of note

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette. — Polly Pickle's Pets in Petland appeals to the juvenile members of the audience. The piece is a one-act musical and pantomimic fantasy, presented by Joseph Hart. Miss Grace Arundale is neat and sprightly as Polly; while Mr. Alfred Latell excels in the canine part. John F. Preston pays a return visit with his racing episode, Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Preston and Mr. Horace Custins are in their familiar parts, and the sketch still maintains its good position. Nellie Wallace is no stranger in the city, and it is pleasing to note her improvement; she is smart and her work is funny. A good comedian is Fred Keeton, to whom more work would not come amiss; his reception is gratifying. Staig's Steeplejacks, in their cycling business, are worthy of mention; their cycling is daring and clever. In a speciality act, in which is introduced tumbling and balancing, the Three Laurels are seen to great advantage; the Sisters Caselli are favourites, and their singing and dancing is appreciated; their high-kicking, too, is good, and forms the feature of their turn. Mary Ambrose is a comedienne whose efforts are appreciated. The Bioscope, as usual, terminates the evening's entertainment with a capital selection of new and interesting films.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The Monte Carlo Girls are a graceful quartette of vocalists and dancers; Howard and Thorne cause plenty of amusement with their absurdity, Mary Ann; Herbert St. Clair's company, in their sketch, The Successful Experiment, are loudly applauded; Myra Stuart sang two songs in fine style; and Kitty Earl is a soprano vocalist of no mean ability. W. B Kent, Scotch comedian, and the Bioscope, deserve the approval they receive.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Newman and Howard are a clever pair of musical comedy artists, and the audience thoroughly enjoys their turn; Cissy Norton is a male impersonator of ability; and Smith and Ashcroft, Irish comedy artists and expert dancers, are also well favoured. Joe Sydney, comedian, tells many amusing stories and dances in splendid style; there is, in addition, the popular Bioscope display, which includes the latest and most amusing pictures.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Captain Clayton's Cinderella opened here on Monday. In the title-rôle Miss Nita Dunville was winsome and clever, her singing receiving hearty appreciation; Miss Amy Albert made a dashing Prince Charming; as Dandini Miss Lottie Mellor created a good impression, and Miss Ivy Preston as Fairy Sunshine was responsible for some sweetly-rendered songs. Mr. Jerrold Manville as Baron Hardup was highly amusing, and Mr. Tom Gilbert and Mr. James Slater as the two ugly sisters were great at laughter production. The Lola Troupe, the Gibson Trio, Brothers Alpine, the Dunvilles, Mons. Rollo, and P. J. Durney, globe manipulator, supplied the specialities.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pooles Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—Heading a good all-round bill are the Robertys in a marvellous balancing act; a dramatic episode The Spy, presented by Ford, Webb and company, proves entirely to the taste of the audience; and a pleasing turn is given by Caselli, a banjoist of great promise, whose selections were well received. Among others of merit are Tom Kelso and company in a comedy absurdity The Silly Servant; Sira, the one-legged acrobat, who can give points to some of the ordinary variety; Addie Adell, a powerful actress-vocalist, and Reg Bolton in comedy scena The Editor's Imp. The Palacescope concludes.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, Pooles Theatres, Ltd.—The Cinephone, talking animated pictures, gives great satisfaction, and a well-varied selection of films are being shown on the Bioscope. Illustrated songs and solos make up a pleasing programme.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale.—Miss Winifred Maude and her company are paying a return visit in The Sins of a City. Mr. Gordon Ingram displays marked ability as Sandy McDonald; Miss Winifred Maude charmingly portrays Seaweed; Mr. Leonard S. Harrison gives a clever character sketch of Donald McIvor; Mr. Gibson Lyle ably depicts Ralph Blackmater, Q.C.; Mr. Victor Du Cane is very humorous as Isaac Levi; Mr. G. Curzon is very good in the dual rôle of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh; and Miss Louise Carlton is a typical Fisherwoman.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Among the many pictures shown here this week, the most amusing is entitled An American Does London in Five Minutes. Arthur Bright, a clever comedian, gives a smart turn; Miss Bertha Norwood sings some catchy songs; Metz and Metz are smart crosstalkers and expert dancers; the Mannikins give a clever Marionette show; and Surrey and Carlton's company, in the tabloid drama The Little Nipper, are well received.

THE GEM.—Lessees, the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—Excellent films are being exhibited here this week; those being worthy of special mention are The Mystery of Edwin Drood, and a very humorous subject, entitled Mother-in-Law Arrives. The illustrated songs continue to be popular.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The attraction here this week is provided by Messrs. Polini and Melford's company, in the ever-popular Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a capital representation of Wilfrid Denver; Miss Madge Morley enters sympathetically into the character of Nellie Denver, the patient and suffering wife; and Mr. Edward J. George is again seen in his lifelike portrayal of the faithful Jaikes. The Spider finds a powerful exponent in Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp; and his evil associates, Coombe, Cripps, and Corket, are creditably impersonated by Messrs. Arthur Wright, Fred May, and Leslie Ellis. Miss Lila Barclay is an admirable exponent of Olive Skinner; and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss must be complimented upon her clever performance of Cissie. The play is well staged.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, The Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Miss Louie Freear is the star turn here this week, and is accorded a hearty welcome; the equestrian lion, D'Artagnan, introduced by Mons. and Mlle. Gaillard, is distinctly clever; Harry Glynn and company score heavily with their amusing sketch, Before the Beak; and the other artists include Dave Summerhill, Scotch comedian; Acme, in a novel musical act; Minnie Glynn, vocalist and dancer; the McKinleys, comedy duettists; and Vivian Foster, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The Hydas Troupe of Manchurian acrobats go through a remarkably clever performance here this week; the Four Royal Scots, on a return visit, have been accorded a flattering reception; Sam Thomson, comedian, is most successful; Abel and Welsh are particularly clever eccentric acrobats; Gold and Stirling have a pleasing musical scena, "The Maid and the Artist"; Will McIvor, vocalist, renders his songs in fine style; the Two Countees, duettists, are popular; and Ada Parker is a clever little comedienne and dancer.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. Allan Wilkie is presenting a répertoire of plays, principally tragedies. The week opened with Macbeth, and a notable performance was given. Mr. Wilkie's conception of Macbeth was very impressive, and he depicted the remorse and deep emotions of the conscience-stricken regicide with powerful effect; Miss Haidee Gunn achieved complete success as Lady Macbeth, and her acting was marked by true dramatic force; Mr. Alexander Marsh gave a fine performance of Macduff, portraying the noble qualities of the Thane of Fife in vigorous fashion; Mr. John Paley was excellent as Banquo; Mr. Ian Fleming admirably realised King Duncan; Mr. Ernest Digges acted well as Malcolm; Mr. Sinclair Neill was good as Rosse; and the three Witches were effectively played by Mr. Frank Royde, Mr. Houston Meharry, and Miss Agnes Gagan. On Tuesday Delicate Ground and The Sleigh Bells were staged, and other plays presented during the week were The Corsican Brothers, The Fool's Revenge, She Stoops to Conquer, and The Two Orphans of Paris.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Max Gruber and Miss Adelina introduce a clever animal act, in which their elephant, horse, and pony give evidence of a high degree of careful training; the Daunton-Shaw Troupe of cyclists make a welcome reappearance, and present a series of new and daring feats; Signor and Mme. Borelli give a refined comedy speciality; Will Benton, the football comedian, has some amusing business, and introduces his novel goal-scoring competition; Walter Emerson is another comedian with a good fund of humour; Bessie Butt is a charming dancer; and Bandoni gives a clever illustration of the one-man band.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week the boards are held by Mr. Morton Powell's company in When It Was Dark. Miss Alice O'Dea merits praise for her effective rendering of Gertrude Hunt; Miss Valerie Russell displays ability as Helena Byars; and Miss Florrie Lyndon infuses plenty of life into the part of Gracie Goldeye. Mr. Cecil Mannering's Constantine Schwabe does good work; Mr. Wilfred Lyndon embodies the Rev. Gortre with care and judgment; Mr. William Burgess portrays Sir Robert with telling effect; Mr. Frank Venn is highly successful as Charlie Gayfly; Mr. W. H. Burton is well placed as Mr. Byars; and Mr. Alfred Collingham is a capable exponent of Harold Spence.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Butterflies is the attraction here this week. Mr. Harrison Brockbank is seen to decided advantage as Widgery Blake; his rendering of the part is artistic and natural. He is ably supported by Miss Annie Heenan, who acts charmingly as Rodanthe; Johnnie Wilkinson cleverly portrays the part of Yarker, a chauffeur; as Christopher Podmore, Mr. Edwin H. Wynne is excellent; he keeps the house in a continuous roar; the varying moods of the City man and the man of pleasure are splendidly portrayed. Mr. Alan Mudie does well as Peter, but the part would be considerably improved if Mr. Mudie were a little more natural. Mr. Cyril Biddulph is good as Max Riadore. There is a quintet (four male and four female) of dancers, who give a fine exhibition of the terpeichorean art; and Miss Millie Gordon contributes a graceful classical dance, for which she is deservedly encored.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Fatal Wedding is paying a return visit to this house. This time the play is presented twice nightly by Mr. Percy Williams's company. The company is an efficient one, and contains several juveniles who are dancers of no mean order.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's Claude Duval is proving a big attraction. The playlet is exceedingly well acted by Messrs. Arthur Max, Harry Calver, Geo. Hammond, and Jack Collinson, and the Misses Ray Haydon and Catto, splendidly dressed, and finely staged. The horse Roy is a highly-trained animal. Ted Karno and company create hearty laughter in a pantomimical absurdity, Dinner Hour; Mabel Thorne soon established herself a favourite, her song, "My Halifax sweetheart," causing considerable amusement; Madge Grey created a good impression, her Lancashire dialect song and witticisms gaining unstinted applause; Frank H. Fox, comedian, Bertha St. Ruth and Cissie Conyers, duettists, Mandie Forde, comedienne and dancer, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux complete a good programme.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Managing-Director, Mr. René Clayton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Bostock.—Mr Harry Roxbury's company in Mother Goose is proving a big draw here this week. Miss Maud Prenton is a dashing Colin, and renders her musical numbers in fine style; Miss Lily Palmer is sweet and dainty as Jill; her friend Phyllis finding a suitable exponent in Miss Marjorie Prenton. Colin's brothers, Eric and Muggles, are capably played by Messrs. George Castrey and Fred Hutchings; Mr. Harry Roxbury is extremely funny as Mother Goose; and Mr. J. W. Gallagher droll in the extreme as her son Jack. Mr. Fred Guinness does well as the Goose; while the Lemaires do some funny business as the Horse. Specialities are the Miltons, in a clever roller skating turn; the Four Sydney Girls, dancers; and the Royal Welsh Entertainers.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—My Mimosa Maid is paying us its first visit. Miss Marie Studholme is very charming as Paulette; Mr. Chas. McNaughton is strong as Victor Guilbert; Master Archie McCaig is very diverting as Bock; Messrs. Chas. E. Paton (Max Guilbert) and Percy Carr (M. Emile Gerard) are well suited, and Miss Ruby Gray (Marcella), Miss Nancy Garstang (Mme. De Pelaine), and Miss Daisy Yule (Mimi) deserve highest commendation. The augmented orchestra and fine chorus are directed by Mr. Harry Matthews.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Alexandre and Hughes pay a welcome return visit here—their comicalities and musical ability win unstinted applause; the Hadji Mohamed Arab acrobats cause great wonder; Ross and Grayson are a superior comedy couple; Harry Tate's No. 1 company in Motoring evokes laughter; the Westwoods are really marvellous on cycles; the Biotableaux shows two fine films; Rex Fox is without a parallel on the wire; the Falcons, acrobats, cause hearty amusement; and Jock Mills, Scotch comedian, wins great favour.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—An exceptionally fine series of films is shown here. Mr. Will Beanland is responsible for the vaudeville items, and his female impersonations are received with favour.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company is here this week in The Gay Gordons. Miss Maie Ash as Peggy Quainton scored a brilliant success; Mr. Stanley Brett infuses a débonnaire virility and forcefulness into his performance of Angus that quite takes the audience by storm; Miss Nellie Dade as Charlotte Siddons play her comedy part with an admirable air of seriousness; the study of the showman afforded by Fred Rolph as Nervy Nat is realistic; Miss Lillie Maxwell as Victoria Siddons is pleasing and picturesque; and little George Carroll as Edmund Siddons is a distinct feature of the show. The minor parts are all efficiently handled, and with tuneful music and merry dialogue the performance proves one of the best and brightest.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—On Monday a packed house expressed their satisfaction of the pictures which are being shown this week by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co. One showing incidents in connection with the West Stanley Disaster excited considerable interest. Prospecting for Gold is also a very interesting film. Charming moonlight effects are produced in The Trip on the Nile; and some splendid colouring is seen in The Story of Psyche. There are several other films of dramatic and humorous character, and the programme is varied by Ricaby and Davis, in an amusing comedy boxing act, and Mark Pyn, an expert at ventriloquism.

TOWN HALL.—The Walturdaw Company have opened a season here with a splendid selection of films, the principal one being that of the West Stanley Disaster. The Witch's Donkey is an amusing trick picture; and the colouring of The Story of Psyche is much admired. A host of other pictures are shown and enjoyed, and a gramophone competition is an attraction.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scott.—A return visit is being paid this week of Miss Lena Ashwell's company in Diana of Dobson's. Miss Emelie Polini played as the outspoken Miss Diana Massingbird, and gave her crowded audience on Monday an excellent rendition; Mr. Leslie Rea filled the rôle of Captain Bretherton very effectively; Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce was an amusing Sir Jabez; and Miss Ada Palmer did well as Mrs. Cantelupe. Miss Daisy England was characteristic as Miss Pringle, and the Misses Violet Gould, Dorothy Bell, Nannie Griffin, and Eva Leonard Boyne also did well. The Bishop's Candlesticks preceded.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman; Director, Mr. H. Boyd.—An extra turn is given by the Bros. Trant, amusing patterers; Miss Ray Sun is a bright comedienne; the comic effusions of Mark Brue are much enjoyed; a principal feature in the Alhambra Pictures is a trip through picturesque Holland; the Fimans introduce a laughable scena, The Fire Station; De Ora is a clever and graceful performer on a lofty trapeze; another well-appreciated turn is Queenie West, a smart comedienne and dancer; Bert Forss, with excellent dramatic effect, illustrates several characters from Dickens' works; an exceedingly funny sketch, entitled The Tree of Truth, is presented by Harry Brayne and Bert Lloyd.

PIER PAVILION. — General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The drama The Corsican Brothers is attracting good audiences. Considering the restricted stage for an elaborate play like the present, with its French scenes of Paris life and forest duel, the piece is remarkably well treated. Mr. Oliver Rogers gives a fine example of the two brothers Franchi; although a despicable character, the part of Chateau-Renard is well assumed by Mr. Joseph Cowell; Miss Eva Bayley is charmingly natural as Mme. Franchi; a graceful rendering of Emelia is furnished by Miss Clarissa Selwynne. The artists filling in the more minor parts go a great way to render the piece successful.

HORWICH. — PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Horwich Theatre Co.—Arizona Joe's American company, in Across the Frontier, is the attraction this week. Mr John Loden's impersonation of Arizona Joe is a very fine performance, and received unstinted applause; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy paints Harry Ashton, chief of the Black Hawks, in very lurid colours; Yellowhawk, an Indian, is capitally represented by Mr. Terence Nerrey; Mr. William Lloyd as Jack Furman, mine owner, plays the part to perfection; Mr. Fred Rose as Mick M'Bride is responsible for the major part of the comedy element, and thoroughly succeeds in keeping the audience in good humour; Mr. Alex. Taylor plays Bob White in good style; Mr. C. Leicester as Fighting Jank, saloon proprietor, furnishes a striking portraiture; the part of Flora Ashton, wife of the chief, is well portrayed by Miss Kate Randolph; Miss Ada Stellings as Kate Ferras scores heavily with her singing and dancing; Miss Dallas Yorke plays Nana Montague, a concert-hall artist, cleverly; Silverstar, the White Lily of Arizona, is most artistically rendered by Miss Nora Temple. The scenery and properties are very handsome.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The top of the bill is filled by Yangar, the West African wonder-worker, in his series of cleverly-executed illusions. Other artists appearing are: The Sisters Allan, vocalists and dancers; Mark Cowan, comedian; Campkin and the Whitworth Cycling Girls, in trick cycling; Bert Weston, comedian and raconteur; Bob Kent and Miss Doris Earle, in a comedy duologue; and Tennyson and Wallis, a pair of rattling good comedians. Interesting films are projected on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's production, The Dollar Princess, is one that has completely taken the city by storm, and is counted as one of the finest seen here for many a day. An exceptional company have been entrusted with its representation. Miss Hilda Moody's charming voice is heard to the finest advantage in the title-rôle; Mr. Robt. Michaelis is an artist who fills a very prominent place, and his song, "My Queen of Love," is one of the hits of the evening. As the Lion Queen, Miss Kitty Gordon has a rôle which she graces with infinite skill and charm; Miss Alice Pollard likewise with great success fills a prominent part; the Earl of Quorn finds a fitting representative in Mr. Vernon Davidson; Mr. Fred Winn is a capital Phineas Q. Conder. The music and mounting are both exceptionally fine.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Her Marriage Vow is paying a return visit, and is meeting with a great reception. Miss Lillian Herries plays with emotional power the part of the discarded wife; Mr. E. L. Garside continues to make the heavy part a very striking one; Mr. J. F. Knowles is a capital hero; Miss Effie Crawford and Mr. Owen Remonde fill the comedy rôle with credit.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Mohamed Ben Troupe of Arabs, Francis Hanlon, Arthur Pier, the Ormesby Quartette, the Cheers, Will Owen, Angeline, and the Donatos appear here.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Relwyskow, the wrestler, is appearing here. On Monday he met Pullon, a local wrestler, who, after a smart bout, was only defeated after fourteen minutes. The Dunlops perform some clever and amusing cycling tricks; Tom Gott holds his own as a dialect comedian. Jas. Lloyd's Glee Singers, Sam Dalton, Lilian Travelli, Claire Hastings, and Lilian Sivado complete a good programme.

THE CIRCUS.—Manager Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are commencing another season.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The company of Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton played The Woman from Russia the first three nights of the week, for the latter end of which Mr. Charles Constant presents his pantomime Bluebeard.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Greed of Gold is drawing well here. Mr. Henry Parr sustains the part of Henry Wood with great success, and Mr. Alf Stretton gives a vigorous rendering of Arthur Errol; Mr. Arthur Beufort is well placed as Cutty Snug; Mr. James Jarrett supplies a faithful study of Tom Welstead; Miss Maud M. Powell is good in the part of Dora; as Mrs. Maxwell Miss Jennie Douglas Hicks plays capitally; Miss B. M. Hughes finds favour as Cecil, and the other parts are all well filled.

IPSWICH. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Mr. James Welch's company was here for three nights in When Knights Were Bold. The house was crowded at each performance, and the audiences were delighted and enthusiastic. Mr. Henry J. Ford plays Sir Guy de Vere in his inimitable way, causing roars of laughter throughout; Isaac Isaacson is in good hands with Mr. Vernon Sansbury, and Mr. Cecil Clayton is Charles Widdicombe; the Rev. Peter Pottlebury, the ponderous D.D., is well played by Mr. Guy Land, and Sir Bryan Ballymore by Mr. Agor Lyons; the exacting part of Lady Rowena is capitally filled by Miss Agnes de Llana; Lady Millicent and Lady Marjorie are well acted by Miss Maev O'Hea and Miss Ruth Bower respectively; Miss Marion Ryder is an attractive Kate Pottlebury; Miss Bessie Walters is Alice Barker, and Miss Mabel Young the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave. The scenery and staging are excellent.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—One of the most popular turns this week is that of Mr. Ormonde Penstone, whose clever manipulation of billiard balls is justly applauded, while some smoke pictures he produces are real works of art; Mlle. San-Go is an able and ready assistant. Another juggler is Ernesto, whose ladder novelty is sensational; Probyn and Bates have an amusing comedy skit, entitled The Dude, and the soubrette, Miss Rosie Lloyd, is a telling singer, and thoroughly maintains her reputation; Miss Rose Elliott uses a powerful voice in some "sensible songs" with good choruses; the Howards, in their exhibition of silent telepathy, greatly mystify the audience; Mr. Gilbert Rogers, comedian, sings well; and the New York Nippers have an amusing scena entitled Bed Time. The Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—This week Mr. Sam Duckworth's company is here with The Conscience of a Judge. Mr. Bedwell gives a striking performance of Herbert Cranstone; Cecil Bentley is capably undertaken by Mr. Martin Pedler; and Mr. Frank Eaglesfield plays forcibly the part of Sir Edwin Mervin. Ethel Vaughan is carefully handled by Miss Mabel Coleman; Miss Eva Moss plays Jessie Draycott to perfection; Mr. Cecil Renton is a manly Geoffrey Cranstone; Mr. Dalton Bosher a good John Summers; Mr. Frank Eden causes much amusement as Horatio Winters; and Miss Bessie Frank is a capital Mary Wilson.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. A. Lauder; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Ranier.—This place of amusement has reopened on the two-houses-a-night principle. This week's company includes Empress, who does some marvellous feats with the handcuffs; Arthur Rugby, comedian; Master Stobart, boy vocalist; Carr, the ventriloquist; Mabel Lloyd, comedienne and dancer; Lily Anton, speciality dancer; and Douglas and Gordon, the Scotch comedy couple.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here this week with The Love that Women Desire. Miss Maude Hastings is a sympathetic Sybil Thornton; Miss Nellie Fletcher plays Madge Abingdon; Miss Vere Rose is clever as Marquinha; and Miss Dorothy Hildebrand as Patti Swift proves a dashing soubrette. Mr. J. O. Stewart makes himself sufficiently distasteful as Squire Abingdon; and as Richard Abingdon Mr. S. Leigh Courtney is a convincing villain. Mr. J. W. Wilkinson appears as P.C. Sowerberry; Mr. John Hignett is an amusing Dennis O'Rourke; Mr. G. Dudeney is good as Arnold Garthorne; and Mr. Sidney Bland is excellent as Philip Carnaby.

KETTERING.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. Alf. Bailey and Co.—The Walturdaw Bioscope Co. provide the attraction this week with an admirable selection of pictures. Le-Wist, ventriloquist; Reno, conjurer; and Miss Nellie Young contribute enjoyable variety turns.

NOW READY.

THEATRICAL ACCOUNTS

— FOR —

BUSINESS MANAGERS.

How the Affairs of a Theatre can be Most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.

BY CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.

Price 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

All concerned with the business side of a theatre will find much useful information and many valuable hints in "Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Mr. Cuthbert E. Smedley, published at The Era office.—Referee, Jan. 31, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers," by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. (The Era, Ltd., London, 3s. 6d.), is a most concise and comprehensive little work, calculated to prove of assistance to the theatre-manager. It shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given, and the chapters treating of receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, and audit will be found to contain much useful information. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Feb. 3, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts" ("The Era," Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.), we should say, is a very useful compilation for business managers of our places of amusement. It is practical, exact, and analytical; it should stop leakages, and needs only good houses to keep it fully employed.—Sportsman, Feb. 8, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts." By Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.). Shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. 3s. 6d. The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

Skeleton schemes of book-keeping, &c., with explanations, showing how the affairs of a theatre can be efficiently managed by the adoption of systems of internal check in all departments. Contains also a draft agreement as between manager and artist.—Birmingham Daily Post, Jan. 27 1909.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—We have a return visit this week of Mr. J. P. Moore's comic pantomime Dick Whittington. In the title-rôle Miss Madge Locke sings and dances well; Miss Maude May is a winning Alice; Alderman Fitzwarren is in the capable hands of Mr. Percy Victor; Mr. Willie Oswald causes no end of fun as Idle Jack; Mr. Fred May is droll as Betsy Mary Anne; and Bullock the Moke is funnily played by Ernie Victor. In the speciality turns Victor's musical dogs, and Pauletti, the trick bicycle rider, are very clever.

LANCASTER.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—A Royal Divorce, presented by Mr. W. Kelly's company, is paying another visit, but it has by no means outlived its popularity. In Mr. Keith Fraser we have a Napoleon of considerable merit; an excellent impersonation of Talleyrand is given by Mr. Percy H. Vernon; and Mr. Stanley Harrison puts in some good acting as Marquis de Beaumont. Mr. Geo. Hudson brings to bear much humour as Grimaud; and the parts of Augereau and Murat are successfully played by Mr. Ernest Plumpton and Mr. Harold S. Standing. Miss Winnie Tempest is an extremely talented Empress; Miss Leah Marlborough as Marie Louise displays skill; and Miss Maude Lucy makes a delightful Stephanie.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—At the head of affairs this week is Leoni Clarke, with a remarkably clever animal show; Ruby and Laws sing in good voice; Little Arthur is a clever dancer; Bi Bo Bi supplies a pleasing musical turn; and May de Rowse, comedienne, J. H. Rean, vocalist, and the Sisters Darnton, duettists, are all commendable. The Hippograph has amusing pictures.

LEAMINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—The attraction here this week is Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in the successful comedy, Mrs. Dot, which is being played to good houses. The character of Mrs. Dot is enacted by Miss Nancy Beresford, a clever little actress, whose performance is a charming one; Mr. Frank Lacy plays James Blenkinsop, and gives due point to the many amusing lines; and Mr. Hugh Kennedy as Gerald Halstane gives a satisfactory rendering of the rôle. Mr. Charles A. Staite is very amusing as Mrs. Dot's private secretary; and as Lady Sellinger Miss Emma Hutchison is praiseworthy in every respect. Other characters are ably sustained by Mr. William Midgley, Mr. H. Allistoun Samson, Mr. K. Brandon, Mr. Frank Leach, Mr. F. Abbott, Miss Ethel Grahame, and Miss Sybil Brooke. The play is preceded by an amusing sketch entitled Her Dearest Friend.

LEICESTER.—Opera House.—A first visit is being paid here this week by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's excellent company in the successful play The Flag Lieutenant, the staging of which is extremely well done. Mr. Lionel Atwill plays with ability the title-rôle; Miss Florence Jackson is responsible for a delightful impersonation of Mrs. Cameron; Mr. George Mallett deserves high praise as the Admiral; Mr. H. Montague Love makes a capital Major Thesiger; and Miss Viva Birkett a charming Lady Hermione.

Theatre Royal.—This week's attraction is provided by Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company, in the interesting and well-staged drama Man and Wife. Mr. John F. Traynor plays with conspicuous success as Paul Revere; Miss Kate Halham is good as Marcelle; Mr. Edward M. Hamilton is most effective as Captain D'Esparre; Mr. Edward Van Biene is excellent as Colonel Latour; Miss Millie Doris is a vivacious Rosette; and Mr. George Overs a typical Jean.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—The top is divided this week between Carrie Laurie and Russell Wallett, the inimitable female impersonator; another clever item is Miss Marquis's stud of highly-trained cobs; Hermann Melot is a conjurer par excellence; Annie Purcell is a sparkling and popular comedienne; and Alf. Chester, comedian, Les Voces, in songs and duets, Arthur Gill, a versatile comedian, the Brennans (Will and May), in a neat and artistic dancing display, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Premier position is held here by Alice Hughes and company, in the musical comedietta Star of the Bazaar, which is scoring a thorough success; Miss Alice Hughes as Dulcie Darenot, Mr F. Lurin as the Rev. Willie Wood, and Mr. Charles Dillon as James are deserving of much praise. At the other end is Sable Fern, who is scoring a success in her new song by Frank Leo, entitled "Don't hang your trouble on me"; Harold B. Lewis and Cissie Cleveland, in their dramatic episode, Paying the Debt, are very good; Rolando Martin keeps the audience in continual merriment; Rose Revell sings Dutch and coon songs; the Granvilles are popular Australian song illustrators; the San Remo Girls are entertaining speciality dancers; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope has two good pictures.

Empire.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—Large audiences continue to evince the greatest delight at the continuous first-class picture programmes submitted here, the chief of which include The Messina Earthquake, The Vendean, Western Courtship, A Waif's Christmas, Clown's Christmas Eve, Morning Leader picture, and Blind. The Two Palmers, comedy artists, owing to last week's successful engagement, are retained over another week; Winnie Travers, comedienne, makes a welcome reappearance, and her song, "A tiny seed of love," is cordially received.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. H. Chippendale.—Two Lancashire Lasses in London is being presented here by Hardie and Von Leer's company. Miss Laurie Walker and Miss Alice Defoe as the two lasses are both seen to advantage; Mr. J. Edward Fletcher gives an excellent portrayal of the Rev. Frank Selby; Mr. Geo. Brammell evokes applause as John Edmund; the villainy is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Arthur Elwyn; Mr. Jack Miller depicts the brutal Jim Price in a masterly manner; and a vein of humour is introduced by Mr. Chris Mason as Sam Hallett, who is well seconded by Miss Evelwyn Shaw.

Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft. — Beatie and Babs, juvenile comediennes and dancers, give an excellent turn; Hess and Lisbon in a roller-skating act are clever; Mr. Arthur Slater in a whistling scena gains much applause; the Zerbinis Troupe, musical speciality artists, are interesting; Happy Attwood, comedian, is deservedly popular; the Three Warners, vocalists and dancers, are good.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The production of The Prodigal Son by Mr. George D. Day's company well deserves patronage. Mr. Albert Ward gives a successful characterisation in the arduous leading rôle of Oscar Stephensson; and Mr. Alfred Goddard's acting as Magnus is effective throughout, especially in the concluding scenes. Of the two parts, Thora and Elin, played with nice discrimination by Miss Dorrie Roberts, the impersonation of the daughter is pleasingly natural and charming; Miss Pearla Gardner presents a good study of the deceitful Helga; and the two elderly ladies, Anna and Margaret, are well portrayed by Miss Florence Lovell and Miss Maud Locker. Stephen Magnusson, Oscar Neilsen, Dr. Olsen, the Pastor, and the Sheriff all find able representatives in Messrs. Jackson Hayes, David Beattie, J. E. Savery, A. J. Williams, and R. C. Brooksmith; and commendation is due to all who appeared in minor parts, as well as for the completeness of the stage equipment.

LEVEN.—Town Hall. — The Dairymaids was presented on Tuesday night by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, under the direction of Mr. Andrew W. Spens. Peggy was played in bright and sparkling fashion by Miss Janet Reeve, who sang with much point; Eliza had a very able and attractive representative in Miss Maud Lucy; Lady Brudenell was played in dignified fashion by Miss Dorothy Belmore; and Miss Connie Beaugarde was quite successful as Winifred. The irrepressible Joe Mivens was made vastly entertaining by Mr. Edward Dodds, some of his lovemaking with Eliza convulsing the audience; Dr. O'Byrne in the hands of Mr. Bernard Vaughan was the happy-go-lucky Hibernian to the life; Sam Brudenell and Lieut. Meredith, excellently played by Mr. Sam Lysons and Mr. J. Scott Melville, contributed in no small degree to the enjoyment of the evening; and Miss Julia St. George was distinctly good as the immaculate Miss Penelope Pyechase The chorus was excellent, and showed evidence of careful training.

LINCOLN. — Royal.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Under Two Flags was capitally presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company on Monday, with Miss Agnes Verity a powerful exponent of the Vivandiere; and Mr. Austen Milroy a striking Bertie Cecil. At Cripple Creek was billed for Thursday.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Miller.—Sergeant Brennan is topping the bill with a novel and highly effective diabolo and gyroscope act. Lizzie Hayes (a great local favourite) and Chris. Baker give extracts from the Leeds Royal pantomime Aladdin, and effective contributions come from a strong supporting company.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The delightful pantomime Humpty Dumpty will finish at the close of next week.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Jack and the Beanstalk will conclude its run to-night (Saturday).

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Here during the week we have had The Tyrant, presented by a good all-round company, under the guidance of Miss Marie Dagmar. The principal rôle, Angelo, was capitally handled by Mr. Roy Fortescue, who exhibited much dramatic power; Miss Dagmar played Tisbe with her well-known ability; Mr. Norman A. Overton made an excellent Homodei; as Rudolph Mr. Edward E. Louis worked in a most praiseworthy manner; Miss Margaret Frame afforded valuable assistance with her carefully-played Lady Katherine; and the comedy was in the good hands of Mr. Frank Etheridge (Victor), Mr. Tom J. Taylor (Nobbo), and Miss Nellie Freeland (Reginella).

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A Warning to Women has been the attraction at this popular house during the week. Mr. C. Watson Mill's company includes Miss Blanche St. Albans, whose assumption of the rôle of Moira Kennion gained general approval; Mr. Harry C. Robinson distinguished himself as Marcus Dread; the character of Fergus McNaughton was well-presented by Mr. Charles O'Connor; Mr. Leicester Jackson played Lord Eversleigh with effect; and other well-held rôles were those of Shaun (Mr. E. Warren), Ferdinand (Mr. W. Palliser Acock), Mike McQuade (Mr. Oscar Power), Squire Kennion (Mr. W. Lockhart), Myles (Miss E. Roland), Sheila (Miss Winifred Rutland), and Hildred (Miss Marie Ramez). The cinematograph is a new feature at the Star, some excellent pictures being shown at the close of the drama by Films, Ltd.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Topping the programme here this week is Albert Chevalier, who, with his company, delighted his numerous admirers with Behind the Scenes; another much-appreciated turn was that given by Theo Bouwmeester and company, the protean actor's efforts in Who is Guilty? earning loud applause; Will and Sam Poluski were unable to appear on Monday evening, but an excellent substitute came forward in Viviana and company, with a clever acrobatic and dancing sketch, The Toy Shop; Joe O'Gorman's racy Irish tales provoked great laughter; Katie Moss as a vocalist and violinist merited the cordial reception extended to her; Miss Bessie Slaughter sang several numbers in pleasing style; and contributions also came from James Stewart, the tramp at the piano; Burnetti, character musician; and Percy Hannan, baritone.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Convict 99 has been staged here this week, included in the company being Messrs. Frank Beresford, Benson North, Charles Bruce, A. Watts, Miss Dorothy Milne, and Miss V. Clarke.

Lyric. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—The bill here this week is headed by Kartelli, whose wire act is of a particularly daring character; the lively comedienne, Lily Langtry, proved as popular as ever; Witty Watty Walton caused great laughter with his patter; a troupe of dogs, in charge of Lieut. Chard, showed a high degree of training; Harry Marlow and May Manton pleased greatly with the sketch Winning a Wife; and also in the list were Julian Ross, comedian; the Victoria Troupe of instrumentalists, vocalists, dancers, and banjoists; and Les Montaldos, with their feathered tribe. The Bioscope showed a special picture of last week's Liverpool Theatrical Gala.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —Interest has been shown here this week in Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons, who provided an artistic and amusing playlet, A Man's a Man for a' That. The champion boxer showed a deal of talent as an entertainer, and his wife, possessed of a rich voice, sang several songs, to the satisfaction of all her hearers. Maude Hall and Carleton Macy and company appeared in an amusing comedy drama, The Magpie and the Jay; Tony Iveson, the ragman at the piano, gave a most laughable turn; Arthur Reece maintained his high reputation, and won loud applause; the Three Krakes pleased with their trifle, The Electric Tram Conductor; some excellent comedy cycling came from Harry and Paul; Annie Heath sang and danced in acceptable style; and others who appeared included Terry and Bentley, comedy artists, and W. T. Ellwanger, with The Peacemaker.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —The Defence of the Flag was given here during the week by the stock company, the principal parts being in the hands of Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood, David G. Noble, Sydney Grant, R. Seth Innes, Tom H. Solly, Leo Montgomery, E. D. Allen, Miss Lilian Radbourne, Miss Gwynne Warren, and Miss Gertrude Entwistle. Some popular pictures were shown by Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to a pleasing series of cinematograph pictures given here this week, the following appear:—Boden and Bell, juvenile artists, and Bessie Willows, ballad vocalist.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—The Sands of Dee has put in a month's stay, and remains as popular as ever. Fred Eustace and company have delighted audiences with their capital comedy drama, The Amber Light, the characters in which were undertaken by Messrs. F. Eustace, Edwin Bennett, Alfred Harding, John Butler, and Miss Mary Eustace; a most acceptable turn was that given by Mlle. Naveeda and company, illusionists; Grey and Brown sustained their high reputation as musical comedians; Married All of a Sudden; or, Playing the Double, a smart comedy act, was submitted by the Bright and Claire Trio; as a mimic, whistler, and comedian, Alf J. Holt earned loud applause; Viviana and company presented a neat dancing act, The Toy Shop; and Mabel Mignon, dancer and comedienne, pleased greatly.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Foremost here this week has been The Belle of the Orient, played with great gusto by Joe Peterman's company, which included George Ricketts as Ike Novinski; Ruhart and his assistants caused roars of laughter with their funny burlesques on vaudeville; the Arthur Bedini Trio went through an amusing comedy pantomime act; Bradley showed remarkable ability as a cyclist, working six machines; Clown Barker had a cordial reception for his well-trained animals; exceptional skill as paper-tearers was displayed by Mint and Mart; a refined and clever act, entitled Gratitude, was provided by the black and white comedians Dalton and Euston; and other artists who appeared were Les Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists; Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer; and the Lyon's Trio of pantomimists and dancers.

Grand Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The Six Bros. Luck have headed the bill here this week with their merry pantomime The Hotel Grande; as acrobats the Carré Troupe distinguished themselves; and also in the list were Arthur Harris, with song-dramas; Renée Grahame, soubrette; the Four Netherland Girls, in Dutch costume; J. H. McCann, acrobatic comedian and roller-skater; and Mlle. Pollo, with trapeze act. Among the fine pictures shown on the Bioscope was one dealing with the Waterloo Coursing.

Park Palace.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—In addition to the interesting series of cinematograph pictures given here, the following artists appeared during the week:—J. Wright Aitken and company, with an attractive domestic sketch, The Battle of Life; Nellie Gannon, soubrette; Blanche and Diacoff, cyclists; Harry Wright, a most amusing comic vocalist; Billy Richardson, stump orator; and the child Cinquevalli, juggler.

New Century Picture Hall.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter W. Hook.—Business continues good at this popular resort, where some exceptionally fine pictures are shown, there being a complete change weekly. The latest presented included Leah, the Forsaken Jewess, The Orphan, The Pretty Dairymaid, In the Times of the Normans, In and Around Mexico City, and many humorous ones, and illustrated songs.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident-Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company, in his own drama, The 10.30 Down Express, has been doing good business here. The drama is a most sensational one, and introduces some fine mechanical effects. Mr. T. Arthur Plummer as Jack O'Malley was very successful; Mr. Carthege Caldcleugh as James Inderwick made a capital villain; Mr. Horace Stanley played Sam Wagstaff, A.B., in effective style; Miss Cora Linda as Bessie Leigh, Miss Ida Fane as Letitia Leigh, Miss Kittie Johnstone as Olive Coombes; and Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts, are deserving of praise. The scenery is realistic.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt's London company is presenting A Victim of Villainy, in which Miss K. Eckart as Mary Manton and Mr. F. J. Pitt are seen to advantage. The piece is well staged and dressed.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The bill this week includes the Adras, equilibrists; Les Trippelos, musical entertainers; Chant and Chant, duettists and dancers; Helen Raye, Sybil Raye, &c. The Biograph has a fine pictorial subject, A Journey to Brazil.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is being presented here by Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner. In the title-rôle Miss Nellie Valentine acts charmingly; Miss Gertie Douglas as Ruth Montrose is a great success; Miss Nellie Harcourt sings and dances with decided ability; Mr. Arthur Verne exhibits humour as Silas Crump; Mr. Walter Ashley makes a manly Captain George Fielding; Captain Edward Dudley is capitally enacted by Mr. W. B. Nugent as Hawkins; Mr. Edward Aldworth is effective; and Miss Daisy Holbrook as Polly and Miss Florence Corri as Rosy Ann are clever dancers.

MAIDSTONE.—Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The visit of Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood is heartily welcomed this week, the interpretation of this romantic comedy being as nearly perfect as possible. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is Robin Hood, and his performance in this exacting part is of a very high order; Mr. Stenson Liddard sings well as Alan A'Dale; Mr. C. Bruce Winston, besides being stage-manager, is responsible for some clever acting as Friar Tuck; Miss Cahill as Lady Marion and Miss Laurie Flockton as Adela also do good work. The tour is under the direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross.

MANCHESTER. — Gaiety Theatre — Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—A bold venture on the part of Mr. Leigh Lovel was his production here on Monday of Ibsen's Love's Comedy, written and produced for the first time in 1862. Ideas have changed since then, and what was considered daring fifty years ago is in these days commonplace, though Ibsen essentially is always in advance of current education. But one must be an Ibsenite to appreciate at once the satire and the beauty of Love's Comedy, which embraces poetry and common sense within a mould that is somewhat out of the ordinary playgoer's comprehension, and which is disturbing even to the student's sense of propriety. For, to put it briefly, the play is scarcely actable; and, while it may be tolerated and even enjoyed by the elect, one cannot get away from the fact that the proper place for it is the study. Love is the theme—a contrast of its ideal and practical aspects; and Professor C. H. Hereford's translation is commendably strong and suggestive of the original. Even Mr. Lovel's capital company was unequal to the task of making the play move dramatically, though Mr. Lovel as Falk and Miss Octavia Kenmore as Svenhild acted with great energy. Two flying matinées, including three one-act comedies and Molière's five-act comedy, Le Misanthrope, were given on Monday, at 2 and 4.30, by M. Ribaud and company.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, the United Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A big reception was accorded to Havana on its first appearance here on Monday. Like all Mr. George Edwardes's productions, it is on the grand scale, and packed with good things in the way of singing, dancing, and comedy, though the details are more entertaining than the story, which is slight enough. Humour dominates the piece, and the action never flags for a moment while the principal characters are on the stage. These are Mr. George Gregory, who gives a fine depiction of the misanthropic be'sun, Nix; Mr. W. H. Rawlins, the lively yacht's boy, Reginald Brown; Miss Gertrude Lester, who as Consuelo sings charmingly and acts well; Mr. Frank Hector as the dudish Adolfo, a brisk and clever impersonation; Mr. Edward O'Neill as the conspiratorial Diego; and Miss Luna Love as Anita, a smart and attractive cigar-seller. Mr. T. C. Maxwell as Villiers and Mr. Will Hindson as his chum, Chateris, fill important parts effectively; and Miss Gladys Fontaine makes much of her comedy chances as Isabelita. Incidentally, some very spirited and graceful dancing is done by Miss Florence Phillips; and among many good numbers of every kind, special mention must be made of the beautiful "Zara" solo, sung with extraordinary eloquence by Miss Jessie Broughton, who in this made one of the hits of the evening.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company are here in Send Him Victorious, which scored successfully last week at the Grand Junction Theatre.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Reano and his famous Band provide a high-class turn here this week, the overtures to "William Tell" and "1812" being brilliantly rendered and enthusiastically received. Vanando in his sketch The Park Pest, proves a clever and original ventriloquist; Marie Blythe sings talking songs pleasingly; Jack Hartley has some very funny patter and songs; Lew Peterman tells some quaint Hebrew stories; Evelyn and Norrie in a capital sketch, Set a Thief——, are good; the Sisters Belmont are smart dancers; Frank Boyce is a neat vocal comedian; and Herma, in a strength act, is excellent. Amusing pictures complete.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—An enthralling drama, The Old Home, is presented here this week by Mr. Roland Yorke's company. It is capitally rendered by a cast headed by Mr. Charles Franmore, who is excellent as Daddy Dean, and Miss Gertrude Bonser, who plays Hazel Dean, the heroine, in sympathetic and charming style. Mr. John B. Shinton as the heroic parson, the Rev. Eric Armstrong, acts consistently well, and a remarkably effective foil is provided by Mr. Roland Yorke (the author) as the villainous Lord Avondale. Excellent fun is added by Mr. Fred L. Connynghame as Sam Adams and Miss J. W. Braithwaite as Bridget Donoghan; while Miss Mattie Crawford is commendable in the smaller rôle of Polly Popp.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The places of honour here this week are worthily occupied by Oswald Williams, the famous illusionist; Walter Howard's company in The Last Hope, a somewhat improbable incident; and the Stockham Grecian Band of accomplished lady instrumentalists. Notable turns are added by Walter Bellonini, the well-known expert juggler, and W. J. Churchill, the popular comedian; while other interesting items are Lil O'Gorman, the tall comedienne; the Four Figaros, with their feathered assistant, in a comedy dancing act; Duncan and Godfrey, the popular Cockney sketch artists; Fayre and Manning, the two in green; and Arthur Astill, the whistling mimic.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Neil Kenyon is very much to the front here in quaint Scottish character studies, his Dunrobin "Postie" being particularly fine. The great Lumars go through a clever acrobatic act, and are well received; Barrington scores in a capital act at the piano; Victor Newman is deservedly appreciated for imitations of famous actors, his Tree impersonation being excellent; the Sixteen Mystic Hussars are highly successful in a well-conceived military novelty; some expert dancing is done by John Tiller's Dainty Dutch Girls; the Bogannys, lunatic bakers, are comedy Risleyists of marked ability; Jean Macduff is a pleasing Scotch comedienne; and the Musical Silvo gives a delightful musical turn.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—The peerless Tortajada tops the bill here successfully; and Jordan and Harvey, the well-known Hebrew comedians, are also prominent. A remarkably fine acrobatic turn is given by the Pasquali Brothers; Joe Peterman's company in The Singing Savants are enjoyable; and other good turns are Natalia and Diana, aerial gymnasts; Rita and Mack, comedy acrobats; Wilson Hallett, the popular child mimic; Margaret Ismay and her coons in song and dance; and Fraser and French, artists in wooden shoes. The pictures are particularly good this week.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—Mr. Edward Marris's pantomime Dick Whittington is again entertaining local audiences. The Waldrons are most prominent in the cast. The performance is given twice nightly to good houses.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—John Le Hay, ably assisted by Nora Le Hay and Charles Cautley, is here this week in his well-known sketch, Poor Beggar. Ernest Leigh, Loie Christine, and company are excellent in a romantic episode of the "'45," Bonnie Prince Charlie; and Rosie King and her "string of roses" sing and dance nicely in a neat scena. The Four Sisters Gilby give a very clever and charming musical turn; Millicent Healy, at the piano, is capital; whilst other enjoyable items are offered by Molly Moore, vocalist; Percy Bland, comedian; Lister Reekie, comedian; Andalusia Verdi, operatic vocalist; and the Bioscope.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Sandy McNab is responsible for much hearty laughter with his side-splitting sketch The Egyptian Mummy. Nat Clifford is as funny as ever, his songs and dances being highly successful; the Roxbys are smart speciality artists; Ethel Loftus, comedienne, aptly termed the "Irresistible," has an original style, and is well received; Tod Lowen is a breezy comedian; Major Moss sings old songs well; Phillips and Bristow are warmly applauded for their dexterity in wooden-shoe dancing; Hector and Dale are funny acrobats; and Will Willis is a neat comedian. A Mother's Fault is shown on the Bioscope.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baker. —Messrs. Cullen and Carthy's excellent pantomime The Babes in the Wood is once more with us. It is a capital show and played by a fine all-round company, including Bessie Cohen as Robin Hood, who sings and looks well; Cullen and Carthy as the Two Robbers; and Dolly Cullen and Elsie Jordison as the Babes. First-rate specialities are given by Les Belles Americaines, the Melbahs, and Little Cluley. Good houses are the rule.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company has been appearing this week in the sporting drama The Way of the World. The appearance of Miss Sydney Crowe as Lady Adela Hardy evokes hearty applause; whilst the portrayal of Cecil Hardy by the capable hands of Mr. Herbert Skardon. Mr. Victor Gordon plays with marked ability the important part of Captain Fred Slade; an interesting character is that of Matthew Maylon, ably rendered by Mr. Clarence Temple; Horatio Bluff, by Mr. Lancelot Usher, is warmly appreciated; whilst as Joe Sparrow (with songs) Mr. D'Arcy Kelway proves highly humorous. Mr. Pat Quinn does some good work as Sir John Hardy; and the part of Kate Montague is ably presented by Miss Crawford. As Pollie Bell Miss Violette Vivienne makes the most of her opportunities in the rôle of Mlle. Bellini, the champion strong woman; Miss Marie Marsh, as little Eric Malyon, proves quite a favourite.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—There is a reversion again to the variety programme, the contributors to which include Arayama, a clever wire-walker and equilibrist; Queenie Dell, comedienne and dancer; Russell Carr, the military ventriloquist; the Frohmans, in their musical act; Hardie Palm, comedian; and the Claymore Trio, comedy club manipulators, jugglers, and dancers.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The pantomime Cinderella is presented by Mr. James Kiddie's company. Miss Hettie Gale is the Cinderella, and pleases with her charming impersonation; Mlle. de Rose wins admiration as the Prince; and Miss Edie May makes a delightful Dandini. The Sisters Maud and Ethel have amusing representatives in W. G. Wesley and Harry Bliss; and Mr. Joe Huda is a smart Pimples.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Arthur Watson and Flo Stanley are here this week in their musical and comedy sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, their singing and dancing being greatly admired. Harry Reynolds's minstrels provide an enjoyable turn. Other interesting items are contributed by Fremel and Fremel, eccentrics; the Sisters Terry, comediennes and dancers; Clevetto, dancing juggler; Vendome and Chase, in a new act, Different Styles of Dancing; and T. E. Johnstone, vocalist and mimic.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—On Monday night Mr. Fred J. Webb's company opened a week's engagement with A Knight in Armour. Mr. Fred J. Webb makes a sinister Frank Milbourne, his accomplice in wickedness, Olive, being well portrayed by Miss M. Danvers Smith; Miss P. Nanton has a sympathetic rôle in Florrie; Miss Lallah Price is a capital Lady Priscilla; Mr. Clive Hall is highly successful as James Milbourne; Messrs. Louis Nanton and Will Henderson cause much amusement as Bill Newton and Dominic Domino respectively. Songs and dances are plentiful, and are well received. The Hour of Her Triumph was billed for the last three nights of the week.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Miss Maud Hildyard's company is this week presenting The Great Awakening. Miss Maud Hildyard plays up to her reputation, and gives a magnificent and forceful study of the adventuress, Lola Selby; Mr. Wallis Clark displays ability as James Selby; the rôles of Sir Henry and Jack Merton are cleverly sustained by Mr. Bernard Copping; the adventurer, Guy Rogan, is capably personified by Mr. Gordon Laws; Captain Lambert has an able exponent in Mr. Chas. Ashwell; Miss Lilian Deane is a sympathetic Molly; and enjoyable comedy is provided by Mr. Willie Scott (Billy Brass) and Miss Isa Bellington (Selina Worts). The play is capitally staged.

New Picture Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—The programme this week is up to the usual standard of excellence, and includes the following films amongst others: Antony and Cleopatra, Indian's Honour, Picturesque Holland, Drama of Country Life, Cabin Boy's Sister.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — Opera House. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. John Tiller's company occupies the boards here this week with Red Riding Hood, an enjoyable entertainment. Mr. Will Lytton as Johnny Stout and Mr. Martin Adeson as the Dame are very amusing comedians; Miss Nancy Hearne makes a dashing Prince; and the dainty Manchester Mites are very pleasing. Miss Millie Williams and Mr. Sidney Vincent are successful in their Apache dance; and the Poppy Quartette give some clever dancing.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. Tom Watts's company give an admirable representation here this week of East Lynne. Mr. Edmund Kennedy is a fine Archibald Carlyle; and Lady Isabel is capably played by Miss Julie Kennard. Mr. Frank G. Bayley gives an admirable performance of Captain Thorn; and Mr. Tom Watt as Lord Mountsevern, Mr. Frederic Jacques as Justice Hare, and Mr. R. Cousens as Richard, are all that can be desired. Miss Lilian Mason is delightful as Cornelia Carlyle, and Miss Ida Heron pleasing as Barbara Hare. A welcome vein of humour is introduced by Mr. Joe Rowland, who gives an amusing impersonation of P.C. Bullock.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Fred Karno's Early Birds are again on a visit; Blake and Granby provide a humorous duologue; and the Zenary Brothers exhibit great skill in their hand-balancing act. Martin D. Pitts is an excellent vocalist; and Ernie Mayne is very amusing. The Sages are good; and the Four Breens give a clever juggling act. Adey Spence, Kisbey, and the Sages also add to the programme.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—Gwennie Llewellyn, a clever vocalist, tops the bill here; Joe Almasio, the jumping juggler, does some smart feats; and Hamilton Hill, the Australian baritone, in his latest songs, has a great reception. Other turns include Lotto, Lilo, and Otto, Jennie Hartley, the Westbrooks, Ada Cerito, and Talbot and Pearce.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company is paying a return visit in The Coal King. Mr. Alderson gives a strong and convincing rendering of the young mine manager, Tom Robertson; Mr. Escott is excellent in the somewhat unsavoury rôle of Walter Hartford; Mr. Frank Dalton is to be congratulated upon his finished impersonation of the sub-manager, make-up and mannerisms being equally excellent; Grace Shirley has an ideal exponent in Miss Winifred Love; Miss Joan Wellman does some good character work as Mad Ann; Sir Reginald Hartford is convincingly rendered by Mr. Ulick Burke; and there is a strong comedy element, in which Mr. Sam Roberts and Miss Max Hinton are seen and heard to advantage as Jim Williams and Araminta Green respectively.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Although in the ninth week of its run, Aladdin is still going as strong as in the first week of its existence. Owing to continued indisposition Miss Violet Lloyd is still absent from the cast, her part in the meanwhile being filled by Miss Constance Hyem. Miss Hyem's impersonation of Aladdin could scarcely be improved upon, her delightfully charming style and impulsive vivacity immediately winning her a place in the affections of Tyneside, and adding yet another factor to the almost phenomenal success of the pantomime. Happy Fanny Fields as Gretchen, Miss Maud Thorne as the Princess, Miss Florence Hersee as Pekoe, and Miss Doris Dean as Cheeki are all now established favourites, and the humour of Harry Tate, Malcolm Scott, and Regan and Ryan continues bright and breezy.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. How the intensity of her acting being well marked; Mr. Robert Hilton handles the part of Cardinal Richelieu with tact and considerable effect; Mr. Reginald P. Lamb as Captain Larolle succeeds in a manner beyond doubt in a very difficult rôle; Lieutenant Manet finds a capable exponent in Mr. Norman Leslie; while Mr. F. Ambrose Flower was seen to great advantage as Sir Thomas Brunt. Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips makes the most of Mme. de Cocheforet, and a really clever study of Clon (a dumb servant) is that submitted by Mr. G. N. Smaith. The minor parts are all well sustained. The Adventure of Lady Ursula is also being staged during the week.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's No. 1 company is appearing here this week in The Old Folks at Home. Mr. H. E. Herberte and Miss Maud Warburton in the principal parts are decidedly good.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—The pantomime Dick Whittington concludes a successful run here this week, and among the principals who have enhanced their already great reputations mention must be made of Miss Florrie Gallimore as Dick, Miss Josie Delaine as Alice, and Mr. H. O. Wills as Idle Jack.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Amongst the many good things here this week, De Gracia's performing elephants provide a remarkable exhibition of animal sagacity and training; the Howard Brothers juggle with banjoes in most intricate fashion, and also play with much taste. Perhaps the funniest item on the bill is Adam the Second, a creation for which Barton and Ashley are responsible. Another capital turn is that of Howell and Scott in Hebrew cake-walks and dances; whilst Herbert Darnley's comedy company are seen to great advantage in the Oriental farce The Mandarin. Madge Temple, the musical comedy queen, is always pleasing with her delightfully-rendered songs, and the Three Prestons, mirth creators, George Young, the blind musician, Harry Herbert, comedian, and Maudie Francis all contribute to the all-round excellence of the programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Margaret Cooper, vocalist, heads an excellent bill this week, and other artists appearing are "Carlton," Zona Vevey, Edward Jose, Reg Beauchamp, Mons. Payer, the Three Sisters Allison, and W. E. Gillen.

SKATING RINK, EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—Manager, Mr. Fred B. Crowe.—The enterprising management have arranged to hold a masked and costume carnival, where skaters will represent historical or other characters of interest. Numerous and costly prizes will be given, and are now on view at the Rink. The attendance during the past week has been as numerous as ever.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Sins of Society is being played here by Mr. F. W. Bolam's company. Miss Vita Spencer as Lady Goldbury captivates the audience from the start; as James Hogg Mr. Edward Lewis wins admiration; and Miss Grace E. Leslie's Lady Marion Beaumont presented a remarkably fine impersonation, depicting almost every phase of human emotion. Other prominent characters are Mr. E. Vassall Vaughan as Sir Dorian March, and Mr. Fredk. Annerley as Mr. Morris, the latter being the most merciless moneylender in life. Mr. Arthur Ransome's Mr. Theseger is a studied interpretation; Miss Beatrice Hodgson's Lady Gwendoline Ashley is a finished piece of acting; and Miss Janet Hudson as Caroline, Duchess of Danesbury, exhibits cynicism and hauteur. The staging is excellent, and it might be added that Mr. Arthur Livingstone's make-up as President Fallières provided a living representation of the head of the French Republic.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—A strong programme is presented here this week, in which top place is assigned to a capital musical farce, Passing the Time, in which the principal characters are taken by Miss Mabel Lait and Mr. Daley Cooper, and by which a rare feast of fun is provided; Leipzig mystifies the audience with a series of astounding feats; a pretty turn is provided by the Garden of Girls; and Arthur Aldridge made splendid use of a rich tenor voice. Wood, Wells, and Wilkins, in a vocal sketch, The Piano Tuner, are entertaining; Richard Crompton, character vocalist, and Tom Moore, comedian, fully deserved the warm applause accorded them; and a dramatic series of pictures, The Count of Monte Christo, shown on the Bioscope complete the bill.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Frederick Melville's company, with Her Forbidden Marriage, which has drawn good houses. As George Madison Mr. Henry Lonsdale gives an admirable interpretation of the part; Mr. Louis Hector as Charles Devereux has a part to his evident liking; Mr. Wilfred Mansfield as Sir George Lancaster displays ability; Mr. Harry Milton makes the most of John William; and Mr. Fred De Vere gives a clever representation of Timothy Tuttutt. Miss Grace Emery as Patty Lovejoy scores a well-deserved success; Miss Grace Lester proves herself a capable actress as the Mother Superior; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as Lucy is worthy of much praise; and Miss Florence Hunt is an effective Lady Lucretia.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The star turn here is provided by the Four Elwyns, in their vocal scena, "Down in the Mine," which has been heartily greeted; Les Wambas, gymnasts and comedy musicians, introduce a smart act; Mr. Jack North, comedian, has made a hit; Carrie and Beatie, speciality artists, introduce their clever dog "Spot"; Raynor and Reece, in their scena, Early Closing Day, are clever; and the animated pictures are up to the usual standard.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here this week in Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt is excellent as Anthony Raybrook; Miss Ada M. Ryder as Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh acts most charmingly; Mr. C. Burdon is suitable as Geoffrey Waring; and Mr. Percy Dawson is successful as Willie. Miss Susie Bevan and Mr. F. C. Imbert create amusement in their respective parts.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. J. Collins's excellent pantomime Puss in Boots is here this week, and meets with much approbation. Mr. Wyn Weaver is excellent as King Komilfo, while Mr. Bobby Hall creates fun as the Widow Dolores. Mr. Arthur Watts as Sancho and Mr. Algernon Lea as Pancho do well; Mr. Harry Seymour is very good as Grimalkin, the cat; and the same may be said of Messrs. Bert Goodwin and Len Hammond as the Bull. Messrs. Ferris and Farnley appear as Bilbalio and Jobalio with credit; Miss Eva Ellis is a dainty Princess Carita; Miss Elsie Don deserves praise as Lola; Miss May Otto makes an impressionable Perdita, the Fairy; Miss Ethel Beech is a charming Juan, and is well received throughout. Special praise should be given to Collins' Sextette of expert dancers, whose efforts are most pleasing; and the same may be said of the Eight Gems, juveniles. The scenery, dresses, and the songs throughout are admirable.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—The roller skating continues to be well patronised.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The New Era pictures continue attractive.

BANK PLAIN ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The animated pictures here are well supported.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Thief is being presented here this week, and Mr. George Alexander's company play this powerfully-written piece with the highest credit to themselves. Miss May Congdon gives the fullest expression to the violent emotions of the unhappy and harassed Marise, and her work in the second act, when confronted with her guilt by her husband, is a great dramatic effort. As Richard Chelford Mr. Grendon Bentley acts with a degree of earnestness and intensity that grips his audience; Mr. Gerald Ames plays with quiet reserve and seriousness as Raymond Leyton; and Mr. Alfred Sugg achieves success in his portrayal of the somewhat unfledged Harry Leyton. Mr. Cyril Cattley well emphasises the stern and dictatorial Mr. Protheroe; Miss Mary Dibley makes a graceful Isabel Leyton; and Mr. Frank Elton is satisfactory as a servant. The play is preceded by The Nursery Governess, delightfully rendered by Miss Elsie Davison, and Messrs. Percy Marmont, Cyril Cattley, and Frank Elton.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Robinson Crusoe has continued to attract large and appreciative audiences. The company is a good one, and Miss May Mars and Miss Nancy Thornton have become great favourites. The creation of laughter and fun are in the capable hands of Mr. Arnold Richardson, Mr. Ivan Berlyn, and Mr. Jack Lennol, who have all been most successful. The comedy acrobatics of Elton and Elma have added no little to the pantomime's success, and the dancing of the Brewster Troupe, led by Miss Kitty Brewster, is all that could be desired.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Ernest Shand, in new songs and a change of costume, is delighting audiences this week, and his humorous patter adds to the hilarity. Zeynard's Lilliputians are an entertaining and clever set of people, whose feats are watched and vociferously applauded by an enthusiastic house. A turn of exceptional interest is the "talk" of Mr. Frederick Villiers, the war correspondent, on some episodes in his career, added pleasure being given by a number of excellent photographs. Alexander Dagmar scores in "A marriage of Mayfair"; Albertus and Miller gain hearty recognition in an American eccentricity; the gymnastic act of the Trentanovi Sisters is well done; Takio is a smart Japanese mimic; Amy Anderson and company, in a musical comedy act, and Phil Parsons, comedian, are duly rewarded; and the Bioscope presents an excellent set of films.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Departing from their usual fare, the management this week rely upon only two variety turns and a gorgeous spectacular pantomime. The first of the turns is Capt. Roberts, trumpeter, acrobat, balancer, &c., who, with the aid of ponies, dogs, &c., presents a creditable act; and the other is the comedy acrobatic sketch of Lanos and Montes. The pantomime is The Forty Thieves, and with Bob Selvidge as Ali Baba the fun is fast and furious and the laughter loud and prolonged. The Sisters Tree as Captain and Lieutenants look very charming, and enthusiastically work to make the pantomime "go"; Mr. Jack Waller lends valuable assistance as Hasserac; and Miss Poppy Holland achieves success as Zaide. Chris Le Brun is very good as the Donkey, and all the other parts are capably looked after. The programme is brought to a conclusion by the usual Barrascope pictures.

MECHANICS' HALL.—Miss Muriel Pratt, assisted by Miss Barbara Thornley, presented an interesting dramatic recital last week in the Mechanics' Hall, Nottingham, and the large audience gave an enthusiastic welcome to this talented young artist. The items embraced some well-known poems, including Tennyson's "The Lady of Shalott," Edgar Allan Poe's "The Bells," and "The Confessional" of Robert Browning, in all of which Miss Pratt acquitted herself with distinction. A dainty little dance was introduced at the end of Sir Walter Scott's "Young Lochinvar," and Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith," as a whistling solo, quite brought down the house. Miss Barbara Thornley accompanied with taste, and also rendered pianoforte solos by Beethoven and Chopin.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Merry Widow is providing a rare treat for playgoers here this week. Miss Daphne Glenne in the title-rôle sings and acts with pleasing effect; Mr. Alec Worcester as Prince Danilo is exceedingly good; Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter's study of Baron Popoff is productive of first-rate comedy; Mr. Harry Emeric as Nisch is delightfully droll, and, together with Frou-Frou (Miss Mabel May), a graceful and clever dancer, gives some remarkable examples of the art of dancing; Mr. Cecil Warwick cleverly depicts General Novakovitch; Miss Violet Hobson as Natalie is very pleasing, and her lover, Camilee de Jolidan, is capably presented by Mr. Arthur Geary, whose fine tenor voice is heard to advantage. The play is mounted and staged in first-rate style.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—The popular Sabina is here this week, and is well received. The Sisters Carlton meet with great success; Miss Nancy Cuthbert adds to the enjoyment of the programme with new numbers; and the pictures are still to the fore.

OLDHAM.—NEW GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company occupy the boards here with The Dairymaids. Miss Isa Bowman as Peggy is most delightful, singing and acting with much verve; Miss Vera Crichton as Winifred uses her sweet voice with telling effect; Miss Carrie Lacey is fine in the part of Lady Brudenell; Miss Hazel as Helen is highly successful; Miss Lucy Edwin is very clever as Miss Penelope Pyechase; whilst Miss G. Silvani as Eliza, the maid-of-all-work, was appreciated, her acting being done in a vivacious manner. Mr. D. Agar as Joe Mivens has a part which fits like a glove, and the fun wages fast and furious whilst he occupies the stage. Mr. N. Keys as Lieut. Sam Brudenell also does well, his dancing being much appreciated; Mr. P. Marshall at Dr. O'Byrne is very smart; and Mr. J. H. Willis is capital as Lieut. Meredith. The chorus is an exceptionally strong one, and renders much service under the able directorship of Mr. Albert Bartlett. Mr. G. Gray is the most courteous of acting-managers.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Woman Pays, played by Mr. Frank Thorne's company, opened to good business on Monday evening. Mr. Phil Harper as Sid Armstrong, the fisherman, gives a vigorous impersonation; Mr. John Davidson as the villainous steward, Roger Marchant, acts well, his victim, Nell Morland, being played by Miss Kate Blair in a manner which gains applause. Miss Maud Russell makes a successful Madge Armstrong; Miss Florence Thorne is excellent as Tabitha; Mr. Berresford Innes as Cyrus Treadgold is all that can be desired; Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Luke Morland acts capably; Mrs. Porteous does well as Nurse Agnes; Mr. Frank M. Thorne as Micky introduces some clever comedy, and he is well supported by Miss Amena Walton as Polly. Mr. Chas. Arthur as Doctor Trevor and Mr. A. T. Jones as Captain Holt are excellent; and the remaining parts are well played.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Colonel Gaston Bordeverry proves his right to the title of world's champion by some marvellous shooting. The famous Eighteen Lancashire Singers provide a rich treat to lovers of music; J. C. Piddock and company in The Capture of Venus, a musical fantasy, introduce some good singing and smart comedy; Lillian performs some smart and daring feats on the cycle very neatly; Mollie Seymour sings and plays the violin cleverly; Marguerite Arnold is capital as a vocal comedienne; Fred Elton sings well in his scena; the Dandinis in a new comedy juggling act are very clever; Wat Tyler is a good comedian with a fine voice; and an amusing picture on the Bioscope concludes.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Tschin-Maa and his seven real Chunchusens provide smart Asiatic magic, also clever juggling, with music and equilibristic feats, with success. Frank Ellison and company present My Lady Betty, a romantic comedy episode, with good results; the Braggs Trio are capital novelty comedy acrobats; Nash and Noel are very amusing with dancing and smart cross-talk; Johnson and De Vere in a clever cycle act on the wire are excellent; the Three Spoons juggle well; and Oliver Martin is a good comedian. The Palace pictures are again a feature. Marcus Boyle deputises for Billy Williams with great success.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Cassie Walmer, a popular favourite, is here in her well-known imitations, and is well received. R. Stein-Eretto and company are seen in their wonderful hand-balancing act; the Four Musical Watsons have a really clever musical and comedy turn; Steve Bartle takes well in well-played concertina solos; Howe and Edie are smart comedy acrobats; Hunter and Maris also do well in a refined comedy novelty; Argo is capital in his imitations; and Day and Knight sing well in a musical episode. An amusing picture on the Dottoscope completes the bill.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—Excellent business continues to be the rule, crowded houses being attracted nightly, the pictures shown being of the very best obtainable. The World in Motion shows both dramatic and humorous films, including The Stepmother, A Fisherman's Sweetheart, Baby's Chum, Our Cook's "At Home" Day, Calorific Chest Protector, The Anonymous Letter, and others. Lester King is smart with his excellent singing.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company is here with The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Arthur S. Radcliff is conspicuously successful with his delightful impersonation of Dick Darville; Mr. Chas. Sims is capital as the brusque Irish Sergeant-Major Milligan; and Mr. Coningsby Brierly supplies a fund of merriment as Brown. As the Colonel, Mr. Percy Baverstock is very natural; Mr. Jack Leyland is effective as Sir Victor; Miss Maud Nichols does well as Mrs. Von Blitzen; Miss Dorothy Clarke is good as Antoinette; Miss Nora Morra is bright and entertaining as Polly; and Miss Una Palmer sings well and scores an undoubted success as Kate Lorrimer. Miss Sadie Thompson, solo dancer, is encored, and the Sisters English contribute specialities.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A highly creditable amateur production of The Duchess of Dantzic is being submitted here this week by the Paisley Opera Club. All the artists perform excellently, thanks, in great measure, to the able instruction of Mr. Charles Bonnett (late of Mr. George Dance's companies), who also acts as stage-manager.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris, the American comedy duo, are a capital leading attraction here this week, and J. W. Hall, comedian, is entertaining. Others who contribute to a first-rate programme are Harry Karr and Walter Kooney, comedians; Master Edward Frisby, the boy soprano; Charles J. Johnson, "the black diamond"; the Calcotts, in an episode, entitled Rags and Tatters; Leslie, Lynn, and Willie, in a medley of mirth and music; and Maude Elliston and company in the funny, farcical sketch Dobson's Day Off. The Hippodrome bioscope concludes.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Mr. Dickie Clare on a return visit with Lucky 'Liza is attracting large audiences. Mr. Clare is a host in himself, and performs admirably the triple part of Silas Slim, the Judge, and the French waiter. Peter Pettitoe and Barnaby Bladderwick, barristers, are well sustained by Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. Harry George; Mr. Bert Collins as Tompkins, the court usher, is very amusing; Mr. J. W. Forrest as William Biffins does well; Mr. Martyn Alwyn as Paul Pettitoe, a promising youth, is very successful; pretty dances are introduced by the Astor Trio, Misses Louie Astor, Lily Bell, and Edna Evelyn; Miss Evelyn Wood portrays Sadie Pots, a cute miss, in a capable manner, as also does Miss Helen Douglass as Marie Pettitoe, described as "a gentle creature"; Miss Violet Hurley ably acquits herself in the part of Verginia Blatherwick; as Lucky 'Liza (Eliza Bird), Miss Vesta Brownie gains unbounded admiration, and the company work well together in the interests of laughter.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping the bill here this week is Henry Coutts in his marvellous quick-change act, entitled Outflanked; Miss Joan Deering earns praise as a clever violinist; Nellie Ridgway is her comedy entertainment on the wire is deservedly appreciated; Rek and Ford evoke laughter by their cross-talk; Minnie Love is a charming serio and dancer; France and Steward in their comedy 100 to 1 Chance; Arnette, the musical expert, and the Four Blackbirds are also in the bill. The Tivoli-scope concludes.

PERTH.—THE PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The annual week of grand opera by the Moody-Manners company is being celebrated here this week. On Monday a perfect performance of Gounod's Faust was given before a crowded audience, with Mr. F. J. Hargrave as Faust, Mr. William Anderson as Mephistopheles, Mr. Charles Moorhouse as Valentine, Mr. H. Mann as Wagner, Miss Rosina Beynon as Siebel, Miss V. Barry as Martha, and Miss Rosa O'Farrell as Marguerite. The piece was artistically rendered and most effectively staged. The chorus was numerous and well balanced, and the augmented orchestra was under the able direction of Mr. Cuthbert Hawley. The week's productions include Madame Butterfly, Il Trovatore, Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana—Saturday's matinée, Madame Butterfly—and The Bohemian Girl.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—The big attraction here this week is furnished by the Schiavonys, including Miss Ella. Little Zola, the unusual comedian, keeps the audience in continual laughter; Ada Martini, in clever songs and dances, is well received; Belle Braham presents something new in pictorial songs; Harry Carsdale, "farmyard linguist," is a mimic extraordinary; Phil Bransby, coster comedian, gives a good turn; and Clara Alexander, in her lifelike impersonations of old Uncle Jake, the plantation negro, is deserving of praise. The Hippodrome pictures finish a capital programme.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera Company are drawing enthusiastic houses. On Monday The Gondoliers was performed, and the entertainment was in every way excellent, principals of undeniable merit being supported by a hardly less capable chorus. As Gianetta Miss Clara Dow displayed a remarkably sweet voice; Miss Beatrice Meredith has an attractive style and manner as Tessa, and her song "When a merry maiden marries" was loudly encored; Miss Ethel Morrison was an aristocratic Duchess of Plaza Toro; and Miss Mabel Graham as Casilda had a particularly graceful style. Mr. Strafford Moss impersonated Marco Palmieri, and scored heavily with the ever-popular "Take a pair of sparkling eyes," to which his admirable tenor did full justice; Mr. Leicester Tunks, who has a voice of excellent range and power, was particularly good as Guiseppe; Mr. Fred Billington's portly mien is well suited to the Official Inquisitor, and his songs were re-demanded; and Mr. Chas. R. Walenn as the impecunious Duke of Plaza-Toro was genuinely amusing. Iolanthe, Mikado, Pinafore, Yeomen of the Guard, and Patience are also in the week's bill.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Kellinos are starred for the week, and their acrobatic turn is characterised by skill, precision, and daring; the Seven Merry Marvels are a well-balanced combination of musicians and vocalists; Black Justice, with Big Ben Brown and Little George Le Clerq as the principal figures, proves still popular; the Woodwards are accomplished equilibrists; and Tom Joy is a quaint comedian. The remaining numbers are furnished by Will Musgrave, Hunter and Williams (with their Apache dance), and Will Mitcham (vocalist).

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—The Paul Kramer Troupe of head-balancers and gymnasts form the principal attraction here this week. Miss Martha Kramer is a prodigy of strength and grace. Martin Henderson, though blind, discourses most excellent music with concertina and piano; Gilbert's dog and cat circus is a smart show; Miss Mamie Morris dances and sings enchantingly, a remark which applies equally to Miss Ivy Dene. The comedy element is in the hands of Jarvis and Julian and Dan Rodney; and, in addition, there are the Gelders, magicians, and Indiana, a very flexible little lady, all of whom gain a due meed of praise. The pictures, if anything, improve.

PONTYCYMMER.—BODIE'S HIPPODROME AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Dr. Walford Bodie; General-Manager, Mr. Tom. N. Mills.—Miss Rosa Moncrieff's Bells of Old York company occupied the boards here for the early part of the week, The Curate being staged the latter half. Miss Moncrieff's songs were very happily rendered, and the duet entitled "Tommy Atkins" earned well-deserved applause. Mr. Rass Challis gave an admirable portrayal of a stalwart clergyman, and the heroine was well played by Miss Nellie de Lacey.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—A return visit is being paid by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in Edged Tools. Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is again seen in the character of Victor Durnovo, and is as successful as ever in his portrayal of the cowardly and treacherous half-caste. Sir John Meredith is in the very capable hands of Mr. J. A. Rosier; Mr. William F. Grant is quite as effective as Jack Meredith (his son) as he was in his original part of Sir John; Mr. Chas. Hartopp makes a frank and manly Guy Oscard; Mr. J. Graham Pockett is a capable Maurice Gordon; Miss Marie Leonhard is again seen to great advantage as Jocelyn Gordon, whom she presents in a most natural and winsome manner; Miss Alice Esther Belmore is to be congratulated upon her very clever impersonation of the heartless flirt, Millicent Cheyne; Miss Marion Fawcett is also excellent as Lady Cantourne; while a clever rendition of Marie is given by Miss Violet Thorold. Minor parts are capably enacted by Miss Fanny Evans and Miss Emilee Finch and Messrs. Charles Conway and Wentworth Graeme. The production is well staged, and was much appreciated by the audience.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is appearing here in Shiela Walsh's play Mother. Miss Walsh sustains the rôle of Nellie Fairweather in a manner which calls for the highest praise; Mr. H. Foxwell makes a cheery skipper Fairweather, and acts with much vigour; Mr. Alexander is a manly Frank Rodney; Mr. Sydney Leighton gives a clever portrayal of the unprincipled Stephen Carrington; Miss Bluementhal makes a lovable Martha; and Miss Nancy Mitchell is a vivacious Polly. Little Miss Marie Holmes as Little May proves herself a clever child actress; Miss Kathleen Hunt is capital as Mrs. Bagot; and Miss Zara Leigh is to be commended for her clever portrayal of Vesta L'Estrange. Mr. Teddy Myles as Tommy Noblets causes much mirth; and Mr. Fred Rivers is decidedly good as Jasper Randon. Mr. Roy Gordon is an excellent Crump; while as Biggs (a waiter) and the Rev. John Strong Mr. Jas. Swinbanks and Mr. Harrison James are equally at home. The play is capitally staged.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Pantomime again holds sway here, this week's attraction being Harry Burns's Robinson Crusoe. In addition to the pantomime, the Yankee-Doodle Girls contribute some speciality dances; and the Juggling McBans give a very successful act. Mlle. du Roche is a sprightly Robinson and Miss Marie Belle an attractive Pollie Perkins; Mr. Henry Curwen is a comical Dame Crusoe; Mr. Arthur Aiston is well suited as Will Atkins; and Messrs. Edwin and Harry Ramsay as Captain Cuttle and Captain's Mate are a clever pair of knockabouts; Mr. Billy Hubbard is good as Man Friday; Miss Kitty Trewhitt as Tommy Bowline and Ruby Aiston as Bessie are both successful; and Messrs. Geo. Hastings and Geo. Harkaway as the Pirates cause much hilarity. The chorus is tuneful, and the scenery pretty, and the pantomime is undoubtedly popular. The excellent orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. F. Dexter.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—The Graphic Life Motion pictures exhibited this week at the Royal Palace Theatre have been better than ever, and their popularity has been most marked. Among the films shown has been one depicting last Saturday's cup tie between Ramsgate Town F.C. and Bromley. One of the leading features of the past week's programme has been the successful appearance of Roxborough and Wright, sketch artists of exceptional ability. Mr. Mansell is receiving widespread support in his arrangements for a "Territorial Recruiting Night."

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Pete, the popular Lyceum adaptation from Hall Caine's "Manxman," is being presented here this week by a very capable company, with Mr. Frank E. Petley in the title-rôle, and Miss Helena Millais as Kate, both of whom act in powerful and artistic style, and are well supported by Mr. Arthur Burne, who gives a clever impersonation of Philip Christian. Miss Lucy Murray, who is a very bright and attractive Nancy, and Mr. Frank Stone, who depicts the character of Cæsar Cregeen very effectively. The remaining parts are also all well filled. A special matinée was given on Wednesday to a good house.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Jolly Jimmy Walker is a very droll comedian; the Monctons appear in a clever and humorous comedy episode, Two in a Flat; Kitty Wager, comedienne, is well appreciated; Fred Poplar is a "poplar" comedian; the Four Mimosa Girls, vocalists and dancers, provide an attractive turn; Bains and Reed give a very clever tumbling performance; A. C. Lilly and company produce a stirring military episode, entitled Drummed Out; and the entertainment concludes with some excellent bioscopic views of the King's recent visit to Berlin.

SMALL TOWN HALL.—Mr. Waller Jeffs is concluding a month's visit here with his popular select pictures. The show has been very extensively patronised and greatly appreciated.

ROCHDALE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The New East Lynne is well staged and played by a most capable company here this week. Mr. Richard Nugent is prominent with a capital impersonation of Murty O'Flynn; Mr. Fred Terriss portrays with distinction the part of Archibald Carlyle; and Mr. Leonard Booker cleverly fills the rôle of Francis Levison; Mr. Wm. Lowe is heard to advantage as Justice Hare, and Mr. Edgar J. Coyne acts well as Richard Hare; Mr. Dill is in the safe hands of Mr. Byron Pedley, and Mr. M. Talbot makes the most of Otway Bethel; Miss Sophy Shenton makes a typical Cornelia Carlyle; Mies Madge Beresford acts with womanly feeling as Barbara Hare; and Miss Guinevere Shilton enacts with skill Afy and Joyce Hallijohn; the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine is represented with telling effect by Miss Marion Lind.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Haley's Juveniles present a pretty spectacle, some capital songs and dances are given by the children, and a leading feature is a minuet, charmingly enacted in old English costumes, with limelight effects; Les Frasettis render some finely executed music on the violin, harp, and xylophone; the Brothers Idento are amusing and clever jugglers; the Three Pirmans are skilful on the horizontal bars; Whittle and Schofield, vocalists; Chas. Vincent, comedian; J. H. Ellis, comedian; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete an attractive bill of fare.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—Edward Crossland's Melody Makers in The Burglar's Dream submit some really fine vocalism; the Andos troupe of Japanese equilibrists, &c., perform some daring and clever feats; the Four Rio Brothers give a clever and refined exhibition of muscular skill; other turns are presented by Miss Eva Chadwick, soprano vocalist; McAleary Marvels, trick and barrel jumpers; Ralph and Nellie Howard, in a comedy sketch, Military Mad; Williams and Warden in Mr. Dooley; Gus Ryder, vocalist and whistler; and the Hippo pictures.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. J. H. Tomkinson's No. 1 Royal Gipsy company is this week paying a return visit. Specialities are introduced by La Vie in tableaux; Miss Elsie Rubina gives a clever turn in equipoise; Wee Winnie is a smart juvenile; and the Four Louberts, pleasing equilibrists, score in the comedy act Uninvited.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—The management present a strong bill this week. The Violas give a weird and mystifying turn; the Lannons are deservedly applauded; the Three Sisters Wynne give a finished vocal burlesque act; the Three Comedy Chanters bring down the house with humorous and harmonious interludes; Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, gives an interesting comedy turn; and Ford Williams is deserving of mention. Spangles and Sawdust in their comedy aerial act, and Messrs. George M. Marriott and company with The Maid of the Alps, are other attractions.

RUGBY.—CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Miss Lena Stanton and Harry Josephs' company is appearing this week with their pantomime Robinson Crusoe. Miss Lena Stanton as Robinson Crusoe is greeted with much applause; Miss Gertie Lovedale is a charming Polly; Miss Marie Gerrard an excellent Billy Taylor; Mr. Melville Page as Will Atkins is droll; Mr. F. Forms as Davy Jones does well; Mr. Vic Verney as King Kopem is amusing; Mr. Sidney Dean as Mrs. Crusoe is clever; and Little Keeno is welcomed heartily as Sunny Jim Crusoe.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE, LTD.—Lessee, Mr. D. C. Mackenzie; General-Manager, Mr. E. A. Esmonde.—For the concluding three nights of last week we were favoured with a visit of His House in Order, presented by Mr. Herbert Ralland's company with pronounced success. The exacting part of Hilary Jesson fell to Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont, and admirably he interpreted it; Mr. J. Patrick Robertson as Filmer Jesson portrayed the "precise" husband ably; Mr. Langford Browne acted capably as Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Mr. Dudley Stuart gave a thorough rendering of Pryce Ridgeley; Mr. Randolph Reade's Major Maurewarde was an artistic study; the Dr. Dilnott of Mr. Richard Dalton and the Harding of Mr. L. Seth-Wallis were assumptions of no mean order; Miss Peggy Rae as the juvenile Derek Jesson gave evidence of much careful training; Miss Katie Neville was to the manner born as the French governess, Mlle. Thome; a perfect picture of the staid and severe Geraldine was that given by Miss Victoria Wray; Miss Avis Grahame gave an excellent rendition of the prim Lady Ridgeley; and the efficient work submitted by Miss Elsie Roberts as Nina added lustre to a pleasurable performance. This week Mr. Chas. Constant's pantomime Blue Beard was here for the first three nights. Miss Daisy Lake as Selim is strikingly effective; Fatima is entrusted to Miss Marie Duncan, a sweet singer of charming personality; Mr. Johnny Clegg as Sister Ann is extremely droll; Messrs. W. Harlin and B. Hanlon, ably seconded by Mr. Jack Palmer as Bamboozlum, Mr. Walter B. Frear as Pimpling, and Mr. Ellis Carlyle as Blue Beard, are also responsible for fun. The Fairy Queen finds a captivating representative in Miss Laura Wickenden.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Wilson Benge's company had a good reception on Monday, when they gave an excellent performance of Mr. C. Watson Mill's play, The Eve of Her Wedding. The part of the hero, George Tremain, is played with ability by Mr. Wilson Benge; while unstinted applause is earned by Miss Sadie Smith for her fine portrayal of Mavis Laverton. A capital Squire Laverton is that of Mr. Arthur Keand; Mr. Henry Danson is successful as Dick Laverton; Miss Florence Zillwood forcibly represents the adventuress, Rene de Telle; and villainy is also well simulated by Mr. Fred Lloyd as Dean Clifton. Some good comedy business is done by Mr. K. Arthur as Bill Grogg

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Valvero heads a very interesting programme, with his naval bombardment; Fred Maitland causes much laughter, with his Talked Out; Lillie Le Main, in "The old sundial," is also very good. Five Bombays, singers and speciality clog dancers, are much applauded. The other items include the Lovelaces, in illustrated American songs; Burns and Bentley, vaudeville artists; Mr. H. Thiessen, with his acrobatic dogs; Pueblo and Cropp (Bob and Katie), versatile Creole star artists; Syd Crossley, comedian; and Sullivan and Edwards, comedians and expert clog, &c., dancers.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—Twice nightly crowds are delighted with the animated pictures as follow:—Pretty Daisy Maid, Police Women, A Tour in Algiers, The Little Fiddler, 'Arry and 'Arriet, A House Full, Attack on the Mail, A Cruel Joke, and Two Pigtails. "Take me back to Old Kentucky" (illustrated) is well sung by Mr. Tom Sherlock.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Mr. George Robertson's company is here with A Message from Mars. Mr. Gordon Starkey made a faultless Horace Parker; Mr. Lionel Yaldwin, as the Messenger, looked most impressive; Mr. Percy Tyler was an appropriate tramp; and Mr. Burton W. Yaldwin was smart as Arthur Dicey; Miss Edith Ring as Minnie Templer looked very sweet and played her part in a fresh and dainty way; the Mrs. Clarence of Miss Edith Day was splendid; Miss Dorothy Cecil was amusing as Bella; Miss Parker was quite an interesting study in the hands of Miss Nora Kingsley.

SCARBOROUGH.—THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The leading attraction here is Sidney James' Strolling Players, a smart set who meet with conspicuous success; Alec Godfrey keeps the house in the best of humours; James Faure, Australian equilibrist, is exceptionally clever; and Sydney Brandon's dramatic character sketch from The Bells shows great skill. Miss Marion Fletcher is a pleasing vocalist; Vasey and Ramsey are clever and eccentric dancers; the Doriams are responsible for a marvellous exhibition of strength; and the Folleyettes are highly entertaining. Some capital pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Mr. Hamilton Stewart and company opened here on Monday with Sherlock Holmes, a play which is full of excitement throughout. As the detective, Mr. Hamilton Stewart is a splendid representative, his acting being irreproachable, and which the crowded audience was quick to appreciate; Miss Edith Vogue and Mr. Mark Draper did full justice to their parts of the Larabees; and Miss Bruce-Joy is successful as Alice Faulkner. The part of Professor Moriarty was skilfully portrayed by Mr. Robert Gilbert; and Mr. Arthur Shelton's Dr. Watson, Mr. Walter Chetham's Forman, Mr. Seton Bernard's Sidney Prince, Master Thomas Russell's Billy, and Miss Maisie Richardson's Therese were all most ably represented.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. L. Garside; Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Mr. Arthur Jones presents the emotional drama When Other Lips, and appears in the title-rôle, in which he meets with unqualified success; Miss Marie Dorentry deserves credit for her clever acting; and Mr. J. D'Alberti gives a good impersonation of the villain. Miss Lizzie Lennon, Mr. R. Webb, and Mr. O. Seymour contribute greatly to the success of the play.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—The House that Jack Built is being presented here this week by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company. The pantomime is exceedingly pretty and tuneful, and abounds in clever comedy. Miss Florence Taylor as Jack and Miss Evelyn Major as Jill earn great praise. Their singing as well as that of Miss Olive Purcell (the Fairy) is a feature. Doyle and Gibson as Scraggs and Scraggles are immensely funny and clever dancers. Mr. H. Hillerby is a comical Dame Durdy; as Harold and Percy, Mr. Paddy Sloan and Mr. Stanley Jefferson keep the fun going; Miss Gladys Wyse as Wee McGregor contributes to the humour with Scotch delineations. Specialities are given by Doyle and Gibson, the Forget-me-Not Quartette of dancers, Horace Hillerby, Florrie Edwards, and Wee Gladys Wyte.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Christian has paid many visits to this theatre, and the Lyceum version of Hall Caine's popular novel presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company on Monday was received with the old enthusiasm by a large audience. Mr. Roy Redgrave was admirable as John Storm, and his scenes with Glory, finely represented by Miss Daisy Scudamore, were received with great applause. Other well-played parts were Mr. Wilfred Moy's Horatio Drake, Mr. H. Hewitson's Lord Robert, Mr. T. Barry's Father Lamplugh, Mr. John J. Hooker's Canon Wealthy, Miss Mollie Hayden's Mrs. Callander, and Miss Cora Deane's Polly Love.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—Mr. Hart's successful annual, Goody Two Shoes, came to a finish here on Saturday amid a scene of great enthusiasm. Miss Olive Crellin, the refined and charming Prince; Miss Sylvia May, the pretty and tuneful Goody Two Shoes; Mr. Jack Pleasants, the quaint and laughable droll; the ladies of the corps de ballet; the well-trained and clever children; Mr. Marriott Edgar, the favourite representative of the old woman; Miss Irene Verona, the Baroness; and all the other performers received bouquets and presents from "kind friends in front." The excitement culminated with cheers for Mr. John Hart, Mr. T. F. Doyle, the veteran pantomime producer; Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont, the courteous general-manager of the Hart theatres; Mr. Henfrey Aldred, his active aide-de-camp; Mme. Louie, ballet mistress; and "good old Henry Dean," Sheffield's oldest and thoroughly respected chef d'orchestre. "Auld Lang Syne" concluded a glorious night of fun and good feeling. The dramatic season opened successfully on Monday, with Mr. Hill-Mitchelson's specially selected company in a new romantic play, The King and the Unknown Woman, with splendid scenery, uniforms, and appointments. Mr. Cyril Harrison supplies acceptable relief to a story of plot and passion by his clever light comedy acting in his original part of Captain Gara, and all the other artists are good.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. John Tiller's Little Red Riding Hood company is here. Extra interest is added to the ballets by a delightful exposition of the Italian school by Mlle. Kitty Papucci. Miss May Merry makes an ideal little heroine; Miss Jessie Templeton a handsome Prince, who sings tunefully; Miss Ivy Moore is a pretty Fairy, and is responsible for tastefully rendered ballads; Mr. Lawrence Barclay caused roars of laughter as Pretty Pet, and his well-known "Ballet Girl" song and dance again proved irresistibly funny. Mr. Teddy Gibbs as Boniface is a laugh-maker up to every trick of the low comedy trade. Mr. Benson Kleve acts in a powerful and melodramatic way as King Lupus, the Demon Wolf. The fun is kept going by Mr. Sam Mitchello as Oswald, Mr. C. K. Martinette as Trotters, and Mr. Fred Lawrence as Dr. Dignum. Miss Marie Bryan, an old local pantomime favourite, makes a comely Nanette; Miss May Sharples a prepossessing Captain Slasher and Miss Dot Henson as Mother Hood are excellent. Great praise is due to Mr. Herman Finck, conductor of the Palace Theatre, London, who has composed and arranged the ballet music.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The American vocalist and monologue artist, Miss Carrie De Mar, is the "top-liner." Mr. Ben Albert is here again, dry, crisply humorous, and philosophical withal. That recognised Sheffield favourite as child and woman, Miss Nellie Coleman, in her eccentric comedy songs, is well received; Miss May Edouin is a dainty and refined comedienne; Mr. Fred Edwards and company cause general hilarity in a comic interlude The Kleptomaniacs; and other acceptable turns are the Gems, Melia and Moyarabar, in a novel act; Cliff Dixo, the dandy; Mr. Billy French, and the Bioscope, with the King in Berlin and other topical subjects.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—At this spacious "palace of delight" are engaged the Six Brothers Luck, in their screaming comic absurdity Lift 'Ems, Limited; Rappo and Ella, in a beautiful and daring classical act of equipoise and graceful posturing; the Five Broadway Girls, in their diverting song and dance scena The Gibson Girls and the Crinoline Girls; the Four Jolly Bakers, comic Risley performers; Jock Whiteford, Scotch comic; Juno Salmo, "the demon dandy"; the Cecilias, instrumentalists, &c.; Stowe Brothers, musical artists; and the celebrated Klein Family, in their graceful and intrepid cycling feats. Some artistic pictures conclude the entertainment.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—The Raymond Bio-Tableaux Company, with new comical, fantastic, romantic, and topical films, continues to minister to the amusement desire of the Grand patrons.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—The London Animated Picture Company, with Samson, the Passion Play, and other long film dramas, continues its successful season.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Light variety fare is the attraction here this week. Miss Margaret Huntley and a company of comedians give a rollicking little comedy-sketch, entitled That Girl Carrots; Colquitt, the human kangaroo, astounds with his remarkable jumping feats; the Hulas are pleasing vocalists and expert dancers; W. G. Spry is droll in song and dance; Capner and Steele are capable character duettists; Miss Margaret Ogilvie, Australian soprano and comedienne, sings spiritedly; and the moving pictures are, as usual, of the best description.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Another pantomime occupies the boards here, the ever-welcome story of Dick Whittington being supplemented by bright catchy songs and music, witty sayings, and clever dancing. The production is in the hands of Mr. James Kiddie's capable company. Miss Lens Page is highly appreciated in the title-rôle for her singing and dancing; Miss Nelly Merton, a delightfully melodious Alice, is a great favourite; Miss Florence Hilton, also popular as Sir Algernon, scores well with her song "I'm afraid to come home in the dark." As the Fairy Queen Miss Nellie Storrie is decidedly good, and her singing of the well-known "Tiny seed of love" song wins much applause; Mr. Archie J. Milne is powerful as the evil genius; Mr. Fred Spencer as Dame Amelia, the Brothers Hannaway, Mr. George Rydon as Idle Jack, and Mr. Dennis McCarthy as the Alderman keep the audience in a state of hilarity. Dancing plays an important part in the production, and Miss Dorothy Dryden's Salome and other dances and numerous clever specialities attract particular attention. Mr. Bert Hudson as the Cat and Miss Gipsy Ray also add to the fun. The scenery is excellent.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Melodrama again reigns supreme, Mr. Douglas Bruce's company appearing in Walter Melville's success, The Girl Who Lost Her Character. The acting is good, and the production well liked.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Mr. Hermann E. Darewski, jun., is conducting "Bravo, Territorials!" a spirited march song. The song is sung by a vocalist whose name is not programmed, and the accompaniment is supplied by the A.M.U. military band. The Garricks, a smart and versatile quartette, supply a turn which is highly appreciated; Mario Santoi and her merry Japs are excellent in a delightful musical Japanese novelty; the Kirbys create great merriment; and others who do well are Deans and Wilton, comedy acrobats; the Two Rubies, duettists and dancers; the Betsons, comedy cyclists; and Rose Cass, comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Mouillot and W. de Frece; Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Captain Fred. Woodward's sea lions provide the star animal act, and prosper well. The Freire troupe of Risley acrobats, and Ike and Will Scott, comedians and dancers, supply smart turns; and others who appear are: Langslow, in a sharp-shooting act; Harold Heath, coon delineator; Phillips and Merritt, comedy duo; Lilian O'Brien, vocalist; and the Brothers Roland, equilibrists.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The third pantomime of the season was very well received on Monday, when Messrs. Austin and Dixon presented Mother Goose. The Belles of Elysium, a pleasing ballet, is ably led by Mlle. Le Mair. Singing honours are deservedly won by Miss Gertrude Bond and Mr. Nicklin Williams. Miss Mabel Austin impersonates Lubin with ability; and Miss Winnie Murray as Daisy is equally successful. Mr. Sydney James is responsible for a clever interpretation of the title-rôle; Miss Cissie Astbury as Annabel, and Mr. Ted Lockstone as Billy, sustain their parts vigorously; and Read and Wright are smart top-boot and pedestal dancers.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—The Babes in the Wood, which is the third Christmas production seen here this season, was presented to a large audience on Monday evening by Mr. Gar Kiddie's good all-round company. The pantomime is full of "go," and was very well played, the comedian parts and the excellent dancing being prominent features. Mr. Dan Tandy in the rôle of Sir Brokah de Pawn is distinctly successful, and highly humorous; Araminta Koffkake had a vigorous, clever, and amusing representative in Mr. Mark Stuart; Mr. Dawson Dewick did some commendable work in the part of Soft Sammy; Messrs. Conan and Doyle as Burgling Bill and Gentle George were highly diverting, and caused much merriment; the twin Sisters Mawdsley sustained the parts of Harold and Lucy most creditably; Miss Marion Scott presents an admirable and dashing impersonation of Robin Hood; Messrs. Taylor and Elliott as Flip and Flap, the Baron's pages, execute some capital dances; Miss Emmie Hands was well placed in the character of the fairy Sylvania; whilst Mr. Edwin Lambert as the demon Infernalito and Miss Margaret Cathcart as Maid Marion did exceedingly well. The remainder of the numerous cast had each capable representatives.

SOUTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—The Babes in the Wood is being presented here by Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's company. Miss Daisy Wood is seen to great advantage as Robin Hood, singing with a charm and brightness which enlist hosts of admirers. Admirable support is rendered by Miss Dolly Dodds as Maid Marian. Delightful portrayals of the Babes are given by Little Peggy McDonnell and Little Cissy Wyse; Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple evokes shrieks of laughter by his eccentricities; the Lucinda of Mr. Jimmie Watson is a droll performance; and the efforts of Messrs. Graham and Barron (Willing and Weary), Mr. Neil Hardy (Baron), and Mr. Harry Leander (Friar Tuck) are well directed. Miss Jenny Hughes is a graceful Fairy. Specialities are introduced, and the powerful and spirited chorus is assisted by an excellent augmented orchestra, under the experienced bâton of Mr. H. B. Levy.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F Thompson.—A good programme here is headed by the Selbinis, who give a wonderful display of trick cycling; Mona Garrick contributes excerpts from various plays; a smart, neat dancing absurdity is contributed by Will and Alice Vokes; George Westland swells the ranks of Scotch comedians with successful songs and dances. Other good items are Sisters Grosvenor, melodious singers; Ethel Bourne, vocalist and violinist; Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo piccaninnies, assisted by Miss Lily Vine; Ted E. Box, comedian and whistler, and the Bioscope.
